Plans for Duke University's seventy-ninth commencement, the first to take place on the new campus, are nearing completion with the announcement that Huston Thompson, Washington, D. C., attorney and former federal trade commissioner, will deliver the commencement address on Wednesday, June 10. The commencement sermon will be preached by Dr. Robert Norwood, pastor of St. Bartholomew's church, New York City, on Tuesday, June 9.

Dr. Thompson is a graduate of Princeton University, and also a former student of New York university law school, while Dr. Norwood has been in the ministry since 1897, and since that time has held pastorates in many sections of Canada including several of the largest churches in Ontario.

President W. P. Few will deliver the baccalaureate address to the graduating class Sunday evening, June 7 unless he invites a guest speaker to take his place in accordance with the custom of recent years.

CAMEL CIGARETTE PRIZES TO BE AWARDED WINNERS

Officials of the R. J. Reynolds tobacco company have announced that prize winners in the Camel cigarette $50,000 cash prize contest will be made public next week.

The work of reading the approximately 1,000,000 entries has been completed, and plans are now being made for the actual awarding of the checks.

Judges of the contest are Roy W. Howard, Charles Danna Gibson, and Ray Long.

Radio Not To Take Newspaper's Place Says F. E. Gannett

Frank E. Gannett, president of the third largest newspaper chain in the world, in a recent press statement, asserted his confidence that the newspaper would never be replaced by the radio.

In regard to this problem of meeting the competition Mr. Gannett said, "For years there has been little or no change in the style of our American newspapers. Except for the increase in size, scope, and speed of production due primarily to the efficiency of modern machinery, there is no material difference in the journalism of today and that of 30 years ago. The newspaper of tomorrow will find it necessary to make many sweeping changes in journalistic practices in order to keep pace with modern civilization.

"The ever increasing emphasis on radio will kill the extra edition. To make up for the loss of this phase of newspapers will have to become more commentary and interpretative in their nature. No longer will it be possible for news writers to merely give graphic descriptions of important happenings, but instead they will have to give their own interpretation to the public of the significance and possible effects of the event. Such a change will create the necessity for men of wider experience and broader background in world affairs.

"Journalism of the future," continued Gannett, "offers great opportunities for men of true ability, training, and character. Work on a college daily, although it does not provide all the requisites for success in a journalistic career, is a most beneficial method of gaining training for newspaper work as well as for practically any business enterprise.

"By such training," he said, "students may gain experience in meeting men of prominence and obtaining interviews from them, in securing a thorough knowledge of current affairs, and in gaining the ability to work efficiently under unusual pressure. I am amazed at the high standard of our college papers considering the minimum amount of time that students can devote to the work."

Prospective Rhodes Scholar Applicants To Hear G. R. Vowles

Dr. G. R. Vowles, head of the German department at Davidson college, will deliver an illustrated lecture at Davidson next Monday night in the auditorium of Chambers building to students interested in making applications next year as Rhodes scholars.

Dr. Vowles, himself is a former Rhodes scholar, has some slides which are sent out by the national organization, and some which he personally owns. These will be shown to the students, and during that time, the Davidson professor will tell about the life at Oxford, as it was when he was a student there, and as it is today, and will discuss with them the method of making application and the requirements necessary to receive consideration.

Davidson college has furnished six Rhodes' scholars over a period of twenty-eight years, the latest successful applicant being Dean Rusk, of Atlanta, Georgia, a member of the present senior class. Others have been W. P. Mills, Y. M. C. A. worker in China; Dr. Ben R. Lacy, president of Union Theological seminary; Professor S. T. McCloy, of the Duke university faculty; Rev. McDowell Richards, minister at Clarkesville, Georgia, and Professor R. F. Davidson, of Hiram College, Ohio.

SOCIAL PROGRAM CULTIVATED AT WISCONSIN UNION

The center of student activity at the University of Wisconsin is the student union which is, according to a university bulletin, the "organized fraternity of students, faculty, alumni, and patrons of the University of Wisconsin, created to provide a common life and cultivate a social program for its members."

The union is kept up by its members who make annual contributions for that purpose. All students automatically join upon enrollment and payment of their fee, which is $9 a semester. Members, besides being entitled to all privileges of using the building, are also given preference in room reservations.

Art and music rooms, a barber shop for men, game and billiard room, mail service and pier and bathing facilities give the union members interesting pastimes. A cafeteria, dining room and soda fountain service are also maintained with dances, refreshments and special entertainments conducted in the main hall every Saturday evening.

Washburn To Change Attendance System

A new system for recording class attendance, designed to give upperclassmen more self-dependence, will be introduced at Washburn College next year, according to a faculty ruling announced by the president's office. The new rule does not make class attendance optional, but puts upperclassmen attendance on the plane of maintaining a satisfactory attitude and satisfactory work in the course involved as determined by the instructor.

The new system compels all freshmen to attend classes unless absences are excused. Sophomores are allowed a limited number of unexcused absences before being penalized.

Carolina Poets Win Place In Collection

Poems by two Carolina students have been included in the 1930 edition of Best College Verse.

This book is edited by Miss Jessie Rehder and is published by Harpers, New York. Miss Rehder, formerly of Wilmington, spoke very highly of the work of Richard A. Chace, whose poem, "Macabre," appears in this current edition of her book. Her original intention was to mention Chace in the foreword; but she later decided to have a preface by Christopher Morley, in which no mention of any author was made. Chace is a senior in the University and is editor of the Agora.

A poem, "Classroom," by James Dawson, a junior, was also published.

PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS

Leading-------

all the dances.

ARROW

dress shirts and collars

Immaculate
Irreproachable

Open till 10 during the dances.

Randolph-McDonald, Inc.

Carolina Beats Virginia In Second Of Series, 6-2

Peacock Hero of Fast Game, Hitting Home Run With Bases Loaded in Fifth.

Johnny Peacock's home run with the bases full in the fifth inning was the big noise in Carolina's 6-2 victory over Virginia yesterday at Emerson Field.

The contest was the second game of the series and was also the second victory for the Tar Heels, thus clinching the series. Another game, which will have no bearing upon the Tri-State League race, will be played today in the Memorial stadium, Greensboro.

With the exception of the fifth inning, in which the Tar Heels tallied five runs on as many hits, the game was a close pitcher's battle between Brewer and Hinton.

Neither team scored until the fifth frame, when the Tar Heel splurge netted them five runs. Powell smashed a hit through third base. Wyrick got a scratch single over the first baseman's head. Hinton walked, filling the bases. With the count three and two, Peacock lined one to center field for a home run. With good fielding on Bryant's part, the ball could have been held to a single, but the center fielder tried to make a shoe string catch and missed. House singled to center and scored on Dunlap's line double to right.

Virginia scored two unearned runs in the sixth inning on no hits. Dawson walked. Cheshire fanned. Pinder walked. Sippley's infield out advanced both runners who later scored when Ferebee threw wild on Bryant's hard hit grounder.

Briefs

As soon as the game was over, "Pug" Bryant hurried off to Greensboro to catch a train for Lexington, Virginia, where he will take part in the Virginia Intercollegiate Track Meet.

Wyrick was hitting in luck yesterday. Petey got two scratch hits just over the first baseman's head. Well that's another way of helping your batting average.

It cost Captain Potter plenty before he scored a run in the sixth inning. First he was hit by a pitched ball, and when he stole second, the catcher's throw hit him on the foot. Piggy then rode home safely on Powell's hit.

As if hitting a home run with the bases loaded was enough, Peacock had to make a circus catch in center field.

Hinton turned in his fifth straight victory of the year. George is getting better with every game. He only allowed Virginia three hits. Incidently, Hinton has scored both victories over the Cavaliers. Dont' be surprised to see him work today.

The line-up:

Carolina (6)	ab	r	h	e
Peacock, cf	4	1	1	0
Ferebee, ss	4	0	1	1
House, lf	3	1	1	0
Dunlap, 1b	4	0	2	0
Blythe, rf	3	0	0	0
Croom, rf	1	0	0	0
Potter, c	3	1	0	0
Powell, 3b	4	1	2	0
Wyrick, 2b	4	1	2	2
Hinton, p	1	1	0	0
	31	6	9	3

Virginia (2)	ab	r	h	e
Dawson, lf	3	1	1	0
Cheshire, rf	4	0	0	0
Pinder, 3 b	2	0	0	0
Sippley, 1b	4	1	1	0
Bryant, cf	4	0	0	0
Poss, c	4	0	0	0
Brewer, p	4	0	1	0
Dent, ss	3	0	0	0
Lee, 2b	3	0	0	0
	31	2	3	0

Virginia	000	002	000
Carolina	000	051	00x

Summary: Two base hits: Dunlap. Three base hits: Dawson. Home run: Peacock. Earned runs: Carolina 6; Virginia 0. Double Plays: Ferebee, Wyrick, Dunlap. Hit by pitcher: by Brewer (Potter). Umpire: Weaver (Oak Ridge).

No Wrestling Tourney

Coach Quinlan announced yesterday that due to the lack of the proper conditioning of the wrestling squad, the spring tournament will not be held. Because of the other spring interests and heat of the Tin Can, the wrestlers have not gained the proper shape which the tournament strain will demand.

No definite time has been set for the tournament, but Quinlan said that it would probably be staged during the fall quarter so as to give the men ample time to get in trim.

COLLEGIANA

By THOMAS H. BROUGHTON

Ray Morrison, Southern Methodist university coach believes that Notre Dame's football team will be more formidable next year than before.

"Notre Dame will be harder to beat then in 1931 than ever before in the history of the school because the boys will be fighting for an ideal. You won't need to mention Rockne to those fellows. They loved him," Morrison said in an address before students of the University of Southern California.

* * *

Furman is planning to hold an intramural track meet in June for the purpose of stimulating interest and developing material for next year.

* * *

Nowhere in the world probably can be found such a unique sprint relay team as that of the University of Hawaii. It is represented by three different races, three different classes, and three different islands. Penhallow, Haole and a senior, comes from Maui; Ome, a Korean and a junior, is from Oahu; Puuohau, an Hawaiian and a sophomore, comes from Hawaii.

* * *

If Jack Kellar of Ohio State hadn't knocked over two hurdles in a recent meet he would have inscribed his name among the immortals of track competition. He raced down the 120 yard high hurdles in the remarkable time of 14.3 seconds, which is one-tenth of a second better than the world's record set by Earl Thompson of Dartmouth in 1920. But Kellar left two hurdles tipped over in his record breaking dash, so the chances are all against its recognition.

* * *

Occupants of the press box will have their troubles when the Hosei university team of Japan appears at Michigan State in a two game series. Such names as Nagasawa, Wakabayashi, Fujii, and Nishigaki will complicate matters for the scorers to say nothing of any announcement the umpire has to make.

The Japanese team holds the intercollegiate championship of that nation, winning the annual series in Tokyo which compares to our own world series, so far as the Japanese are concerned. Wakahayshi is the outstanding player. Graduating from high school in Hawaii he returned to his native land to win praise as one of the greatest hurlers Japan has ever turned out.

* * *

Rugby, made famous by "Tom

(Continued on last page)

TAR HEEL TRACK SQUAD OPPOSES NORTHERN TEAM

Penn State's Strength in Field Events Expected to Bring Defeat to Carolina.

With six dual meet victories and the North Carolina track championship already in their win column, Carolina's Southern Conference track champions meet Penn State this afternoon in their final dual meet of the season. The Tar Heels, with wins over five Southern Conference rivals and one S. I. A. A. team, will be facing their only intersectional opponents of the year and will be out to duplicate last year's victory over the strong Nittany Lions.

The return of Charley Farmer, the South's leading sprinter last year and one of the outstanding dashmen of the country, will greatly strengthen Carolina's chances to win over their northern rivals who were victorious over Syracuse in their first meet of the 1931 season. Farmer was lost to the Tar Heels last March when he pulled a leg tendon in the preliminary heats of the hundred yard dash in the Southern Conference Indoor meet. Charley's loss was a big one, and, but for the great work of Ken Marland, Rip Slusser, J. K. Smith, and Bob Drane, Carolina's other dashmen, the Tar Heels would have suffered greatly. Marland and Slusser have done particularly good work in the 100 and Drane and Smith have been turning in their share of the points in the 220, but, with Farmer in good shape and running these events, the Tar Heels can claim the strongest collection of dashmen in the Southern Conference.

When the Tar Heels left here late Thursday night, Coach Bob Fetzer had not definitely decided whether he would enter Farmer or not, but, if Farmer is entered against the Lions, he will probably appear only in the 220, which is probably his best event. Charley's leg has not yet fully recovered and there is about a fifty-fifty chance that it will stand the strain of active competition. He will be needed in the Conference meet at Birmingham next Saturday, and, in order not to take too great a chance of losing him again, Coach Fetzer will not let Farmer take a chance in running the 100.

George Bagby, Tar Heel high jumper, will be far below his normal when he competes against the Lion jumpers, but is expected to turn in a better performance than he did at the State meet where he failed to place. Bagby has been out for some time with a sprained ankle, sustained in practice prior to the V. P. I. meet. Bagby, until this spring, had confined his efforts solely to the high jump, but decided to try the broad jump after the first meet this year. He scored two first places in this event, but sprained his ankle in practice just before the V. P. I. meet and was kept on the sidelines until the State meet which he entered at the last minute. Stafford will be the other Tar Heel entered in this event today. Stafford was also kept out of action for several weeks this season with a pulled leg tendon, but has begun to hit his stride during the past few weeks is being depended on to place against the Lions this afternoon.

The Carolina entries in the other events will probably be: Brodie Arnold and Ray Ruble, holder of the State record, in the pole vault; Cliff Baucom, State two mile champion and Bob Hubbard in the two mile; Mark Jones in the mile; Theron Brown Sandy Dameron, who broke the record for the discus Saturday, and George Thompson in the weight events; Slusser and Davis in the hurdles; Smith, Drane, Slusser, and Marland in the dashes; Weil and Marland in the 440; Watkins in the half-mile; and Howard and Brown in the broad jump.

Tar Heel-Virginia Greensboro Game Recalls Past Incidents

Carolina won last year's classic from Virginia 12-1. The Tar Heels were hitting wonders, so enthusiastic were they about the gallery of girls, and Pitcher Frank Fleming would have had a shut-out game but for an error.

A Greensboro Boy, now a Greensboro ball player, none other than Jimmy Maus, led the Carolina nine to victory in its 1929 classic with Virginia at Greensboro. Maus hit 3 for 3, driving in the bulk of the runs for Carolina's 4-2 victory.

One of the most famous of the Virginia-Carolina classics in Greensboro was that of 1927. Carolina won a slug-fest, 11-10, before a crowd of 9,000 wildly enthusiastic fans. Tom Young was batting star, scoring three runs and driving in two more.

Fans are hoping the Carolina nine, with 11 wins, 3 losses and 1 tie, won't slump for the Virginia game today as did the Tar Heel nine of 1925. That team won 13 of 14, taking the first game from Virginia, then slumped and lost to Virginia at Chapel Hill 4-1, and at Greensboro after a mound duel of Darlington and Holshouser 2-1.

Carolina hasn't lost a series to Virginia in baseball since 1926, and for the last three years they have won each series by a clean sweep of every game. A strong Cavalier team will be out to break that record as the 41-year rivals meet in Greensboro today, but the Tar Heels are strong, too.

The ancient Carolina-Virginia baseball rivalry, 41 years old and one year older even that the classic Carolina-Virginia football wars, has produced many famous games and many famous series, but no more signal a triumph that the Tar Heels won in 1922. That year Captain Lewellyn, Bryson and Wilson hurled Carolina a shutout win in every game.

The Carolina and Virginia nines have been holding their traditionally colorful and classic battles of the diamond since 1891, but after 37 and a fraction series and 86 games, they are still tied with 42 victories and two ties apiece.

The leading extra-base hitters of the Carolina team are Smoky Ferebee, who leads in homers with four; Paul Dunlap, who leads in triples with six; and Henry House, who leads in doubles with seven.

Carolina students will invade Greensboro en masse by special train today, for today's the day for the final game of the 38th classic series between Carolina and Virginia nines, who held their first meeting in 1891. Band and cheering sections will lead a parade from the train up Elm Street and to Memorial Stadium, and there the Tar Heel students will be joined by their attractive cheering allies from N. C. C. W. and Greensboro College in a colorful throng.

Football crowds in North Carolina have run as high as 30,000, but the biggest baseball crowd to date was probably the 11,000 drawn by one of the recent Carolina-Virginia classics in Greensboro. The intense 4-year rivalry of the sister Universities, and the color this classic carries are expected to bring forth another picturesque throng at Greensboro.

After good days against N. C. State, Paul Dunlap, first baseman; Henry House, outfielder; and John Peacock, outfielder, stand at the head of Carolina's batters with averages of .457, .420 and .340, respectively.

Baseball Results

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Boston 8	Cleveland 4
Washington 2	Detroit 2

(Seventh inning)

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Brooklyn 4	Philadelphia 3
St. Louis	Pittsburgh

(Wet grounds)

Intramural Schedule

TENNIS

Monday

4:00 p. m.—1. Grimes vs Graham; 2. Steele vs Old East.

5:00 p. m.—1. New Dorms vs Question Marks; 2. Lewis vs Everett.

Tuesday

4:00 p. m.—1. Manly vs Old West; 2. A.T.O. vs Phi Delta Theta.

5:00 p. m.—1. S. P. E. vs Delta Tau Delta; 2. Sigma Chi vs Beta Theta Pi.

Wednesday

4:00 p. m.—1. Grimes vs Ruffin; 2. Aycock vs Steele.

5:00 p. m.—1. Phi Gamma Delta vs Chi Phi; 2. Phi Alpha vs Phi Sigma Kappa.

Thursday

4:00 p. m.—1. Phi Kappa Sigma vs S. A. E.; 2. T. E. P. vs Theta Chi.

5:00 p. m.—1. Zeta Beta Tau vs Kappa Alpha; 2. Chi Phi vs Zeta Psi.

Friday

4:00 p. m.—1. Pi Kappa Phi vs D. K. E.; 2. Kappa Sigma vs Beta Theta Pi.

5:00 p. m.—1. Phi Gamma Delta vs Zeta Psi; 2. Phi Kappa Sigma vs Phi Delta Theta.

BASEBALL

Monday

4:00 p. m.—1. Kappa Alpha vs Delta Kappa Epsilon; 2. A. T. O. vs Sigma Zeta.

5:00 p. m.—1. S. P. E. vs Delta Tau Delta; 2. Phi Alpha vs Phi Delta Theta.

Tuesday

4:00 p. m.—1. Phi Sigma Kappa vs Theta Chi; 2. Pi Kappa Phi vs Kappa Sigma.

5:00 p. m.—1. Phi Gamma Delta vs Delta Sigma Phi; 2. Phi Kappa Sigma vs Tau Epsilon Phi.

Wednesday

4:00 p. m.—1. Zeta Psi vs Sigma Phi Sigma; 2. Lambda Chi Alpha vs S. A. E.

5:00 p. m.—1. Sigma Chi vs Beta Theta Pi; 2. New Dorms vs Everett.

Thursday

4:00 p. m.—1. D. K. E. vs Chi Phi; 2. Steele vs Question Marks.

5:00 p. m.—1. Graham vs Grimes; 2. Old West vs Law School.

Friday

4:00 p. m.—1. Mangum vs Aycock; 2. Lewis vs Ruffin.

5:00 p. m.—1. Manly vs Old East; 2. Best House vs Independents.

President Hoover, it seems, can beat even "I do not choose" in laconicism. He received the women wets in silence.—Boston Transcript.

U. N. C., VIRGINIA SET FOR CLASSIC AT GREENSBORO

Color Prevails as Students Move En Masse on Memorial Stadium; Game Called at 3:00.

Carolina and Virginia wrote the second chapter into the 1931 edition of their 41-year baseball rivalry here yesterday, and made ready to move on to Greensboro, where this afternoon at 3:00 o'clock they will decide just how the 1931 series is going to wind up.

Either Paul Edwards or Cecil Longest, both big right-handers, will pitch for Carolina. No pitching selection was announced for Virginia. Both teams were in fine shape and tensely anticipating the Greensboro battle.

Chapel Hill was agog with excitement last night, and prospects are that today's special train will take a record number of students to support their team at the Greensboro classic. With the girls from N. C. C. W. and Greensboro College to be out en masse, prospects are for one of the largest and most colorful throngs in years.

Carolina's 40-piece band will ead the student invasion, marching from the depot up Elm street. Chief Cheerleader Ed Hazelwood is in charge of the cheering sections, from here and from the girls' colleges, and will be responsible for seeing that the Tar Heels lend more support than the large number of Virginians coming down.

The Tar Heels haven't lost a series to Virginia since Coach Ashmore came here in 1927 and have won eight of the last ten games in Greensboro. The 1931 team carries another good record to the Greensboro classic, a record of eleven wins to three losses and one tie, and the heavy-hitting, scrappy Tar Heel youngsters will be out to win.

Virginia will oppose the Tar Heel youngsters with a steady team of veterans, an infield that shows every regular except one from the 1930 team, and a new pitcher, Leo Fred, who made his debut recently by letting N. C. State down with three hits.

(Continued on last page)

CAROLINA
THEATRE
Chapel Hill, N. C.
WEDNESDAY, MAY 13th
Terrific Drama . . .
Unlocked Fury Of A Nation At Bay

THE SMOKE SHOP
EAT WITH US DRINK WITH US

FANCY ICES SHERBETS
DURHAM ICE CREAM CO., Inc.
"Blue Ribbon"
Ice Cream
DURHAM, N. C.
"Won Its Favor By Its Flavor"
BLOCKS PUNCH

BLUE DEVILS TO MEET TAR HEELS

Golfers Play Duke Saturday; Meet Virginia and William And Mary Next Week.

After having recovered entirely from the relapse they seemed to have suffered at Athens in the Conference meet, the Tar Heel golfers are primed to take on their rivals from Duke. The two teams are slated to tee off Saturday in Durham over the Hillandale course, the home grounds of the Dukemen. The two teams have met three times so far this season and each has one victory and one match has been tied. Two of the three meetings have been tournaments, namely: the State tournament and then the Conference title. The Blue Devils finished in front at Athens after the Tar Heels had severely trounced them at Sedgefield. The tied match was one scheduled between the two rivals over Hope Valley course and ended 9-9.

Despite the fact that they fell down miserably at Athens, the Tar Heel golfers did accomplish one noteworthy feat and that was the winning of the second flight championship by Bev Mason. After the first day's play Mason shot superb golf and it was too bad that his first day's scores were so high. Joe Adams, the best bet to bring the individual title back to the Hill seemed unable to play the second nine at Athens. On his first nine in the morning he had a thirty-seven, only to come in with a forty-four. In the afternoon he started off with another good score, bagging a thirty-nine on the first nine and came home with a forty-six. The two bad scores of course ruined Joe's chances. The whole team fell way below Coach Kenfiield's predictions and therefore were lucky to gain even fourth place.

Duke has two men, Caldwell and Randle, that will offer the greatest threat to Carolina tomorrow. Both these men did well at the Conference meet, especially Randle, and they will be helped by playing on their home course, an exceptionally easy one.

After the Duke match, the golfers will put in a week of hard practice in preparation of their invasion of Virginia where they will encounter William and Mary and the Cavaliers. They will leave the latter part of next week on this trip which will mark the end of the season.

As yet there has been no definite announcement as to who will make up the team tomorrow, but the first four men in the ladder will probably play. These four probably will be: Mason, Goodes, Brown, and Laxton.

Chemical Engineers Elect New Officers

At the meeting of the American Institute of chemical engineers, Tuesday night, the following men were elected to serve as officers for the coming year: prsident, T. R. Taylor; vice-president, John Preston; treasurer, Earl Bryant; and secretary, Leonard Surprenant.

The student chapter here has successfully completed its second year of existence, having been chartered in the early part of last year. All students enrolled in the chemical engineering school automatically become members. At present there are forty-five members. Any upper class chemistry student who has the required number of technical courses to his credit may join also.

The outgoing officers are: president, Raymond Ruble; vice-president, Frank Thomas; treasurer, Adam Fisher; and secretary, T. R. Taylor.

The Campus Calendar

Senior Notice

All seniors who are expecting to graduate this June are reminded that they must hand their application card in to the Registrar's office immediately if they want to get their degree.

Freshman Chapel

Professor E. R. Groves of the sociology department will address the freshmen in the Monday and Tuesday morning chapel periods on "Getting Ready for Marriage."

NEW VOTERS ARE BEGGED TO THINK FOR THEMSELVES

In an address delivered last Wednesday evening, before the Young Men's Democratic Club of Anderson, Indiana, Miss Nellie Taylor Ross, vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee expressed the opinion that she was glad to see the young men and women, who are starting their careers as voters, vote intelligently and not cast their ballots blindly for their parents' party.

The vice chairman further stated that if the young people voted intelligently, they would break the power of the Republican party, which has dominated politics because of its financil backing.

Miss Ross went on to issue an invitation to the young people to rally to the standard of the Democratic party and to bring liberal ideas there, where they would be enthusiastically received.

In her speech extolling the merits of the organization Miss Ross said, "The Democratic party has proven itself to be the party of progress. In proof of it, there now stands to its credit on the federal statute books economic and humanitarian laws of the highest value to the masses, and in numbers far out of proportion to the time the party has been in power. Some will ask, then why has the Republican party triumphed over it? To which I reply, the chief reason is the power of money. That party, backed by unlimited resources of wealth, can and does, through partisian papers and every agency it can purchase with money, drive in upon the minds of the people its fallacious representations. 'Constant dripping wears away the stone.' People read one side of public questions year in and year out, and they absorb that point of view."

Record Vote Cast In Chapel Hill Election

A record ballot of over 700 votes was cast Tuesday night at the Chapel Hill elections.

The present mayor, Zeb P. Council, was re-elected with no regular candidate running against him. He polled 657 votes against the votes of a few odd candidates.

The most exciting race was that between C. P. Hinshaw and L. J. Phipps for judge of the recorder's court in which Hinshaw won by the scant margin of thirty-seven votes.

The aldermen elected for the long term were R. D. W. Connor, who polled 494 votes; P. L. Burch with 545 votes; and B. S. Thompson with 524 votes. In the election of the alderman for the short term R. M. Trimble easily defeated H. A. Whitfield by a vote of 492 to 188.

Chapel Hill Loses

Roanoke Rapids high school defeated Chapel Hill in baseball by the score of 8-7 when they played in Roanoke Rapids Wednesday afternoon.

Co-Eds at Wisconsin Ask for Privileges

Feeling the necessity for more freedom and privileges in campus life, the senior women at the University of Wisconsin recently made a formal protest against the existing state of affairs and asked for seven twelve-thirty privilege nights a week.

At a meeting of the women's self government association last Tuesday night, it was suggested that 12:30 privilege nights seven times a week should be extended to senior women and that juniors should have an extra privilege night once a week.

To quote the president of the women's self government association, "I think this privilege would be a good thing because senior women are able to handle this freedom, and it should be granted them. Senior women are reliable enough, and this suggestion has been made only after the plan for one such privilege night a week has worked out so well."

These suggestions will be submitted to a revisions committee which will be made up of university women.

MAY FROLIC ORCHESTRA HAS WIDE REPUTATION

The campus as a whole is anticipating the appearance of Emerson Gill and his Columbia recording orchestra, who will play in Chapel Hill this weekend for the second annual May Frolic.

Gill has been playing at Bamboo Gardens in Cleveland, and broadcasting over station WTAM.

He has recently finished engagements at colleges and universities all over the East, among which may be named Williams College, University of Pennsylvania, and University of West Virginia. He will alternate with Coon-Sanders at the Virginia Military Institute final dances.

After leaving Chapel Hill the orchestra will embark for Auburn, Alabama, to play for the spring dances at Alabama Polytechnical Institute.

This band, which consists of twelve pieces, has been playing together for some time and has gained quite an enviable reputation all over the country.

McINTOSH IN ALAMANCE

C. E. McIntosh of the school of education will deliver an address at 10:00 this morning at Eli Whitney high school in Alamance county, making a comparison between the opportunity of the rural and city school child for a high school education.

Old Packard Touring

in fair condition

$50

Also Other Good, Bad, and Indifferent Used Cars

We Know Your Auto Needs and Need Your Business

Oldest, Largest, and Best in the County

Strowd Motor Co.

"Ford Products Since 1914"

U. N. C., VIRGINIA SET FOR CLASSIC AT GREENSBORO

(Continued from preceding page)

The Cavaliers, who in the early days after the rivalry had things pretty much their own way, will be striving to break Carolina's winning streak of recent years.

Carolina's lineup will probably be Captain Piggy Potter, catcher; Paul Dunlap, first base; Pete Wyrick, a Greensboro boy, second base; Smokey Ferebee, shortstop; Bill Powell, third base; Henry House, left field; John Peacock, center field; and Cloyd Blythe, right field.

COLLEGIANA

(Continued from preceding page)

Brown's School Days," is to be given a try out by Yale, Harvard, and Princeton.

* * *

University of Pennsylvania broad jumpers pulled a "Frank Merriwell" in the Yale-Penn dual meet. Going into the final event, the broad jump, the Quakers were eight and two-thirds points behind the Bulldogs but Lamoine Boyle of Penn established a new dual meet record for the broad jump at twenty-four feet three and one-half inches, while his teammates took second and third place to give Penn the meet by the narrow margin of one-third of a point.

UNIVERSITIES LIBERALIZE POLICIES AND CURRICULA

The modern educational movement to liberalize college curricula, inaugurated at the University of Chicago by President Hutchins and at the University of Wisconsin by President Meiklejohn, has assumed larger proportions recently, according to the announcement of new policies by two other universities.

Hamline university, St. Paul, Minnesota, announced this week the elimination of "time serving" requirements of upperclassmen. Students may take a comprehensive examination at the end of their first year to qualify for entrance into the senior college.

Next fall Syracuse university will begin a tutorial course for thirty freshmen who may qualify for it. Designed to give the student a new cultural outlook, the course occupies three-fifths of the time of the first year and carries nine hours' credit for each semester.

DANCERS ENJOY ANNUAL FROLIC

(Continued from first page)

seating space, with each fraternity represented in the Frolic having a separate section. The entrance is adorned with evergreens.

Other Entertainments

Entertainments outside the dances, include buffet suppers, swimming and horseback parties. Sigma Chi will be host at a buffet supper this evening at 8:00, and Kappa Sigma will have one after the dance tonight. This afternoon at 1:00, the group will motor to the Washington Duke hotel for the luncheon dance, where Sara Busbee's dancing class from Raleigh will entertain between courses. The next dance is a dansant in the Tin Can at 4:30. The final ball of the week-end, the May Frolic figure, will take place tonight at 9:00, and will be led by Dail Holderness with Miss Reeder Davidson.

The "13" club opened the festivities last night at 7:00, with a twilight dance in the Carolina ballroom.

The Minotaurs presented their annual banquet last night, and the Order of the Sheiks will give one tonight at 6:30.

The chaperones for the Frolic are: President Frank P. Graham, Miss Kate Graham, Dr. and Mrs. W. S. Bernard, Dr. and Mrs. H. S. Dyer, Mr. and Mrs. Maryon Saunders, Mrs. C. H. Harding, and Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Lyons.

Invitations for the dances are made of leather, the leather being colored the individual colors of the fraternity. Inside, the members of the fraternity sending the invitation are printed, with a place reserved for autographs.

NEGRO EDUCATOR GIVES CAUSE OF RACE PROBLEMS

(Continued from first page)

structive party of the country, and it is not taking advantage of the opportunity."

"Religion is on the defensive, and in the United States it is far behind the state. Slavery broke the ethical backbone of Christianity in this country, and we have recovered from its effects. Slavery and Christianity are incompatible. The churches in this country have split in the past over slavery into northern and southern churches, but the strange result is that the southern churches have converted the northern on the race problem. Now the school has become the only place to put great ideas into the minds of the young people. The segregated church is an intellectual and moral weakness, and it is a well-known fact that our foreign missionaries are retreating from the frontiers of the world."

World-Wide Problem

It was pointed out by Dr. Johnson that the race problem is world wide, and not one for the South alone. China, India, and Africa were cited as countries having this same problem. There will be much progress in machinery and natural science within the next fifty years, according to the educator. "Russia plans to organize the whole east on a plan of non-discrimination between the races, and by putting economic emphasis on emancipating the masses. Much of the future progress depends upon the young men of the South. I am not satisfied with a nation economically and politically the strongest in the world, but rapidly accelerating downward in the field of ideas. We have a wonderful opportunity and a great problem."

Another kind of intelligence test is what we do with our leisure.—Toledo Blade.

PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS

Daily Tar Heel Advertisers

For The Week Ending May 2, 1931

Tar Heel Barber Shop
Coldex
Seeman Printing Company
Carolina Theatre
D. & G. Cafe
Smoke Shop
Frank Brothers
Randolph-McDonald, Inc.
W. B. Sorrell
Dr. H. P. Ross
Sutton's Drug Store
Chapel Hill Cooking School
University Shoe Shop
Students' Supply Store
Carolina Dry Cleaners
Eubanks Drug Company
Edwards Tailoring Co.
Larus Tobacco Company
Pritchard-Lloyd Drug Store
R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.
A. & P. Tea Company
American Tel. & Tel. Co.
Kellogg Cereal Co.
Old Hampshire Paper Co.
University Book and Stationery Store
Betsy Ann Shop
Dr. R. R. Clark
General Electric Co.
Strowd Motor Co.
Durham Ice Cream Company

FACULTY, STUDENTS, AND ALUMNI!

The Daily Tar Heel

Heartily Endorses the Above Firms and Asks You To Patronize Them.

DAILY TAR HEEL
STAFF MEETINGS
ALUMNI BLDG. — TONIGHT

The Daily Tar Heel

DR. PLESSOW
TUESDAY NIGHT
GERRARD HALL

VOLUME XXXIX · CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SUNDAY, MAY 10, 1931 · NUMBER 167

DANCES PROVIDE GALA WEEK-END FOR UNIVERSITY

Festivities Sponsored By Fraternities and Social Orders Bring Week-end To Close.

The third gala week-end in University social life, during the spring quarter, came to a close last night with the conclusion of the set of dances sponsored by the May Frolic.

Emerson Gill and his Columbia recording orchestra, who, previous to his engagement here has been broadcasting from the Bamboo Gardens in Cleveland over station WTAM, furnished an unusual brand of music for the occasion.

The festivities were sponsored by the Delta Kappa Epsilon, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Kappa Sigma, Beta Theta Pi, Zeta Psi, Sigma Nu, and Sigma Chi fraternities, and were composed of three dances in the Tin Can, and one in Durham.

"13" Club Dance

The week-end events began with a twilight dance at the Carolina Inn Friday evening at 7:00 o'clock, given by the "13" club immediately following its banquet. An estimate of one thousand people attended the initial dance in the Tin Can Friday night.

A luncheon dance took place at the Washington Duke hotel Saturday from 1:30 to 3:00 o'clock. Sara Busbee's dancing class from Raleigh entertained between courses.

The next event was a dansant in the Tin Can at 4:30 o'clock. The final ball of the week-end took place Saturday night at 9:00 o'clock, and was featured by the May Frolic figure led by Dail Holderness with Miss Reed-

(Continued on last page)

Spanish Club Hears Lecture On Seville

A. K. Shields, of the Spanish department, gave an illustrated lecture at a meeting of the Spanish club Friday night, which treated the life, customs, and scenic effects of the old Spanish town of Seville. This lecture was supplemented by a discussion of Erwin Jaffe, who described the historical background of the city. The entire meeting was conducted in Spanish.

FIVE DANCES FOR WEEK SCHEDULED

Three Fraternities, Woman's Association, and Grail Plan Events for Week-end.

With five campus organizations scheduling individual social events, the brilliant spring social season of the University shows no apparent let-down for the coming week-end. Three fraternities are planning dances for Friday and Saturday, the woman's association expects to give a spring co-ed ball, and the third Grail of the quarter is being tentatively arranged for that time.

A number of attractive young ladies and other socially prominent persons from all over the state have been invited to these affairs. Jelly Leftwich and his University Club orchestra has been obtained for the three fraternity dances ,while Jack Wardlaw and his Tar Heels will play for the other affairs.

Phi Kap Dance

Friday night the Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity will give a formal dance in the ballroom of the Carolina Inn between the hours of 9:00 and 1:00. Jelly Leftwich, who is well-known in Chapel Hill as a popular orches-

(Continued on last page)

Academy Of Science Gathers Yearly To Discuss Research

Scientists of State Convene In Annual Session to Thrash Out Problems and Successes Found in Their Investigations.

By George Wilson

On the rolls of the North Carolina Academy of Science which opened sessions Friday night at State college in Raleigh for the thirtieth annual meeting, appear the names of leading scientists of the state and of men not only known for research in the state but known throughout the country.

At these meetings of the Academy a number of leading scientists of the state gather, and in seminar form discuss the research they are doing in particular lines. If they have a question of general scientific interest, they discuss it before the entire academy; if it pertains to a particular field of investigation, they discuss it before the group meeting of their field.

Established in 1902

The North Carolina Academy of Science was established in 1902. In 1901, W. W. Ashe, state forester, conceived the idea of having such a group and communicated it to Franklin Sherman, state etomologist, H. H. Brimley, curator of the state museum, F. L. Stevens, plant pathologist at State college, and Tait Butler, state veternarian, and also to the Raleigh Biological Society.

These five men sent out a call for the organization of the North Carolina Academy. It is not certain whether or not it was to be an academy of natural sciences; but it is thought it was, for all of the founders were interested in natural sciences.

Twelve Charter Members

On March 21, 1902, at the state agriculture building in Raleigh, four of the originators met with five others who had answered the call. The men hesitated about organizing with so few present, wanting to wait until another call could be issued; but it was decided that organization should take place then before the idea grew cold.

With twelve charter members, the constitution of the society was drawn up. In addition to the five originators, the charter members were men known throughout the state for scientific investigation. W. L. Poteat, of Wake Forest, T. Gilbert Pearson, of Guilford college, W. L. Kilgore, state chemist, J. L. Kesler, Baptist Female college (Meredith), and C. S. Brimley answered the call; and H. A. Royster, of Raleigh, and Dr. H. V. Wilson of the University were also charter members.

Meetings Alternate

Although this seemed a Raleigh plan at first, the idea

(Continued on last page)

Staff Meeting

All members of the editorial staff are requested to meet this afternoon in the office of the publication at 5:00 o'clock, while the city editors and desk men will meet in room 104, Alumni building at the same time. The meeting of the reportorial staff is called for 7:00 o'clock in the same room.

It is required that all persons on these staffs meet at their special time, unless excused by the editor or managing editor in advance. This is the first meeting of the editorial writers in two weeks, and it is compulsory that members of this staff attend.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK PROGRAM NOW COMPLETE

Committee In Charge Announces Schedule of Events For Finals.

Plans for this year's commencement program which have just been completed, were recently announced by the committee in charge. The commencement exercises will continue from Saturday, June 6, through Tuesday, June 9.

The program will begin with the class day exercises of the graduating class, followed by the baccalaureate sermon, which will be delivered Sunday morning at 11:00 by Reverend E. McNeill Poteat, pastor of the Pulen Memorial Baptist Church of Raleigh.

Alumni Events

Alumni day will be observed June 8. Judge Francis D. Winston, author, will preside over a "reminiscence symposium" to take place in Gerrard hall at 10:00 that morning when each of the classes holding reunions will be called to the platform,

(Continued on last page)

DR. LASKI'S FINAL ADDRESS CLOSES WEEK'S PROGRAM

Human Relations Institute Ends Saturday After Seven Days Of Sessions.

During the past week the University has been the scene of assemblage of a group of internationally-known thinkers upon economical and political problems, in the interest of the Human Relations Institute.

Opened by Mathews

The Institute program was opened last Sunday evening by Dean Shaler Mathews, of the University of Chicago divinity school in an address upon "A New Social Gospel for The New Social Order," in which the interdependence of the church and the state was emphasized.

On Monday morning General Charles P. Summerall, president of the Citadel, and retired Chief of Staff of the United States army, spoke upon "Trends in Our National Defense Policy." On Monday evening, before one of the largest audiences of the week, Honorable Norman Thomas lectured upon his subject "Wanted: A New Social Philosophy." General Summerall, Mr. Thomas, and Mr. James Myers, of the federal council of churches, appeared in class room seminars throughout the day.

Industrial Problems

Mr. Myers, spoke on Tuesday morning upon "Gastonia, Marion, and Danville," discussing the recent industrial disorder in those parts. On Tuesday evening the Institute gave way to the annual tapping of the Golden Fleece, at which Judge John J. Parker of Charlotte was the speaker.

On Wednesday morning, Mr. Francis J. Gorman, international first vice-president of the

(Continued on last page)

Rulfs Presents Marionette Play

Dramatic Student Demonstrates Puppets and Stage of Own Creation.

A rather unusual presentation took place in the Playmakers Theatre Friday when Donald Rulfs, University student of Wilmington, presented Faust with puppets on a minature stage of his own creation.

Puppet shows are now rather poplar throughout the country and there seems to be a great field open for amateurs in this line. Members of the Sue Hasting company, which appeared here during the winter quarter with a group of widely-known marrionettes, expressed great interest in Rulfs work, and seemed impressed by his creative ability.

Hobby for Eight Years

For eight years Rulfs has had this hobby of producing famous attractions with puppets on minature stages. The presentation of Faust before a small invited audience yesterday was his sixteenth.

The producer has constructed a stage of about fifteen inches wide, twelve inches high, and eight inches deep in a large and beautifully designed tapistry. The seven settings in Faust are very effective, seeming as real as the average full-sized scene, and are set up on individual pieces of card-board so they may be shifted with ease.

Lighting Effects

The lighting effects are perhaps the best part of the presentation, being well-directed and in harmony with the setting. The characters are well moulded but are limited in their operations as they are worked from the bottom of the stage by means of wires.

Backstage Rulfs has a modern, up-to-date set with novel equipment.

DI AND PHI PLAN TO MEET JOINTLY

Will Discuss Effects of Human Relations Institute in Tuesday's Session.

The members of the Di and Phi literary societies will meet Tuesday night in their quarterly joint sessions, with the latter group as host. Speaker Egbert Haywood will preside at the meeting.

This plan of joint sessions of the two groups was instigated with the organization of the two societies, and because of the friendly rivalry the meetings stimulated they have been continued.

Quarterly Sessions

At the joint meeting last year the question of the consolidation of the three state institutions was approved by the members of the two organizations after considerable discussion. Upon the suggestion of Representative John Lang the members of both societies sent a letter to the chairman of appropriations committee of the General Assembly opposing the proposed reduction in the University's budget.

As a special guest of both societies, President Frank Porter Graham spoke to the joint meeting, recalling some of the big men in the state who had been former members of the two groups.

A full program has been arranged, and President Ramsay of the Di senate requests that all members of that group be present at the Tuesday night's meeting.

The bills which are to be discussed are: 1. Resolved that the Human Relations Institute is detrimental because it creates dissatisfaction by bringing in radicals. 2. Resolved: That the proposed consolidation of the counties in North Carolina would be advantageous to the state.

Very Queer Subjects Selected By Master's Degree Candidates

Unofficial Researches in Library Reveal Many Odd Topics Are Chosen for Graduate Students to Waste Countless Hours of Work Upon.

By Don Shoemaker

It has been estimated that it would take the combined efforts of a small army of tabulators and accountants to chronicle the exact number of hours which have been wasted by university graduates in the preparation of master theses. Delving deep into musty volumes, secreted in the recesses of dusty attics and in remote corners of library shelves, countless students have unearthed material of the sort to advance learning with such subjects as "Parabromophenyl-4 per cent. semicarbazide," "An Investigation of Sedimentation and Sludge Digestion Characteristic of Domestic Sewerage Heavily Laden with Kitchen Grease," or "Inscriptional and Paleographical Evidence on the Addresses of Pliny's Letters."

In an investigation of files in the University library containing the subjects of theses written here over a period of about twenty-five years, the subject of "Education" ranks as the favorite topic of dissertion. Education is attacked from every imaginable angle. From a "Study of Factors Affecting Changes in Attitude of Children Towards Cheating" to "A Survey of the Educational Progress of Catawba County from 1923 to 1929," the education racket was given a thorough overhauling. One thesis on educational facilities in China, written by a Chinese student in 1917, gives another interesting but wholly superfluous angle.

Odd Subjects

To the average layman the weight and relative importance of such subjects as "Cultivation of Mushrooms," "Animal Actors on the English Stage before 1642," and "Stage Dueling In the Elizabethan Theatre" is not wholly apparent, though the writers have attacked their subjects with vehemence. Of just what importance to learning is the contribution on mushrooms, it is hard to determine, though the author probably burned the midnight oil and spent hours afield in an effort to produce his masterpiece.

In childish innocence we first perused the better known works of the Swan of Stratford, notably Hamlet, Merchant of Venice, and Julius Caesar, not aware all the while that parental and filial relationships are a necessary basis for Shakespearean drama. At any rate, a candidate for a master's degree has offered "Parental and Filial Relations in Shakespeare's Plays" and now that such a startling discovery has been revealed to the world we feel much at ease and shall read Shakespeare from now on with a feeling that we have been let in on a state secret.

Freshman Intelligence Tests Reveal Aptitude For College

Quizes Given at First of Year Make Study of Student's Ability To Get the Best Out of His University Experience.

By Edward M. Spruill

To many the score obtained by first-year men in the intelligence tests given each September to freshmen entering the University indicates the predicted success or failure of a college man's career as regards to scholastic average or to prominence on the campus. This, however, is the wrong idea, for many students who have done poorly on these questionaires have later attained high grades in their curriculum.

Interviewing Dean Bradshaw, who supervises the tests each year, it was found that, strictly speaking, they are not "Intelligence" tests and this label for them has mis-led many people in regard to their real meaning. "College aptitude" would be a more suitable name for them because they answer the question as to how well the individual may solve things so as to succeed in his college curriculum.

Indicates Prominence

One would be safe in saying that the high percentage attained each fall by the incoming freshmen tends to produce future campus prominence, but not necessarily so. To make this point more clear, the scores of six present campus leaders were looked up and their average score on the entire group of quizes was seventy-two percent better than their classmates.

One who truly understands the significance of this group of quizes would say that not the test rating alone, but aptitude combined with industry will determine the college man's career. For what is college but an adaptation to all sorts and conditions of men and the determining of whether a man will cope successfully with his fellow students during his stay in college?

Revised Every Year

Since the first psychology test was given in 1919, the quiz each year has been subject to revision. The elimination of those questions which are found unnecessary occurs; those inquiries which by no chance the student will meet in any form during his college life are disposed of. If they do not predict for college aptitude, they are not included in the quiz. Thus each year the freshman is confronted with a more practical problem than the group preceeding him the year before.

Of the 565 students who took the "Intelligence" test the first year in this University, fifty-six received a higher score than the average. Out of this number twenty-eight averaged B or

(Continued on last page)

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $4.00 for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

Jack Dungan.....Editor
H. N. Patterson.....Bus. Mgr.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Ed French.....Mng. Ed.

Editorial Board

Charles G. Rose.....Chairman
J. M. Little — Frank J. Manheim
W. M. Bryson — Will Yarborough
Alden Stahr — Bob Barnett
Wex Malone

Assignment Editors

Otto S. Steinreich
Dan Kelly, Assistant

Sunday Editor

Charles G. Rose

City Editors

Bill McKee — George Wilson
Peter Hairston — Jack Riley

Desk Men

Frank Hawley — T. W. Blackwell
W. R. Woerner — Don Shoemaker
Vass Shepherd

Sports Staff

Jack Bessen.....Sports Editor

Assistants

T. H. Broughton — P. Alston

News Men

E. M. Spruill — F. W. Ashley
Charles Poe — Bob Betts
W. E. Davis — Clayborn Carr

Reporters

Saul Gordon — Bob Reynolds
Ronald Kochendorfer — Dilworth Cocke
Woodward Glenn — M. V. Barnhill, Jr.
William Blount — John Burroughs
Walker Stamps

BUSINESS STAFF

Hal Worth.....Circulation Mgr.
Harlan Jameson.....Ass't. Bus. Mgr.
John Manning.....Ass't. Bus. Mgr.

Advertising Department

Al L. Olmstead.....Advertising Mgr.
Pendleton Gray.....Advertising Mgr.
Bernard Solomon.....Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
R. D. McMillan, Jr.....Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
James N. Nowell — H. A. Clark

Collection Department

Jack Hammer.....Collection Mgr.
John Barrow — Frank S. Dale
Stokes Adderton — Jack Stokes

Correspondence Department

Ed Michaels, Jr.....Correspondence Mgr.
Wynn Hamm.....Ass't. Cor. Mgr.

Sunday, May 10, 1931

Ph.
Deism

Higher education all over this country has fallen too much into the habit of worshipping the Ph.D.

"Ph. Deism" has a twofold disadvantage. In the first place is the matter of a degree itself. If anyone wishes to go into the teaching profession some sort of degree is required, and the higher the degree, the better the job. It is very well to have some sort of standard to go by in assigning teaching positions, but many men of great ability have been discriminated against because they could not for some reason complete the requirements for a degree.

In the second place this "degreeism" is too coldly mechanical and places too great a premium on often times inconsequential detail. Of course, a certain amount of mental discipline is necessary to a well-rounded education, but pure poll-parrotism tends to destroy initiative and dull creative thought.

When a man gets into the business world no one is going to care how many dates or names he knows, but it will be necessary for him to be alert and to be able to move "under his own power" mentally. A "grind" may be able to get a high degree by close application and diligence, but he presents a sorry front when he gets into competition for the "almighty dollar."

If mental discipline is the only advantage of "Ph. Deism," it should be subordinated to a course of study which places more emphasis on stimulation of creative thought, cliche as the expression may be.—A. J. S.

Abolish Lectures

The decrepitation of the "great" American higher educational system was soundly brought home in the excellent words of advice handed down by Professor Harold J. Laski, speaking here at the session of the Human Relations Institute. We vain Americans find it hard to admit that the English system is better than our own, but we are forced to realize the shortcomings of our own system by the statement made by Laski in an interview, that the United States is far behind England in a multitude of respects. The statement was not made in prejudice, for the eminent economist has served on the faculties of both Harvard and Yale in this country and is well acquainted with our present system. Moreover, such a seemingly broad statement would not be made by a man who declined to discuss the Russian condition "because I have not been there for nearly a year."

We are forced to admit that the average American collegian wastes much more time in useless note-gathering and quiz-taking than is necessary. Fifty percent of the environment gained in the class room is through discussion, and not lecture. Lectures convey the impressions of one man, truly a man well versed in the subject under discussion, but the reception of views of fellowclassmen is much more wholesome and certainly much more conducive to broad mindedness.

One of the greatest evils of the quiz system is the ever attendant "cramming" utilized by backward students to make up for lessons not prepared. More classroom discussions would do much to eliminate this useless procedure.—D. S.

A Venture On Behalf of Booting

It has been disappointing to observe that discussions appearing to date regarding the question of booting seem to leave one factor out of the argument entirely—the intelligence of the professor. Contact with professorial incandescense has been unreservedly recommended but with the emphatic after-suggestion that booting must be quickly and severely frowned upon. This is all very well, but why should mention be made of it?

Should professors be so stupid, blind and undiscriminating as to be unable to see the difference between genuine, friendly patronage and false, assumed interest certainly they are not the superior and intelligent ilk of beings that they pretend to be. To be perpetually harping upon the disgraceful and dispicable practice of booting is indeed placing the emphasis at the wrong point. Perhaps good might come of it—who knows? It is quite conceivable that a misled and self seeking booter might quite inadvertently get something out of a social and friendly contact with his professor, and where is the person who begrudge it him? In business, in politics, in society, and in college there is an unfortunate amount, it must be admitted, of hypocritical and very superficial interest shown in matters which may reflect advantage to the poseur. But why inhibit the great bulk of benefit that might be born from even these shallow putterings if there is even the slightest possibility of good growing out of them, and continually whine about the few clever and greater number of not-so-clever parasites who are striving for that which costs nothing yet which registers substantially on the asset side of their ledger of life?

Contact with men of experience, maturity, and scholarship is the other. That is what college is for. A country club, a sheaf of magazines, and an encyclopedia will offer the collegian most of the other advantages of the college campus. It is more than merely unfortunate, it is small, trivial, and cheap to quibble and be eternally bantering back and forth about something which, it is true, be less than the pure and unsullied relationship between professor and avid student, but which in the end does not materially effect the inevitable good which may always grow out of human, social contacts.—R. W. B.

The Sunday Hangover

By
Wex Malone

". . . and the woman gave me an apple and I did not eat thereof." Genesis, iv, 16. Naomi Eve Alexander, co-ed department of the law school, resorted to primitive tactics to insure her scholastic standing. A local professor found an apple on his desk this morning. Naomi confided to a reporter of the Tar Heel that the nearest way to a man's heart is through his stomach. Let's hope that the apple wasn't green, Evie, or you're sure to flunk.

* * *

Today is Mother's Day, and if we can believe the signs displayed in all the local confectioneries, a very effective way of showing our esteem for our dear mamas is to send them a box of chocolates done up in a sentimental Mother's Day package. But, don't make the mistake one local professor did and give one of the pretty boxes to a co-ed friend. She might not understand.

* * *

The traditional way of referring to an unusually contentious and argumentative student was to say: "He'll argue his darned head off." The new saying in the law school today is, "He'll argue his darned shoulder out of place." It happened this way: Ed Sheidt, local antagonist and enemy of the people, was treating the class in Corporations to an extended tirade on directors, fiduciary relations, etc, etc. Suddenly there was a crash, the melodious voice ceased, the orator apparently disappeared. Ed was found on the floor with his chair on top of him, his shoulder dislocated. Ed admitted to friends that he might have leaned back a little too far. "I was completely floored by my own words," he confided.

* * *

One Killed, Two Injured
In Chapel Hill Gang War

Milkie Cannon Wreaks Terrible Vengeance on McDade Gang.

Pritchard - Lloyd's uptown club was the scene of a gang massacre when Milkie Cannon, leader of the Valley View gang, turned the machine guns on Skinny McDade and his North Side crowd Thursday night at seven o'clock.

Michaelo Vanzetti Cannoni, known in racketeers' circle as Milkie, because of his inordinate fondness for milk and ice cream served to him free of charge by pretty waitresses in a local chow joint, emerged from the cafe with blood in his eyes, surrounded by his henchmen, Bloco Brisonelli, Mike Maloney, and Dred the Dummy. "The dupe, he stole my moll," muttered Milkie, gritting his teeth. "He goes on the spot for this."

The feud between Cannoni and McDade is prominent in crime circles of this city. It originated years ago when McDade stole the uptown milk trade from the Italian. Milkie, who for some time has borne a grudge against McDade, was infuriated when he thought he saw the rival hoodlum making love to his skirt in the chop house. As a matter of fact, it is not generally believed that McDade is guilty of this alienation of the dame's affections, but what is sufficient for the purpose of the slaughter that occurred, Milkie thought so.

Cannoni, Brisonelli, Maloney, and the dummy, all packing rods, made their way to the Uptown Club, the hangout of the McDade gang, and edged their way through the crowd to a back table. It was only a few moments before Skinny McDade himself sidled over to the table. "H'lo boys, glad to see you." Skinny's smile would ordinarily be completely disarming. Milkie knew, however, that behind that baby grin lurked a heart of black.

Mike Maloney reached for the switch, and in a moment the house was in complete darkness. Shots rang out from all sides, customers were trammeled on in the mad stampede for the door and windows. It is thought that the Valley View gang escaped through the front door, but no reliable testimony can be secured to this effect. Dopey Wyrick, McDade's lieutenant was shot through the left side. He passed this mortal sphere a few moments later without being able to identify his murderer.

The second attack on the rendezvous occurred about twenty minutes later. Only Brisonelli and Maloney entered. McDade was seated at a ringside table with Flossie Phillips and Ednie Morissette, entertainers and unusually well known characters at the Uptown Club. "Give me a match, pal," said Brisonelli in honeyed tones. Skinny reached in his pocket. The dummy, who had entered the establishment from the rear, crept up behind the rival gangster, and knifed him in the back.

Brisonelli, Maloney, and the dummy are being held under heavy bond (bottled in bond), Cannoni can not be found. It is thought, however, that he will surely return to his favorite chop house for more milk, and it is believed that his capture is imminent.

With Contemporaries

At Least France
Appreciates Us

A course in American civilization and literature has been added to the curriculum of the University of Rennes in France under the direction of Professor M. Le Breton, who studied at Harvard several years.

This is the first time that a European university has offered such a course, so it is a new step in education for that part of the world. Just why the old countries have waited so long to begin this study is a question not easily answered.

And this placing of American literature and civilization on a par with the literature and civilization of countries which are years older than our country is a fairly good sign that before long American art, now scoffed at by the Europeans, will be accepted as equal to the best efforts of their greatest men.—Oklahoma Daily.

Universities
And Science

Contrary to the general opinion that front rank scientists, especially students of applied science, are being turned out chiefly by privately-endowed institutions, a survey prepared by Stephen H. Fisher for the Journal of Higher Education reveals that state universities have taken the lead in sending these men into the various scientific professions.

Fisher's conclusion which appears quite logical is based upon the number of "star" men listed in American Men of Science who graduated from institutions supported by tax payers and those coming from private institutions. Johns Hopkins heads the list, but is followed by the University of Kansas, University of Chicago, University of Pennsylvania, Harvard, University of Indiana, University of California, and the University of Michigan.

Within a comparatively short time the state universities will hold an undisputed leadership in the leadership in the number of men in the various scientific fields. Each spring hundreds of men are graduated from institutions supported by the public—institutions whose equipment and teaching facilities are in most cases superior to private institutions. Without doubt this is an investment which pays large dividents.—Michigan Daily.

It is very thoughtful of the radio people to taboo in broadcasts the word "hell." Some of us don't like to be reminded of the way we are heading.—Richmond Times Dispatch.

"Going to Keep Me in the Dark, Daughter? I've merged Millions . . . Maybe I Know Something About Love, Too!"

For the first time, Arliss plays an American—and a Booth Tarkington American at that!

He wears a slouch hat, smokes a pipe, makes a million dollars, and without her knowing it, finds just the right husband for his beautiful daughter!

Two of America's foremost authors, Earl Derr Biggers and Booth Tarkington, wrote this charm-filled modern comedy!

George Arliss
with
MRS. GEORGE ARLISS
in Warner Bros. New Comedy
"The Millionaire"

With a supporting cast which includes
DAVID MANNERS — EVALYN KNAPP
TULLY MARSHALL — NOAH BEERY

ALSO
Billy House in his latest comedy "Thou Shalt Not" — Paramount News, showing the latest news events

—MONDAY—

—TUESDAY—
John Boles
—in—
"SEED"
From the Novel by Charles G. Norris

—WEDNESDAY—
The Day The World Was Doomed . . .

From Graham Seton's Sensational Novel

Most sensational story the screen has ever told

NO ADVANCE IN ADMISSION

WEDNESDAY—11 P. M.
"El Acusador de si Mismo"
All Spanish Talking Picture

—THURSDAY—
"NO"—What would you do if your husband loved you platonically?
"VIRTUOUS HUSBANDS"
—a screamingly funny comedy of a husband who said NO and a wife who said YES!
with
Betty Compson
Jean Arthur
Tully Marshall
From the Play "Apron Strings"

FRIDAY
Thomas Meighan
in Young Sinners

SATURDAY
El Brendel
in
6 Cylinder Love

Coming "Tarnished Lady"

CAROLINA

One of the Publix-Kincey Theatres

Tar Heels Prepare For Southern Conference Track Meet This Week

Carolina's Defending Champions Must Beat Tulane, Georgia, And Alabama to Repeat Last Year's Victory.

Having finished their dual meet season yesterday against Penn State, the Tar Heel track squad returned today to prepare for the defense of their Southern Conference championship in Birmingham, Alabama, Friday and Saturday. Carolina will be facing stiff competition in all events with the strongest challenge coming from Auburn, Tulane, Alabama, and W. and L.

Last year Carolina's brilliant team of veterans won the meet easily, scoring 40½ points to 28½ for Georgia, second place winner. Sixteen Tar Heels figured in the scoring with Farmer, placing first in the 220 yard dash and third in the 100, leading the way with seven points. Farmer's victory in the 220 was the only first place gained by the Blue and White performers, but a large number of seconds, thirds, fourths, and fifths enabled the Tar Heels to win their second Conference championship by a wide margin.

Carolina's chances for retaining its title look doubtful at present, but their performances in walking away with the state meet in Greensboro boost their stock tremendously. The Tar Heels set three new state records, tied another, and turned in their best times of the year in several other events.

With Charley Farmer out of competition, Rip Slusser, Ken Marland, and J. K. Smith have done the Carolina scoring in this event with Slusser claiming the best time, ten seconds flat. However, Alabama has two men, Smith and Bradley, who have bettered Slusser's mark, and Brownlee of Duke has equalled it on several occasions this spring. Bradley and Smith have both run the century in 9.9 and look good to cop the event in the Conference meet. Farmer's best time is 9.8 seconds which he made frequently last year, but it is doubtful if he will be able to enter this event Saturday.

In the 220, which Farmer won in 21.7 last year, Kentucky will offer "Shipwreck" Kelly, who placed second to Farmer last spring, and Virginia will have Coles who has run it in 21.6. Farmer's best time, 21.2, should win easily if he can get himself into good enough condition.

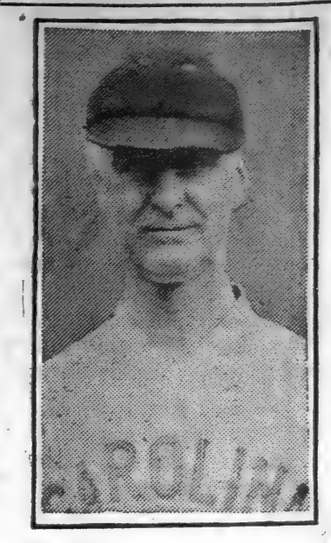
The low hurdles will see DeColigny of Tulane, Finklestein and Speer, Washington and Lee, Lipe, Alabama, and Slusser, Carolina, as the most outstanding men. Slusser's best time for this event is 24.6 scored against V. P. I. early in the season, while DeColigny has done 24.8 on several occasions. Finklestein, defeated Slusser in a dual meet, and ranks as one of the big favorites to cop the event.

In the high hurdles, DeColigny, Speer, Finklestein, Maddox of Georgia, and Moreau of L. S. U. stand out as the most likely winners. Speer ran the event in 15 seconds flat against the Tar Heels and DeColigny has done it in 15.5.

The mile run will see several brilliant stars running against each other when Jones, Carolina, Simon, Duke, Lineberger, Clemson, Wise, V. M. I., and Lauck, Virginia, line up for the starter's gun. Wise has the best record for the season with a time of 4:23.8, but he will find plenty of competition from the rest of the field. Jones has defeated Simon of Duke in 4:32, while Gladden of Washington and Lee won against the Tar Heels in 4:33.4.

(Continued on last page)

SPORT SHOTS



By Jack Bessen

"You can't keep a good man down." Babe Ruth proved that Sunday, when after a three week layoff because of a leg injury, the Yankee buster started a game against the A's and got two for three . . . The lowly Reds are still hitting along in the most abominable luck imaginable. Dan Howley's boys have lost over half of their games by one run margins. And they're playing the toughest outfits in the National League . . . President Heydler of the National League issued a statement in which he said that the new ball aided the hurlers. Well, to look over the batting averages of the senior circuit, it seems like a few of the boys will be hitting around .400 when the season ends . . . Or perhaps Heydler based his opinion on the fact that the hurlers forced Rogers Hornsby's average from .750 to a mere .569 . . .

Carolina's first doubles combination of Hines and Grant seem to be picking the tough spots. This duo, undefeated up to the present northern trip, has already dropped their first two matches to Georgetown and Princeton respectively . . . Jesse Harper, former director of athletics and tutor of the late Knute Rockne, has resumed his duties in that capacity at the South Bend institution . . . Bill Morton of Dartmouth seems to be in fair line to make his third major letter at the Hanover school. Bill is all-Eastern quarterback, captain-elect and chosen all-American on the hockey team. At present, he is alternating in center field for the Indian's championship nine . . . May Day was a great occasion for Brooklyn. Uncle Robbie's boys managed to win three games in a row, but two of the victories were over the unsuspecting Phils. When Robbie brought the Quaker City club into the trap, he shoved in Phelps and Vance against them. Looks like the pop bottles will start breaking again at Ebbet Field . .

That invigorating sport of horseshoe throwing has become an intramural activity at Oregon State. Mac Gray, take notice . . . Baseball lost an oldtimer when Mike Matitmore, 72, pitcher for the New York Giants in 1887 and later a member of the Philadelphia and Brooklyn teams died Tuesday . . . Rogers Hornsby still believes that his team is going to have an edge on the St. Louis Cardinals when the season ends and no one will tell him different. Time will tell and what it will tell, we wonder . . . The Michigan State nine has an incentive to play for now. A local store in Lansing has offered a shirt for every homer and a tie for every triple . . . Pitching his first professional ball game, Evan Young, rookie right hander of the High Point Club in the Piedmont League, pitched a no hit game, shutting out the Raleigh Caps, 4-0. Not bad for a rookie . . . That old trial horse, Johnny Risko is still pulling in his share of wins. Last Tuesday he beat California's young hopeful, Max Baer in a ten round bout . . . Forgetting to bring a ring to the wedding at which he was best man cost Charley Wood, former Washington athlete, twenty-five dollars. When he got to the wedding, he saw that he forgot the ring, and he hurried back in such haste that he was picked up and fined for reckless driving . . . Joe Pickett, star end on Duquesne's football team, whose sure fire and vicious tackling brought many a stadium crowd to its feet has decided to open a beauty shop during the summer . . .

Coach Ashmore

Coach Jim Ashmore started the season with a rookie outfit, but nevertheless, has developed the Tar Heels into one of the most formidable clubs in years. His charges, who swept the Virginia series yesterday, have compiled a record of thirteen wins, three losses and one tie. Since Ashmore came to the University in 1927, the Tar Heels have taken ten out of twelve games with the Cavaliers.

BROWN NETTERS BOW TO FIERCE PLAY OF HEELS

Rain Terminates Matches With Carolina Leading, 5-0; Twelfth Straight for Tar Heels.

Rain brought an end to the tennis matches between the Tar Heels and the Brown University netters at Providence, R. I., Friday, with the Carolina outfit leading 5-0.

The last singles match between Captain Graham and Dave Scott had just started when the downpour came.

Bryan Grant and Wilmer Hines, the two national champions with the locals, won their matches in decisive fashion. Grant was given a hard fight by Ken Butler in the first set, which the Tar Heel won, 6-3.

Butler won all his three games in a row, throwing Grant off his stride, but Bryan recovered quickly to run out the set and match.

Hines downed Captain Bob Rutan, 6-3, 6-1. The Brown captain put up his best fight in the opening set.

Wright, Hendlin, and Abels all won their matches easily for the Tar Heels.

The superiority of the southerners was very evident, the Bruins being able to only capture eight games of the ten sets played.

The summary:

Singles

Grant (N. C.) defeated Butler (B.), 6-3, 6-1.
Hines (N. C.) defeated Rutan (B.), 6-3, 6-0.
Wright (N. C.), defeated Baruch (B.), 6-2, 6-0.
Abels (N. C.) defeated Augenlick (B.) 6-0, 6-1.
Hendlin (N. C.) defeated Harmon (B.) 6-0, 6-0.

Nell Hunter To Appear At Duke

In response to numerous requests from music lovers at Duke, Nell Hunter, famous Negro mezzo-soprano, will give a music recital in the Page auditorium on the west campus of the Durham institution next Tuesday evening. The concert will be the last of a series sponsored by the Y.M.C.A. this year.

The artist is also a favorite with many Chapel Hill music lovers who were among those requesting that she be featured on the series at Duke again this year.

Ancient Game Of Polo Now Popular As College Sport

Game Played in Oriental Countries During Sixth Century Has Been Fast Gaining Prominence As University Athletic Event in the United States.

By Phil Alston

When Tommy Hitchcock swings his polo mallet he probably doesn't realize that the game he is playing is one of the oldest in the history of the world, dating back to the sixth century when it was played in China and other oriental countries. The game was also played in ancient India in a modified form, but it was the Persians, with their love of horsemanship, who first played the game on horseback. British officers stationed in India became acquainted with the Persian modification of the sport and, on their return from India, introduced the game to the sportsmen of Great Britain.

The game was first played in England in 1869, and, from that time on, grew rapidly in popularity. The rules were standardized in 1873, and 1877 the first of the modern polo clubs was organized at Hurlingham, England, and a regular championship cup was established.

Polo in America

Polo progressed slowly in America, due to the fact that means of supporting the sport were lacking, but, in 1885 the first American team was organized, and in 1886 the first international match was played, England scoring an easy two to nothing victory over the United States. Since that time, the game has been introduced to the schools and universities of the country with the result that it has become highly popular in some sections, particularly in the east, where rivalry is keen among the leading universities and preparatory schools.

Polo, while originally an outdoor game, has been adapted to indoor play during recent years, and this has tended to add still more to its popularity in collegiate circles.

Harvard, Yale, and Princeton have been the leaders in intercollegiate polo during the past few years, although Army, Haverford, and Pennsylvania Military College have also presented consistently good teams. In 1929 Harvard won the National Intercollegiate Championship, and, in 1930, captured the National Intercollegiate Indoor championship title with Princeton winning the Class B title. Yale took the National Intercollegiate crown away from Harvard in 1930, and opened its 1931 season with a 9-8 victory over Pennsylvania Military College after two overtime periods. At the same time, Army scored a 5-2 victory over the Princeton Tigers at Princeton.

Natural Limitations

As an intercollegiate sport, polo has certain natural limitations that cannot be easily overcome. Schools without access to good stables find it almost impossible to maintain teams on account of the tremendous burden attached to the game. As a result, one of the world's oldest sports must, of necessity, be limited to military institutions with cavalry units and universities boasting sufficiently large endowments to enable them to support the game. Except for the high cost of maintaining stables and adequate equipment for the players, polo might easily become one of the outstanding sports of the country, since it possesses a sufficient amount of excitement and action to catch the public's fancy. But the financial demands of the game are too great for any schools other than the most wealthy to enjoy.

SIX TEAMS LEFT IN CLASS B RACE

Winners in East and West to Play Here For Title Friday.

The state championship in the Class B league will be played here on Emerson field, Friday, May 15, at 3:00 o'clock. The two teams that will meet then will be decided by the winners of each the East and West teams in the Class B loop. There are three teams left in each section, with Roanoke Rapids, Erwin, and Rowland in the East; and Mount Airy, Forest City, and Cherryville, in the West.

In the Class A competition, Raleigh and Charlotte are the leaders to date and the winner of this league will be decided on Saturday, May 23.

Over thirty high schools in the state entered this championship series early in the spring and they played on a regular schedule. By a process of elimination, then, the above are left. Mr. Rankin says that a great deal of interest is being shown by those teams that are still in the race and he is looking forward to a grand finale.

A doctor suggests that, of the many people who disappear every year, some are actuated by the belief that they are not wanted. And others, no doubt, by the knowledge that they are. —Passing Show.

The "Autobiography of Lincoln Steffons" is fascinating reading matter. It vividly recalls the quaint old days when corruption still existed in cities like Philadelphia, Chicago, and New York.—The New Yorker.

NEW PROHIBITION COURSE ADOPTED IN OHIO COLLEGE

The political science department of Ohio Wesleyan has announced a new course on prohibition as a governmental problem, for juniors and seniors alone. Freshmen and sophomores were immediately prohibited from taking the course for fear of the demoralizing effects.

Both wets and drys are to lecture in class. It would not be fair to leave boot-leggers, rum runners, and hi-jackers out of the course because they figure rather prominently in prohibition as a governmental problem.

Enrollment in this class is expected to be large since every American likes to air his views on prohibition. In addition to the presentation of one's own personal views, stray bits of information may be garnered, and no doubt advantageous contacts will be made by the students.

The textbooks will probably be governmental, statistical reports both dry (in more ways than one) and wet. Research along this line should be most interesting even for the most confirmed wet, for secret dives, bootleggers and holes-in-the-wall will probably be visited by the class as a whole. The students could be relied upon to report fully upon their experiences with and without intoxicants.

It is a well known fact that intoxicating liquors affect various persons in various ways. Sympathetic professors could be assigned to a congenial group of students. For instance, the four diversions of inebriate are: jocose, comatose, lachrymose, and bellicose. Professors chosen by this classification would lead to a new understanding and sympathy with the students.

Many students will probably want to major in prohibition. Accordingly degrees would be offered, and many of our present congressmen would receive honorary ones. Doctor of prohibition will sound very good, and it is well known that prohibition needs a doctor.

D.K.E., SIGMA ZETA, STEELE LEAD IN CAMPUS ACTIVITY

Intramural Baseball Teams All Bunched Together; Nine Clubs Still Undefeated.

Taking the lead in the fraternity intramural league for baseball the past month are the Delta Kappa Epsilon and Sigma Zeta fraternities who have won three games. Alpha Tau Omega and Chi Phi come next with both of their games to their credit.

In the dormitory league Steele forged ahead of the other dormitories with five victories to their credit and no losses. Best House and Graham dormitory follow with four victories and no defeats. New Dorms won all three of the games played.

The standings for both leagues follow:

Dormitory League

Team	W.	L.
Steele	5	0
Best House	4	0
Graham	4	0
New Dorms	3	0
Old East	3	1
Mangum	1	1
Lewis	1	1
Question Marks	1	2
Aycock	1	2
Manley	1	3
Old West	1	3
Grimes	1	4
Independents	0	1
Ruffin	0	2
Everett	0	3
Law School	0	3

Fraternity League

Team	W.	L.
D. K. E.	3	0
Sigma Zeta	3	0
A. T. O.	2	0
Chi Phi	2	0
Lambda Chi Alpha	2	0
Kappa Alpha	3	1
Phi Gam	3	1
Kappa Sig	2	1
S. A. E.	2	1
T. E. P.	2	2
Delta Sigma Phi	1	1
Phi Delta Theta	1	1
Phi Alpha	1	2
Phi Sigma Kappa	1	2
S. P. E.	1	2
Betas	0	1
Sigma Chi	0	1
Sigma Phi Sigma	0	1
Zeta Psi	0	1
Pi Kappa Phi	0	2
Delta Tau Delta	0	3
Theta Chi	0	3
Phi Kappa Sigma	0	4

PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS

THE SMOKE SHOP
EAT WITH US DRINK WITH US

KODAKS and FILMS
6-Hour Service on Developing and Printing
Exclusive Dealers for
R.C.A.-Victor Radios and Records
UNIVERSITY BOOK & STATIONERY CO.
Mrs. J. L. Sutton, Mgr.

Lack Of Proper Environment At Home Is Cause Of Lawlessness

With the coming of May 10, Mother's Day, it would be well to turn our thoughts for a while to this subject and delve a little more deeply into the significance that this day has for all of us. Synonimous with the thought of Mother usually come thoughts of home. According to the testimony of some of our outstanding leaders, the two most important needs in American life today are for the strengthening of the influence of the home and the influence of the church. Dr. Alfred E. Stearns, principal of the Phillips Academy, says, based on his twenty-five years' experience as a schoolmaster, "Of all the agencies that have contributed to the upbuilding of our western civilization, none has exercised a more steadying influence than has the home."

Those in a position to know, attribute the great increase in lawlessness to the lack of home influence, or the wrong kind of home influence. In 1921, a survey was made of the inmates of the Indiana State prison. The majority were found to have left home influence between the ages of sixteen and twenty-one. To corrobate this fact, even further statistics prove that the age of criminals is constantly being lowered. Recently, Police Commissioner Mulrooney of New York City stated that the majority of criminals in that city were fifteen and sixteen years of age. This is probably due, for the most part, to lax relationships at home. Boys are apt to seek recreation outside their homes. Records showed a short time ago, that 73 per cent. of the spart time of young men in Portland, Oregon, was spent away from the home.

Whether the results of these investigations are due to young men refusing to take real shares in the responsibilities of their homes, or whether they do not find at home the companionship that each desires, is a question. Undoubtedly, many other factors would have to be considered to determine the whys and wherefores of the results. Something, however, is evidently wrong. Perhaps a good deal more cheerful cooperation and less unconcern about the home on the part of the young men would help remedy matters a great deal.

Academy of Science Gathers Yearly To Discuss Research

(Continued from first page)

quickly spread throughout the state. It was early decided that the meetings of the organization should take place alternately at the University, N. C. C. W., Duke (Trinity), State college, and Wake Forest, a plan that has been followed for the thirty years of the society's history. Last year the society met at Duke while this year it is convening at State college in Raleigh.

The first two meetings took place in the fall, but since then they have been in the spring. In 1904, the state section of the American Chemical society met with the Academy; and the plan was liked so well that it has been continued since that time.

Presidents of Academy

After 1904, the University became vitally interested in the organization; and the names of the leading professors of science on the campus can be found on the rolls of the society. Of the twenty nine presidents of the academy, the University has been honored by having ten.

Dr. Collier Cobb, Dr. W. C. Coker, Dr. Charles Baskerville, Dr. H. V. Wilson, Dr. A. S. Wheeler, Dr. F. P. Venable, Dr. A. H. Patterson, Dr. Archibald Henderson, and Dr. J. M. Bell have been presidents of the society, while Dr. W. F. Prouty, of the geology department, presided at this spring's session.

High School Awards

In 1926, the academy adopted a plan of making awards for the best papers on scientific subjects written by high school students. This was a step in the direction of promoting more interest in scientific subjects by high schools.

In the meeting yesterday, forty-two papers were read on widely varied subjects. These meetings are made open to the public. The Academy is affiliated with the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Radio Debate

The third annual radio debate is to take place over radio station WRVA, Richmond, Virginia, May 19. The debaters are J. C. Rutledge, Hamilton H. Hobgod, and McBride Fleming-Jones. The subject of the debate is "The Influence of Talking Movies in the Next Ten Years."

Tar Heels Prepare for Southern Conference Track Meet This Week

(Continued from preceding page)

Auburn will present great strength in the high jump, and the weight events, and may prove to be the dark horse of the meet. Both Stacy and Stewart, Auburn high jumpers, have cleared the bar at more than 6 feet one inch and bid fair to break the record set by Jack McDowall of N. C. State some years back. Coleman of Auburn has thrown the shot 46 feet six inches and the javelin 138 feet seven and ranks among the leaders in each of these events.

One of the features of the meet should be the discus event where Dameron, Carolina, and Swart, V. P. I., will oppose Coleman. Dameron set a new state record last week with a distance of 136 feet six inches, and should give Coleman quite a bit of trouble win or lose.

Oelkers of Tulane with over 45 feet five inches in the shot put, and Swart of V. P. I., with almost 47 feet ten inches, will more than make trouble for Coleman in the shot. Swart is favored to trim him.

Auburn's other outstanding performer in the weight events in Robinson, who has thrown the javelin 191 feet eleven inches in dual meets.

McGinn of State looks to be the best in the half-mile while Fulmer of Duke and Wisner of Virginia stand out as the most likely winners in the broad jump. Both have done over 23 feet consistently.

Ray Ruble, wearing Carolina colors for the last time Saturday, is favored to win the pole vault with Brodie Arnold, his running mate, a close second.

In the two mile, Baucom, Carolina, Simon, Duke, Miles, V. P. I., and Wells, Tulane, stand out as the most likely winners. All four of these men have turned in excellent performances this year, with Baucom leading the way by virtue of his win in the state meet in 9:51.7.

An Oklahoma farmer stole one chicken and was sent to prison for three years. If he had stolen 1,000,000 chickens, he'd have had a better lawyer.—San Diego Union.

"How can I prevent people constantly writing to me for photographs?" asks a film star. We advise her to send them passport photoghaphs.—The Humorist (London).

At The Carolina

George Arliss' latest picture, "The Millionaire" will be shown at the Carolina Monday with Evelyn Knapp playing the feminine lead. In this picture Mr. Arliss makes a departure from the usual type, playing a strictly modern role, as opposed to his usual historical characterizations.

On Wednesday the attraction will be "The W Plan," an unusual war film, revealing the fantastic plan of a warring nation to destroy its enemy in one smashing blow. This picture depicts the operations of a officer in the British Intelligence Service during the World War.

"The W. Plan," dealing with the war period, is said to have a minimum of trite war scenes in it, taking place behind the German lines, and in the subterranean galleries which were part of a reputed plan to dig across "no man's land" and break the back-bone of the allied forces. How this plan was developed and eventually blasted by the engenuity of a single man forms a story which has been termed by critics as "brilliant and excellently exciting."

The absolute ultimate in sophistication, "The Virtuous Husband" which will play here Thursday, is Universal's sparkling screen edition of the stage play "Apron Strings," with fascinating Betty Compson, Elliott Nugent, and pert Jean Arthur in the ultra-modern, leading roles.

The story of a supposedly idealistic husband who never possessed either the major or minor vices, and his beautiful, new wife, who prefers love to lectures is, in all probability, the most daring picture that the talking picture era has brought forth.

The other shows on the week's program include on Thursday, John Boles in his latest picture, "Seed"; Friday, "Young Sinners" with Thomas Meighan in the leading role; and Saturday El Brendel in his newest and funniest comedy, "Six Cylinder Love."

Glee Club Sings At Greenville, New Bern

The University glee club sang in the high school auditorium in New Bern Wednesday night, and in the auditorium of the Eastern Carolina State Teachers college at Greenville the following night. After the concert in New Bern the Carolina Alumni of New Bern and vicinity gave the organization a dance at the New Bern Country Club.

Miss Charlotte Duffy, a sister of Charles Duffy, who is a member of the glee club, was the hostess; and she and Mrs. Warren acted as sponsors. At Greenville the senior class gave the club a reception and dance in the auditorium building.

All eligible members of the squad were initiated into the club on this last trip of the year. Those initiated are: W. G. Barnett, Derita; Archie R. Davis, Winston-Salem; D. A. Harrell, Scotland Neck; S. Carlyle Isley, Burlington; Harry Lee Knox, Statesville; James C. Pfohl, Winston-Salem; C. M. Sawyer, Winston-Salem; Gilbert W. Stamper, Greensboro; Warren P. Stumpf, Flushing, N. Y.; and Charles S. Tempton, China Grove.

Infirmary List

Those confined to the infirmary yesterday were Thomas W. Teer and Joseph T. Wilson, Jr.

DR. LASKI'S FINAL ADDRESS CLOSES WEEK'S PROGRAM

(Continued from first page)

United Textile Workers, delivered an address on "Labor Organization and Southern Industry." That evening "The Mill Owners' Responsibility and View Point" was the subject of a talk by Mr. Ben E. Geer, treasurer of the Judson Mills, Greenville, North Carolina. Mr. Geer spoke again on Thursday morning on the topic of "Human Element in the Textile Future."

Weil Lectures

On Thursday evening, Professor Harold J. Laski delivered the first of a series of three lectures which compose the set of Weil Lectures given annually. Mr. Laski, who is now a visiting professor at Yale University, is professor of political science in the London school of economics, where he has been the exponent of such solid thought as to have become one of the most appreciated analysts of economics and politics. His subject was "The Crisis in the Modern State." The crisis, says Mr. Laski, is the growing inability of the state.

On Friday in the morning lecture, President Mordecai Johnson, of Howard University, Washington, gave what is considered one of the most thought-provoking talks of the week. His subject was "Race Issues in Modern Society." President Johnson is well-qualified to speak on race issues, having observed at first hand for a number of years race relationships between students of his university and the white race of America. He emphasized the importance of unity in religious worship in reaching the goal of good feeling and understanding between the races.

Professor Laski delivered the second of the Weil Lectures on Friday evening upon the subject "The Place of Administration in the Modern State."

Saturday Full Day

Saturday, as the closing day presented the fullest day of the Institute gathering. In the morning James T. Shotwell, professor of history at Columbia university spoke upon "The New Era in International Relations." At noon Professor Shotwell led a forum on international relations, at which President Graham was the presiding officer. A luncheon conference on international relations took place at the Carolina Inn with Professors Laski and Shotwell as guests, and Honorable Josephus Daniels as toast-master. The Institute closed on Saturday evening with the final of the Weil Lectures by Professor Laski upon "The Expert in Democracy."

This was the second meeting of the Human Relations Institute, it having been sponsored here in 1927 under the auspices of the local Y. M. C. A. The recent meeting presented a much more renowned group of lecturers and in every way displayed great advances over the convention held in 1927.

Freshman Intelligence Tests Reveal Aptitude For College Work

(Continued from first page)

more on their work during the first two quarters. Twenty-eight, who were on the bottom on the quiz, failed to pass a single course out of six. It might be interesting to note that the two lowest men on the test later made Phi Beta Kappa in the school of engineering. The reason for this lay in the fact that these two students were always extremely careful of accepting a thing as facts in their college work. This, however an astounding exception, further illustrated the significance of the quiz.

Five Dances For Week Scheduled

(Continued from first page)

tra leader, will furnish the music.

Following the dance, the fraternity will entertain guests at a buffet supper.

At the same time Friday night, the woman's association plans to give the spring co-ed ball. Jack Wardlaw will play at this dance which will be in Spencer hall.

Saturday Dances

Saturday afternoon the Kappa Alpha fraternity will entertain at a tea dance in their house. Leftwich will also furnish music for this affair.

Leftwich will play at the Delta Tau Delta formal which will take place Saturday night between the hours of 9:00 and 12:00.

The second Grail of the quarter is scheduled for this time Saturday. Arrangements for music are being made with Jack Wardlaw and his campus orchestra.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK PROGRAM NOW COMPLETE

(Continued from first page)

and the presidents will respond for their classmates.

The alumni luncheon, beginning at 1:00 in Swain hall, will be one of the chief events of the commencement. Tables will be reserved for the classes holding reunions, and members of the graduating class will attend this luncheon in a body.

The induction of the class of '31 to the General Alumni Association will probably occur during the luncheon. Kemp P. Lewis, '00 of Durham, President of the Alumni Association, will officiate as toastmaster. The class dinners for the twelve reuniting class are planned at six o'clock at places to be announced later.

Annual Ball

President Graham's reception to the alumni and the annual alumni ball will be given in the Tin Can, beginning at 9:00.

The graduation exercises are planned for Tuesday, June 9. The academic procession will form in front of Alumni building at 10:30, and from there march to Memorial hall. The Honorable Claude G. Bowers, eminent editor, author, and historian, will deliver the commencement address. Until its recent purchase by the Scripps-Howard chain, the New York World was edited by Mr. Bowers. He delivered the famous "to your tents, O Israel," keystone address before the Democratic convention in 1928. His books: The Tragic Era, Jefferson and Hamilton, and Party Battles of the Jacksonian Period are widely known.

Governor Gardner will present the diplomas to the members of the graduating class.

Carroll Addresses Greensboro Civitans

In an address to the Civitan Club, of Greensboro, at their meeting Friday, Dean D. D. Carroll, of the school of commerce, pointed out some of the obstacles to straight thinking on public questions.

Dean Carroll observed that the lack of straight thinking on the part of the public is due to the habit of condemning whatever it dislikes. Through prejudice, many questions are not understood and are not given due consideration, he said, while public ownership, taxes, local government, and the budget are matters commonly misunderstood by the public.

Think of all the things a winner could do with an $860,000 prize in a sweepstakes. Why, he could come in second in a Pennsylvania primary for senator.—Detroit News.

DANCES PROVIDE GALA WEEK-END FOR UNIVERSITY

(Continued from first page)

er Davidson.

Varied Entertainments

There were many entertainments besides the dances, including buffet suppers, swimming and horseback parties. The Minotaurs presented their annual banquet Friday night, and the Order of the Sheiks theirs Saturday night. The Sigma Chi fraternity was host at a buffet supper Saturday evening; Kappa Sigma gave one after the dance the same evening.

Plans for the decorations were made by Mayne Albright, "Red" Greene, and Sam Breen. These men arranged the decorations for the fall and mid-winter dances, and the Spring Festival. The color scheme was carried out in black and white.

The entrance to the building was flanked by pines, giving an air of freshness to the place. Booths for the various fraternities and chaperones lined the north side of the ballroom. At the east end a tea garden added greatly to the appearance of the interior of the dance floor.

Reading the news from France and central Europe one gets the impression that the plowshares beaten out of the late swords are about as shaky as all other kinds of shares these days. —Virginian-Pilot.

LOST

LOST: two slide rules. One in tan leather case with initials E. F. T. Other in black leather case. Finder please return to B. B. Lane, Jr., Room 320, Phillips hall. Reward.

PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS

DR. H. P. ROSS
Optometrist
Specialist in Anomalies of the Eyes
For Appointment Dial N-2361
102½ West Main Street
Durham, N. C.

DR. W. B. SORRELL
Optometrist

Chapel Hill Movie Guild
Presents
"SWANEE RIVER"
with
THELMA TODD
GRANT WITHERS

Your Taste
will tell you that our
DELICIOUS
PARAGON
ICE CREAM
Is the Best You Ever Ate!
TRY IT TODAY
PARAGON ICE CREAM CO.

RADIO TALK
JOHN LANG
WPTF — 3:30

The Daily Tar Heel

PLESSOW LECTURE
"GERMAN LIFE"
GERRARD HALL — 7:30

VOLUME XXXIX | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., TUESDAY, MAY 12, 1931 | NUMBER 168

RARE STATUTES ARE PRESENTED TO LAW LIBRARY

Asheville Lawyer Gives Valuable Books from Vanderbilt Collection to University.

A valuable collection of North Carolina session laws has recently been presented to the law library by Mr. Kingsland Van Winkle of the law firm Harkins, Van Winkle, and Walton of Asheville. In presenting them, Mr. Van Winkle, a graduate of the law school of '01, says, "The gift is made in appreciation for what the University did for me when I was a poor student there."

Bought by Vanderbilt

This rare set of statutes covers the whole period from 1818 to 1866 except for a few volumes. The gift was accompanied by a letter from the donor which tells how the set was assembled. It seems that the volumes were originally bought for George W. Vanderbilt, when he first came to the state in the late 1800's, by his representative in Raleigh who picked them up volume by volume, here and there, whenever and where he could locate them —mostly from the justices of the peace who practiced in the state then.

This collecting was done over a period of years as it was difficult to locate these early state publications so long out of print. Vanderbilt secured them for the use of his lawyer who by means of the early property statutes and land grant contained in the public and private laws of the state established the millionaire's titles to the vast tracts of land which he bought not only in Buncombe County where Biltomore is situated but also in Haywood, Henderson, and Transylvania Counties.

From Private Library

Later Mr. Van Winkle became

(Continued on next page)

N.C.C.W. TO STAGE FIRST SOUTHERN CHOIR FESTIVAL

Church choirs from all sections of the state will gather at North Carolina college May 22 in the first church-choir festival ever staged in the South. The arrangement for the gathering is being made by Dr. Wade R. Brown, dean of the school of music at N. C. C. W.

It is expected that from twenty-five churches will send their choirs to the fest which is to begin at 3:00 o'clock in the afternoon. At 4:00 o'clock all choirs will combine in a rehearsal conducted by Dr. Brown. Singing of hymns rehearsed in the afternoon, and the presentation of anthems by several Greensboro choirs under the leadership of their choir master will feature the evening's program which will begin at 8:00 o'clock. The program will be climaxed with the rendition of "Hallelujah Chorus," from Handel's "Messiah," by the North Carolina college chorus and orchestra.

Catawba College Honors Graham

A degree of doctor of civil laws will be conferred by Catawba college on President-elect Frank P. Graham at the Catawba commencement May 27 at which Mr. Graham will deliver the principal address. This announcement was made Saturday by Catawba officials.

Groves Tells of New Problem in Marriage

Dr. E. R. Groves of the sociology department yesterday morning addressed freshmen chapel on, "Getting Ready for Marriage." In his talk Dr. Groves brought out the fact that there is trouble in one third of all marriages, and that one out of every seven ends up in the divorce courts.

As a result of this great number of marriage failures, lectures and courses are being given throughout the country by churches, seminaries, and universities.

Dr. Groves also stated that this present generation looks at marriage in a different light than did its parents.

Rev. C. E. Rozzelle of the Methodist church started the services with a prayer.

PROHIBITION WILL BE INVESTIGATED BY NEW COUNCIL

Ten College Professors Will Judge Theses on Eighteenth Amendment.

An intensive and extensive survey by scholars of "the vexed question of what is really happening in the United States as a result of prohibition," was announced yesterday by Prohibition Director Amos W. W. Woodcock.

He named an "advisory research council" of ten university professors—one of them a woman—in the social sciences, which will work out plans for investigations and theses by graduate students all over the country "to ascertain the truth regarding the operation of the Eighteenth Amendment in the field of political science."

Only graduate students, working for master's or doctor's degrees, will conduct the surveys, and the Bureau of Prohibition hopes to publish the outstanding results.

"How has the operation of the Eighteenth Amendment affected child delinquency?" and "How has it affected juvenile drinking?" are two subjects for field investigation, Woodcock said.

The council will serve without pay, the ten professors having volunteered their services, and will handle the research work "along purely scientific lines," he added in his formal announcement.

The members of the new council follow:

Richard Clarke Cabot, A.B., M. D., professor of social ehtics, chairman, social ethics department, Harvard university, Cambridge.

Samuel McCune Lindsay, Ph. D., L. L. B., professor of social legislation, Columbia university, New York City.

William Seal Carpenter, A. M., Ph. D., professor of politics, Princeton university.

Roderick Duncan McKinsey, Ph. D., chairman, department of sociology, University of Michigan.

Charles W. Pipkin, Ph. D., professor of comparative government, dean of the graduate school, Louisiana State university.

Charles Emerson Gehlke, Ph. D., professor of sociology, Western Reserve university, Cleveland.

Walter R. Miles, Ph. D., professor of experimental psychology, Stanford university, California.

(Continued on next page)

UNIVERSITY MEN READ PAPERS AT SCIENCE MEETING

Academy at Raleigh Covers Field of Interest in Science by Researches in All Lines.

Many papers were read at the meeting of the North Carolina Academy of Sciences which took place in Raleigh at State College last week. Miss Elizabeth N. Stephens and Professor A. S. Wheeler of the University of North Carolina presented a paper on, "The Chemical Composition of Ipomoea Pandurata" sometimes called the "old men of the earth." These are very woody sweet potatoes related to the morning glory family and are known to have attained the weight of twenty pounds. In the past the ipomoea pandurata were used as a medicine.

Dr. Collier Cobb of the geology department read a paper on the life of Nicholas Marcellus Hentz, professor of German at the University from 1826 to 1830. Besides teaching, Hentz was very interested in spiders. Dr. Cobb showed some drawings and contributions by Hentz at that early date to natural history.

Paper on Science Teaching

Dr. F. H. Edmister of the chemistry department discussed some recent trends in science teaching. He traced the history of the formal lecture system of teaching from pre-medieval times until today. Dr. Edmister commented on the undesirability and over-emphasis of this method.

The physics section of the University was represented by Dr. Otto Stuhlman, Dr. Fussler, Henry zurBurg, a graduate student, and C. J. Craven, a senior. Dr. Stuhlman and Craven presented a paper, read by Craven, called, "The Motion of Bursting Bubbles Rising through Li-

(Continued on next page)

SOCIETIES WILL MEET TOGETHER

Tonight, at 7:15 o'clock, the Di and Phi societies will meet in their annual joint session at the Phi assembly hall. Speaker Egbert Haywood of the Phi assembly will preside over the meeting.

The plan of meeting jointly dates back to the founding of the two societies; and because of the friendly relations between the two, such meetings have been continued. At the last joint session President Frank Graham was the guest of the two bodies. He related many traditions of the development and progress of the two institutions in producing leaders in the state and nation.

Representative John Lang at the last joint meeting introduced a resolution opposing any reduction in the University budget, and the two assemblies jointly favored his proposal.

Speaker Haywood of the Phi assembly and President K. C. Ramsay of the Di senate have arranged a program for this meeting consisting of two bills which were agreed upon by the leaders of the two assemblies.

The bills which will be discussed at the joint session are:

1. Resolved: That the Human Relations Institute is detrimental because it creates dissatisfaction by bringing in radicals.

2. Resolved: That the proposed consolidation of counties in North Carolina would be advantageous to the state.

GUSTAV PLESSOW WILL LECTURE ON LIFE IN GERMANY

Visiting Professor from Tubingen Will Deliver Last of Series Of Lectures Tonight.

Dr. Gustav Plessow, visiting professor at the University, will give his final lecture tonight in Gerrard hall at 7:30. His subject is "German Life Since the War." There have been three lectures preceding the one tonight: "Principal Forms of Style in Middle English Literature," and "German University Life," given before the Graduate club; "A New Theory Concerning Middle English Dialect," given before the Philological club, a group of faculty members and advanced students of the language departments.

Studies at Berlin

Educated at the University of Berlin, Dr. Plessow received his Ph. D. in English there. Immediately afterwards, he entered the army and, during the World War, was wounded several times, twice seriously. At the close of the war he had gained the rank of major. His fortune having been lost during the war, he set about remaking it, and soon he was manager in a large paint firm in Germany. It was at this time that Dr. Plessow finished his very excellent book on paint chemicals.

Being extremely interested in the English language, he again began his hobby of lecturing in the department of English at Bonn university. In a few years he was transferred to the University of Tubingen. At this time, having met A. C. Howell and Paul Green, both of the University faculty, in England, he became interested in Chapel Hill and obtained a year's absence from Tubingen in order to study American literature, government, religion, and the gen-

(Continued on next page)

NAZARENO PLANS ORIENTAL GARDEN

Alfredo Nazareno, a Philippine student, is constructing a garden after the style in his native country in the yard of Mrs. A. A. Kluttz. Nazareno, in contemplation of leaving Chapel Hill within the next two years, conceived the idea of doing something constructive to leave in rememberance of the happy days spent here. He advanced the idea to Mrs. Kluttz, and she readily granted permission for the carrying out of the project.

An oddly curving lake, two feet in depth, winds through the garden in snaky fashion. It will be cemented and made the home of fish, ornamental and practical. An arched bridge will cross the pool, and from the north bank runs a peninsula, supplemented on the east by an island. A mound of stones four feet high is to ornament the west end of the lake, adding the final touch of Oriental design, and forming another curious curvature in the pool. Myriads of flowers will be scattered about, and evergreens will prevent bareness in winter. The garden is about thirty feet long, but appears much larger because of the numerous oddities that are crowded into its boundaries.

Infirmary List

Those confined to the infirmary yesterday were Frank Dunn, Joseph T. Wilson, Jr., Robert H. Carmichael, Thomas W. Teer, and W. H. Davis.

Last Chance to Buy Senior Week Regalia

For the convenience of those persons who were unable to place their orders for beer suits Saturday, Randolph-McDonald have made special arrangements whereby those seniors may order their suits before 3:30, today. Thus far 100 orders have been taken. Of these orders for the senior regalia two orders were made by co-eds. The suits are priced at $2.85.

Pat Patterson, president of the class, urges that as many members of the class as possible order the regalia so that the senior week program may be a success. All persons attired in the beer suits will receive free drinks at Pritchard-Lloyd's drug store during the entire week beginning May 18, and these persons will be admitted to the Carolina theatre free of charge.

HIBBARD OFFERS EXTENSIVE PLANS FOR LIBERALISM

Former Carolina Dean Makes Rapid Progress in Obtaining Educational Reform.

The cause of college liberalism is being rapidly spread throughout the colleges and universities in the United States, especially on the campus of Northwestern university, Illinois. There Dean Addison Hibbard of the college of liberal arts, in which capacity he served the University of North Carolina until last year, is making progress in carrying out those reforms in the current stereotyped college education which he attempted to introduce here.

Proposed Reforms

The main principle embodied in a recent report at Northwestern by a committee selected to study the proposed reforms is the right for upperclassmen to select some field of work for intensive study, compulsory attendance of classes being eliminated, instead of the traditional routine of majors and minors. Students are to be given competent advice by advisors appointed especially for this office.

Other recommendations include the adoption of a three grade system: passing, failure, and honor; this measure would reduce the present exaggeration of the importance of grades. The committee also declared itself in favor of extending the privilege of optional cuts so that at least one third of the student body could enjoy unlimited cuts from classes.

Hibbard and Liberalism

Here on the campus Dean Hibbard and liberalism were always associated in the students' minds. His loss to the University was also a loss to this cause, as was clearly demonstrated by the recent faculty agitation for compulsory attendance and the considerable restriction of cuts, creating resentment among the students and campus publications.

The liberalistic movement in colleges and universities of the United States, of which Dean Hibbard is one of the main promulgators, is not new to the world but is merely to introduce to America the systems of the major English and European institutions of the higher rank. It is a rebellion against the arbitrary and cut-and-dried curricula now employed, submerging the

(Continued on next page)

TRUSTEES SELECT COMMITTEE FOR NEW MEMORIAL

Group Chosen from Students, Faculty, and Alumni to Decide On Use of Building.

The permanent committee in charge of the erection of Graham Memorial, appointed by the trustees of the University, Saturday, called in several prominent student leaders for suggestions for the allotment of space in the new building. As a result of this discussion it was decided that a board of directors, who would have charge of the administration of the building, should be appointed. This board of directors will be permanently composed of the president of the student union, the editor of the Daily Tar Heel, three students elected from the campus at large, two faculty members appointed by President Graham, or elected by the faculty and two alumni.

Dungan Chairman

The organization committee which is to make a report to the permanent committee of which Dr. W. M. Dey is head and Dr. L. R. Wilson, secretary, is made up of the following persons: Jack Dungan, chairman; Red Greene, Ray Farris, Mr. R. B. House, Dean F. F. Bradshaw, and Messrs C. T. Tillett, of Charlotte, and J. S. Hill, of Durham.

The sub committee on space and program of the building is made up of: Mayne Albright, chairman, Jack Dungan, Ed Hamer, C. T. Woollen, L. R. Wilson, Maryon Saunders, Kemp Lewis.

On Thursday, May 14, the Student Activities Committee will have its annual meeting in the Carolina Inn. At this meeting further discussion concerning the utilization of the memorial building will take place.

GABRIELLE McCOLL NEW CO-ED LEADER

Miss Gabrielle McColl of Bennetsville, South Carolina, was unanimously elected president of the Woman's Association at a meeting in Spencer hall recently.

Other newly elected officers are: Miss Margaret Powell of Biltmore, who won over Miss Orville Culpepper of Greenville, Georgia, as vice-president; Miss Betty Jones of Augusta, Georgia, won a majority over Miss Edith Webb of Oxford as secretary. The position of treasurer will be filled by Miss Rebecca Daniel of Clearwater, Florida, who was elected over Miss Florence Yancey of Marion. For house president of Spencer hall Miss Kathleen Fennell of Quinton, Virginia, was victorious over her opponent, Miss Marion Tatum of Raleigh. Miss Martha DeLaney, Charlotte, was unopposed for the presidency of the women's athletic association.

Lang on Radio

John A. Lang, president of the North Carolina Student Federation, will deliver an address over WPTF Wednesday afternoon between 3:30 and 3:45 at which time he will give the history of the Federation and the announcement of the national convention to take place at Duke university, Saturday, May 16.

Taylor Ill

Professor Malcolm D. Taylor was operated on Monday morning for appendicitis at Watts hospital, Durham.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays. Entered as Second Class matter at the post office at Chapel Hill, N. C., under Act of March 3, 1879.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $4.00 for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

Jack Dungan ..... Editor
H. N. Patterson ..... Bus. Mgr.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Ed French ..... Mng. Ed.

Editorial Board
Charles G. Rose ..... Chairman
J. M. Little — Frank J. Manheim
W. M. Bryson — Will Yarborough
Alden Stahr — Bob Barnett
Wex Malone

Assignment Editors
Otto S. Steinreich
Dan Kelly, Assistant

Sunday Editor
Charles G. Rose

City Editors
Bill McKee — George Wilson
Peter Hairston — Jack Riley

Desk Men
Frank Hawley — T. W. Blackwell
W. R. Woerner — Don Shoemaker
Vass Shepherd

Sports Staff
Jack Bessen ..... Sports Editor

Assistants
T. H. Broughton — P. Alston

News Men
E. M. Spruill — F. W. Ashley
Charles Poe — Bob Betts
W. E. Davis — Clayborn Carr

Reporters
Saul Gordon — Bob Reynolds
Ronald Kochendorfer — Dilworth Cocke
Woodward Glenn — M. V. Barnhill, Jr.
William Blount — John Burroughs
Walker Stamps

BUSINESS STAFF

Hal Worth ..... Circulation Mgr.
Harlan Jameson ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.
John Manning ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.

Advertising Department
Al L. Olmstead ..... Advertising Mgr.
Pendleton Gray ..... Advertising Mgr.
Bernard Solomon ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
R. D. McMillan, Jr. ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
James N. Nowell — H. A. Clark

Collection Department
Jack Hammer ..... Collection Mgr.
John Barrow — Frank S. Dale
Stokes Adderton — Jack Stokes

Correspondence Department
Ed Michaels, Jr. ..... Correspondence Mgr.
Wynn Hamm ..... Ass't. Cor. Mgr.

Tuesday, May 12, 1931

Billions Of Morons

Closed is the Quadrennial Institute on Human Relations here, and with it are closed for another four years scores of minds stimulated and inspired by contacts afforded by this past week's meetings.

To decry the fact that collegians do not struggle to think independently of their family and community groups is to place ourselves in the class of perfectly mediocre thinkers. The most lamentable feature of mental life in the United States is the absence of respect or consideration for collegiate opinion. College humorous publications have given adult members of society the very erroneous impression that men in college are a class of buffons whose I.Q.'s are around seventy and who wear great raccoon coats, cheer football teams and get drunk in the winter, and who wear loud blazers, beer suits, cheer crew races and get drunk in the spring.

Under the deprecatory attitude of the non-academic public of the country the student mind speaks to deaf ears and amused and humoring faces. And still less understanding is the professoriat who, quite in general during these latter days of intolerance and arch conservatism, looks upon college men as bad little youngsters incapable of doing aught but sit at their feet glibly repeating memorized words and phrases, and who are not to be trusted with optional attendance, or other liberal and archaic systems of individualism.

What inspiration or necessity is there for youthful thought in a world as hostile as ours. Institutes spaced as far apart as four years are of ephemeral influence, while machine made civilization, moronic movies, tabloid literature, tyranical and disciplinary pedants, and a condescending public are producing and will continue to produce with accelerating rapidity a race of high class morons of which future generations may justly boast—We are four billion strong and all think alike.

With Contemporaries

Pulitzer Prize Novels

1918 Ernest Poole, His Family
1919 Booth Tarkington, The Magnificent Ambersons
1920 No award
1921 Edith Wharton, The Age of Innocence
1922 Booth Tarkington, Alice Adams
1923 Willa Cather, One of Ours
1924 Margaret Wilson, The Able McLaughlins
1925 Edna Berber, So Big
1926 Sinclair Lewis, Arrowsmith (declined)
1927 Louis Bromfield, Early Autumn
1928 Thornton Wilder, The Bridge of San Luis Rey
1929 Julia Peterkin, Scarlet Sister Mary
1930 Olivia La Farge, Laughing Boy
1931 Margaret Ayer Barnes, Years of Grace

These 12 American authors, winners of Pulitzer prize novel awards since 1918, have each been accorded the distinction of having produced the best novel during a given year in the opinion of the awards committee.

One, Booth Tarkington, was twice recipient of the honor. Another, Sinclair Lewis, refused to accept the prize when it was awarded to his book Arrowsmith in 1926.

There is no doubt about the merit of the novels chosen. All have been good books.

But after a second perusal of the list the questions invariably arise: What about Theodore Dreiser and Sherwood Anderson, who were also producing during this period, Dreiser with An American Tragedy and Anderson with Winesburg Ohio and Dark Laughter?

And what of James Branch Cabell? Is his type of writing to be ignored entirely, and hence discouraged by the committee?

Sinclair Lewis in rejecting the prize in 1926 objected to it on the grounds that its influence was not in the best interests of literature. Placing the final selection of the year's best novel in the hands of one select group, he declared, would tend to discourage individuality in writing since writers, in order to win, will more and more follow the standard held by this committee.

A further question that is raised regarding the award is the feasibility of saying that one novel worthy of the prize will be produced each year. To do so is to place an artificial time limit upon talent not at all in keeping with nature's sporadic distribution of genius.—Daily Iowan.

Modern Educational Concept

Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase, new president of the University of Illinois, advocated in his inaugural address certain concepts of modern day higher education which are worthy of consideration. "The state university must be responsive to the social philosophy of higher education which has become so clearly evident in the state and nation," he said. "Almost unconsciously we have come to a point at which the prolongation of formal education up to the age of maturity has become the normal and accepted state of affairs."

That the percentage of young men and young women of college age who are continuing their education beyond the high school stage has increased sixfold in the last three decades is an item of no small significance. Dr. Chase presented figures to show that only three per cent of the young men and women in the country continued their education after high school in 1900 as compared with eighteen per cent in 1929, and he predicted that the trend is still on the increase, in spite of the depression which now grips the country.

Men and women are realizing more and more the important role played by a college education in their material and social welfare during later life. Of course the educated man has the most chance of advancement in the business sphere, but the modern and increasingly important concept of education embraces more than material gain. Quoting Dr. Chase, "It is a short sighted and wholly partial view of higher education that measures its value in terms of its money returns to the individual."

The value of an education lies not entirely in vocational preparation, but also in the development of those essential qualities which fit the individual to become a working cog in the social machine. Modern society is complex. The world moves at a faster pace than it did a generation ago, and its requirements of its individual members are more exacting than they used to be. It is well to view the function of the present day college as something more than a store of technical information. It must prepare its ever growing number of students to live their lives and adapt themselves to their environment in the most effective manner.—Purdue Exponent.

Is College Liberalism Dead?

After lamenting the fact that college liberalism has ceased to exist and that university men are becoming "collared conservatives," William Harlan Hale in the New Republic makes the following suggestion:

"It should be the duty of the university heads themselves to introduce provocative and controversial lectures. Of course, the capitalistic trustees and corporations which dominate the scene are averse to any such dangerous experimentation; they see frightful visions of a graduating class of insane communists."

Mr. Hale's suggestion that University authorities should welcome speakers who are not strictly conservative is a good one. We have had on the campus a lecture course which has consisted of excellent men, but none of them presented radical points of view.

Last year the student body was fortunate to hear a man like Norman Thomas, and the campus population failed to exhibit any violent manifestations of bolshevism. The students in this University are far too conservative to have any one or any one dozen or even any one hundred speakers convert them to socialism, radicalism, or any of the other "isms" which are such bugbears in most people's minds.

Such a course of lecturers would not contaminate the minds of the students, but they might stimulate in a few more of them a thought or two which would be a real service to humanity. College authorities need not be afraid of the bugbear of the "isms," and they could properly welcome a few radicals as they have sometimes done in the past, who could present ideas to counteract that set conservatism which leads to the blind acceptance of the status quo and a kind of social and intellectual stagnation.—Daily Kansan.

Negro Accomplishments

The progress that the Negro has made in the years since he was freed from slavery was strikingly set forth by President Hoover in his speech last month at the fiftieth anniversary celebration of Tuskegee Institute.

The Negro has been a citizen for only a little more than six decades. During that time his race has increased its wealth more than one hundred and thirty times, has reduced its illiteracy from ninety-five to twenty per cent, and has reduced its death rate by half. It has risen to the ownership of more than three-fourths of a million homes, and has accumulated property to the value of billions.

"The progress of the race within this period has surpassed the highest hopes of the most ardent advocates," the President said over the radio. "No group of people in history ever started from a more complete economic and cultural destitution.—Daily Kansan.

UNIVERSITY MEN READ PAPERS AT SCIENCE MEETING

(Continued from first page)

quids." come to rest under the surface, explode and break into particles that rise into the air. This explains the peculiar phenonoma of the loss of gasoline when a more voluable solution is dissolved into the gas and throws some light on the behavior of spray liberated at the terminals of a storage battery as the battery is being charged.

Dr. Fussler read a paper on "The Electrical Resistance of the Human Body." The paper showed that the resistance of the human body from head to foot is not several hundred thousand ohms as heretofore thought, but only a few hundred. The excessive resistence in the contacts and opposed to the forces set up at the points of contact.

Describes Siamese Fishes

Professor A. S. Pearse, of Duke university, read a paper on, "Air Breathing and Land Fishes of Siam." Dr. Pearse found that fish known as beach gobies can live about a week out of water and that for this reason they can be placed on the market for live-fish purchasers for that length of time. He also found fish called sea-serpents that can exist without water for a period of four months.

"The Theory of Electrodeless Discharge at Low Pressures" by Dr. Otto Stuhlman, Jr., dealt with the problem of the possibility of exciting a gas to become luminous through collision between electrons excited by a high frequency radio wave and the atoms of the gas.

Henry zurBurg's paper entitled, "The Electrodeless Discharge Characteristics of Hydrogen and Nitorgen" was another contribution from the University.

HIBBARD OFFERS EXTENSIVE PLANS FOR LIBERALISM

(Continued from first page)

individuality of the students and inconducive to earnest and wholehearted scholastic interest. Although Dean Hibbard never realized his aims here at the University, he has left his theories imbedded in the minds of the students and of numerous University officials. With his success in effecting liberalism at Northwestern as an example, the remaining disciples still have hopes of directing North Carolina education along a similar plan.

An essayist declares that the schooner Hesperus was not wrecked at all. He'll be saying next that the village blacksmith was always up to his eyes in debt.—The Humorist.

Men Dropped

Three desk men, two editorial writers, the sports editor, and eight reporters were yesterday temporarily suspended from the Daily Tar Heel staff. Those of this number interested in remaining on the staff are asked to meet this afternoon at 1:30 in the Tar Heel office.

They are: Riley, Hawley, Blackwell, Manheim, Barnett, Bessen, Poe, Betts, Carr, Gordon, Glenn, Blount, Reynolds, and Cocke.

RARE STATUTES ARE PRESENTED TO LAW LIBRARY

(Continued from first page)

Mr. Vanderbilt's lawyer and used these session acts in connection with his work. When the great financier died, Mr. Van Winkle purchased the set from the Vanderbilt estate for his own private library and it was known to be one of the most valuable and one of the most complete sets of early legislative enactments in the state.

The gift of this set to the law library makes available to faculty and students who need source material for their work practically all laws in unbroken succession from 1818 to date. Special effort has been made within the last two years to complete the broken set owned by the library. The task has been a difficult one because of the fact that not only were the very early volumes out of print but none prior to 1915 could be secured from the state distributor because the reserve stock of state publications stored at the state printer's in Raleigh were burned in 1915.

This makes the second gift of early state session laws given to the law library by an alumnus of the University. The first contribution was made last fall by Mr. A. B. Andrews of Raleigh.

PROHIBITION WILL BE INVESTIGATED BY NEW COUNCIL

(Continued from first page)

Emory Richard Johnson, ML., Ph. D., ScD., professor of transportation and commerce, dean of Wharton school of commerce and finance, University of Pennsylvania.

Samuel C. May, M. D., LL. B., professor political science, University of California, Berkley.

Miss Susan Myra Kingsbury, Ph. D., professor of social economics, dean of the graduate school, Bryn Mawr college, Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania.

Economics Professor Will Lecture at Duke

Professor E. W. Zimmerman will lecture to the economics students of Duke university Wednesday evening on "The Dangers of Economic Feudalism."

India, has got her salt. All she needs is a little pep.—Youngstown Vindicator.

GUSTAV PLESSOW WILL LECTURE ON LIFE IN GERMANY

(Continued from first page)

eral point of view of the American people. It is interesting to note that Dr. Plessow, as well as Dr. E. W. Zimmermann have both remarked that they have seen more poverty in the United States than in any country in Europe.

Series of Lectures

Dr. Plessow has written many books on English literature, and is particularly well-fitted to give the type of lecture that he will give tonight. It should be the most interesting of any which he has as yet delivered at the University. Dr. Plessow as a visiting professor at the University is also giving a series of weekly lectures on the "Principle Forms of Style in Medieval English Literature" every Thursday afternoon. This series of lectures counts as a course in Medieval English.

Now, if the fellow who invented unbreakable windshields will only try his talent on banks.—Roanoke World-News.

FATE OF AN EMPIRE IN HIS GRASP

FRIENDLY FIVE

SHOES

We've just received a shipment of these shoes in the WHITE and BLACK SADDLE style.

Sizes from 6 to 10½.

SENIOR CLASS REGALIA

We have secured an extension for ordering "BEER SUITS" until 3 o'clock today (TUESDAY).

Randolph - McDonald Inc.

Croom Hits Home Run To Lead Tar Heels In 8-1 Win Over Wildcats

Speedy Right Fielder Has Banner Day Afield and at Bat; Dunlap Hits Another Triple.

LONGEST PITCHES WELL

Veteran Right Hander Holds Davidson to Five Hits While Striking Out Six.

Behind the five hit pitching of Cecil Longest, veteran right-hander, the Carolina nine defeated Davidson, 8-1, to win their fourteenth of the season. The Tar Heels now have a season record of fourteen wins, three losses, and two ties.

Longest held the Wildcats in check at all times, striking out six, while walking only two. Davidson's only run was unearned.

In the opening inning the Heels bunched six hits for four runs to sew up the game. Peacock led off with a single. Ferebee doubled to center to score Peacock. House grounded out to short. Dunlap tripled to left, scoring Ferebee. Croom hit a long home run down the left field foul line just out of the left fielder's reach, scoring Dunlap. Potter flied out to left. Wyrick and Powell singled but were unable to score, Longest hitting a high foul to the catcher.

Again in the third the Tar Heels staged a batting spree to score three runs on four hits. Croom led off with a single. Potter singled to left. Croom and Potter put on a double steal and were safe all round, Croom taking third and Potter going to second. Wyrick and Powell followed with singles, Croom and Potter scoring.

The final run of the Heels came in the seventh. House singled. Stole second. Dunlap walked. House was out in home but Dunlap scored on Wyrick's fly to the second baseman.

Davidson's lone tally came in the fifth frame. Armfield and Morrison singled in succession. Armfield scored on Bradsher's fielder's choice and the Wildcat threat ended with Bradsher and Thompson both going out on fielder's choices.

Davidson threatened again in the sixth but a long throw from Croom to Potter on Mathis' single caught Barnheart, who had previously walked, at the plate.

Pete Wyrick with two singles and a free pass to first when Thompson's slow ball nicked, out four tries, led the Heel batsmen. Croom, with a homer and a single, Powell, with two singles, and "Smoky" Ferebee, with a double and single, also featured at the bat for the Tar Heels. Dunlap, slugging first sacker, added another triple to his fast growing string, tripling to left in the opening frame.

Armfield, Davidson receiver, was the only Wildcat to get two hits off Longest. Armfield singled twice and scored the only run for Davidson.

Carolina-Virginia

In the last game of the annual Virginia series, the Tar Heels, led by the hitting and pitching of Edwards, righthander, took a 15-4 decision to make a clean sweep of the 1931 series. Edwards hit a long home run to win the Waltham watch offered to the man making the longest hit of the day. Croom also featured at the bat, getting four hits and a walk in five trips to the plate.

Briefs

Morrison, Davidson left fielder, pulled the prettiest play of the afternoon, racing out beyond the foul line to take Croom's high foul on the run.

Croom, in his first two times at bat, made a homer and a single to run his string to seven be-

(Continued on last page)

GRANT AND HINES

It was definitely announced by Coach Kenfield that Grant and Hines will not enter the annual Southern Conference tennis tournament to be held in New Orleans this week. Yeomans and Hendlin will represent Carolina in the tourney.

COLLEGIANA

By THOMAS H. BROUGHTON

Four years of baseball competition without missing a single inning of a single game is the record of Captain Hunken of Stanford. This includes both varsity and freshmen ball.

Eight brawny oarsmen and a coxswain of one of the M. I. T. crews had a chance to test for themselves the pellucidity of the waters of the Charles river a short time ago, when rough water swamped their shell. When the going became hard Number 7 sacrificed himself for the safety of his crewmates by climbing out; but to no avail. Fortunately, rescue was at hand. A Harvard launch was nearby and tore over, picking up the crew, including the martyred Number 7 man, and carried them to the nearby boathouse, where the shell was emptied and the rowing resumed.

"Charley horses" and rheumatism are creeping up on the former stars but nevertheless the Class of '17 of the University of Chicago has accepted the challenge of the Class of '16 and will meet them in what will probably be the last game of the hitherto "annual classic."

The athletic department of Ohio State recently announced that Wesley Fesler, all-American end of that institution, had been signed as an assistant grid coach there for this fall. And they say that football is worthless after graduation.

Notre Dame's 1930 championship football team suffered a humiliating defeat last Saturday week when an Irish freshmen-reserve team ran through it for three touchdowns and a 19-0 victory.

The varsity backfield of Carideo, Schwartz, Kaplan, and Brill, made only one first down all afternoon as it was stopped time after time at the line of scrimmage. The rookie forward line was impenetrable although playing against such veterans as Captain Yarr, Kurth, Culver, Kosky, and Carberry.

Leading the Dixie College league hitters, as the season enters its final two weeks, is Joe Burt of Auburn, with an average of .451 compiled in fourteen games. McKee of Georgia Tech, with a .431 average, and Holt, also of Tech, with an average of .400, follow in order. All other regulars are below the .400 mark.

In team batting Auburn tops the field with a combined average of .313. Georgia Tech and Oglethorpe tie for second honors at .302. In fielding the Georgia Bulldogs take the lead with a .934 average. Florida and Auburn are just behind with .932 and .931 respectively.

Smith and Harkins of Auburn continue to top the pitchers with six and four wins each respectively.

Dick Newman, Oregon State track mentor, has made application for recognition of the world

(Continued on last page)

TAR HEELS LOSE TO PENN STATE IN FINAL MEET

Lions Win 74 to 51 to Give Carolina Trackmen Second Dual Meet Loss in Ten Years.

Penn State jumped off to an early lead against the Carolina track squad Saturday and continued to pile up points in the distance runs and weight events to hand the Tar Heels their first defeat of the season by a score of 74 2-5 to 51 3-5. It was the second dual meet defeat suffered by the Tar Heels in ten years, the other coming at the hands of the Princeton Tigers last spring.

Penn State's advantage in the half-mile, mile, and two mile together with their superiority in the shot put and javelin was enough to offset Carolina's edge in the dashes and pole vault. Penn State took all three places in the half-mile, and placed first and second in the mile, two mile, shot, javelin, and high hurdles. Carolina won first and second in both the 100, 220, and the pole vault.

McDowell and Shawley of Penn State, with eleven points each, were high scorers for the meet, but were followed closely by Slusser, Carolina's dash and hurdle star, who gathered ten points in the 100 and low hurdles. McDowell's points were scored with a third in the low hurdles, first in the high hurdles, and first in the broad jump. Shawley placed first in the shot put and second in the javelin and discus. Smith, Carolina, and Seigel, Penn State followed the leaders with eight points each.

Charley Farmer, veteran Tar Heel dash star, ran the 220 yard dash, but took it easy and failed to place as Smith broke the tape in 21.8 with Drane second. Smith's time was the best turned in by a Carolina runner this year.

Slusser also beat his best previous time this year in the low hurdles when he finished ahead of Fullerton and McDowell, Penn State, in 24.4 seconds. Slusser's time for the 100 was 10.2.

Carolina's other first places were scored by Dameron in the discus and Ruble in the pole vault. Dameron hurled the discus 129 feet to win his event, while Ruble cleared the bar at twelve feet with Brodie Arnold second.

The high jump ended with five men tied for first place at a heighth of five feet six inches. Stafford and Bagby, Carolina were the two Carolina men tied with Douglas, Baird, and Palmer, Penn State.

Bagby also placed second in the broad jump as McDowell won the event with a leap of twenty-one feet three-quarters inches. Ray Ruble and Theron Brown were the other Tar Heels to score in more than one event, Ruble placing third in the shot in addition to his first in the pole vault, and Brown taking thirds in the javelin and discus.

McDowell's time of 15.4 in the high hurdles, and Seigel's 181 feet 2½ inches in the javelin were the outstanding events of the day, but the work of the Penn State distance men featured the meet. Paul Rekers, beaten by Minor Barkley last year, stepped the mile in four minutes and twenty-four seconds to take first place with King second and Jones third. In addition to his performance in the mile, Rekers placed second in the half mile as King won the event in 1:57.6. Carolina failed to place as Hughes, Penn State took third place. In the two mile run, C. King stepped out to win in nine minutes and forty seconds with Meisinger second and Baucom, Carolina, third.

(Continued on last page)

Heels Sweep Northern Trip With Seven Wins

End Season Against Duke; Grant and Hines Will Not Enter Southern Tourney.

The Carolina net team returned home Sunday boasting a clean sweep of their seven-match invasion of the North. With decisive victories over Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Brown, Georgetown, Army, and New York university, the Tar Heels present a strong claim to the mythical intercollegiate championship of the United States.

The Blue and White netmen opened the trip with a 7-2 victory over Georgetown university in Washington. Grant dropped a close match to Gregory Mangin, ranking No. 6 in the country, and in the doubles, pairing with Wilmer Hines, dropped another hard match to the Georgetown No. 1 doubles combination.

Two days later the Princeton Tigers bowed to the Heels, 8-1, and on the following day the Tar Heels defeated the strong New York university Violets, generally rated as one of the strongest teams in the East, 8-1. The only match won by the New Yorkers was in the No. 4 singles match, Hendlin losing to Sidney Berger after three sets.

After defeating Army by a 9-0 score, the Southerners took the strong Yale university team in tow in their hardest match of the season by the close score of 5-4. Ryan of Yale gave Bryan Grant his second defeat of the season for the Bulldogs only win in the singles matches. However, the Big Blue team made up for their singles losses in the doubles, Grant and Hines pairing to win the Carolinians' only doubles match.

Brown fell before the invaders next. The Tar Heels led, 5-0, when the match had to be called off on account of rain. Only one other singles match remained to be played. Yeomans being the only Carolina singles entry not seeing action. No doubles matches were played.

On Saturday the Southerners topped off the trip with a 7-2 victory over Harvard. It was Harvard's first defeat by an intercollegiate rival since 1928.

Last night the Tar Heel net team left for New Orleans to enter the annual Southern Conference tennis tournament. It was definitely announced by Coach Kenfield that Grant and Hines will not enter it. Yeomans and Hendlin will represent Carolina.

The tournament opens May 13, continuing through May 16. After the tourney the Heels

(Continued on last page)

BOXING TOURNEY TO OPEN TODAY

New Champions Will Be Crowned in Every Weight; A.T.O.'s Enter Eight Men.

The opening rounds of the spring intramural boxing tournament are scheduled for this afternoon with the semi-final bouts coming off tonight and the finals Wednesday night. Final pairings have not as yet been made, but advance indications point to bouts only in the welterweight and lightweight classes this afternoon. The final schedule of bouts will not be made out until this afternoon when all contestants have weighed in.

New champions will be crowned in every weight, and competition will be keen in each class. Alan Smith, a veteran from last winter's tournament is the outstanding contestant for the bantamweight crown, won last December by Cliff Glover. Kellenberger and Nat Heyward are the other men bidding for this title. Smith went to the finals of the last tournament before losing by a knockout to Furches Raymer, who afterwards won three of his intercollegiate bouts by the same route.

In the featherweight class, also, there will likely be only three contestants. Alexander, Frank Errico, and Fountain are the three men bidding for the title with all three about on a par. Errico has the edge in experience and may come through with the championship.

The lightweight division will see several good men performing for the first time. Lofton Brooker, A. T. O., is the most dangerous contender, and is doped to win over Garland, Teal, McKeithan, and Webb.

The welterweight division will present the best fighting in the tournament. Eight men have entered this class, and several of them have had previous experience on the varsity squad. Dick Battley, John Preston, George Brown, and Brunda are the outstanding men in this class and each has a chance to come through. Preston may be unable to make the weight limit of 149 pounds and, if not, will go into the middleweight division. Preston, Battley, and Brunda are three of the best varsity prospects of the year and have been attracting a great deal of attention during the past few weeks.

The middleweight division will see Billy Stallings, Patterson, Shearin, and possibly Preston, all of whom stand an even chance to cop the title. Stallings was formerly a welterweight, but could not make the weight limit. Shearin was entered in the winter tournament, but lost out in the early rounds.

Only two men are entered in the lightheavyweight class at present, but these two are expected to offer some interesting action when they hook up in the

(Continued on last page)

FROSH TRACKMEN END YEAR WITH EXHIBITION MEET

Yearlings Will Meet High School Winners in Exhibition to Close 1931 Season.

Coach Dale Ransom today announced that a track meet has been scheduled between several of the individual winners in the recent state high school track championship affair and the undefeated Carolina freshmen. This meet will be run off in connection with the Southern prep school meet. The men competing are coming by special invitation with only men of high calibre being invited.

The all-star aggregation also includes a few outstanding prep stars together with the stellar field of high school men which recently broke seven state records. These outstanding boys are expected to give the freshmen a good deal of competition and will also fill up the gaps between events in the prep meet.

Hawthorne of Charlotte, the newly crowned juvenile hurdle champion, is expected to cause worry on the part of Goodwin, Glenn, and Bonner. The Charlotte timber-stepper will be strongly backed by Sockwell and Abernathy, of Greensboro.

The 100 yard dash will probably present Gunter of Greensboro, Spain of Durham, and Sizemore of High Point, against the Tar Babies strongest men, Weisker, Ashkenas, and Higby. These same men are expected to run the 220 yard dash.

Norman of Greensboro will get a chance to stretch his new state record in the pole vault against Gold, who holds the Carolina freshmen record in this event.

The high jump most likely will find Childers of Rockingham and Wilkie of Sanford opposing Phipps, Dockery, Ashe, and Bullock, the Tar Baby entries. Another added attraction will be witnessed when Williams of Oxford puts the shot in an exhibition feature with Julius Horney, star freshman. Horney has pushed the 16 pound shot over 43 feet in practice while Williams holds several North Carolina high school records and also won the Southern conference indoor meet in the preparatory school division.

The distance runs will offer the closest races of the meet as Hudson, state high school champion, and Williamson, who defeated Hudson in the Civitan meet at Greensboro, will race Meade, Groover, and the Sullivans in the three-quarter mile. Cadman of Winston-Salem will

(Continued on last page)

THE SMOKE SHOP
EAT WITH US DRINK WITH US

A fresh supply of
SPALDING TENNIS BALLS has just arrived
Get this famous, official ball now! The seamless, plugless ball of perfect uniformity, flight, and bound. Each 50¢. 3 for $1.25.
Students' Supply Store
SPALDING SPORT SHOP

The Carolina Playmakers
present
Four One-Act Plays
Thursday, Friday, Saturday, May 14, 15, 16, at 8:30 P.M.
"Love and Likker," by Irene Fussler
"The Stray Bullet," by Robert Barnett
"Glenhurst," by Tom Loy
"Pleasantly Purple," by Ellen Stewart
Exchange Season Booklet Coupons at Student Supply Store
Tickets Now on Sale

12 Most Important Dates In History Given By Professor

(Daily Nebraskan)

What twelve dates are most important in the world's history? What twelve occurrences were most influential in creating the modern world as it is today?

Dr. D. A. Worcester, professor of educational psychology at the University of Nebraska, submitted his idea of the twelve greatest dates in history to the Forum magazine's recent contest on that subject and received honorable mention for his list.

Prof. Gayle C. Walker, director of the university's school of journalism, also won honorable mention and was the only other Nebraskan to place in the competition. More than 2,000 lists of dates were submitted.

Lists Dates

Professor Worcester does not list all of his dates specifically but sets forth some of the earlier ones as periods. They follow:

(1) 347-322 B. C.—The productive period of Aristotle, who gave the world its first great outline of science.

(2) Second century, B. C.—Introduction of zero into the number system which changed mathematics from the most unwieldly to the most flexible of tools.

(3) 1024—Invention of the music scale by Guidio Aretimo, the high spot in the history of music which has perhaps contributed most to the aesthetic side of life.

(4) 1150—First paper mill at Fabriano, Italy, which made paper in sizeable quantities available and gave impetus to the making of books, invention of printing, and to the spread of learning generally.

(5) Thirteenth century—first use of spectacles, permitting near-sighted to work at an earlier age and the far-sighted to extend their productive period of work.

(6) 1265—First representative parliament in England, a major event in the history of democratic government.

(7) 1302—Invention of mariner's compass by Flavia Gioja, giving the mariner security and assurance when he ventured out of sight of land.

(8) 1616—Galileo's demonstration of the Copernican system establishing man's place in the universe and reinterpreting his relation to it.

Mentions Faraday

(9) 1821-1831—Work of Faraday on induction currents, which represents the beginning of the electrical age.

(10) 1859—Publication of Darwin of "Origin of Species," which completely changed thinking of many people.

(11) 1881—Pasteur's demonstration of the efficiency of vaccination for anthrax in sheep, basic to modern control of diseases, to antiseptic surgery, and to study of fermendation.

(12) 1899—First peace conference at the Hague, the first of a series of such conventions promulgating the idea that nations need go to war no more.

ILLINOIS GIVES POSITIONS TO GRADUATE STUDENTS

Teaching fellowships at the University of Illinois have been awarded to graduate students H. G. Braynard, W. R. Curtis, and D. F. Martin, of the department of economics of the University. They will take up their positions next fall.

Braynard and Martin will receive their masters' degree this spring, and Curtis will get his at the end of the summer.

An Oregon editor, who gets around a good deal, says the sentiment against prohibition arises partly from the fact that women are tired of having the basement smell like a birthday in Milwaukee.—Detroit News.

The Campus Calendar

Orchestra Concert

The University symphony orchestra will present a concert in the music auditorium tomorrow night at 8:15 o'clock. Director T. Smith McCorkle will give a violin solo with orchestra accompaniment as part of the program.

University Women

The American Association of University Women will meet tonight at 8:00 o'clock in the Episcopal parish house. The general business meeting, which will include reports of the state convention and the May morning breakfast, will be followed by a social hour.

Rifle Club

The University Rifle club will meet in the basement of the Alumni building at 7:30 tonight.

Phi Meeting

There will be a short meeting of the Phi assembly at 7:00 o'clock, immediately before the joint meeting of the Di and Phi at 7:15.

Plessow Lecture

Dr. Gustav Plessow, visiting professor from Germany, will speak in Gerrard hall at 8:30 tonight on the subject of "Aspects of German Life Today." This lecture is open to the public.

Business Staff

There will be an important meeting of the business staff of The Daily Tar Heel in the basement of Alumni building tonight at 7:30. All members are urgently requested to attend. No new men will be added to the staff after tonight. All those who intend to make the staff next year are asked to attend this meeting.

FROSH TRACKMEN END YEAR WITH EXHIBITION MEET

(Continued from preceding page)

run against Meade in the 880. Cadman won the state meet at Greensboro and his time was only 3-5 of a second slower than that of the varsity.

It is not known who will oppose the freshmen javelin throwers and broad jumpers. In LeGore the track team has one of its best prospects and it is a very hard task to find suitable competition in this state. Paul Martin, Biltmore junior college, has thrown the spear over 185 feet this year, and Ed West, Asheville high school, has done over 175 feet. Because of the distance, these men will not be able to come. Neither is it known whether Soule, Charlotte, will compete with Higby, Ashkenas ,and Nicholson, freshmen, in the broad jump. Soule holds the state record of 21 feet and 2 inches in this event while the three Tar Babies consistently do over 21 feet.

Several of the men mentioned may not be able to attend because of conflicting dates, but Coach Ransom hopes to provide sufficient entertainment for the freshmen in their final appearance this year.

Speed Limit Raised

The speed limit in Chapel Hill has been raised to thirty miles per hour except in the business area. To permit this Columbia and Franklin streets have been made through thoroughfares as far out as the town limits. The speed limit will remain twenty miles per hour on Franklin street from the post office to the high school and from the railroad tressel to the fire house on Columbia street.

Haverford President Outlines New System Of College Education

President W. W. Comfort, of Haverford college, stressed educational quality rather than quantity in a new system outlined by him in a pre-centenary address.

The system embodies opportunity for specialization that the average student is now not able to obtain. Each student is made an individual responsibility of some highly trained professor with the consideration of every student as a candidate for honors, thereby bringing about a far greater concentration of studies in the third and fourth year.

Stressing the point that "intellectual prodigies" were not the object of the system, Comfort declared that "well-balanced youths who have an idea of what they want and are willing to work for it are more desirable."

Continuing, President Comfort stated, "More care must be taken in the selection of human material for such a delicate, expensive, and important process as college education. More thought must be given to the individual requirements of those who are at once admitted and who prove themselves worthy. Physical education must be reclaimed as a part of the general education plan. Great insistence must be laid on spiritual values."

Croom Hits Home Run To Lead Tar Heels In 8-1 Win Over Wildcats

(Continued from page three)

fore Morrison stopped him with his "circus catch" in the fifth. Croom also made a pretty play on Mills fly to right center. He is just fast enough to make them all look easy.

Longest breezed the third strike past six Davidson men to make a threat at Shields record of eight against Pennsylvania.

Mills, Wildcat shortstop, pulled one that wasn't in the books, taking Armfield's peg to second and touching the bag instead of tagging House who made the steal.

Croom and Potter pulled a pretty double steal in the third, Croom going to third and Potter taking second.

Box score:

Carolina	ab	r	h	e
Peacock, cf	4	1	1	0
Ferebee, cf	5	1	2	0
House, lf	5	0	1	0
Dunlap, 1b	4	2	1	0
Croom, rf	4	2	2	0
Potter, c	4	1	1	0
Wyrick, 2b	3	1	2	0
Powell, 3b	4	0	2	0
Longest, p	4	0	0	0
Total	37	8	12	0

Davidson	ab	r	h	e
Mills, ss	4	0	0	0
Barnheart, 3b	3	0	1	0
Goodson, 2b	3	0	0	1
Mathis, rf	4	0	1	0
Proctor, 1b	4	0	0	0
Armfield, c	4	1	2	0
Morrison, lf	3	0	1	0
Bradsher, cf	3	0	0	0
Thompson, p	3	0	0	0
	31	1	5	1

Score by innings:	H	R	E
Davidson 000 010 000	1	5	1
Carolina 403 000 10x	8	12	0

Batteries: Thompson and Armfield; Longeset and Potter.

Summary:

Home runs: Croom; three base hits: Dunlap; doubles: Ferebee; stolen bases; House, Croom, Potter, Wyrick, Barnheart; left on bases: Davidson 5, Carolina 6; runs batted in: Ferebee, Dunlap, Croom 2, Potter, Wyrick 2, Longest. Hits off Thompson 12, Longest 5; bases on balls: off Longest 2, Thompson 2; struck out by Longest 6, Thompson 1; earned runs: Davidson 0, Carolina 7. Umpire: Sermon, State.

Princeton's Prexy Supports Crusaders

When interviewed by the Princetonian concerning the Crusader movement which is rapidly growing in public importance, President John Grier Hibben of Princeton University declared himself heartily in favor of the organization as far as the government having efficient and responsible control of the liquor traffic is concerned.

Showing evident surprise at the most conservative estimate of the annual liquor traffic in the United States, $2,815,000,000, he emphasized the immediate need for reform. In his opinion, the repeal of the 18th amendment cannot be undertaken as a simple measure in itself, but that the whole issue should be referred to the individual states. The Crusader movement is directed towards this end and is steadily winning the support of the more conservative agitators for an amelioration of the Volstead act.

Stanford Professor Decries Ignorance of Economic Conditions

Decrying the current general ignorance of basic economic facts, Professor Eliot G. Mears, of the Stanford graduate school of business, predicts future difficulties unless strenuous steps are taken to eliminate this dangerous and extravagant condition. Along this theme he made several striking lectures at the recent Institute of International Relations at Riverside, California, of which he is the director.

Modern industry, he says, has taken a definite progressive stride over pre-war conditions. The necessities of life are supplied so easily that the consumer of the modern day is more interested in satisfying his minor whims and buying the latest model radio than he is in caring for welfare of the industries which are really necessary to human existence. This element in modern business forces the conclusion that American education has not kept pace with industry, that the American people have more power than they know how to use, and that this situation must be remedied if world peace is to be maintained.

Professor Mears offers as his solution to the increasing complication of not only American, but world, economic conditions, the reliance of politicians and statesmen upon academic experts and men of practical affairs. In the next two decades he predicts a definite trend of the government to depend almost entirely upon the recommendations or the graduates of professional and business schools.

POSTMASTER WILL TAKE BID FOR NEW FLAG POLE

The postmaster is waiting for specifications so that he can advertise for bids for a flag pole in front of the post office. He intends to buy a steel pole and to have it fastened in the ground in such a way that there will be no danger of its blowing over again.

College of France Will Observe 400th Birthday

Several hundred delegates from the chief countries of the world have been invited to the celebration of the 400th birthday of the College of France, June 8.

The College of France was founded in 1530 by Francois I. The fourth centenary would have been celebrated last year, but parliamentary difficulties prevented the affair.

The final proof of courtesy is to have an ailment just like the one the other fellow describes and not tell him.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Educators Assail Eaton's Criticism

Assailing the statement by Walter Pritchard Eaton, author and critic, that fifty per cent of college students are unfit and as a result that colleges themselves are only fifty per cent effective, Dr. George Everett Walk, dean of the teachers college at Temple university, and Dr. John Harrison Minnick, dean of the school of education at the University of Pennsylvania, claimed that the statement was not only without foundation, but that Eaton himself as an outsider was in no position to pass criticism on anything pertaining to collegiate conditions.

"Eaton cannot possibly have sufficient facts," said Minnick, in commenting on the statement. "I do not believe that anyone has ever assembled any such data on a scientific basis that would enable them to express opinion in such a statement."

Dr. Minnick stated that at Pennsylvania not more than ten per cent of the students fall below the collegiate average and that only six to eight percent of the students in a year attain averages low enough to drop them from the University.

"Eaton's statement is sheer generalization," said Dr. Walk in a similar statement. "He doesn't know what he is talking about and anyone who indulges in such generalizations is likely to be spectacular but not accurate. This much I can say—from my own experience with college students, I can honestly state that, as a whole, they are more mentally alert, more earnest and sincere, than they ever were before."

BOXING TOURNEY TO OPEN TODAY

(Continued from preceding page)

finals Wednesday night. The two men, Francis and Burgwynn, have entirely different styles of fighting, but are each effective in their own way. Francis specializes in a left hook and jab while Burgwynn emphasized a hard right to head and body. If Francis can keep Burgwynn off balance with his jab, he should take the crown, but if Burgwynn can work himself within easy firing distance, his right to the body should give him the victory.

The heavyweight division will seen one fight Tuesday night and another Wednesday night unless other entries are made at the last minute, and each of these two fights should present plenty of action. Barron Grier, who lost the championship to Lacey Pace last winter is the most experienced member of the trio bidding for the crown, but he will run up against two heavy hitters in Red Sherrill and George Barclay, freshmen football stars.

The A. T. O.'s, with eight men entered in the tournament, seem to have team honors clinched without much argument. Two of their men, Alan Smith and Lofton Brooker, are heavy favorites to win their respective classes, while Burgwynn and Grier also have good chances to come out on top.

The tournament will be run off by Coaches Rowe and Allen with the assistance of members of the varsity boxing squad. Varsity boxers will probably officiate for all the bouts which are a part of the regular spring program of the intramural department.

Heels Sweep Northern Trip With Seven Wins

(Continued from preceding page)

will return home to close the season against Duke university at Durham. In their first match the Heels emerged victorious by the one sided score of 9-0. Naturally the Carolina netters are doped to finish the season with a perfect record.

TAR HEELS LOSE TO PENN STATE IN FINAL MEET

(Continued from preceding page)

Summary:

120 yard high hurdles won by McDowell, (P); Hill, (P); Davis (C). Time: 15 2-5 seconds.

100 yard dash won by Slusser, (C); Smith, (C); Kennedy, (P). Time: 10 1-5 seconds.

Mile run won by Rekers (P); King, (P); Jones, (C). Time: 4 minutes, 24 seconds.

440 yard dash won by Grit-savage, (P); Weil, (C); Marland, (C). Time: 50 3-5.

High jump: Baird, Palmer, Douglas, (P); Stafford and Bagby, (C), tied for first. 5 feet, 6 inches.

Javelin won by Siegel, (P); Shawley, (P); Brown, (C). Distance: 181 feet, 2½ inches.

Pole vault won by Ruble, (C); Arnold, (C); Osbeck, (P). 12 feet.

Two mile run won by C. King, (P); Meisinger, (P); Baucom, (C). Time: 9 minutes, 40 sec.

Discus throw won by Dameron, (C); Shawley, (P); Brown, (C). Distance: 129 feet.

220 yard low hurdles won by Slusser, (C); Fullerton, (P); McDowell, (P). Time: 24 2-5.

Shot put won by Shawley, (P); Siegel, (P); Ruble, (C). 39 feet, 1 3-4 inches.

Half mile won by J. King, (P); Rekers, (P); Hughes, (P). Time: 1:57 3-5.

220 yard dash won by Smith, (C); Drane, (C); Kennedy, (P). Time: 21 4-5.

Broad jump won by McDowell, (P); Bagby, (C); Howard, (C). 21 feet, 3-4 inches.

COLLEGIANA

(Continued from preceding page)

record in the shuttle relay made recently by the Oregon State team. Application was made to Alonzo A. Stagg of Chicago, chairman of the records committee.

The Oregon State quartet established the new mark of 1:01.6 in a dual meet with the University of Oregon April 24.

KEYS LOST

Lost: Bunch of keys between stadium and Cameron avenue. Identification tag with five keys. Care Tar Heel office.

Mention The Daily Tar Heel when buying.

CAROLINA

Now Playing

"SEED"

with

JOHN BOLES

also

Comedy — Novelty

The Seeman Printery
Incorporated

For more than 46 years this company has been serving an ever-increasing number of customers.
Are you among them?
If not, try us—

110-112 Cocoran Street
Durham, N. C.

COLDEX

Brings Quick Relief to Thousands

You too, can stop colds and coughs with this remarkable liquid medicine that so safely gives such quick and lasting results. Just say Coldex to your druggist. Only 50c. Recommended and guaranteed by

Sutton's Drug Store

RADIO TALK
JOHN LANG
WPTF — 3:30

The Daily Tar Heel

ORCHESTRA CONCERT
MUSIC AUDITORIUM
TONIGHT — 8:15

VOLUME XXXIX — CHAPEL HILL, N. C., WEDNESDAY, MAY 13, 1931 — NUMBER 169

SCIENTISTS HEAR PAPERS READ ON DIVERSE TOPICS

Professors Gather for Meeting of N. C. Branch of American Chemical Society.

The University was well represented at the annual meeting of the North Carolina section of the American Chemical Society at State college in Raleigh this past week-end.

Professor A. S. Wheeler and W. J. Mattox of the University presented a paper entitled, "The Chlorination of 1-5-Dihydroxynaphthalene." Dr. J. M. Bell and Ethel M. Chapin submitted a paper on "The Solubility of Oxalic Acid in Hydrochloric Acid Solutions." A paper on "The Action of Sulpher Dioxide on the Phosphates of Calcium," by Dr. F. K. Cameron and A. E. Hughes was also read.

Chemical Papers

Other papers from this University were: "Cotton as a Source of alpha-Cellulose," by Dr. F. K. Cameron and A. E. Hughes; "The Removal of Traces of Iron from Aqueous Solutions of Sulphates," by Dr. F. K. Cameron and T. W. Richmond; "Some Reactions of Tin Tetratolyl," by R. W. Bost and H. R. Baker; "Sodium Alum," by J. T. Dobbins and R. M. Byrd; "The System-Lithium Sulphate, Aluminum Sulphate, Water," by J. T. Dobbins and J. P. Sanders; "A Scheme for the Qualitative Separation of the Anions," by J. T. Dobbins and H. A. Lijung; "Studies on Columbium and Tantalum," by F. H. Edmister and G. G. Albritton; "Laboratory Demonstration vs Individual Laboratory Work," by F. H. Edmister and J. L. LeConte.

The following papers were presented by University men in the mathematics section of the meeting of the academy of science: "Our Expanding Universe," by Dr. Archibald Henderson; "Differential Equations of Conformal Geometry," by V. A. Hoyle; "Some Properties of Dupin's Cyclide," by E. A. Cameron; and "An Involution Associated with a Pencil of Conics," by Dr. J. W. Lasley, Jr.

General Contributions

The contributions of the University to the General Section were: "Popular Scientific Language," by G. W. Lay; "Observ-

(Continued on last page)

Nathan To Start Campaign May 18

Dr. S. A. Nathan, health officer, has made his report for the month of April. In the vital statistics there have been four births, three of which have been colored, and no deaths in the town of Chapel Hill.

Diseases have been distributed as follows during the month: 120 cases of measles, forty-six cases of German measles, twenty-three cases of chicken pox, one case of pneumonia, six cases of scarlet fever, two cases of whooping cough, two cases of syphilis, and two cases of gonorrhoea.

Dr. Nathan plans to start work on his plan for the elimination of flies and mosquitoes on May 15. This campaign will consist of draining all swamps, ponds, etc., possible and then to oil the rest to eliminate mosquitoes. To eliminate the flies, Dr. Nathan will have a house to house inspection, have roof gutters examined, and see that all garbage and refuse is carefully disposed of.

Playmakers To Give Four Original Plays

Four studio productions, all original one-act plays written by the students themselves, will be presented by the Carolina Playmakers tomorrow, Friday, and Saturday nights at 8:30.

There will be a wide range of subjects and locations in the four plays. The first play, Love and Likker, by Irene Fussler, is a story of Swedish people in North Dakota. Stray Bullet, the second play, was written by a student born in China, Bob Barnett. The story deals with the viewpoints of English and American soldiers and their attitudes toward race questions at the time of a civil war.

Glenhurst, by Tom Loy, concerns the attempts of an old family to cling to their ancestral home in Maryland and to keep their family together at the sacrifice of the individuals freedom. The fourth play, Ellen Stewart's Pleasantly Purple, is a roya l satire with the scene laid in Normanbourg.

ORCHESTRA PLAYS CONCERT TONIGHT

McCorkle and Dyer to Conduct Symphony in Second Spring Program.

The University symphony orchestra will present a concert in the music hall tonight at 8:15.

The program will be under the joint direction of Professor T. Smith McCorkle, the regular conductor, Dr. Harold S. Dyer, head of the department of music. In addition to conducting a part of the program, Mr. McCorkle will also act as violin soloist, with the orchestra, under Dr. Dyer's baton, providing the accompaniment.

Part one of the program will be conducted by Dr. Dyer. This consists of three numbers: a paraphrase of Walther's Prize Song, from Richard Wagner's opera, The Meistersinger; a waltz from Tschaikowsky's ballet Dornroschen; and the violin solo, Ballade et Polonaise by Vieuxtemps. The second part, to be conducted by Mr. McCorkle, is to be the Jupiter symphony by Mozart, a work in four numbers.

Favorite Selections

Both the Wagner and the Tschaikowsky numbers offer beautiful tonal effects for the orchestra. The Ballade et Polonaise has long been a favorite of all symphonies. Cast strictly in the classic mould it involves at the same time a full display of the composer's melodic ability. The result is a highly involved style of orchestration.

This marks the second formal program for the orchestra this spring, in additional to several appearances for accompaniments and for short groups on other programs.

GRADUATE EXAMINATION

The oral examination of Grady George Albritton for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in the department of chemistry will take place at 7:30 this evening in 202 Venable hall. All members of the graduate faculty in the division of mathematics and the sciences are invited to be present.

Co-ed Bids

Co-eds may receive their bids to the co-ed dance Friday night from Reeme Moore in room 301 Spencer hall.

Yale News Founded In 1878 Is Nation's Oldest College Daily

Paper Is Now Enlarged to Several Supplements, Has a Strong Editorial Page, and Employs a Conservative Policy.

By Bob Woerner

The oldest college daily in the country, the Yale Daily News, was founded January 28, 1878, "is justified (quoting from its first editorial) by the dullness of the times, and by the demand for news among us." Quoting still further, "Ever since the Record and the Courant have changed from weeklies to semi-monthlies, or in other words have become about as newsy as the Lit, there has been an apparent necessity of having an unpretentious sheet which should contain the latest news, and short pithy articles of interest."

Today the paper has become the most important day-in and day-out curriculum industry at Yale, having an aggressive personality, dignity, influence, and prestige.

Has Traditions

The necessity for reviewing the hectic days of early Yale journalism when the Record and the Courant, mentioned above, reigned supreme is hardly apparent. The Lit, the magazine which afforded an outlet to the literary minded, was also being published at that time. It might be well to mention that even as the News is the oldest college daily so the Lit is the oldest college monthly, and the Courant was, during its lifetime, probably the oldest college weekly.

Difficulty was experienced in finding a sufficient amount of news to fill the four three-column pages that composed the paper the first year. The front page was all editorial, proclaiming and fighting for Yale's glory inside and out. There was a column, "Yale Log," for brevities, and a weekly two-page cartoon supplement was added the second year broadening the field for contributions. This was discontinued after commencement of that year for feaf on the part of the other publications that the News would encroach upon their fields. Then "Communications," which today are better known as "Open Forum," were introduced, and thus began the flood which succeeding editors have struggled against.

The heeler system was announced at the beginning of the fall term. It has been the practice of editors to call on their personal friends as aids in getting news, but the heeler system started a method which all college papers use today. Charles W. Berpee, '83, the originator of this scheme, once said: "For the great army of hard-working disappointed heelers through subsequent years, the ever-improving paper is responsible, not I."

First Yale News

There were two volume I's.

(Continued on last page)

No News in Venable Says Heel Reporter

Venable hall passed a very quiet day yesterday. In fact, not a durn thing happened which is worth printing. There were about the same number of cuts, the same number going to sleep on class, and the pleasant odor faintly noticeable throughout the building is about the same—at least it is no better.

There really should be no excuse for a story like this, but the editor made a decree that all reporters must hand in at least one story a day or be discharged. Characteristically thinking of others first, this reporter wanted to save this paper from losing a good man. Hence this story, with apologies.

—CHARLES POE.

MEADE WILL LEAVE TO FINISH DOCTOR'S DEGREE

Robert M. Meade, history instructor at the University, will not return to his teaching duties here next September. When asked whether he was contemplating taking up a position in another university, the instructor replied that he was merely withdrawing from the faculty for a year so that he might complete work for his Ph.D. degree.

Meade has not definitely decided where he will pursue his studies, but at present he believes that he will attend Columbia university.

Weekly Radio Talk

The president of the North Carolina Student Federation, John Lang, will deliver an address over WPTF, Raleigh, this afternoon between 3:30 and 3:45. Besides the history of the federation the speaker will announce the national meeting of the organization which is to take place at Duke university, Saturday, May 16.

Sociologist Speaks On Aptitude Tests

An unusually large number of members attended the weekly meeting of the junior-senior Y cabinet Monday night. Bob Barnett conducted the devotional services.

J. W. Barber, ex-president of the Y. M. C. A. at Furman university, and at present a graduate student here, was the speaker for the evening. His topic was "The Activities of the Y on the Furman Campus."

Frank Hawley made the report of the deputation trip to Rocky Mount, and Bim Ferguson reported the Beaufort trip. Two remaining meetings of the cabinet will be used to plan next year's program under Pardner James. The annual hillside meeting will take place May 24.

Professor Harold D. Meyer, of the sociology department, spoke at the weekly meeting of the freshman friendship council Monday night in the Y. M. C. A. This rather informal talk was the only one of its kind given this year.

Dividing his theme into five parts he discussed separately five tests which he gives his classes. The first test mentioned was the class room test, or a test which determines what knowledge the student has gained from his course. The second test is the intelligence test, which is given to find out if the student is thinking deeper than formerly.

The next test is given to discover the student's technique in studying. The fourth is the creative test. And the last is the leadership test, which determines whether the student can utilize his knowledge for effective living. After his talk Professor Meyer was introduced to the members of the council individually.

Senior Invitations Are Still On Sale

It has been learned that less than one third of the senior class has ordered invitations for commencement. The invitations were placed on sale some time ago, but, because of the small number which have been ordered, the committee in charge has arranged so that any persons wishing to do so may place their orders today during chapel period and between 3:00 and 5:00 in the lobby of the Y. M. C. A. and at Pritchard-Lloyd's drug store. This will be the last opportunity for invitations to be ordered.

The invitations this year are more beautiful than any in the last few years, having covers of blue leather and others of cardboard. They will contain pictures, a list of the candidates for graduation, and the program for the commencement exercises.

WOOFTER'S NEW BOOK PUBLISHED

Sociology Professor Writes on Discouraging Conditions of Tobacco Industry.

A new book, "The Plight of Cigarette Tobacco," by T. J. Woofter, Jr., has just been published by the University of North Carolina Press.

It is one of the few books which have been written on the important subject of the discouraging conditions in the tobacco industry.

Mr. Woofter has made this study under the auspices of the Institute for Research in Social Science at the University. The book gives a thorough study of the causes of the unfavorable conditions which the tobacco farmer has to face. It analyzes the factors determining the price paid to farmers, and the practicability of a cooperative marketing program.

Author's Reading

The author would advocate a program "to stabilize the production of the commodity along such a trend as to secure the quantity and grades demanded at a good wage for his labor and return on his capital, and insure the permanent position of tobacco production as a profitable branch of domestic agriculture."

Hobbs Calls Meeting

In an effort to carry on the work started by Dean Addison Hibbard and others of having the faculty discuss educational matters of the University, a number of the faculty who have been chosen will meet this afternoon in Dean A. W. Hobbs' office in South building. There is no particular issue to be brought up; Mr. Hobbs is holding the meeting primarily to carry on Dean Hibbard's work, believing in consulting the viewpoint of the various members of the faculty on the educational policy of the University.

Law Exams

Second semester examinations for students in the law school will begin May 25 and continue through June 4.

Infirmary List

Those confined to the infirmary yesterday were Frank Dunn, Kenneth O. Wright, Robert H. Carmichael, and John Cooper.

Catholic Mass

Mass Thursday morning at 7:00 in Gerrard hall, Father Manly. Ascension Day.

GROUP TO PLAN CONTINUATION OF INSTITUTE WORK

Students Interested in Work Will Meet in Gerrard Tonight at 9:00.

Tonight at 9:00 in Gerrard hall there will be an opportunity for all persons who are interested in seeing the issues raised by the quadrennial meeting of the Human Relations Institute, extended to discuss ways in which a liberal club might be organized.

Many persons have been heard to comment that the work of the Institute should be permanent and that the minds of the students at the University should not be stimulated for a week and then relapse into their former state of partial coma. The formation of a Liberal club would serve to arouse and keep the interest of the student body fixed upon the problems which are confronting the world today.

Some of the subjects taken up and explained in detail by the speakers who spoke before the Human Relations Institute are: the relation of force to the activities of the world; capital versus labor; the race question; the theory of the modern state; collectivism versus individualism; and the right of private property.

The large audiences attending all the addresses, in a greater or lesser degree, showed that the brains of the students at the University were not entirely atrophied and that members of the younger generation now attending college are just as capable of discussing and just as greatly interested in the vital problems confronting the world today as were their forebears. The only requisite for the continuance of this wholesome practice is that there be an organization on the campus which will aid in bringing prominent men here throughout the academic year who will by means of their speeches, bring new problems and questions before the minds of the members of the student body. It is hoped that plans for the formation of a Liberal club will be made and thus enable the campus to receive the benefit of frequent addresses delivered by outstanding men of the country.

T. L. Love To Head Alamance Alumni

The alumni of Alamance county met in Burlington last Friday night. R. B. House and J. Maryon Saunders attended the meeting and addressed those present. The entire Alamance group was reorganized and T. L. Love, of the class of 1884, was elected president of the association with E. V. Patterson, '11, being the newly elected secretary-treasurer. The group is planning to have another meeting about October 12, the birthday of the University.

Weil Visits Graham

Mr. Leslie Weil, of Goldsboro, chairman of the board of trustees, who came here last week to attend the last of the Weil lectures, stayed over Sunday with President Frank Graham.

Taylor Convalescing

Professor Malcolm D. Taylor is getting along nicely after an operation for appendicitis Monday in Watts hospital, Durham. He will probably be back for the last week or so of classes.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays. Entered as Second Class matter at the post office at Chapel Hill, N. C., under Act of March 3, 1879.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $4.00 for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

Jack Dungan ..... Editor
H. N. Patterson ..... Bus. Mgr.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Ed French ..... Mng. Ed.

Editorial Board

Charles G. Rose ..... Chairman
J. M. Little — Frank J. Manheim
W. M. Bryson — Will Yarborough
Alden Stahr — Bob Barnett
Wex Malone

Assignment Editors

Otto S. Steinreich
Dan Kelly, Assistant

Sunday Editor

Charles G. Rose

City Editors

Bill McKee — George Wilson
Peter Hairston — Jack Riley

Desk Men

W. R. Woerner — Don Shoemaker
Vass Shepherd

Sports Staff

Jack Bessen ..... Sports Editor

Assistants

T. H. Broughton — P. Alston

News Men

E. M. Spruill — F. W. Ashley
W. E. Davis — Claiborn Carr
Charles Poe

Reporters

Saul Gordon — Bob Reynolds
Woodward Glenn — M. V. Barnhill, Jr.
William Blount — John Burroughs
U. B. Phillips — M. H. Long
Tom Walker — W. B. Gray
Ronald Kochendorfer — Walker Stamps
Phil Sasser

BUSINESS STAFF

Hal Worth ..... Circulation Mgr.
Harlan Jameson ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.
John Manning ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.

Advertising Department

Al L. Olmstead ..... Advertising Mgr.
Pendleton Gray ..... Advertising Mgr.
Bernard Solomon ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
R. D. McMillan, Jr. ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
James N. Nowell — H. A. Clark

Collection Department

Jack Hammer ..... Collection Mgr.
John Barrow — Frank S. Dale
Stokes Adderton — Jack Stokes

Correspondence Department

Ed Michaels, Jr. ..... Correspondence Mgr.
Wynn Hamm ..... Ass't. Cor. Mgr.

Wednesday, May 13, 1931

Congratulations Governor Blackwood

The stand which Governor Blackwood of South Carolina took on the taxation problem of that state is worthy of much praise from North Carolinians, now faced with the most difficult taxation problem in recent years.

The "power of privilege," as Mr. Josephus Daniels calls it, tried every kind of effort to get Governor Blackwood to veto the killowatt hour tax on power measure. Officials of the Duke Power company threatened to halt further power development in that state. They had beneficiaries of the Duke Endowment declare that they would lose unbearably large sums of money by the tax. The Governor stood a barrage of pressure for an entire day, and then coolly signed his name to the bill which will bring into the treasury of our sister state $1,500,000.00

Would that the North Carolina legislature had the, shall we say backbone, to levy the taxes where the money is.

We do not say that the Duke Power company, and the other power interests should bear the tax burden. We do not say that Reynolds, Liggett-Myers, and American should bear the burden. But we do most emphatically insist that they should bear their just share.

Impartial tax authorities have said that ad valorem taxation is proportionally too high. Why do not the "privileged" groups stop their fighting and pay their just share?

They can "lobby" their way through legislatures for a few years at a time, but they cannot keep it up indefinitely. The electorate of the state eventually will win. It always has.—K. C. R.

Another Black Eye

A sizeable sum is spent each year by this University to acquaint prospective students in high schools throughout the state with the features and advantages of its curriculum. Pamphlets and propaganda are sent annually to high school seniors who might conceivably be planning a college course somewhere; language contests, athletic meets, triangular debates, dramatic contests, journalism competitions, and intellectual tournaments in other fields of activity are arranged to interest possible future undergraduates in the work of Carolina. All such advertising of education is unquestionably advantageous to the University, to future citizens, and to the state as a whole.

Yet last week little attention was paid to an opportunity to further at first hand the effect of this work. A group of picked science students from the high school of one of the largest cities in the state visited the science departments of this college, as well as four other colleges in the state. Here they were conducted on an ill-planned tour of the campus, ate food at Swain hall for which they paid full price, and gained little of lasting importance from their stay. At Duke they were entertained at the new student union, and students as well as faculty members conducted the tour of the campus; at State they were met upon their arrival by students, given supper and breakfast and beds for the night; at Wake Forest the President, himself, conducted the round of investigation.

Considering the woeful lack of appropriations upon which the University is forced to operate, the pressure of duties and activities, and other such considerations, still it is unfortunate that such an unfavorable impression should have been allowed to be created in the minds of a group of the most desirable potential students of the University. It always pays to advertise—favorably.—J.M.L.

Democracy In Education

Ogynov, in his "Diary of a Russian Schoolboy," says that in the Russian schools a new system of democratic education is in effect which makes the position of the teachers rather precarious. If the instructor is found odious or incompetent by a class, they can, by popular vote, remove him and get a man who is more to their liking. Obviously the teachers must be on their toes to keep in favor with popular sentiment.

In this university, more than in many other institutions, we have a half-hearted attempt at liberalism of ideas and freedom of discussion, but we are far from having a real educational democracy, e.g. take our compulsory attendance and examination regulations. It may be a case of democracy flavored with discipline.

A democracy such as Ogynov describes would probably not work out in this university because of the lack of any sense of responsibility on the part of the students. It would be interesting, however, to note just how many professors would remain in favor if such a system were to be installed.

To merit a democracy in education we must first educate ourselves to democracy by gradually increased doses of freedom and responsibility. Then, too, greater seriousness of purpose on the part of students would make such a happy state of affairs more possible. The administrative boards of colleges are obliged to place restrictions on "boys" who come to school just for the conventional four-year-loaf. That type of student is not ready for democracy.—A.J.S.

North Carolina's University

Wednesday night at nine o'clock in Gerrard hall, there will be a meeting to consider ways and means of carrying on the inspiration and influence of the magnificent Institute of Human Relations convened last week.

The University of North Carolina has achieved considerably above average success in genuinely serving the state and all its people—more so than the average state university. But we have yet a long way to go; and we need not excuse further endeavors on the plea alone that we do not have the money. As tentative propositions to enrich even more greatly the human relations influence of the University on its local, as well as state-wide campus, there are hereby advanced the following:

1. Consolidation and integration of all courses and departments into a small number of divisions, such as that of the social sciences, the natural sciences, etc. Knowledge, life itself, does not come bound up in air-tight, individual packages. It should be recognized more fully at Chapel Hill.

2. Expand gradually, but steadily, the matter of adult education in the state—with greater use therein of this faculty, for their good and the state's. Modern civilization provides increasing leisure; let the Universities direct and inspire a profitable use of this leisure.

3. Place the facilities of the University more definitely and intimately at the disposal of the state, the county, and city governments of North Carolina. Tactful, patient liason work will give renewed social consciousness to the vast business of government in North Carolina, which incidentally costs one hundred million dollars every year. Greater effectiveness, as well as wise economies, can be realized—sufficient and more to equal the entire state appropriation annually for the University. Laws alone will not give excellent, human administration of government. Expertness, civic devotion and warm hearts are also essential.

People in this world today are wandering in a daze. The old order, so staunchly relied on in the past, is most certainly crumbling. It is the hour for universities to step forward and shoulder greater responsibilities than they have even dreamed of heretofore. Inspired by its great traditions of more than a century and a quarter's service to North Carolina and the world, guided by a spirit of honest inquiry and liberalism, devoted to the sound gospel of work and genuine scholarship we may indeed be bold to believe that the University will not fail in this new day to meet its opportunities for its part in making a better human world!—W. D. H.

Goldwyn Will Have Arrowsmith Filmed

Sinclair Lewis, the only American novelist to ever receive the Nobel prize for literature, joined the ranks of writers who are contributing to Samuel Goldwyn's screen productions by signing an agreement conveying to the producer the rights to Arrowsmith as a future story for Ronald Colman.

Arrowsmith is the most filmable of Lewis' novels, and is the favorite of the author. The transition of the story to the screen is to be intrusted to Mr. Goldwyn and his staff with all confidence.

Student Government

President's Report

Until new quarters are obtained the student council will continue to hold its meetings in 205 South building. Regular meetings convene every Monday night at 10:00 o'clock, and any student who wishes to bring any matter before the council may appear at that time. The president of the student union may be found in the council office every school day at chapel period.

The Student Activities banquet which is to take place Thursday night will make the first cooperative effort of the new administration since its installation this spring. The key note of the meeting is to be the Graham Memorial program, and the organization of that building as a student union. Great opportunity lies before this administration to work out a profitable, enjoyable, and thoroughly practical plan of creating and maintaining a social center and an activity center for the campus.

The awards night program has been postponed until May 25 in order for all awards to be decided in athletic and literary activities.

Yours truly,
Mayne Albright,
Pres. Student Union.

Secretary's Report

The Student Council wishes to report its action of Monday, May 11th:

Case No. 30: Mr. X, a junior, was put on strict probation for violation of the bad check rule. This probation will continue throughout his college career, and any violation will mean automatic suspension from the University.

Case No. 31: Mr. X, a senior, was relieved of a bad check probation placed upon him by the 1929-30 Council.

Signed:
Haywood Weeks,
Sec. Student Council.

With Contemporaries

The First Hundred Years Are The Hardest

The plans outlined by Dr. W. W. Comfort, president of Haverford College at the pre-centenary day exercises last Saturday, may do much to reshape the outline of the curricula of present small colleges, and may have a determining influence upon the educational development of the College of Liberal Arts, which, d. v., will one day be established by the University at Valley Forge.

The underlying idea of Dr. Comfort's project, the work of the collaborated efforts of educators the country over, is to offer a "quality" education to those who are equipped to take advantage of it, not "intellectual prodigies at the age of 18, but well-balanced youths." The honors system, inaugurated at Swarthmore and since adopted by many of the leading colleges of men and women, will be applied in essence to all undergraduates their last two years, with the result that after two preliminary years of formal and standardized training, the students will be encouraged to branch out intellectually for themselves, subject to individual supervision which will "replace lockstep methods."

Another doctrine enunciated by Dr. Comfort, who intends to have his plan in operation in time for the Centenary Celebration of Haverford College which will take place in 1933, is one that may in time become popular. It is to make three sports compulsory for all undergraduates, Haverford being interested not "in a stadium, but in the physical education of its students." These three sports are to be one major, in the accepted sense of the word, one minor, and another a minor sport that the student will maintain an interest in after college. Such a plan, a practicable solution to the matter of student health in a small college located more or less in the country would of course be impossible of attainment, however, in a large urban institution.

Haverford is to be congratulated, not only on her past, which is illuminated by the remarkable record that she holds scholastically among the colleges of the country, but in the future which looms bright before her. It is by this sort of changes in policy that the state of American culture will be materially advanced, not by the wholesale exposure of education of thousands upon thousands of low-intelligence beings.—C. P. K.—Pennsylvanian.

CONSULATE GENERAL OF JAPAN
90 Broad Street
New York, N. Y.

May 11, 1931

Mr. J. E. Dungan
Editor, The Daily Tar Heel
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Dear Sir:

I take the liberty of writing to you that Mr. J. F. Aiso of Brown University, Providence, R. I., whom I have known long, has informed me that there have been exchanges of communication between you and him about the editorial which appeared in a recent issue of the Daily Tar Heel signed A. J. S.; and I am writing to you on his behalf, as he seems busily occupied at present with preparations for the coming examinations.

I beg to state that the passage in the editorial which describes our matrimonial custom is very likely to mislead those readers who know little about Japan, and to create an utterly false idea of my country. Generally speaking, young people in Japan are not accustomed to social intercourse. Although the modern trend has invaded Japanese society, yet sons and daughters of average families are usually in a state of detachment from each other. There are undoubtedly some parents who think in terms of modernism, and they allow their sons and daughters freedom in social activities; but careful supervision always prevails.

The Japanese parents, one of whose characteristics is to pray sincerely for the welfare and happiness of their sons and daughters, naturally play a great role in choosing the fittest bride or bridegroom for them. Such practices and procedure as are seen here in this country in the formation of marriage are considered more or less extraordinary and looked at with a sort of caution by prudent people.

There are, of course, those women who are compelled to sell themselves to vice. But once a woman, whether voluntarily or involuntarily, goes down to red lantern quarters, it is very improbable that she will have a normal marriage. Society will most often reject the ladies whose former life was related to vice practice, but, as it is also written in your editorial, vice practice seems to be a universal evil, which should be greatly lamented.

May I remark again that there does not exist such a matrimonial custom as that the Japanese brides-to-be are placed in tea houses where they spend a period of about a year as prostitutes before they are considered fit for marriage?

I hope that my short description will contribute something to the clarification of the true situation of the marital custom in Japan.

Very truly yours,
TATSUO LAKUMA,
Vice Consul.

P. S.: I might suggest that Miriam Beard's "Realism in Romantic Japan" is considered one of the best sources on the real situation of the present day Japan. This book is published by McMillan & Company, New York.

Edward White Trousers hit a high note in smartness.

EDWARD CLOTHES
MADE FOR YOU

$28.75—$32.75—$38.75

Randolph-McDonald
Incorporated

FATE OF AN EMPIRE IN HIS GRASP

Brian Aherne
Madeleine Carroll
THE W PLAN

TODAY
CAROLINA THEATRE

GRAIL DANCE

SATURDAY, NIGHT, MAY 16TH

Featuring Jack Wardlaw and His Orchestra

Tickets on Sale at Pritchard-Lloyd Drug Store and Book X

Alabama, Tulane, Auburn, Mississippi, Carolina Top Southern Track Entries

Tar Heels Have Outside Chance Of Retaining Southern Track Crown; Stellar Field Entered.

Returning from their defeat at the hands of Penn State, the Tar Heel track squad began work Monday in preparation for the almost impossible task of retaining their Southern Conference championship. Last year the Tar Heels won rather easily, but the list of entries for this year's meet shows that Carolina has only an outside chance of repeating. Alabama, Mississippi Aggies, Tulane, and Auburn rank as heavy favorites, with Auburn and Alabama as the most promising challengers.

A review of the season's individual records shows that only super human efforts on the part of the Tar Heels will enable Carolina to place among the first three in any event. If the Tar Heels are to come out on top of the pile, it will be because the team as a whole performs over its head.

In the broad jump, high hurdles, shot put, javelin, half-mile, and high jump, the Tar Heels have little or no chance of placing a man. Seven men in the Conference have done better than forty-four feet in the shot put and five of them have broken the existing record, while the best Carolina can offer in this event is Brown with a distance of forty feet. Seven men also have done better than twenty-two feet in the broad jump, while Howard, Carolina's best performer in this event, has done only about twenty-one.

In the javelin, Robinson of Auburn has thrown the spear two hundred feet, while Anderson of Georgia, Graydon of Georgia Tech, Wright of V. M. I., O'Neill of Tulane, Cavanna of Kentucky, and Haynes of Tulane have all bettered 180 feet.

With five men doing better than six feet two inches in the high jump, Carolina will have little chance to place in this event unless George Bagby, holder of the indoor record, turns in a much better performance than he has at any time this year. The high hurdles will see DeColigny of Tulane, Maddox of Georgia, Finklestein and Speer, of Washington and Lee, Stewart and Beard, of Auburn, and Flowers of Mississippi, all of whom have been running well under sixteen seconds. DeColigny has the best time for this event with 15.3 seconds.

Rip Slusser will be competing against a strong field in the low hurdles, but should take first or second if he is able to repeat his 24.4 registered against Penn State Saturday. In the 100 yard dash, Smith and Bradley, Alabama, Kelly, Kentucky, and Wisner, Virginia, have all run the event in 9.9 seconds, and are expected to furnish a thrilling race when they meet in Birmingham Saturday.

Wisner of Virginia, Bradley and Smith of Alabama, Smith of Carolina, Brownlee of Duke, Kelly of Kentucky, and Leigh of Mississippi have all bettered twenty-two seconds in the 220 and are expected to offer still more competition in this event.

Joyce of Alabama, with a time of 49.7 in the 440, is the leading candidate for first place honors in this event, but he will find some heavy competition led by Woodward of Vanderbilt, who has a mark of 49.8 seconds to his credit. Weil and Marland, Carolina runners, have both bettered fifty-one seconds as have eight others.

Ruble and Arnold, Carolina's hope in the pole vault, will see

(Continued on last page)

Baseball Results

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Philadelphia 5 ..... Chicago 2
Detroit 2 ..... Boston 0

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Boston 4 ..... Cincinnati 2
(First game)
Boston 2 ..... Cincinnati 3
(Second game)

PIEDMONT LEAGUE

Raleigh 3 ..... Durham 3
(Fourth inning)
Asheville 5 ..... Winston-Salem 3
(Third inning)
High Point 6 ..... Charlotte 3
(Seventh inning)

DOPING 'EM OUT

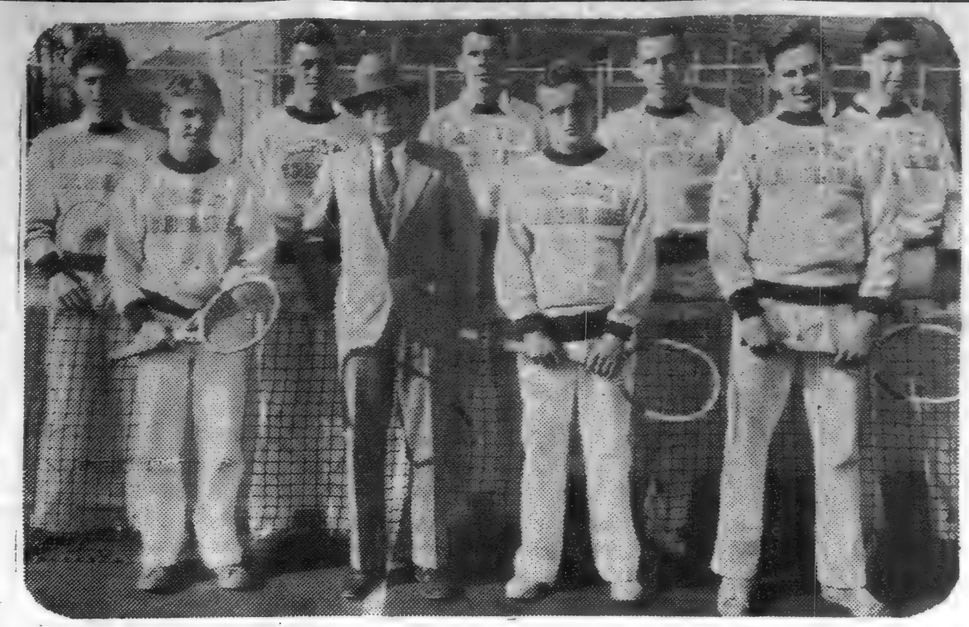
By

BOB BETTS

Advancing on the theory that it is harder to dethrone a champion than it is to become one, North Carolina is picked to repeat last year's victory at Birmingham, Alabama, on Friday and Saturday. Furthermore, with the exception of the weight events, the Tar Heels have a well balanced squad of men who should take many second, third, and fourth places. Last year Charlie Farmer scored Carolina's only first in the meet, Carolina winning by a margin of twelve points over Georgia, runner-up in the meet.

Tulane, Auburn, Alabama, and Washington and Lee have strong teams this season. Auburn's Plainsmen have lost only two dual meets in eight years; they are especially strong in the weight events. The meet this season, by the way, is the biggest on record. Twenty-one out of the twenty-three Southern Conference schools have already entered. There is still a possibility that the other two schools may enter at the last minute. Florida, one of the dark horses, is sending twenty-three men; they crushed Vanderbilt not long ago in a dual meet. Auburn and Alabama have each entered twenty-one men in the meet, while North Carolina will have twenty representatives on hand for the various events. Duke is sending a small but powerful delegation in Captain Simon, Fulmer, and Brownlee. Very little is known of the strength of Kentucky, Mississippi A. and M., Tennessee, Mississippi, Vanderbilt, Florida, and Maryland.

In the high hurdles last year, DeColigny, Tulane, finished first, Maddox, Georgia, second, and Spear, W. and L., third. Stewart and Beard of Auburn, and Finklestein of W. and L. round out the outstanding hurdles. Stewart defeated Maddox in the recent A. A. U. meet.



Maddox won the low hurdles last year at the Birmingham gathering. "Rip" Slusser placed second, and DeColigny came in third. Other star performers in this division are Lipe of Alabama, Coles of Virginia, Preble of V. P. I., Brownlee of Duke, King of Vanderbilt, and Foxhall of Georgia Tech.

The Tar Heels have two of the finest pole-vaulters in the South in Brodie Arnold and Ray Ruble; both of these boys have had fine seasons. However they will face stiff competition in Dickens of Georgia (last year's champion), Reigles of Alabama, has been twelve feet ten, Zimmerman of Tulane, Yawn of L. S. U., Turner of V. P. I., and "Believe It Or Not" Ripley of Duke.

In Stewart and Stacy, Auburn has perhaps the best pair of high jumpers in the Conference. Stewart won in this event last year. Nollie Felts of Tulane, Sanford

(Continued on last page)

CLAIM NATIONAL INTERCOLLEGIATE CHAMPIONSHIP

With a record of thirteen straight victories over Southern and Eastern rivals, among which are Yale and Harvard, generally regarded as the strongest teams in the country, the Carolina tennis squad, pictured above, returned home this week presenting a strong claim to the mythical National Intercollegiate tennis championship. Reading from left to right the members of the squad pictured above are: Back row: Phil Liskin, No. 5; Lucas Abels, No. 8; Wilmer Hines, No. 2; H. H. Hendlin, No. 4; Ed Yeomans, No. 3. Front row: Bryan Grant, No. 1; Coach Kenfield; Captain Graham, No. 6; Lenoir Wright, No. 7.

Burwell Favored To Win Southern Singles Crown

Yeomans, Hendlin, Eastman, and Smith To Offer Strong Competition; Beaver Tops Doubles Entries.

Eleven teams, representing Southern Conference entries, will compete in the annual Southern Conference tennis tournament which will open this afternoon on the Tulane university courts in New Orleans.

Until the announcement of the withdrawal of Bryan Grant, national claycourts champion, and Wilmer Hines, national junior champion, the North Carolina Tar Heels were favorites to capture the championship vacated by Cliff Sutter, former Tulane star, who holds the national intercollegiate championship. Coach Kenfield announced late Monday afternoon that Grant and Hines would be unable to enter due to the fact that they had missed considerable class work on the extended Northern trip. Yeomans, 1929 state champion, and H. H. Hendlin, 1930 state champ, will represent Carolina in the tourney.

With the withdrawal of Grant and Hines, Teddy Burwell of Sewanee, ranking No. 32 in the country, will rank as favorite to take the former Greenie star's crown as Southern champion. Strong competition will be offered from Yeomans and Hendlin of Carolina, Smith of Virginia, and Perry Eastman, Tulane sophomore.

In the doubles Georgia is expected to make a strong bid for the crown vacated by Sutter and Bayon of Tulane. Judge Beaver of Georgia, who paired with Hines to win the national junior doubles title, is ranked as the outstanding doubles player in the South. Beaver's doubles partner has not been announced as yet but, regardless of that, Beaver will have to be reckoned with in the doubles. North Carolina, Virginia, and Sewanee are expected to make a strong bid for doubles honors also.

Other entries are: Mississippi A. & M., Florida, Vanderbilt, Louisiana State, Alabama, Georgia Tech, and Ole Miss.

And we all make mistakes. That's why the trains stop at Reno.—Judge.

Intramural Schedule

BASEBALL

Wednesday

4:00 p. m.—1. Zeta Psi vs Sigma Phi Sigma; 2. Lambda Chi Alpha vs S. A. E.

5:00 p. m.—1. Sigma Chi vs Beta Theta Pi; 2. New Dorms vs Everett.

TAR BABIES LOSE TO STATE FROSH

Cooper Holds Freshmen in Check, Fanning Six; Brandt Leads Tar Babies with Bat.

The N. C. State freshmen won over the Carolina yearlings in a fast game here yesterday by a score of 8-3. Cooper went the route for the visitors and pitched a good game, fanning six, and holding the Tar Babies in check when it counted.

Carolina scored first, getting one run in the opening frame. The first two men up struck out, but J. Phipps singled, and scored on Brandt's double. Fisher then fanned, making it three strikeouts in the first inning for Cooper. The Tar Babies made only two more runs in the whole game, one each in the sixth and ninth. What started out to be a ninth inning rally was quickly stopped, with but one run pushed across.

The yearlings from Raleigh had their biggest inning in the third stanza, converting three hits into four runs, by taking advantage of a few Carolina mistakes. Cooper, first up, singled, and advanced on Browne's hit. Farris hit a slow bouncer to third, Frankel taking it and throwing wild to first, and two runs were scored. Farris went to second on the play, and then counted on McQuage's double. Brandt, Carolina first sacker, put out the next batter unassisted, but McQuage went home when he failed to throw home.

The game showed a lack of errors, unusual for a freshman game. State made none at all, and Carolina chalked up only two.

Jay led State in batting with two hits for four attempts, one going for a triple, the only extra base hit of the day. Captain Brandt, for the Tar Babies, got three out of five.

Score by innings:

	H	R	E
State Frosh	8	12	0
N. C. Frosh	3	10	2

Batteries: Cooper and Farris; Frankel, Brandt, and Tatum.. Umpire: McDade (N. C.).

The Seeman Printery
Incorporated

For more than 46 years this company has been serving an ever-increasing number of customers.
Are you among them?
If not, try us—

110-112 Cocoran Street
Durham, N. C.

FOUR TEAMS TOP FIELD IN ANNUAL SOUTHERN MEET

Fast Field Shapes Up for Southern Prep School Meet; Many Schools Enter.

While the Southern Conference collegians are holding their annual session at Birmingham Saturday, representatives of preparatory schools from all over the South will be assembled at Chapel Hill to compete in the University of North Carolina's fifth Southern Interscholastic Track and Field Games for preparatory schools.

Indications point to a fast field, and the chances are that several records will be smashed.

Augusta Military Academy will be the defending champs, but Augusta is without Goodwin and Weisker, now Carolina freshmen, who together are holders or co-holders of five meet records. Staunton, Danville Military, and Greenbrier will be favored about equally in the big field.

Goodwin and Weisker will perform too, to add extra interest, but not under G. M. A.'s colors. Officials in charge of the meet are inviting a number of outstanding high school stars to compete with Carolina's star frosh to fill in the program and make a lively meet of continuous action. Weisker's meet records are 9.8 seconds for the 100-yard dash and 21 feet 7¼ inches for the broad jump. Goodwin's are 16 seconds for the 120-yard high hurdles, 25.2 seconds for the 220-yard low hurdles, and 5 feet 10 for the high jump.

Many outstanding individual stars are already entered. Luther

(Continued on last page)

TAR HEELS-DEVILS CLASH TO DECIDE BIG FIVE CROWN

Carolina Out to Blast Duke Hopes of Fourth Year of Baseball Supremacy.

What promises to be one of the outstanding games of the season is scheduled to take place Saturday when Duke university clashes with Carolina's fine contingent on the Blue Devil's diamond at 2:30. This is the first encounter of the year between the two clubs, rain having halted the first game slated for April 25 on the Tar Heel field. The second battle will be held Monday, May 18, at Chapel Hill.

Duke boasts a potent team of sluggers together with a trio of first class hurlers. Bob Coombs, nephew of Jack Coombs, famous old Athletic pitcher, and Duke coach, continues to uphold the Coombs' baseball reputation by the fine work he has exhibited this year. Crawford McKiethan and Horace Duffy are other mound performers who have aided Duke in her bid for the championship this season.

Although the Duke coterie did not garner many victories in their recent Northern trip during which they met Princeton, Navy, Georgetown, N. Y. U., Fordham, and Pennsylvania, they still lead the Big Five, boasting wins over State, Davidson, and Wake Forest. The Blue Devils will be defending their Big Five title won last year.

Defeating North Carolina State in two games has been the most impressive work the Duke club has shown this season. N. C. State last week by some excellent fielding and timely hitting set the Tar Heels back 7 to 4, but it was apparent that

(Continued on last page)

American Bus Lines, Inc.

NEW SCHEDULES

Between

Lynchburg — Danville
Chapel Hill

Connecting Schedules at Danville
—for the—
North and South

Leave Chapel Hill at
9:00 A. M. and 3:00 P. M.
for
Danville, Roanoke, Lynchburg

Leave Chapel Hill at 9:00 A. M. for
Natural Bridge, Sweetbriar and Charlottesville

THE SMOKE SHOP
EAT WITH US DRINK WITH US

FINCHLEY
OF NEW YORK

INVITES YOU TO INSPECT THE NEWEST DEVELOPMENTS IN CLOTHES, HATS, HABERDASHERY, SHOES FOR COLLEGE WEAR. NO OBLIGATION ON YOUR PART.

HERE

Today and Tomorrow
At
Carolina Dry Cleaners
Harry Kuster, Rep.

SOUTH'S LAZINESS HAS MR. DAVIDSON AS ITS DEFENDER

In a recent issue of the Yale News, Donald Davidson, professor of English at Vanderbilt University, contradicts an article by Clarence Cason appearing in a current issue of the Yale Review.

Mr. Cason made the assertion that malaria and mythology were the causes of the backwardness of the South. He says that "malaria produces a mental state inclined toward mythical dreams and unreality; a physical state which debilitates without destroying."

This assumption receives a strong blow when Mr. Davidson asks, "If there is more goitre in Chicago than in South Carolina (the "iodine State"), could I argue that goitre engenders skyscrapers, financial expensiveness, business depression, gang wars, and Al Capones?" Or, if you have malaria you are backward and uncivilized, whereas, if you have goitre, you are refined and progressive.

In his opinion, the South's laziness might be more justly called leisureliness. "Leisureliness is in the southern character and the southern social philosophy, which are based on an economy of energy and a politics traditionally related to the life of the soil, the fruits of the farm rather than of the factory, the continuity of family life, love of a homeplace, a sense of stability, of belonging somewhere. The South dislikes being the galley-slave of a progress that gets nowhere in particular. It believes in living and in taking life easy. It sees no good in simply making motions toward living and in running around in circles to give an impression of frenzied activity."

$800 IS AVERAGE SPENT BY PURDUE WOMEN STUDENTS

According to a statement made by an instructor in the school of home economics at Purdue University in a report on "The Cost of Living for Women at Purdue University." The average university girl will spend $800 a year. This report was compiled from the answers received on questionnaires collected from sorority and non-sorority girls of this institution. There were great irregularities in the expenditures for different items, and the totals varied from $145 to $1,700. The lowest amount was $145 which was recorded by a student who worked for her room and board. The highest amount spent by any student, $1,700, recorded by a senior, included such items as $180 for carfare home and $600 for clothing.

Popular opinion usually tends toward the belief that the amount spent for cosmetics and beauty treatment is a stupendous sum. Such, however, is not the case according to this statement. The average is only $10 and the range in amounts spent is $0.50 to $50.

It is interesting to note that one freshman reported $75 spent at the campus confectionery shop while another girl reported only $1 for the same purposes. The average amount for sweets was $18.

It was found that, on the whole, expenditures of sorority girls exceeded those of non-sorority girls by approximately $200. The average spent for recreation and amusements by the sorority group was three times as much as that spent by the non-sorority girls. The reason for this is evident since initiation fees and sorority dues are included under this heading.

Nowadays the sport of kings is trying to stay on the throne. —Judge.

The Campus Calendar

Notice

The finals of the intramural boxing tournament will be held tonight at eight o'clock.

No French Picture

The French picture, scheduled to appear tonight as the foreign language production for the week, will not be shown, as it was delayed in transit. The attraction will be postponed until next week.

Students Treated With Indifference Says Rev. Elliot

In an address to the freshman class of New York University, Reverend Phillips Elliot expressed the opinion that American government officials are indifferent to the views of college students. The minister added that this condition is due mainly to impressions created by such magazines as College Humor which give a distorted and fallacious idea of American colleges.

Reverend Elliot went on to point out the difference between the American attitude toward the college student and that of Europeans. "In Europe," said Elliott, "prominent men often take time off to visit universities and discuss with students important things with which they are connected. The Prime Minister of England, Ramsay McDonald, as well as his predecessor, Stanley Baldwin, often visit Oxford and Cambridge to obtain the students' views on current problems. Chancellor Stresmond of Germany was accustomed to the same habit."

DOPING 'EM OUT

(Continued from preceding page)

of Georgia, Miller of L. S. U., Bostic of South Carolina, Turner of V. P. I., and Bagby of North Carolina have all been "crossing the bar" well above five feet this season.

Doug Graydon, Georgia Tech, and Wisner, Virginia, have jumped close to twenty-four feet in the broad jump this spring. The following men have jumped better than 22½ feet this season: Bowman of L. S. U., Fulmer of Duke, Owens of Georgia, Griggs of Alabama, and Zimmerman of Tulane.

Oelkers, Tulane, outdoor record holder, "Prime" Coleman, Auburn, indoor record holder, and Cox, Mississippi A. and M., last year's champion, are the three outstanding men in the shot event. Swart, V. P. I., has made an enviable record this year, and will have to be reckoned with in this division. Hickman of Tennessee, Addison of Georgia, "Pug" Bryant of Virginia, and Sam Gurneau of N. C. State are other good men.

"Prim" Coleman has thrown the discus 143 feet this year, approximately six feet better than the record. If he can come anywhere near that at the meet, he should win. However, Swartz, Tennessee, has tossed the discus 140 feet, and Oelkers of Tulane has done 139 feet. Other leading discus throwers are: "Sandy" Dameron and Brown, of Carolina, Hedrick of Tennessee, Swart of V. P. I., Bryant of Virginia, and Gibson of Vanderbilt.

Robinson, Auburn, has hurled the javelin over 200 feet this season, and is favored to win. Anderson of Georgia, Haines and Zimmerman of Tulane, Songey of L. S. U., and Peterson of Vanderbilt are other good men in this event.

Vanderbilt's relay team won last year and is strong again. Georgia Tech, North Carolina, N. C. State, Mississippi A. and M., L. S. U., Tulane, Auburn, Alabama, and Georgia all have good relay teams this year.

Smith Sees Prompt Settlement of Old Liquor Controversy

Former Governor, Alfred E. Smith of New York, in an interview with the Princetonian, emphatically declared that the political parties of the country would have to take some definite stand on the Prohibition question in the coming presidential campaign. He says, "Citizens throughout the country are demanding a prompt settlement of the question."

In Mr. Smith's opinion, "The chairman of the Democratic National Committee has offered the most important suggestion. He proposes to leave the Eighteenth Amendment in the Constitution for the benefit of those states that wish to make use of it, but to add a kind of supplementary amendment, ratified by conventions elected by the people especially for the purpose, which will allow those states to 'go wet' that wish to do so. The plan of liquor control in this second amendment would, of course, be entirely optional; and those states which might not wish to take advantage of it would rest secure in the old Eighteenth Amendment."

Smith also expressed himself as being in favor of the growing interest that people are taking in politics. "I am glad to say," again quoting from the interview, "that the public is taking more interest in politics in general, particularly in respect to constitutional amendments. Twenty-five years ago, nobody cared; but now you see crowds around newspaper offices on election rights, waiting to learn the results of the vote on amendments to their state constitutions."

SCIENTISTS HEAR PAPERS READ ON DIVERSE TOPICS

(Continued from first page)

ations on Some Fungal Diseases of Algae," by J. N. Couch; "The Chemical Composition of Ipomoea Panduarata," by Elizabeth M. Stephens and A. S. Wheeler; "Some Recent Trends in Science Teaching," by Dr. F. H. Edmister; "Nicholas Marcellus Hentz," by Dr. Collier Cobb; "The CaCo3 Content of Certain Beach Sands," by Dr. G. R. MacCarthy.

"The Sedimentation of the Carolina Slates—Their Probable Origin," by A. E. Alexander; "The Influence of the Physiographic Features of Western North Carolina on the Settlement and Development," by Martha E. Norburn; "Notes on Lachnocladium and Clavaria," by Dr. W. C. Coker; "Notes on the Seed Development of Pinus Palustris," by A. C. Matthews; "Comparison of the Flowering Dates at Chapel Hill for 1930-1931," by B. E. Smith; and "Dune Sands and Wind-Blown Soils of the Mississippi Basin," by Dr. Collier Cobb, were also presented.

TAR HEELS-DEVILS CLASH TO DECIDE BIG FIVE CROWN

(Continued from preceding page)

Coach Ashmore's charges were not up to their usual fine form.

Carolina is out to blast the Blue Devils' hopes of a fourth straight year of baseball supremacy between the two schools. Lefty Jenkins, portside performer for Duke for the previous three years, always proved to be Carolina's jinx as he turned them back six times in six meetings. Jenkins, however, has graduated and is now playing professional ball with the Springfield, Massachusetts, club in the Eastern League. With Jenkins out of the way, Carolina is all set to clean up on the series and avenge her previous setbacks. Hinton or Shields will hurl against Bob Coombs.

Yale News Founded In 1878 Is Oldest Daily

(Continued from first page)

One for the year 1878, and the other for the following year. There seems to be no apparent reason for this repetition of volume number, other than the fact that the first board of the paper leaving no definite plans for its continuation, John W. Keller published what he called the new Yale News. Both the publication of the first board and his year's editing were called volume I's.

Faculty opposition at first was strong, and student support weak. Keller secured the permission of his friends to use their names at the head of the editorial column, becoming chief contributor, editor, business manager, advertising solicitor, and collector. He promised the printer all the income as well as guaranteeing personally to assume deficits.

In 1880 the first announcement was made to the sophomores that the new editors would be chosen in competition, but it was not until the spring of 1882 that this system was eventually inaugurated.

Editorial comment drew fire from the press of other colleges. Harvard was rapped for intimating that Yale had professional coaches, and again when she was months late in accepting a challenge to row. Argument was aroused over Harvard's insistence on having the race Friday after commencement instead of Thursday as Yale had wished. It was in 1879 that the now forgotten agreement to have the race of Friday of one year and Thursday of the next was signed.

Editorial Comment

Editorial comment on subjects nearer the campus covered everything. A proposed athletic field had to be boosted; a football debt had to be reduced; the classroom marking-book was recommended dropped; the valedictory should have been relegated; text-book English should have been improved; elocution should have been taught; in the lamentable absence of a chair of journalism, News senior editors should have been allowed credit for their toil; Harvard's elective system it was said made loafers; dress suits for daytime performances of Junior Exhibition speakers were all wrong; a college hospital had been needed; "snab" (skirts) near the colleges should not have been embarrassed by yells; fire protection should have been provided (and while they so shouted, they were burned out twice); and the well-to-do alumni should have given more dormitories.

Anson Phelps Stokes, '96, traces the development of the News in thirty-five years by saying, "I shall divide what I have to say under two headings: First, Changes in the Character of the News as a Newspaper; Second, Changes in the News Competition. Under the first heading he includes: (1) An improved literary form. (2) Greater independence of expression. (3) A broader interest in public affairs and scholarship. (4) An improved format. (5) A more progressive policy. Under Changes in the News Competition he lists: (1) The development of assignments. (2) Abolition of "combinations," which was the consolidation of three or four students who swapped the news that they uncovered and thus outshown their competitors. (3) Restrictions in the length of competitions.

Wealthy Paper

Today the News is a wealthy journal and well serves its circulation list. A pictorial section has been added, as well as a book review section and a "National Affairs" section. Quoting from Briton Hadden, '20, who wrote a short review in the special edition, "Fifty Years of the Yale News," "Critics have been unanimous in pronouncing the first of these three innovations well worth while. For a critic who had read the 'National Affairs,' I searched in vain."

Then, too, there has been added "Campus Notes," a selection from which will not be amiss here: "Freshmen in Berkley Oval yesterday leaned far out of crowded windows, watched with interest Latin Instructor G. M. Harper boot a football with classic toe, followed its course with eager eyes, saw the ball land amid flying glass upon an electric light globe, and noted the miscreant flee before the arrival of a campus cop."

In 1922 the News discontinued what was called "The World at Large" column because the board chose to make the News exclusively an organ of Yale events. William Howard Taft, who was then a professor in the law school, said that he had read it every day and depended on it.

Trade Advertisements

As late as 1920 "trade advertisements" were run in the paper. At this time, however, they were abolished. The workings of such a system were not very complicated, but they were nevertheless injurious to the publication. A firm would give the paper so much credit in return for an advertisement, and then one of the heelers would pay the paper, purchasing enough to cancel the obligation in addition to receiving extra credit on the News. Another regrettable policy of the advertising staff is the publication of advertisements in the form of editorials.

The heeling competitions are saner and less frenzied than they used to be. The only restriction used to be that the men had to be in bed by 12:00 and stay there until 7:30. No mention was made about the lights being off, and heelers worked in bed until all hours, even going so far as to have the janitors bring the New York newspapers to their rooms early in the morning.

Heelers still use bicycles, but they don't seem to use them as extensively as before. Today prospective reporters are writing all of their copy on typewriters, machines which were unknown in 1920 except in the business office.

Conservative Policy

The News, although it has expanded, has not changed materially. Richer, it now has supplements which it lacked in the past. In the strict sense of the word it is not a newspaper. If it were, it would print accounts of the Yale events most talked of. Doing that would mean reporting in detail student automobile crashes, student suicides, and student elopements. Advance "dope sheets" of fraternity and society elections would become necessary, and football practices would have to be written in the flourishing style of Grantland Rice.

Salesmen Wanted

Men with selling experience will be interested in the excellent earnings obtainable through the sale of Class Rings, Frat. Pins, Favors, Trophies, etc. Write for proposition.

The Metal Arts Co.
Rochester, N. Y.

FOUR TEAMS TOP FIELD IN ANNUAL SOUTHERN MEET

(Continued from preceding page)

Williams, old Oxford high shot putter, now at Madison A. & M., is first of note. Williams throws the 12-pound shot prodigious distances, seven or eight feet better than the present record, and recently he competed in the Southeastern A. A. U. meet with Coleman of Auburn, rated at the top in the Conference, and placed second, throwing the 16 pound shot 44 feet 6½.

Another former Tar Heel is Red Goodwin, from Greensboro High, now at Riverside, a real star in the sprints, and also a vaulter, jumper, and javelin-tosser. McAninich, Staunton's co-holder of the record for the 220, is coming back, along with Bowman, G. M. A., who won the mile last year; Tarrall, a fine sprinter at Oak Ridge; Dorrill, a four-event star at Danville, and many others.

New records are quite probable in the shot and 220 but it looks as if it will take stiff competition to beat the meet's fine marks in any other events. A few samples are Weisker's 9.8 seconds record for the 100-yard dash; Cadman's mark of 2 minutes 3 seconds for the half-mile; Goodwin's record of 25.2 seconds for the low hurdles; and Rhodes' record of 131 feet ½ inch for the discus.

Alabama, Tulane, Auburn, Mississippi, Carolina Are Leaders

(Continued from preceding page)

plenty of opposition from Reigels of Alabama, who cleared the bar at 12 feet 10½ inches against Auburn not long ago, and Zimmerman, Tulane, who has been as high as 12 feet eight inches. Arnold has done twelve feet six, and Ruble went twelve feet eight inches in winning the event at the state meet.

In the mile, V. M. I. has two brilliant runners in Smith and Wise, while Lauck of Virginia, Lineberger of Clemson, Wells of Tulane, and Jones of Carolina have also done good work this season and may threaten the Cadet pair. Smith has the best performance of the year with a time of 4:22.5. Jones of Carolina took first place in the state meet with a time of 4:32.

Sandy Dameron, Tar Heel discus heaver, has a mark of 136 feet six inches to match the distances of 143 feet two inches by Coleman of Auburn and 139 feet six by Oelkers of Tulane.

Fun on the rollicking way to EUROPE

Merry-making never gets a minute off in the IMM Tourist third cabin. The crowd, food and accommodations are right, but the price seems all wrong—it's almost too low for such a marvelous voyage. In 1930 the record number of 60,522 passengers traveled in "IMM Tourist."

$105 up

NO CLASS DISTINCTIONS on the Tourist third cabin liners de luxe, Pennland and Westernland. Their entire former cabin accommodations are devoted exclusively to Tourist. The only steamers of their kind in the world.

Also delightful Tourist third cabin accommodations on the Majestic, world's largest ship, Olympic, Homeric, Belgenland, Britannic and many others.

Several weekly sailings to principal European ports and British Isles.

Send for literature describing Tourist 3rd cabin.

IMM
211 St. Charles
New Orleans, La.

WHITE STAR • RED STAR
ATLANTIC TRANSPORT
INTERNATIONAL MERCANTILE MARINE LINES

1 Colgate Tooth Brush 50c
1 Tube Colgate Tooth Paste 25c
75c
All for 39c
BERMAN'S DEPARTMENT STORE, Inc

ORIGINAL PLAYS
PLAYMAKERS THEATRE
TONIGHT — 8:30

The Daily Tar Heel

H. K. HALLETT
TAYLOR SOCIETY
105 BINGHAM — 7:30

VOLUME XXXIX — CHAPEL HILL, N. C., THURSDAY, MAY 14, 1931 — NUMBER 170

LANG DESCRIBES STATE STUDENT UNION'S HISTORY

President of Federation Sees Progress in Future of Student Government.

Yesterday afternoon between 3:30 and 3:45 o'clock, John A. Lang delivered the weekly radio address sponsored by the student council, when he gave the history of the North Carolina Student Federation, and made announcement to the effect that the second annual congress would convene at Duke university, Saturday, May 16.

The first of Lang's speech consisted of an explanation of the federation and the purpose for which it stands. He gave, as the purpose "to perfect institutions for self government, to improve their intercollegiate relations, and to create a wide interest among students in social and political problems of the day."

History of Federation

Next, he gave a history of the student federation in which he said that its birth year was 1930 when, during that summer, a survey concerning student government was made in some half dozen colleges of North Carolina and soon afterward another one of all the campi of the state. During the fall of 1930, the State Student Federation conducted a student government week as a state-wide campaign to improve and perfect student government. At this time national members of the body spoke in the colleges. The North Carolina group was represented at the national convention in Atlanta last December.

Present members of the state federation are: the University, Duke, North Carolina State college, Wake Forest, Meredith, Saint Mary's, Eastern Carolina Teachers' college, Atlantic Christian college, North Carolina College for Women, Greensboro college, Guilford, Salem, High Point, Catawba, Lenoir-Rhyne, Queens-Chicora, Asheville Normal school, and Davidson.

Conference at Duke

Proceeding, Lang stated that

(Continued on last page)

DEKES TO AWARD TROPHY TO LODGE WITH BEST STAND

Included among the usual medals and awards to be given out on awards night, May 25, will be the Deke trophy, which will be given to the fraternity having the highest standing in scholarship and in both varsity and intra-mural athletics.

The custom of awarding this trophy was originated last year by the members of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity with the view in mind of encouraging greater scholastic and athletic activities among the campus fraternities. The fraternity winning the trophy is allowed to keep it until the next year, when it is again handed on to the highest ranking club. In order to gain permanent possession of the award, a fraternity must have previously received it three times, two of which being in successive years.

Last year the Zeta Psi fraternity was declared winner of the award. Competition for the award is keen this year, and an elaborate scoring system—devised by Dean F. F. Bradshaw—will be used to determine the winner.

Summer School Offers Courses in Accounting

A certified public accountant review course will be offered by the accounting instructors of the University during the summer school.

The course will be given in two sessions of six weeks each. The first session June 11 through July 21, will cover the constructive part of general accounting theory and practice, and such special subjects as governmental or institutional accounting and income tax procedure. The second session, July 22 through September 1, will cover problems dealing with the dissolution of business enterprises and the consolidation of business organizations, and also such special subjects as cost accounting and auditing.

One or both sessions may be attended. Approximate cost for each session will be: tuition, twenty-five dollars; books, eight dollars; room rent, six dollars; and board, thirty dollars. Applications for the first session should be mailed to Professor R. H. Sherill, Chapel Hill, N. C., before June 1; fo rthe second session to Professor E. E. Peacock, also of Chapel Hill, before July 1.

GERMAN CLUB TO GIVE SIX DANCES IN SET OF FINALS

Guy Lombardo Secured to Play At University June 9, 10 and 11.

Guy Lombardo and His Royal Canadians will be back in Chapel Hill, June 9, to play for the final dances at the University. The dances, six in number, will take place on June 9, 10, and 11.

Lombardo furnished the music for the finals last year, and proved a very popular attraction. He has been playing at the Roosevelt Grill in New York City.

Dances Begin June 9

The festivities will start Tuesday night, June 9, with a formal dance in the Tin Can, and will be continued Wednesday with a dansant at 11:00, a tea dance at 5:00, and another formal at 10:00. Thursday will bring another dansant at 11:00 o'clock and the final ball at 9:00. Thursday afternoon the band will present a concert in Memorial hall.

There will be about ten fraternities having houseparties, among them Zeta Psi, S. A. E., Kappa Sigma, D. K. E., Sigma Nu, Sigma Chi, Phi Delta Theta, Beta Theta Pi, and Pi Kappa Phi.

Besides the German Club dances in the Tin Can, the Gorgon's Head Lodge will give a dinner dance Tuesday night, as will the Order of Gimghouls Thursday night.

At the German Club figure, which will take place at the final ball Thursday night, the old officers will turn over their regalia to the new ones. The old officers are John Bullock, president; Buck Snow, vice president; and Will Yarborough, secretary-treasurer. They are to be succeeded by Tom Follin, Steve Lynch, and John Park.

New Officers

The present executive committee is composed of Marion Cowper, Henry House, George Newman, Steve Lynch, Aubrey Parsley, Park, Snow, and Yarborough; the new of Harry Finch, Beverly Moore, Holmes Davis, Oscar Dresslar, Archie

(Continued on last page)

TWELVE CLASSES WILL UNITE HERE

Class of '81 to Celebrate Fiftieth Anniversary at Commencement.

As the time of commencement approaches the various classes that are to hold their reunions are hard at work arranging their programs and trying to encourage a large attendance. This year there are twelve classes that intend to reunite. The class of '81 will have its fiftieth reunion, while '01 and '06 are returning to celebrate their thirtieth and twentieth respective anniversaries. The class of '06 are expecting a large percentage of their body to be here, already having received acceptances from forty members.

College Generation Present

Mr. D. B. Teague, '10, of Sanford, and alumni president of his class, has sponsored a plan whereby the classes of '10, '11, '12, and '13, will come together on Monday, June 8, the college generation as it was when the class of 1910 were seniors. Mr. Teague has written a letter to all his classmates and to the officers of the other classes and they all seem to be very much interested in the plan.

These four classes plan to return to the campus and be together again. They will arrive on Monday, June 8, Alumni Day, and register; then they intend to go as a body to the alumni meeting, over which Judge Francis D. Winston, who has been toastmaster for this occasion for years, will preside. Then they are to sit together at the alumni luncheon in Swain hall. On Monday night at six o'clock, the four classes are to have a joint class dinner at the Carolina Inn to end the day.

Athletic Events Planned

On Monday afternoon Mr. Teague plans to have several athletic events take place. At present he is endeavoring to arrange a doubleheader baseball game between the four classes to be held on Emerson field.

A great deal of interest is being shown on the parts of all the classes that are returning this spring. The graduates will be put up in dormitories and these four classes that are returning together will be put in the same building. It has not been decided definitely which one this will be.

Raleigh Statue Set Up In Carolina Room

The wood statue of Sir Walter Raleigh which was recently received by the University through the generosity of Mr. Owen Hill Kenan was placed in the North Carolina room of the library Monday.

The statue was not placed on exhibit upon its arrival as the foot was cracked to such an extent that it was unable to stand alone. However, this fault has been remedied, and the statue, an early seventeenth century work, is now on exhibit in the North Carolina room of the library.

Kappa Psi Entertains

The Beta Xi chapter of Kappa Psi, honorary pharmaceutical fraternity, presented an informal dance at the Wilrik hotel, Sanford, last Friday night. Jimmy Waltham and his Hotel Alamance Serenaders furnished the music. The ballroom was decorated in scarlet and light grey, the fraternity colors.

DR. KIRK TO GIVE M'NAIR LECTURES

Series of Annual Addresses Will Deal With Science and Religion.

Dr. Harris E. Kirk, D.D., of the Franklin Street Presbyterian Church of Baltimore, Maryland, has been selected to deliver the nineteenth series of the McNair lecture group. Dr. Kirk will deliver three lectures, May 19, 20, and 21, and his subjects will be: "From Stars to Atoms," "From Atoms to Mind," and "From Mind to God."

When John Calvin McNair of the class of 1849 died, he left a lecture fund for the University in his will. The fund became available in 1906, and by 1908 the interest rendered therefrom was such that the lectures could begin. The honorarium for the lectures amounts to $500, and the remainder of the interest from the fund provides for the publication of the lectures.

Science and Religion

The object of the lectures as set down in the will of the late Mr. McNair is "to show the mutual bearing of science and religion upon each other and to prove the existence of attributes (as far as may be) of God from nature." With this purpose in view, Dr. Henry Horace Williams, who is chairman of the fund, has endeavored to bring the best men available to talk before the students and friends of the University.

The lectures began back in 1908 when Professor Francis H. Smith LL.D., of the University of Virginia, addressed the members of the University on "God Manifest in the Material Universe." Since then the lectures have been given regularly with the exception of five years. They were omitted in 1918 and 1919 on account of the World War, and then again in 1926 and 1929. Last year the speaker, Dr. Michael Pupin, of Columbia university, had accepted, but was unable to attend on account of illness.

The last speaker to deliver

(Continued on last page)

Playmakers Produce Sixth Bill of Season

The sixth presentation of the Carolina Playmakers, a set of four one-act plays, will be staged tonight, tomorrow night, and Saturday night in the Carolina Playmakers Theatre at 8:30.

The cast of characters of the first of these plays, Love an' Likker, by Irene Fussler, is as follows: Sweyn Jenson, Charles Elledge; Bill Knudson, Robert Reid; Sigrid, Betty Jones; Docter Graddik, Horace Ward; Helga, Elizabeth McCarty. The direction is by the author. The Stray Bullet, by Robert Barnett, and directed by Joe McGauley, has a cast of only three characters; McKenzie, Everett Jess; Hagar, Elmer Oettinger; the Boy Scout, D. D. Carroll, Jr.

The characters of Glenhurst, by Tom Loy, are: Mommy, Marion Tatum; Beulah, Mary Dirnberger; Ned, Ted Herman; Baby, Ailleen Ewart; and Doctor Johnson, Tom Loy. It is to be directed by Joe Fox. The fourth play, Ellen Stewart's Pleasantly Purple, has a cast of the King, Ralph Westerman; Anita, Ellen Stewart; the Page, Charles Keener. Miss Betsy Perrow is the director.

Season tickets may be exchanged at the Student Supply Store.

J. M. Valentine Secures Research Fellowship

Under a national research fellowship, Dr. Joseph M. Valentine, assistant professor of zoology, intends to devote his entire time next year to a further study of blind cave beetles in eastern America. He expects to make several expeditions to limestone regions of the southern Appalachian system for the purpose of exploring caves hitherto unexplored as far as the fauna are concerned.

Dr. Valentine says that in practically every large system of connected caves, there are found very definite and individual anophthalmidal forms. These species are seldom, if ever, found in isolation from one another; consequently, they usually live in connected caves. They travel mostly by underground streams, not being able to exist in the open air. A monographic study of these organisms is to be made which will probably throw some light upon the origin of the species and the effect of cave environment on the organism.

SOCIETIES WOULD ABOLISH POWERS OF GERMAN CLUB

Di and Phi Discuss Six Bills in Joint Session.

At a joint meeting of the Di and Phi societies Tuesday night at 7:15, action was taken to do away with the power of the German club at social functions on the campus. Senator Rector introduced the resolution which read, Resolved: that the German club should be stripped of its power of governing house parties and dances at the University. Senator Little, Representatives Carmichael, Uzzell, and Spradlin upheld the resolution while Senator Ramsay and Representative McDuffie opposed it. The bill was approved by a large majority.

Representative Uzzell introduced a resolution at this point which read: Resolved, that the Phi and Di meet sometime within the next week for the purpose of giving members of the German club a chance to defend themselves and that the societies sponsor a campus-wide vote to decide the issue. This measure also met with the approval of the joint session without discussion.

The Phi assembly in a special meeting approved Representative Lang's resolution proposing that the Phi assembly send a representative to the Student Federation convention at Duke university. The assembly chose Speaker Haywood to represent the Phi assembly at this meeting. Representative Lang extended an invitation to all members of the assembly to attend this convention.

The bill, Resolved: that the Human Relations Institute is detrimental because it creates dissatisfaction by bringing in radicals; was defeated by a unanimous vote of the joint session when Senator Dungan suggested that the bill be put to a vote.

Representative Lanier introduced the resolution, Resolved: that the proposed consolidation of counties in North Carolina would be advantageous to the state. This bill was passed without further discussion. Senator Ramsay proposed a bill favoring a constitutional con-

(Continued on last page)

ACTIVITIES GROUP BANQUET PLANNED FOR THIS EVENING

Committee Will Discuss Organization of Graham Memorial As Student Center.

At 6:30 this evening the annual Student Activities committee banquet will take place in the Carolina Inn. The members of the Student Activities committee are students who are actively engaged in the affairs of the University and prominent members of the faculty.

The purposes of this committee are: to sponsor progressive development in the various fields of student activity; to give an opportunity for discussion of current campus problems by administration of students and faculty; and to secure better coordination between the various activities.

Definite Projects

Much has been accomplished by these meetings between faculty members and students during the seven years in which they have been conducted. Besides the valuable discussions which have been engaged in, definite projects have been inaugurated and carried to completion. The formation of the Publications Union board, the reapportionment of dues and publications costs into a blanket fee, and the beginning of the Tar Heel as a daily paper are some of the definite accomplishments of this group.

The program of the banquet this spring is one of particular interest and importance. The main part of the meeting is to be occupied in discussing the plan of organization of the Graham Memorial building as a student union, a social center, and an activity center for the campus. A change and reapportionment of the blanket fee will be necessary for this purpose.

The program for awards night will be considered. A general discussion of the problems and policies of the new administration will conclude the program.

SUMMER SCHOOL BULLETIN OFFERS LIBRARY COURSES

Newly Published Catalogue Lists Classes in Administration of Junior Colleges.

The bulletin containing announcements for the summer terms at the University has been published and may be obtained from N. W. Walker, director of the summer school. The first term of summer school is from June 11-July 21, and the second from July 22-August 28.

The bulletin contains all information regarding courses, fees, rooming facilities and so forth. For the second year, the engineering school will be open to students. The summer session of the school of law is operated independently of the summer school. The schools of medicine and pharmacy are not operated in the summer.

New Courses Offered

For the first time in the history of the education school, there will be a course taught on "The Organization and Administration of the Junior College." Dr. George Phineas Butler, former president of the Augusta junior college and advisor to junior colleges for the Association of Colleges and Secondary

(Continued on last page)

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays. Entered as Second Class matter at the post office at Chapel Hill, N. C., under Act of March 3, 1879.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $4.00 for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

Jack Dungan ..... Editor
H. N. Patterson ..... Bus. Mgr.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Ed French ..... Mng. Ed.

Editorial Board

Charles G. Rose ..... Chairman
J. M. Little — Frank J. Manheim
W. M. Bryson — Will Yarborough
Alden Stahr — Bob Barnett
Wex Malone

Assignment Editors

Otto S. Steinreich
Dan Kelly, Assistant

Sunday Editor

Charles G. Rose

City Editors

Bill McKee — George Wilson
Peter Hairston — Jack Riley

Desk Men

W. R. Woerner — Don Shoemaker
Vass Shepherd

Sports Staff

Jack Bessen ..... Sports Editor

Assistants

T. H. Broughton — P. Alston

News Men

E. M. Spruill — F. W. Ashley
W. E. Davis — Claiborn Carr
Charles Poe

Reporters

Saul Gordon — Bob Reynolds
Woodward Glenn — M. V. Barnhill, Jr.
William Blount — John Burroughs
U. B. Phillips — M. H. Long
Tom Walker — W. B. Gray
Ronald Kochendorfer — Walker Stamps
Phil Sasser

BUSINESS STAFF

Hal Worth ..... Circulation Mgr.
Harlan Jameson ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.
John Manning ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.

Advertising Department

Al L. Olmstead ..... Advertising Mgr.
Pendleton Gray ..... Advertising Mgr.
Bernard Solomon ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
R. D. McMillan, Jr. ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
James N. Nowell — H. A. Clark

Collection Department

Jack Hammer ..... Collection Mgr.
John Barrow — Frank S. Dale
Stokes Adderton — Jack Stokes

Correspondence Department

Ed Michaels, Jr. ..... Correspondence Mgr.
Wynn Hamm ..... Ass't. Cor. Mgr.

Thursday, May 14, 1931

Living Standards

The importance of living standards is an unquestionable one in the minds of modern American thinkers. Standards of living and the implications involved in the facts that surround them were touched upon by practically every leader in the recent Institute for Human Relations. Judge Parker, Capitalist Geer, ex-presidental candidate Thomas, Dean Matthews, and Labor unionist Gorman laid particular emphasis upon the facts of living standards. Reference has been made to this problem so frequently that now we are prone to become entirely insensitive to its importance. It has become a stock appeal to an audience for the speaker who reaches about for something of importance to talk about, and as such has lost some of the vigor of its meaning.

Another trite declaration which runs like this—"this world is growing smaller and smaller every day" has through repetition lost all color and no longer evokes the expected gasps of amazement and hesitant half-horror. However, this idea does have unmeasurable possibility for conjecture and study. For example, America's exports to China approximate $150,000,000 today. Former Minister Mac Murray states that with a return of peaceful conditions in China the imports from America to China would easily approach the enormous sum of $2,000,000,000. Someone else has said that if each Chinese could spend 5 cents a week more for American imports the volume of American goods consumed per year would reach Mimister Mac Murray's figure of $2,000,000,000.

America could well make use of a market with that purchasing power. American commercial interests might do well to study the living conditions of the Chinese man and try to make is easy for him to spend that 5 cents a week. To make any headway, however, he must know what the Chinese needs and how he spends his money. The Germans have done this. The French have not and their economic standing in China testifies to the difference in their techniques.

How does the Chinese working man spend his money? And, what kind of money does he use?—Those two questions must be answered in any kind of study of the Chinese land as a possible market for American goods.

The silver standard is the standard of monetary value in China. The Mexican dollar was brought over by the American clipper ships in the early part of the nineteenth century being traded for tea and silks. This silver dollar has since then become the standard for the country. Today there is an alarming overproduction, if it may be called that, of silver. So the Chinese man buys twenty cents worth of a gold dollar with his silver coin whereas not so long ago it could claim half a gold dollar's worth at least. This circumstance has caused Chinese standards of living to take a dive and under those particular conditions a dive is much like diving into a shower bath—you hit the bottom before you hit the water.

The fact that China and America are both vitally implicated in our modern economic and social order is something which does not occur to the average person, but the same business depression that is making Mr. Smith drag out his last spring's straw hat is making Wong Shin Sen leave his houseboat idle in his little boathouse on the canal, and the Chinese coolie smoke "Three Castle" cigarettes instead of Chesterfields. Just how difficult this makes it for the Chinese working man who has neither houseboat nor taste for cigarettes is difficult to describe. However, Sidney Gamble in a report of Peking living standards gives a rather authoritative and intensely interesting picture of family life among the working middle class of Chinese society, the market that America must appeal to.

Sidney Gamble discovered that the average family numbered 4.1, their incomes ranged from $120 to $300 a year, and that the average number per room was 3.4. Specifying his report his facts reveal these figures: The average monthly budget for a family of four was $17.58. The American budget for the analogous class of person was recorded by Roger Babcock some time ago was $119. However this is not a clear comparison because the Chinese budgets are reckoned in Mexican currency which at the time of the study was worth about $2.25 per gold dollar. Now the Mexican dol- much less. In the course of a year these families piled up preposterous expenditures. For a family of four for 365 days food cost $36.51. Tea cost $1.17 per year. Rice totaled $3.98 for the period from Chinese New Year to Chinese New Year. The Chinese dissipated but it cost him only $.43 a month. This included footing the bill for wine, tobacco, snuff, special feasts, wedding, birthday, and funeral presents. The blue cloth working clothes and the silk garments which he wore to the temple or the feast cost him and his family $9.85 for the year. He spent most of the rest of his income for rent, light, water, education, house equipment, labor, interest, and his religion, yet he still saved $24.13. It is barely possible that the average lar, as mentioned above, is worth American will be inclined to think that the Chinese doesn't spend very much money. This feeling will be accentuated when the figures are compared with Mr. Babcock's budget of the policemen, representing a class of average none too well favored people, in the South.

The policemen with families of four spend $50 a month gold currency for food, $16 per month for clothing, $3.75 for recreation, $18 for rent and the rest scattered among the costs necessary for water, light, laundry, insurance, fuel, etc. It should be noted that these figures are in gold currency for the month. The Chinese figures are in Mexican currency for the year, or less than half that of gold.

These observations will likely be considered entirely irrelevant. They may be looked upon as presenting an absolutely hopeless field for economic pursuit. They do offer though, we think, a suggestion or a glimpse into a field which might well occupy the "enlightened self-interest" of our American business and financial forces.—R. W. B.

Title Seeking America

"All men are created free and equal." This phrase, Americanized from a quotation of Rousseau, is the ideal on which the United States of America is founded. Today, however, it has been discarded. The section of the Constitution which declared that no American citizen may possess a title of nobility has been disregarded for America has become a title seeking nation.

The king and queen of Siam and a Japanese prince and his bride have been on an extended visit to the United States. Everywhere they have been greeted by great throngs, drawn by the title born by the visiting royalties. The Prince of Wales, on his numerous visits to the United States, has been sought after by every debutante in the country. A recent news reel carried the picture of an American girl who had the honor of dancing with England's next ruler, and from her words it appeared that she was "thrilled to death" with having danced with one of the most eligible bachelors in the world today.

Everywhere Americans are becoming title seekers. "The Baron of Wall Street," "the King of the Underworld," "the Oil King" have become common as titles of Americans from gunmen to financier. Even the realms of sport and music have become victims of title seekers. Babe Ruth has become the "King of the Swat," Hornsby is styled "the Rajah," Whiteman is the "King of Jazz."

Due honor should be paid visiting rulers but there is no need to go into ecstacy over every waiter we see just because he is a Russian Grand Duke in exile or because he is Baron So and So of Eldorania or some such country.

The American girl, whose father possess sufficient funds to support an exiled count, has become the victim of fortune seekers. Up to date most of these marriages to foreign noblemen have not been a great success and sooner or later, to her sorrow, the American girl learns that it is better to marry a poor but honest American bond salesman than to be the bride of an equally as poor and not quite so honest foreign nobleman.—T. H. B.

More Or Better Education

Judging from the wording of the main bill for discussion Tuesday night by the members of the Di and Phi societies in joint session, there is a doubt in someone's mind as to whether the Human Relations Institute did right by bringing men of radical beliefs here to lecture to the student-body. It is apparent that some have the fear that Youth is not yet able to think for itself, but must drink in only what is handed to it by elders.

This situation might have existed decades ago, but today, if college education stimulates thinking, this is not true. In a recent survey it was found that in 1900 there were only three percent of the men and women of college age being formally educated, whereas today this number has increased to eighteen percent.

Collegians of today are getting away from the habit of accepting doctrines without first having reasoned them out. The day is passed when men and women believe this or that merely because their parents said it was so, or because their instructors told them so. Today Youth is accepting things with a "pinch of salt." They are in some cases leaning too far to the other side, coming to the place where nothing is right. They are sometimes too skeptical. But even this is better than accepting everything that anyone tells them.

This fear of some on this campus that the introduction of radical beliefs is harmful to students is an unfounded one, and one which is characteristic of a narrow-minded and prejudiced person. If the men and women of today are to make their decisions they must first have both sides of the question. By being present with the radical side, and by having lived continually with the conservative side they are able to judge for themselves which is the better of the two. If after hearing the doctrines of socialism, they think that it is the best solution of today's problem, why criticise them for their belief?

If, after being six times more educated than were the youths of three decades ago, the members of the younger generation are unable to form their own opinions after seeing both sides, something is sadly wrong with the system of education in vogue today. If we expect to become the liberal-minded nation which we hope to be, the time is here for us either to give more or better education.—C.G.R.

Go To It Senator Ward

The Daily Tar Heel hopes that Senator Ward of Beaufort will be able to uncover the graft which he alleges is going on over at Raleigh. Many persons believe that the extended session of the legislature can be blamed on illegal lobbying and bribery. It will be a great thing for the future of North Carolina legislation if these charges can be placed on the guilty persons.

The work of this investigation committee must exonerate some who have been falsely accused, and must penalize those who are guilty of receiving bribes. The fact that most of the legislative measures have been defeated in the senate by margins of from one or two votes tends to indicate that some senators have been illegally coerced into changing their votes on the final readings.

Lobbying is at least excusable when it is done fairly and above board, but it is absolutely wrong for a lobbyist to "go after the vote" of a man elected to represent his constituency with a roll of bills in his pocket.

Senator Ward, uncover the alleged crookedness, and rid North Carolina's legislative halls of these undesirable persons.—K. C. R.

Questionable Power

According to the looks of things Tuesday night in the joint session of the Di and Phi literary societies, the executive committee of the German club is soon to be stripped of its heretofore extended control over all dances or social functions given here on the campus. The motion was made at the combined meeting of the two groups that the German club officials be called into conference with the members of the two societies to explain on what grounds they have such jurisdiction over social activities, and if a satisfactory explanation could not be submitted it was proposed that the two "literary" organizations stage a campus-wide campaign to vest this power in the hands of some other body.

Those who are sponsoring this change have the doctrines of democracy solidly behind them. They can show, and it is true, that only those who have the necessary funds are able to become members of the German Club, that this group has secured this power somewhere from the trustees and faculty to govern all dances and other festivities on the campus, and that the majority of the student body does not have a voice in determining rules by which this executive committee makes its stringent decisions.

Were the members of this committee elected in some way by the student body as a whole, the case would be entirely different. But when only two or three hundred students who are a little better off financially than the majority of their fellows can select officers who in turn appoint the executive committee which sits as the supreme ruler over all social events of the entire University, this campus is leaving its democratic trend and is coming more to endure the government of an oligarchy. In fact students have permitted such a system for the past five or six years since the executive committee has been in existence, and are just now waking up to the fact that their rights are being usurped.

It will not be denied, even by those who are members of the German club, that such a system of vesting complete control in the executive committee, chosen only by a few persons, is not at all democratic, and if this fight started by the two "literary" societies is continued it will not be long before the executive committee is justly made a part of the German club alone and not a body to pass on the social actions of the entire student-body.—C. G. R.

Senator Norris seems to think that the vested interests should also be belted.—Arizona Producer.

With Contemporaries

What Is A University?

It is commonly said that the purpose of a university is to educate its students. To educate does not mean to drive in, but to draw out. Education is a process of development, and development is only by individual effort. The student educates himself.

Since education is a matter of individual effort, the purpose of a university is not to educate its students. Its purpose lies in the fact that the student, left to himself, does not know how to develop his mind and is not interested in intellectual effort. He does not know how to develop his mind because he never has done so, and he is not interested because the easiest activities are physical ones; thought comes hard.

Then the purpose of a university is two-fold: to provide opportunity for the student to educate himself and to guide and inspire him in the effort. Of these, to inspire the student is the most important. Opportunity is everywhere, and method can be acquired without great difficulty, but the spirit of interest in the intellectual adventure is not easily found.

One is reminded of a school in Scotland, a small school, but one that had for its master a man who was a real teacher. From that school went out student after student who made important contributions to the work of the world. A school like that is a real university.

It is not to memorize the alphabet that a person comes to a university. Facts he can get anywhere. It is to be inspired with a love for intellectual effort and for truth, with a vision of problems to be solved, and with a determination to play one's part well. This is the purpose of a university.

With this in mind, it may be well to ask: To what degree is Minnesota a university?—Daily Minnesotan.

An aviation enthusiast says that flying in an airplane is as safe as sleeping in bed. But we can't forget that statistics show that more people die in bed than anywhere else.—Nashville Southern Lumberman.

A famous chess expert says he hasn't played for five years. Still, it may be his move again any minute now.—The Humorist (London).

CLEARANCE

Wool Knickers (Entire Wool Stock)

One look and you'll agree they are real values at the prices.

Cheviots, camel hair and tweeds in the smart plain shades of tan and grey.

$10.00 now $6.95
8.50
7.50 now 5.95
5.00 now 3.95

Knox and Byron Hats

In plain snap styles and in greys, tans, and browns.

$7.00 now $5.95
5.00 now 3.95

Randolph - McDonald Inc.

Few Upsets Scored In Preliminary Rounds Of Campus Boxing Show

Favorites Smash Way Through To Finals; Errico Beats Alexander in Five Round Battle.

The opening rounds of the intramural boxing tournament were run off in the Tin Can Tuesday night as sixteen aspiring champions went through their paces before another oversized crowd of spectators. Two fights were held in the featherweight and lightweight classes while single bouts were run off in all other classes except the light heavyweight division where only two men were entered.

In the bantamweight division, Alan Smith, A.T.O., drew a bye, and Kellenberger and Heyward fought it out for the right to meet Smith in the finals. Both boys went at it hard and gave the fans plenty of action, but Kellenberger had too much reach on his opponent and used a left jab and hook to the face to advantage. Kellenberger won by a technical knockout in the third round when Heyward was unable to answer the gong at the opening of the final session.

The opening bout of the night came to a sudden end after thirty-five seconds of the first round when Fountain, featherweight, threw his arm out of place and was unable to continue, McKeithen winning by a technical knockout.

In the other featherweight battle, Errico won over Alexander of Manly in the closest and hardest fought scrap of the night. Both boys landed often and hard during the bout, and, at the end of the regulation three rounds, the judges called the fight a draw. The fourth round was a repetition of the first three and the officials were again unable to award the verdict to either man. After some debate, it was decided that the fight should be allowed to go a fifth round, but both boys showed signs of tiring, and the last round was slow in comparison with the first four. Errico won the decision, the hardest earned of the night.

Lofton Brooker, A.T.O., won the opening lightweight battle over Frazier, S.P.E., by a decision in three rounds. Brooker landed solidly with both hands to the body and head and had an advantage in the milling throughout.

In the other lightweight scrap, Fred Wardlaw, Beta, took an easy decision over Garland, A. T. O., in three rounds. Wardlaw took the lead in the first round and continued to pile up points throughout the fight. Garland rocked him with hard rights to the head on several occasions, but Wardlaw was too smooth for him and kept the situation well in hand with a left jab which he used repeatedly.

Dick Battley, Delta Sigma Phi welterweight, rallied in the last two rounds to win a decisive victory over White, A.T.O., in the only welterweight battle of the program. White took the lead in the first round with hard rights to the head and stomach, but Battley came back to win the second round by a slight margin.

In the third round Battley cut loose and floored White several times with hard rights to the head and won easily. The gong rang to end the fight with White on the floor, apparently out.

John Preston, D.K.E., middleweight, won a three round decision over Shearin, Grimes, in the only middleweight bout of the night. Billy Stallings, the only other contender, drew a bye. Preston boxed carefully against Shearin and won easily,

(Continued on last page)

Baseball Results

NATIONAL LEAGUE
All games postponed.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Philadelphia 7	Chicago	5
Washington 9	Cleveland	3
Detroit 2	Boston	1
St. Louis 2	New York	0

(Sixth inning)

PIEDMONT LEAGUE

Henderson 3	Charlotte	2
High Point 6	Durham	2

(Eighth inning)

Asheville 7	Raleigh	3

(Third inning)

Greensboro	Winston-Salem

(Night game)

INTRAMURAL RESULTS

Kappa Sigs, Pi Kappa Phi Tie

The Kappa Sigs and the Pi Kappa Phi's played a three all tie Tuesday in the only intramural game of that day. The Kappa Sigs scored two runs off Adams in the first inning but were unable to hold that lead. The Pi Kappa Phi's evened the count in the last two frames.

White hurled for Kappa Sigma, while Adams worked on the mound for the Pi Kappa Phi club.

Score by innings:

Kappa Sigma	201—3
Pi Kappa Phi	012—3

S. A. E. Wins, 8-1

The S. A. E. ball team carried off an 8-1 victory over Lambda Chi Alpha yesterday. Holbrook pitched well for the victors, allowing six hits and tightening down in the pinches. Carey, who was on the hill for Lambda Chi Alpha received poor support from his mates.

Conner, S. A. E. catcher, garnered batting honors for the day with a triple and a single.

Score by innings:

L. C. A.	100	0—1
S. A. E.	521	x—8

Three Forfeits

Zeta Psi forfeited to Sigma Phi Sigma, Everett forfeited to New Dorms, and Sigma Chi defaulted to Beta Theta Pi.

Intramural Schedule

TENNIS

Thursday

4:00 p. m.—1. Phi Kappa Sigma vs S. A. E.; 2. T. E. P. vs Theta Chi.

5:00 p. m.—1. Zeta Beta Tau vs Kappa Alpha; 2. Chi Phi vs Zeta Psi.

Friday

4:00 p. m.—1. Pi Kappa Phi vs D. K. E.; 2. Kappa Sigma vs Beta Theta Pi.

5:00 p. m.—1. Phi Gamma Delta vs Zeta Psi; 2. Phi Kappa Sigma vs Phi Delta Theta.

BASEBALL

Thursday

4:00 p. m.—1. D. K. E. vs Chi Phi; 2. Steele vs Question Marks.

5:00 p. m.—1. Graham vs Grimes; 2. Old West vs Law School.

Friday

4:00 p. m.—1. Mangum vs Aycock; 2. Lewis vs Ruffin.

5:00 p. m.—1. Manly vs Old East; 2. Best House vs Independents.

No Fires This Month

Fire Chief J. L. Foister reports that there have been no fires in Chapel Hill since April 20. He wishes to compliment the public for this as he feels that it is due to their care that this record has been possible.

Toledo man, father of 25 children, shot a stork.—Tampa Tribune.

Mentor and Star Pupil

Coach Bob Fetzer will lead the Tar Heels to Birmingham this week-end to defend the title won last year. If Carolina is to repeat her victory, much will depend upon the strong legs of Charlie Farmer, Dixie champion in the 220 yard dash. Charlie's injury, suffered in the indoor games last March, has responded slowly, and it is doubtful if the Tar Heel star will be able to run Saturday.

YEOMANS, HENDLIN CARRY TAR HEEL COLORS TO MEET

Carolina's Star Netmen Favored To Bring Southern Tennis Title to Hill.

The North Carolina tennis team that gave Harvard its first licking in 38 starts and beat the South and East's biggest teams in an undefeated schedule to lay claim to the National Team Title, is without the services of its first two ranking players at the Southern Tournament at Tulane this weekend, but the Tar Heels are well represented anyway.

Ed Yeomans, North Carolina's college champion in 1929, and Hinkey Hendlin, who won the same title in 1930, are carrying on in place of Bryan Grant, National Claycourt Champion, and Wilmer Hines, National Junior Champion, sophomores who weren't allowed to take off more time from class work.

Yeomans is a right-hander fairly well seasoned in tournament competition, and is best known for the way he pushed Frank Shields, American Davis Cup player, in the North-South Tourney at Pinehurst this year, and for the way he pushed Dr. James Wright, Canada's first Davis Cup star, at White Sulphur Springs.

Carolina's other state champion, Hinkey Hendlin, is a left-hander. Hendlin hasn't the tournament experience of Yeomans, but he has the eye and co-ordination of a champion fencer, having won the Clemens Medal for the best amateur fencer in 1928, and his game often rises to peaks of brilliance.

These two boys played number 3 and 4, respectively, on the Carolina team this year, and won most of their matches as the Tar Heels won shut-outs over every Southern foe, while invading the East to beat Georgetown 7-2, Princeton 8-1, New York University 8-1, Army 9-0, Yale 5-4, Brown 5-0, and Harvard 7-2.

ALPERT ALLOWS FROSH FOUR HITS DUKE WINNING 8-1

De Rose Plays Star Game in Centerfield; Tar Baby Score Comes in Final Frame.

Behind the superb pitching of Alpert and the equally good performances of his team mates, Duke university's yearlings easily took the measure of Carolina's frosh 8 to 1, yesterday afternoon at Emerson field. This makes the second victory of the current season for the Blue Devils over the Tar Heels, they having vanquished them 20 to 7 in the first embroglio.

The first three frames were devoid of base hits, but Duke batsmen began their attack on Strickland in the fourth canto, touching him for two hits which combined with three misplays and a hit batter enabled them to register three markers. Continuing where they left off in the previous stanza, the Imps mustered two more markers by virtue of another hit batter, a double by Mitchell, and a safe bingle of Scholle. Crouch relieved Strickland for Carolina in the sixth, but he apparently was troubled as much as his predecessor, the Durham sluggers clouting in three more tallies in the seventh when four successive base knocks by Tyson, Mitchell, Gadd, and Scholle added three more tallies to the Duke total.

Going into the ninth facing a whitewash, Coach Odell Sapp's Tar Heels staged a belated rally which was short-lived, however. A single by DeRose, an error by Rogers, and a sacrifice fly allowed Carolina to counter its sole run.

Alpert, Duke's mound performer, was in excellent form, setting the Tar Heels back in monotonous style. He was touched for four safe blows, which he kept scattered. The fielding of the club behind him was of a spectacular order, but it was up to DeRose to make the fielding feature of the day when he speared Mitchell's long drive one handed and doubled Tyson off first. McIver in right field played well. Scholle and Alpert led the assault on the Carolina hurlers with two safe blows out of three times at bat.

Score by innings:	r	h	e
Duke 000 320 300	8	8	1
Carolina 000 000 001	1	4	6

Batteries: Duke, Alpert and Rogers; Carolina, Strickland, Crouch, and Mathewson.

Umpires: McDade and Farris (NC). Scorer: Long (NC).

CLASS B LEAGUE PLAY-OFF FRIDAY

The final game for the Class B league of state high schools in the baseball championship series is to be played on Emerson field at three o'clock Friday. This game is to see Rowland High representing the East in the Class B loop, while the Western representative was determined yesterday pending the outcome of the Mount Airy-Cherryville game. The admission to the game is to be fifty cents.

In Class A championship finals, Raleigh will play Charlotte, champions of the West, here Saturday, May 23. Raleigh has finished its conference schedule while Charlotte has another game with Winston-Salem this Saturday. This game, however, has no bearing on Charlotte's record. Win or lose the finals will see Raleigh against Charlotte.

In the semi-final round of the Class B. series: in the East, Roanoke Rapids beat Chapel Hill 8-7, Rowland beat Erwin 16-9, and Roanoke Rapids 7-5. In the West, Mt. Airy beat Bessama 4-3, and Cherryville beat Forest City, 1928 state champions, 12-9.

COLLEGIANA

By THOMAS H. BROUGHTON

The University of Maryland has an ambidexterous pitcher in Steve Physioc of the freshman nine. In a regular game the other day he alternated in hurling with his right and left hands and did not yield a hit the four innings he was on the mound. He came to Maryland from Baltimore City college.

With his team on the short end of a 2-1 count, Buck Bailey, Washington State mentor, pulled out a rabbit's foot, in the seventh inning, rubbed it on the bats of his team, who proceeded to win the game, defeating the University of Oregon, 7-2.

Eight cinder records fell Saturday in the Virginia state meet, which was won by the University of Virginia. Whisner of Virginia was the individual star of the meet, setting new records in the 100 and 220 yard dashes.

Last Saturday the Tar Heel net team broke Harvard's string of successive wins at thirty-eight. At the same time they extended their own record to twenty-five. Considerable comment on the Carolina team has been aroused in papers throughout the country, especially in those who have witnessed matches of the Heels.

Clifford Sutter, former Tulane university star and holder of the National Intercollegiate net championship, was named on the Davis Cup team which will meet Canada in the international playoffs.

Amassing two state titles in one day is the record of the University of South Carolina. The Gamecocks defeated Citadel in tennis and Newberry on the diamond to clinch state championships in those sports. Citadel was previously undefeated for the season.

A memorial will be erected soon to mark the spot where Knute Rockne, the world's greatest football mentor, lost his life in an airplane crash.

One of the best of the many things that have been written in memory of Rockne is the following by a publisher, J. M. Lansinger: "Notre Dame" was your address, every gridiron was your hearth, a nation's heart was your home. You were my friend—our friend—generous, sincere, human, always—as accessible to the admiring schoolboy as to the man of affairs—to you, foremost figure of the age—we render tribute as you buck the last line."—Citadel Bulldog.

Solomon Schlegel, former star guard of the championship Washburn football team and now a professional wrestler, has gone to California to follow in the footsteps of his famous contemporary, Joe Savoldi. Schlegel has been wrestling in and about Topeka for the past month and despite lack of scientific skill tossed his opponents with ease. Sports critics think the former Ichabod guard will make good as a grappler.

Lucian LaCoste, nephew of

(Continued on last page)

FIFTH SCHOOLBOY TRACK MEET TO OPEN TOMORROW

Ten Leading Schools Prepared To Wrest Title from Augusta Military Academy.

The fifth annual South Atlantic track meet will take place tomorrow when ten representative teams take the field. The preparatory schools entered to date are: St. Leo Prep School, Staunton Military Academy, Danville Military Institute, Greenbriar Military School, Madison A. & M., Oak Ridge Military Institute, Augusta Military Academy, Blue Ridge, Riverside Military Academy, and the Asheville School for Boys.

Staunton leads the field with twenty-two men entered. Next in line comes Augusta Military with thirteen, Riverside with eleven, and Greenbriar with eight entries.

Oak Ridge has only two men entered and Madison A. & M., one.

The coaches of the Asheville and Blue Ridge schools have not specified as to the number of men they are bringing, but it is expected that at least five men will represent each school.

Although indications point to an extremely fast field, the chances are pretty slim that very many records will be smashed. Augusta Military Academy, defending champion, will find it difficult to repeat last year's performance as they have but one of last year's championship team, Bowman, back this season.

Staunton, Danville, Greenbriar, and Riverside, all have veteran squads and are expected to push the title holders. Bailey Military Academy of South Carolina may also send a strong team to the games.

The weakest records are in the shot-put, the 220 yard dash, and the pole vault, but it will take stellar performances to break any of the following

(Continued on last page)

Used Cars

WE HAVE THEM AT ALL PRICES

See Our Display Next to THE CAROLINA THEATRE

Standard Gasoline
Mobiloil
Pennzoil
Quaker State
and
Standard Motor Oils

We Appreciate Your Business

Strowd Motor Co.

"Ford Products Since 1914"

THE SMOKE SHOP
EAT WITH US DRINK WITH US

For Fruits
FOR FRUITS, TOBACCOS AND CIGARETTES
Cigarettes 2 for 25c
Oranges, 60c per peck
MODEL MARKET AND GROCERY
Patronize Home Merchants

Lamar Stringfield Cherishes Gourd Fiddle Taken In Raid

Carolina Composer Uses Rare Instrument to Accompany Singing Of Folk Tunes in Second Act of Opera, "The Mountain Song."

By Peter Hairston

A piece of black walnut, two wire strings, a rusty nail, and a mountain gourd, in their aggregate, form Lamar Stringfield's most prized possession. About five years ago, these odds and ends cost him fifteen dollars, so he says; but since then, the price has gone up considerably, for real gourd fiddles are very rare. In fact this is the only one that he has ever seen.

The tradition of the gourd instrument is a long one, and it is perhaps the best known of the instruments peculiar to the folk music of the southern states which is Mr. Stringfield's special field of interest.

This particular fiddle he purchased from a newspaper man who had obtained it from the revenue officers, who had got it in a raid on a still at Anderson Cove.

It was originally purchased by the composer when he was working on The Mountain Song, its use being to accompany the singing of the break-down folk songs in the second act of this, his first opera.

In the recent reading which took place in the Playmaker Theatre, its place of honor was taken by a banjo and a mandolin duet as two of the strings were broken and could not, at the time, be replaced.

The real folk interpretation of the music, however, requires the gourd fiddle, avers Mr. Stringfield. It is comparatively easy to learn to play, and gives forth a lively tune which is much similar to that of the Chinese fiddle. The player simply holds it in the crook of his arm and twangs away with his thumb.

People collect strange things and prize them very highly; but, well, to say the least, gourd fiddles are very rare.

Speakeasy Proprietor Says Prohibition Is 'Bunk' and Not Lasting

Debunking prohibition "Louis" the proprietor of a prominent New York speakeasy declared recently in an interview with the Princetonian that the present status is "the bunk . . . people are anxious to get back to the old standard of living. Freedom is just human nature and you can't get away from that fact!"

In reply to the query whether his establishment had a large Princeton patronage, Louis said, "Well I should say so. Haven't you heard of the Princeton cocktail for which this place is famous? The class of 1928, which made this place their regular hangout, was responsible for the drink. After that class graduated the Princeton trade fell off a bit, until this year when the freshman class started to patronize us in large numbers. Then, of course, there are a number of your faculty who keep dropping in all the time."

Louis maintained that only once in his seven years experience had there been a near approach to a brawl in the establishment, "when the Middies got into an argument with the Cadets after an Army-Navy football game and were going to bring down the Navy goat and the Army mule to settle the dispute."

The present investigation going on in the city does not bother Louis. "If you run a quiet respectable place, the authorities won't bother you; it's only those houses where there are women and gambling that they have to pay bribes to keep open," he explained, "and, anyway, I have always tried to make this place a family affair, sort of homey you know. I live upstairs and often bring down the kids to meet the customers."

DR. KIRK TO GIVE M'NAIR LECTURES

(Continued from first page)

the McNair series was the Reverend Mr. Thornton Whaling, D.D., of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Louisville, Kentucky. He spoke on "Rights of Science," "Science and Philosophy," and "Science and Religion." He delivered this series in 1928.

"The things that upset a married man are invariably the little things," declared a woman writer. Well, it must be admitted that they have a deplorable habit of waking up in the night and starting to yell.—The Humorist.

College Magazines Offer Rewards For Poems and Essays

Prizes totaling $250 for essays, editorials, and poems will be offered under graduates in American universities and colleges by three campus publications at Muhlenberg college, Allentown, Pennsylvania.

Allerlei, a monthly literary magazine, is offering fifty dollars in prizes for the most thought-provoking essays or editorials on any timely collegiate or general subject that have appeared in college newspapers or magazines in the United States during the academic year of 1930-31.

Poem prizes of $100 are offered by The Campus Muse for works composed by any American college poet of 1930-1931. Poems for this contest have been divided into ten groups with a prize of ten dollars each in gold. The subject range includes such topics as "Life and Living," "Loyalty: to Country and Alma Mater," "Humor or Parodies," and "Nature."

A novel essay prize to be awarded for the best contribution on "What's Wrong with Professors" is offered by The Muhl, Muhlenberg humor magazine. Essays in this field are urged to be of a constructive as well as a frivolous nature. A prominent publishing house has arranged with the editors of the three publications to publish prize winning works in each division in book form this summer.

COLLEGIANA

(Continued from preceding page)

the famous French ace, plays No. 4 for the Texas Longhorns.

Four University of California tennis players and the manager will sail May 16 on the "Shinyo Maru" for Japan to play a two-weeks schedule of matches with Japanese clubs and university teams. The Golden Bear netmen will return early in July.

Wes Schulmerich, Boston Braves outfielder, is a former Oregon State baseball and football star. Schulmerich is one of the many players developed by Ralph Coleman, Oregon mentor. If he continues to clout the ball at his present pace, Oregon State can claim its first permanent major league baseball player.

Infirmary List

Those confined to the infirmary yesterday were Robert H. Carmichael, Frank Dunn, Clarence Davis, and Kenneth O. Wright.

The Campus Calendar

Taylor Society

The Taylor society will meet tonight at 7:30 in 105 Bingham hall. H. K. Hallett, general manager of the Kendall mills, will speak on "Scientific Plant Maintenance."

Newman Club

The Newman club, Catholic organization, will meet this evening at 8:30 in the Episcopal parish house.

Debate Squad

The regular meeting of the debate squad in Murphey 201 at 7:30 tonight will be devoted to a discussion of the future of talking movies, the subject of the radio debate with the University of Virginia.

Magazine Deadline

The deadline for copy submitted the last issue of the Carolina Magazine for this school year will be Sunday night at 12:00 o'clock.

GERMAN CLUB TO GIVE SIX DANCES IN SET OF FINALS

(Continued from first page)

Davis, Milton Barber, Follin, Lynch, and Park.

The dances will take place in the Tin Can, which will be decorated extensively and artistically. They will be attended by hundreds of girls and young women from all over the country, as well as a large number of University alumni and visitors from surrounding states.

North Carolina finals, which originated in the early nineteenth century, have gained quite a reputation all over the southern states, and with the return of Lombardo's unusual dance orchestra, the dances are expected to be highly successful.

FIFTH SCHOOLBOY TRACK MEET TO OPEN TOMORROW

(Continued from preceding page)

marks:

Event	Time
100 yard dash	9.8
220 yard dash	22.4
880 yard run	2.03
440 yard run	51.6
One mile run	4:37.2
120 yard high hurdles	16.
220 yard low hurdles	25.2
12-lb. shot	46 ft. 9 in.
Discus	131 ft. 1-2 in.
Javelin	168 ft. 7 1-2 in.
Pole vault	11 ft. 5 in.
High jump	5 ft. 10 in.
Broad jump	21 ft. 7 1-4 in.
One mile relay	3.35

Paternalism Declines In Japanese Families

The ancient dominance of Japanese parents over the actions, matrimony, and even life of their children is being rapidly broken down by the constant attacks of modern educationalists and of the children themselves.

No longer do the mother and father make the matrimonial choice for their children, the occidental custom of following the call of the heart becoming widely prevalent.

Professor Takeyuki Namae, of the Tokyo Women's College, is one of the leaders in the new revolt against this arbitrary paternal despotism, which he contends is not compatible with modern existence. Already children are becoming members of the community in the eyes of their elders, as compared with the passing theory of their being the personal property of the heads of their respective families.

A philanthropist is too often a man who gives money away instead of giving it back.—Louisville Times.

SUMMER SCHOOL BULLETIN OFFERS LIBRARY COURSES

(Continued from first page)

schools of the southern states, will be the instructor. Dr. Carobel Murphey, vice-principal of the Thomas A. Edison high school of Los Angeles, will be another notable visiting instructor in education. Miss Murphey will teach a course on "The Deanship of Girls in Secondary Schools."

The twenty-eighth of a series of courses in library science will also be offered both terms under the direction of Dr. Louis R. Wilson, University librarian and Kenan professor of library science. The courses to be given the first term are children's literature, administration of school libraries, and functions and use of the school library.

Library Instruction

During the second term, two courses will be given in cataloging and classification, and reference and bibliography. The course in cataloging will be taugth by Miss Susan Grey Akers, formerly a member of the instructional staff of the library school at the University of Wisconsin, who is now a member of the graduate library school at the University of Chicago, and under appointment as associate professor in the school of library science at the University.

Credit earned in these courses will be accepted toward a degree by the college of liberal arts and the school of education. Juniors and seniors in these groups may elect the library courses. During the coming summer, a change has been made, and now a full course will be given in each subject, so that students who have already had a half course in this work may secure an additional half course training in each subject. A new school of library science will be opened at the University starting September, 1931, under the direction of Dr. Wilson, as a regular unit of the University.

3,014 Enrolled Last Year

Last year 3,014 students were enrolled at the summer school for both sessions. Of this number 781 graduate students attended.

Teachers now in service in the schools of North Carolina and residents of the state who intend to teach may be exempt from tuition if they conform to certain conditions stated in the catalogue.

Entertainment and recreation features for the summer school will be provided for the students. On July 16 and 17, a two day conference on elementary education in North Carolina will take place in Chapel Hill. Rabbi Moses Jacobson, of Asheville, will deliver a series of four lectures from August 10-14. The fourth annual Parent-Teachers Institute will convene in Chapel Hill the week of August 17-22, inclusive.

There will be dancing in the gymnasium regularly three or four evenings a week under the management of the social committee.

SOCIETIES WOULD ABOLISH POWERS OF GERMAN CLUB

(Continued from first page)

vention in Raleigh to revise the present state constitution. This suggestion was approved by the two societies.

The last resolution to receive consideration was proposed by Representative Sisk. The bill read, Resolved: that the Phi and Di in joint session go on record as favoring the passage of an amendment to regulate the sale of intoxicating beverages. This bill received no verbal support. Representatives Simons and Brown spoke against the proposal, and it was defeated.

Senator Lays Future To College Graduates

In an interview with The Dartmouth recently, Senator David I. Walsh emphasized a thorough knowledge of the affairs of government as the prime requisite of a college graduate. "No man or woman ought to be given a college degree in America who is not fully acquainted with their machinery of the federal government," stated the Senator. "He should have a complete knowledge of the Constitution, the powers granted under it, and the rights therein reserved to the people."

Holding the view that political leadership in this country should be greatly augumented from college ranks, Walsh made the point that college men should not necessarily make a wholesale entry into politics, but that they should be leaders in the movements of thought.

Senator Walsh described the growing discontent among the common people regarding the social conditions of the present time as one of the major problems confronting the government. "It is the duty of every educated man to inform the uneducated people of the conditions that now exist in this country and only by doing so will it be possible to reach a sounder, saner solution of the economic problems of the present day," Walsh declared.

Ladies Usurp Name Of Thirsty Sex

The bartenders of Jaurez, Mexico, are finding it difficult to answer the demands for fancy drinks for the women drinkers who swarm across the border from the United States and invade the sanctum sanctissimum of the males—the Mexican bars. So reports the United Press.

Up until the Escobar revolution in 1929, women were excluded from the brass rail regiment, and were often prohibited from entering the saloons. However, the revolutionary government extends all privileges of the bar to the fair sex. Despite the following federal laws retracting the liberties, the ladies of thirst have continued to edge a place for themselves at the mahogany bars of this little town and call lustily for "Suds," or what have you?

Now their presence is an accepted phase, and even the reformers are prone to admit its elevating effect upon the former crudities of the saloon. According to the reports of the bartenders, the ladies favor beer and fancy drinks that take away the bitter taste of the stronger liquors.

I. L. Martin Will Head Geological Fraternity

At a meeting Tuesday night of the Alpha Alpha chapter of Sigma Gamma Epsilon, national geological fraternity, the following men were elected to office for the coming year: Charles Lawson, president; Irving L. Martin, vice-president; John E. Nisbet, secretary-treasurer; and Obie Davis, chapter editor.

At the next meeting, which will be held Friday night, the speaker will be Dr. Jasper L. Stuckey, professor of geology at State college.

But why expect a statesman to know what the people want when the people don't?—Buffalo News.

Smithy is still giving his customers the same good service in his new location. Now located

—at—

University Barber Shop

LOST

Lost—313 Murphey, a greenish-gray Finchley trench coat. Return to Tar Heel office and receive reward.

LANG DESCRIBES STATE STUDENT UNION'S HISTORY

(Continued from first page)

the second annual congress of the federation would take place at Duke university Saturday of this week. The speakers mentioned for this occasion were: President W. P. Few of Duke, President Frank Graham of the University, Dean Justin Miller of the Duke School of Applied Science, and Senator Josiah W Bailey of North Carolina.

In conclusion, Lang lauded the progress that the state student union has made so far, saying: "I am convinced that the aim of this organization is a worthy one. It has accomplished great things in the past and with the hearty cooperation of the present generation of students it is sure to develop into something more useful in the future, thus bringing about a better North Carolina."

Few Upsets Scored In Preliminary Rounds Of Campus Boxing Show

(Continued from preceding page)

throwing both hands to the body and head for repeated points.

In the final bout of the night, two heavyweights, Red Sherrill, Old West, and George Barclay, Phi Gamma Delta, fought three rounds with Sherrill taking the decision. Both boys started fast, but tired during the final round. Sherrill landed the more solid blows and took the last round by a wide margin after Barclay had taken a slight lead in the first.

A large crowd overflowed the bleachers onto the floor space around the ring as further evidence of boxing's popularity on the campus. The officials were: Martin Levinson, referee; Archie Allen and Noah Goodridge, judges; and Dail Holderness, timekeeper.

FOUND

Found: A trench coat. Owner may have same by describing the coat and paying for this adv. Call at room 309 Old West during chapel period.

Mention The Daily Tar Heel when buying.

LOST

Lost—Trench coat at tea dance, Tin Can, Saturday afternoon. Reward if returned to Tar Heel office.

COLDEX

Brings Quick Relief to Thousands

You too, can stop colds and coughs with this remarkable liquid medicine that so safely gives such quick and lasting results. Just say Coldex to your druggist. Only 50c. Recommended and guaranteed by

Sutton's Drug Store

What Would You Do If Your Husband Loved You Platonically?

VIRTUOUS HUSBAND

with

Betty Compson
Tully Marshall
Jean Arthur

also

Comedy — Novelty

Now Playing

CAROLINA

ORIGINAL PLAYS
PLAYMAKERS THEATRE
TONIGHT — 8:30

The Daily Tar Heel

ORIGINAL PLAYS
PLAYMAKERS THEATRE
TONIGHT — 8:30

VOLUME XXXIX — CHAPEL HILL, N. C., FRIDAY, MAY 15, 1931 — NUMBER 171

PLANS PROPOSED THAT INSTITUTE MEET ANNUALLY

Committee Appointed to Submit Ideas for Next Humans Relations Congress.

A committee of students, faculty members, and townspeople interested in furthering the cause of the Human Relations Institute met in Gerrard hall Wednesday night for a general discussion of ways and means of advancing the institute.

It was generally accepted that instead of a quadrennial meeting, the institute should meet annually. The persons present also agreed that its influence should extend not only to students on the campus, but that a definite plan and program should be worked out by which its influence and ideas could be promulgated throughout the state.

Various programs were suggested. Some thought the task of spreading information should be placed in the hands of one of the political parties, but the majority opposed this plan. Among the most popular plans offered was that of organizing a definite committee for political education, advanced by Norman Lyon. He advocated an organization that would educate the mass of people in all parts of the state under no specific party name.

The only thing finally decided was that there must be some definite plan of campaign before anything could be accomplished; so, the chairman, Beverly Moore, appointed a committee of six to work out a concrete program. This committee will consider the problems to be encountered and devise a plan which they will submit for approval at the next meeting of the institute group the week before examinations.

At the same time it was announced that the institute committee was sending autographed copies of "Old Days in Chapel Hill," by Hope Summerell Chamberlain to all the speakers who attended the recent institute convention.

IRIS COLLECTION PUT ON DISPLAY

W. L. Hunt, graduate of the University who is known throughout this section of the state for his knowledge of plants and plant growing, is now exhibiting his private collection of irises this week-end.

Instead of giving a flower show of his collection as he has done in the past, Hunt is exhibiting his plants at his garden on North street near Henderson street. The public is invited to see this collection between the hours of 4:00 and 6:00 and 7:00 and 8:00 today, tomorrow, Sunday, and Monday when Hunt will show the flowers.

Hunt says the irises will be on public display rain or shine, for they are equally beautiful on dark and clear days. Included in the collection are five specimens of colwitzia (much-talked about "beauty bush"), which are not usually seen in this section.

A number of garden clubs from nearby towns are planning to attend this exhibit.

Senior Week Committee

Pat Patterson, president of the senior class, requests that the members of the senior week committee meet with him in the Yackety Yack office this morning during chapel period.

Bells for Tower

Word recently received from Troy, New York, states that the casting of the set of twelve bells for the Patterson-Morehead tower at the University is now under way at the Meneely Bell Foundry in Troy.

The bells will be installed in the campanile which is being built as a gift of two alumni of the University, John M. Morehead and Rufus L. Patterson.

From the twelve-bell chime a remarkably great number of tone changes can be made, the set for the University allowing 479,091,600 changes.

GUSTAV PLESSOW RELATES GERMAN LIFE SINCE WAR

Pictures Economic Depression That May Bring on Political Upheaval.

A Germany that is in desperate financial straits, with almost half of her population undernourished, was pictured here in a talk by Dr. Gustav Plessow, prominent German scholar from Tubingen university, who has been a visiting professor at the University.

Dr. Plessow's lecture concluded a series that he has been delivering before graduate students and seminar groups this spring on various aspects of German life. In his latest talk he discussed German life since the war.

"The dole which thousands of Germany's unemployed receive is not enough to live on," Dr. Plessow said. "In many German homes breakfast consists of a glass of hot water and two slices of rye bread, dinner is a glass of hot water and a couple of boiled potaties, and supper is a repetition of breakfast. Foreigners visiting Germany see nothing of these conditions which are in the industrial centers where the masses of unemployed live."

Economic Depression

Intimating that some political upheavel may come out of this tremendous economic depression, Dr. Plessow declared that the millions of followers of Hitler, the Fascist agitator, are mostly young people who have grown up undernourished and acquainted with hardships and privations during the post-war period. Continuing with a discussion of the country's low wage scale, her debt, and the tariff walls preventing exportation, Dr. Plessow painted an exteremely dismal picture of the Germany of today.

An interesting fact pointed out by Dr. Plessow is that ex-kaiser William II is today the wealthiest German land owner, still holding the castles and vast estates he acquired during his personally thrifty reign as emperor of Germany. Dr. Plessow said that although he himself has no love for William, he considers that Emil Ludwig has done the former Kaiser great injustices in his biography of the last of the Hohenzollerns.

In concluding Dr. Plessow said, "I admire the goodheartedness, energy, and upright friendliness of the American people, and I wish to thank this country for the almost excessive hospitality it has shown me."

Grail Tickets

Tickets for the Grail dance will be on sale until 12:00 o'clock today at the Book Exchange and Pritchard-Lloyd's.

TWO DANCES SET FOR THIS EVENING

Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity And Woman's Association Sponsor Social Affairs.

The Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity and the Woman's Association will start the week-end's social program tonight when the groups will give individual dances between the hours of 9:00 and 1:00. Three other organizations plan dances for this week-end.

The Woman's Association affair in Spencer hall tonight will be the spring co-ed ball, the third dance given by the organization this year. Jack Wardlaw and his orchestra will furnish the music.

The Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity will be host at a dance in the Carolina Inn tonight. Jelly Leftwich and his university club orchestra, of Durham, will furnish the music. Leftwich is well-known in the state as a popular orchestra leader.

Following the dance, the fraternity will entertain guests at a buffet supper. Out of town girls who have been invited to the dance include: Mina Fuller, Carolyn Fuller, Martha Horton, Pick Welton, Orpha Clements, Dorothy Newsome, Sara Howerton, Mary Howerton, Ann Lewis, and Margaret Lewis, Durham; Kitty Kiker and Bobbie Hunt Burton, Reidsville; Alice Grubbs and Edith Ellington, Greensboro; Montrose Patterson, Peggy Foreman, Sally Couch, Julia Orr, and Louisa Wilson, Charlotte; Lucy Dortch and Emily Storr, Raleigh; Margaret Player, Hendersonville; Louise Harry, Salisbury; Irene Presson, Monroe; Marjorie Maston, Wilmington, Delaware; Rhea Monroe, Chicago, Illinois; Pat Holderness, Tarboro; and Sara Walser, Lexington.

ENGLISH EXAMINATION IS SET FOR THIS AFTERNOON

The examination for the removal of conditions on English composition will be given this afternoon at 4:00 p. m. in Murphey 201. All students who take the examination will be required to hand in a theme of one thousand words on a topic approved by the English department.

Those who plan to take the examination may come to the English department office, Saunders 104, to get a list of approved topics. Individual notices will not be sent out this spring.

SENIOR WEEK TO LAST MAY 18-22

Bailey, Henderson, and Graham Are Listed Among Speakers For Twilight Sessions.

The full program for senior week, beginning Monday, May 18, and continuing through Friday, May 22, was announced yesterday by the senior week committee. The members of the class are to wear beer suits all during this time. The Carolina theatre will entertain the members of the class with a free show, the Campus Confectionery providing peanuts for the performance, Pritchard-Lloyd's will serve drinks to the seniors. Other firms honoring the class of '31 are: the Hill Bakery with cakes and pastries, the Durham Dairy company with buttermilk, the Paragon Ice Cream company with their product, and the Waffle Shop with coffee.

Begins Monday

The senior week program will start Monday morning when the seniors venture forth in their white beer suits with a large maroon '31 sewed on the back of the coat. That night under Davie poplar, Senator Josiah Bailey will address the class. The following night Dr. Archibald Henderson will speak at the same place. Either Mr. J. L. Calhoun or Mr. R. M. Hanes will speak before the graduating class Wednesday night. The seniors will hear Dean Justin Miller, of the Duke law school, Thursday evening. At the supper to take place in the Carolina Inn at 9:00 Friday evening, Kemp Lewis, president of the Alumni Association, and President Frank P. Graham will speak.

Epsilon Phi Delta Has Annual Spring Initiation

Charles Duffy, John Zimmerman, Don Shoemaker, and Larry Flynn were taken into the Epsilon Phi Delta Cosmopolitan club at the annual spring initiation last night.

A committee of five men were also appointed at the meeting to revise and bring up to date the constitution of the organization. The committee will report at the regular meeting next Thursday.

Infirmary List

Those confined to the infirmary yesterday were Samuel T. Peace, Mary Dirnberger, Frank Dunn, and William H. Potter.

Announcing:-

A new Sunday policy for the Daily Tar Heel by which well planned national and local features and human interest stories will be offered. There will be more illustrations and photographs.

Out Sunday, May 16

History of College Sports
A Review of the Prohibition Question Here
A Record of Three Letter Men
Bruce Barton On Advertising
"What Is Liberty?"
By Nicholas Murray Butler
The Decline of Liberalism at U. N. C.

And Other Big Articles

Josiah W. Bailey

United States Senator Bailey will be the main speaker at the second annual congress of the North Carolina Student Federation which meets at Duke tomorrow.

DR. A. HENDERSON TALKS TO ELISHA MITCHELL GROUP

Mathematician Declares Universe Is Expanding Because Gravitational Pull Is Lessening.

Dr. Archibald Henderson of the University mathematics department, delivered an address on, "Our Expanding Universe" before the Elisha Mitchell scientific society in Phillips hall, Tuesday evening at 7:30.

This subject is one upon which Dr. Henderson has been working for many years. He has, during this time, presented papers before many leading scientific societies, among them, the American association for the advancement of science, the American mathematical society, and the mathematical association of America.

Dr. Henderson has also published the results of his work in the American Mathematical Monthly, Science, and various other journals. The latest results of Dr. Henderson's research will be printed in the journal of the Elisha Mitchell society in an extended monograph.

Einstein's Theory

In his address Dr. Henderson began the story of "Our Expanding Universe" by telling of the theory advanced by Einstein in 1917 that the universe was not infinite, but limited in extent, and that all matter in the universe was scattered and of a very small density. There are various characteristic features of this type of a finite universe.

Another famous astronomer, De Sitter, of the Univeristy of Leyden, discovered that a secondary type of finite universe was also supplied by Einstein's equations possessing various properites: that the universe was conceivably and entirely empty of matter, which meant that the density of all known matter was inappreciable. It meant, secondly, that there were systematic motions in this type of universe. Both Einstein's and De Sitter's finite universe were assumed to be in equilibrium.

Dr. Henderson spoke further about nebulae which are frequently known as spiral universes. Until 1929 none of these bodies was known to have a higher velocity than about 1000 miles per second. During the past two years, nebulae have been observed having velocities ranging from 2,400 to 11,000

(Continued on next page)

FEDERATION WILL OPEN MEETING AT DUKE TOMORROW

Second Annual Conference on Student Government Will Take Place in Durham.

Duke university will be the place of meeting for the second annual congress of the North Carolina Student Federation when delegates from eighteen institutions of the state will convene tomorrow to discuss the ways and means of promoting self government in North Carolina colleges.

Speakers for tomorrow's occasion include President Frank Graham, of the University; President W. P. Few, of Duke; Senator Josiah W. Bailey, of Raleigh; Coach Wallace Wade, head of athletics at Duke; Dean Justin Miller, of the Duke law school; and John Albert Lang, of the University, and president of the federation.

Program Decided

The schedule of events for tomorrow's occasion includes registration at 10 o'clock in the Duke student union, at which time Mayne Albright, of the University, and Mary Jane Wharton, of North Carolina College for Women, will be in charge. At 11 o'clock the formal convocation will take place in the Paige auditorium. At this time President Few will welcome the delegates and will be followed by short talks by Martin Green, president of the Duke student body. Miss Edith Leach of the Duke woman's association will make a short talk of welcome.

Following this, the president of the federation, John Lang, will make his annual report of the work of the organization. The congress will then divide into groups so as to discuss the phases of student government until 12:35 when they will adjourn for lunch.

Afternoon Meeting

Promptly at 1:30 the congress will reassemble. The first thing after lunch will be a discussion of the ways and means of allying the work of the state federation with the other state student organizations such as the North Carolina intercollegi-

(Continued on next page)

CAMERON AVENUE WILL BE PAVED

The regular meeting of the board of aldermen took place Wednesday night with the main object of swearing in the mayor, the judge of the recorder's court, and the new aldermen.

The following committees were appointed with the mayor as a member ex-officio of all of them: M. E. Hogan, finance committee; P. L. Burch, public safety; C. L. Eubanks, public welfare; R. D. W. Connor, public utilities; and B. S. Thompson and R. M. Trimble, public works. In addition to these committees L. B. Rogerson was appointed town accountant.

The board of aldermen authorized the issuency of $5000 in bond anticipation notes for the paving of Cameron Avenue eighteen feet wide through the center from Columbia to Mallett Street.

The board of aldermen instructed the city manager to see that all traffic regulations are enforced diligently in the future.

The Bank of Chapel Hill was made official depository for the town by the board.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays. Entered as Second Class matter at the post office at Chapel Hill, N. C., under Act of March 3, 1879.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $4.00 for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

Jack Dungan ..... Editor
H. N. Patterson ..... Bus. Mgr.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Ed French ..... Mng. Ed.

Editorial Board

Charles G. Rose ..... Chairman
J. M. Little — Frank J. Manheim
W. M. Bryson — Will Yarborough
Alden Stahr — Bob Barnett
Wex Malone

Assignment Editors

Otto S. Steinreich
Dan Kelly, Assistant

Sunday Editor

Charles G. Rose

City Editors

Bill McKee — George Wilson
Peter Hairston — Jack Riley

Desk Men

W. R. Woerner — Don Shoemaker
Vass Shepherd

Sports Staff

Jack Bessen ..... Sports Editor

Assistants

T. H. Broughton — P. Alston

News Men

E. M. Spruill — F. W. Ashley
W. E. Davis — Claiborn Carr
Charles Poe

Reporters

Saul Gordon — Bob Reynolds
Woodward Glenn — M. V. Barnhill, Jr.
William Blount — John Burroughs
U. B. Phillips — M. H. Long
Tom Walker — W. B. Gray
Ronald Kochendorfer — Walker Stamps
Phil Sasser

BUSINESS STAFF

Hal Worth ..... Circulation Mgr.
Harlan Jameson ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.
John Manning ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.

Advertising Department

Al L. Olmstead ..... Advertising Mgr.
Pendleton Gray ..... Advertising Mgr.
Bernard Solomon ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
R. D. McMillan, Jr. ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
James N. Nowell — H. A. Clark

Collection Department

Jack Hammer ..... Collection Mgr.
John Barrow — Frank S. Dale
Stokes Adderton — Jack Stokes

Correspondence Department

Ed Michaels, Jr. ..... Correspondence Mgr.
Wynn Hamm ..... Ass't. Cor. Mgr.

Friday, May 15, 1931

More Money For The Army

It seems that Washington has not heard of the present business depression. The War Department is planning to abandon a score or so of harbor-defense forts. These will be replaced at great expense with the mobile railroad gun and the far-reaching bombing plane.

The abandonments are urged as an economy move, although many military men doubt that much will be saved, according to a story carried in Wednesday's issue of the Raleigh News and Observer. Every soldier removed from an abandoned post must be quartered elsewhere, which will require the building of new barracks in many instances. Nevertheless the plan is delighting the higher-ups of the Army, who for years have urged concentration of troops near large centers, both for economy and military efficiency. In the last two years thirteen army posts have been abandoned. Thirteen army posts, paid for by the hard-working American citizens, are being thrown away and in a few years the now modern railroad guns and bombing planes will be thrown away as antiquated.

Vast changes in military tools and strategy have weakened the value of the old coastal forts, which guard our harbors, is the excuse given by the War Department for its wholesale throwing away of the old posts. Nevertheless there is no getting around the fact that the United States in its present period of depression is unable to undertake the rebuilding of its coast and harbor defenses. With the bread lines of our cities growing every day, it seems that the money, which will be used in the replacement of these so called antiquated army posts could be put to other uses which would do the American people much more good.—T. H. B.

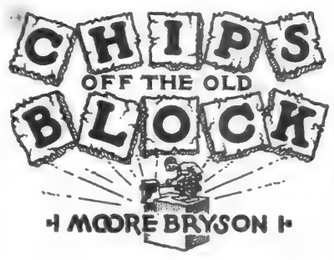
"Castles In Spain"

Galsworthy used the term "Castles in Spain" to entitle an essay comparing the old order with the new, but this term may be applied to a more specific comparison.

The sweat and toil and demands on altruism required to build the architectural gems of the middle ages may be compared with the painstaking care and sacrifice to art so necessary to the creation of our old masterpieces of music. The same love of beauty and the perhaps unconscious tribute to an esthetic ideal permeated the poetries of both stone and song. It is the element of human participation and sacrifice that lends such permanency to the best efforts of the masters. No doubt a good share was contributed by the sympathetic appreciation of an actively interested public; it is, after all, the masses which make or break a masterpiece.

The crash of machinery—the curses of "hurry-up" bosses—steel, bricks, concrete—and another temple to the dollar is slapped together. People hurry in and out, oblivious of all but their own egocentric desires. Why? Mass production and machine speed have stolen the soul from art, the soul called personal contact.

The radio, talkies, victrola, and player-piano are the "hurry-up" bosses of modern music, and the product is jazz. Compared with the solidarity and generally pleasing effect of real music, jazz consists merely in monotonous two-beat time with a "sock" on the bass-drum for every down beat. Some people like to think jazz is shocking, but it lacks even this attribute. It is its absolute featurelessness and its unpallitated tepidity that make it so tasteless. Like all primitive forms of art, it is so barren in psychic interest that it kills its victims by sheer boredom.



The term "Castles in Spain" has become "Skyscrapers in New York"—the poetry of music, the jargon of jazz.—A. J. S.

Censorship And the Stage

When sophisticates display their self-described sophistication one of the stock topics for their supercilious self-satisfied criticism is "stage censorship." They refer with supreme contempt to the fact that Boston did this and that even a mild petite offering like "Strange Interlude" should be banned from such and such a place, that the public stupidly misinterpreted George Jean Nathan when he said that a certain play would have a demoralizing influence on boarding school girls, that Detroit was the only place that they could see some recommended but still doubtful dramatic effort. The horse strikes one as being a little absurd. After all we have the Barries, Shaw, Galsworthy, and a hundred others who have written an occasional good play or two.

However there is something significant in their spirit. They see a stage here where anything but normal life is looked upon as immoral but where all kind of cheap, puerile smut is tolerated. They rebell against a situation where often the tragedy and comedy of reality is ignored and even feared, where the drama turns to froth and transparent unimportantness to ply its "art" on. Then they think of the drama and the dramatist of Germany and Russia. Their freedom is alarming to the less strong followers of the theatre.

Yet, there is another aspect to the situation here which these sophisticates overlook. Americans cannot divorce themselves, for bad or good, from the idea that progress may be achieved by them and more rapidly if certain self-appointed powers consciously collaborate. And this idea of progress seems at the moment in many circles to be a somewhat vague notion of wholesomeness, mental inertia, religious fervor, and energy in the business of getting things. If America is ready to become exposed to the stimulation of powerful and oftentimes distorted things, then, as in Germany the censorship must be lifted high and far away. But, if America is not ready, a catharsis of the present state of drama is possible only through efforts to get intelligent and enlightened individuals into the censor's jobs.—R.W.B.

Last week's column and its subsequent results have almost convinced me that the best thing to do is to refrain from using names. However, it is too late to change the policy, even though it may mean a stab in the back some dark night.

* * *

Alex Daley, Phi Delta Theta, feeling none too secure in his position as head man with a little Duke co-ed, recently wrote to a matrimonial agency for prospects. He described himself as a very studious fellow who, because of his work, had been unable to devote the proper amount of attention to the girls at home. With graduation approaching he concluded that the best thing to do was to take unto himself a wife and he wanted the agency to assist him in his quest. The success of the venture has not been determined as yet.

* * *

I was aroused from my slumbers the other night in order to congratulate a couple who said that they had just returned from a Justice of the Peace in South Carolina and that they were then man and wife. Their story was so perfect that I insisted on kissing the bride and then sent them on their way with my blessings. The next morning I learned that they had visited several other friends and told the same story, and that the others had swallowed it hook-line-and-sinker just as I had. To say the least, they put over their little joke as perfectly as any I have ever seen. However, I don't mind being gullable in the least as long as I get to kiss the fictitious bride.

* * *

The Rifle club will soon start activities again. All boys who plan to send their daughters off to college when they grow up, will find this organization very helpful.

* * *

Parker Waynick, Theta Chi, is starting one of those lip-brows. Very little progress has been reported.

* * *

Mutt Ridenhour spent the night in an Austin on the front porch of a certain fraternity (name withheld by request of the Chairman of the Editorial Board) house last Sunday morning.

* * *

Herb Newcombe has overthrown fromer King Moody and new reigns supreme with the Blonde Queen.

* * *

The four gangsters from Valley View were entertained by their "goil" friends at a formal dinner at Spencer hall on Wednesday night. No bloodshed was reported.

* * *

The Buccaneer covered campus gossip so completely that it is almost impossible for me to find anything else. May I extend my congratulations to Editor Wheary for giving us the cleverest magazine of my college career. I wish, however, to protest against the picture of me which he used. Everyone who knows me, knows that I am really much better looking.

FEDERATION WILL OPEN MEETING AT DUKE TOMORROW

(Continued from first page)

ate press, intercollegiate Y cabinet, North Carolina social service council. The president of the intercollegiate press will have something to say in regard to this matter as will Robert Coffman, of the Y. M. C. A. cabinet, and Beverly Moore, president of the student division of the North Carolina social service council.

At 2:50 the convention will again divide, this time to discuss intercollegiate athletic matters led by Coach Wallace Wade. This discussion will be for the men. For the women a discussion on women's self government and relations between women's colleges will be given by Miss Alice Baldwin of Duke. At 4 o'clock the delegates will be entertained by the Duke-Carolina baseball game.

Annual Banquet

The annual banquet of the federation will take place at 6:15 to which President Frank Graham has been invited as a special guest. Dean Justin Miller of the Duke law school will speak on citizenship. At this time the annual election of officers for the state student union will take place.

In the auditorium of the woman's campus at 8:15 the final sessions of the body is scheduled. Senator Josiah W. Bailey will on this occasion make a speech on "New Definitions in Politics and Government." Following this, retiring President Lang will turn over his duties to the incoming president and the newly elected officers will be installed. The pew president will explain his platform.

Large Delegations

The federation officials have received a number of notices to the effect that colleges are sending extra large delegations to this year's congress. The number estimated to be in attendance is well over 100

Delegates from the University who expect to attend are: Ralph C. Green, Miss Reeme Moore, Beverly Moore, Charles G. Rose, and Jack Dungan. Officers in the union from Carolina to attend are: John A. Lang, president of the federation, and Mayne Albright, treasurer. Additional delegates will be Miss Gabrielle McColl, newly elected president of the University Woman's Association, K. C. Ramsay, and Frank Hawley.

DR. A. HENDERSON TALKS TO ELISHA MITCHELL GROUP

(Continued from first page)

miles per second. The last and speediest nebulae is known to be about 120,000,000 light years away from the earth.

Increase of Velocity

Another extraordinary discovery is that velocity increases with the distance away from the earth. On the basis of discoveries, the Abbe Le Maitre, of Brussels, has advanced the theory that our entire universe is undergoing a process of expansion. It has been found that during the period of geological time, about 200 billion years, the radius of the universe has doubled in size.

This can be explained by the fact that all the huge hot bodies of the universe are gradually discharging bodies thus decreasing in size, and, as a result, weakening the gravitational pull between bodies. The tendency, therefore, is for all great celestial bodies to separate from each other with the consequent result of a gradual, but steady expansion, of the size of the universe.

This is regarded by Dr. Henderson as the most extraordinary and spectacular development that has come out of the Einstein theory during the past twenty-five years.

Milkman Wins $25,000 Prize

Only Eight of Thirty-Eight Prize Winners Are College Graduates.

James Thomas Sharkey, thirty-two, a milkman in Boston, was awarded the $25,000 first prize in the $50,000 nation-wide contest for the best letter setting forth the advantages to smokers of the new moisture-proof cellophane wrapper on Camel cigarette packages, officilas of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company and the contest judges announced today. Sharkey lives at 101 Train Street, Dorchester, Massachusetts, a suburb of Boston.

Mrs. Walter Sweet, mother of three children and wife of a Marine Corps captain now stationed at the Brooklyn (New York) navy yard, won the second prize of $10,000.

Third prize of $5,000 went to Julius M. Nolte, real estate dealer of Duluth, Minnesota, and former secretary of the Duluth commercial club.

In all thirty-eight prizes were warded, of which five were for $1,000 each, five were for $500 each, and twenty-five were for $100 each. Judges of the contest were Roy Howard, chairman of the board of the Scripps-Howard league of newspapers; Charles Dana Gibson, famous artist and publisher of Life magazine, and Ray Long, president of the International Magazine company and editor of Cosmopolitan.

Six of the major prizes in the contest, were won by college graduates, although a tabulation shows than only eight of the thirty-eight prize winners were listed as having attended college.

Second prize of $10,000 went to Mrs. Walter Sweet, Brooklyn Navy Yard, who graduated from Radcliffe College in 1920. Julius M. Nolte of Duluth, Minnesota, winner of the third prize of $5,000, is a Yale man, and member of Phi Beta Kappa.

Four of the five winners of $1,000 prizes were listed as college graduates. Albert B. Granklin, 3rd, of Cambridge, Massachusetts, is now a graduate student at Harvard; Frederick E. Robinson of Coronada Beach, California, graduated from Harvard; William A. Schrader of Louisville, Kentucky, was a Purdue man, and Dr. D. H. Soper of Iowa City, is an instructor in dentistry at the University of Iowa.

Frank Cartwright of Washington, D. C., winner of one of the $500 prizes, graduated from Cornell, and Dr. Clifton B. Leech of Providence, R. I., winner of a $100 prize, graduated from Boston University.

James T. Sharkey of Boston, winner of the first prize of $25,000 received only a common school education in Ireland before the age of 16, when he came to this country.

Rifle Team

There will be preliminary tryouts for the rifle team Saturday afternoon at 2:00 p. m. in the basement of the Alumni building. All students interested in this new activity are requested to attend.

LAST ORIGINAL OFFERING INCLUDES THREE PLAYS

Next Monday evening at 8:00 o'clock in the Playmakers Theatre will occur the last performance of original plays for this quarter.

Dr. Charlotte Hammond's A Village Tragedy is concerned with the loungers of a small town store in Maine. One smiles at their dialect and homely philosophy, but may feel a tug at the heart strings at the close of the play. The second play is Phillip Milhous's laughable farce, Lonely Heart. And the last is Margaret Vale's poetic fantasy, The House of Grief.

Spanish Club Movie

Dr. S. A. Stoudemire will give an illustrated lecture on Granada at the Spanish club meeting Friday evening at 7:30. The club will convene in 221 Murphey instead of the Y. M. C. A. All members are urged to be present as this will be the last illustrated lecture of the year.

Oral Examination

The oral examination of Mr. Edward Pinckney Vandiver, Jr., for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in the department of English will take place at 9:00 a. m. in Saunders 112. All members of the graduate faculty in the division of languages and literature are invited to be present.

Oral Examination

The oral examination of Mr. Ralph Milledge Byrd for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in the department of chemistry will take place at 7:30 p. m. in Venable 202 today. All members of the graduate faculty in the division of mathematics and the sciences are invited to be present.

Alamance Alumni Meeting

R. B. House and J. Maryon Saunders attended a meeting of the University alumni association of Alamance county in Burlington last Friday evening. J. L. Love was elected president of the association and E. V. Patterson secretary-treasurer.

Raskob may persuade his party to get off the fence and take a stand on prohibition, but getting off on both sides of a fence is an easy way to split.—Akron Beacon-Journal.

PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS

HOUSE FOR RENT

Five room furnished cottage for rent; summer months; shower bath and all conveniences. Phone 6381 before June 1st.

Youth's Fling with Truth's Sting

Now Playing

CAROLINA

Hinton And Coombs Mound Duel To Feature Tar Heel-Devil Classic

Star Mound Aces to Pitch in Outstanding Big Five Clash Of the Season.

Carolina vs. Duke, and Hinton vs. Coombs on the mound. This combination gives prospects of producing at Durham, beginning at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, what probably will be the outstanding baseball clash of the Big Five season. Duke and Carolina will play their second and final game here Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Duke is yet to take a bow in the Big Five, but the Tar Heels, with a season record of 14 wins for 3 losses, have won in 3 of 4 Big Five starts, and are hot to break the old Duke jinx of the diamond and hand up a Big Five crown.

As for the moundsmen who are slated to oppose one another, Bob Coombs, nephew of the Duke coach and former Big Leaguer, is unquestionably the ace of the Devils, and George Hinton of the Tar Heels is undefeated this year. The leader of the Tar Heel mound corps, who held Virginia to three hits in his last appearance, has worked in six games, winning five and losing none, while giving but 25 hits in 46 innings pitched.

Carolina's scrappy youngsters boosted their batting averages considerably in the four games with State, Virginia, and Davidson that have been played since the last averages were released.

Exceptional batting streaks of outfielder Croom, first baseman Dunlap, and pitcher Edwards featured. Croom had two singles, a double, and a triple for five tries in the Virginia classic at Greensboro, and got a single and homer for four tries against Davidson, to run his average from .151 to .262—quite a spurt.

While Croom was hitting .600 in the last four games, Paul Dunlap was running a close second with 9 hits for 18 tries and a .500 average. That was just carrying-one for the big "find" at first base, however, for his season record shows 33 hits for 72 times up and a .458 average. He has also had two homers, three doubles, and seven triples.

Others of the Tar Heels' fat batting averages are House .398; Peacock .317; Wyrick .309; Edwards .300; Captain Potter .295; Blythe .286; and Ferebee. 278.

GOLFERS LEAVE ON VIRGINIA TRIP

After severely trouncing the Duke golfers last Saturday on the Hillandale course in Durham by the score of 14-4, the Tar Heel golfers left yesterday afternoon for Virginia where they will engage the University of Virginia and William and Mary. These two matches will end the season for the golfers and it ought to be concluded with two wins.

The team is to play Virginia today and then tackle the William and Mary team on Saturday. Those that made the trip are: Bev Mason, Joe Adams, Ben Goodes, Al Brown, Aubrey Brooks, and Paul Carter. So far this season the Tar Heels have not lost a match. Their records show five wins and one tie.

In all probability Bev Mason will play number one in both these matches with Joe Adams playing the number two position. Ben Goodes and Aubrey Brooks will round out the team that plays against Virginia while Paul Carter and Al Brown will play three and four against William and Mary.

Special Meeting

Dean Hobbs, secretary of the Southern Conference Athletic Association, has received notice of a special meeting of the executive committee which has been called by Georgia Tech. The meeting will take place at Birmingham Saturday night after the conference track meet. Mr. Hobbs said there was no mention of the nature of the business of the meeting.

FIELD SHAPES UP FOR PREP MEET

A. M. A. To Defend Southern Track Title Saturday against Strong Field.

A fast field has definitely taken shape for the University of North Carolina's fifth invitation Southern Prep School Track Championships, to get under way here Saturday at 2 o'clock. Every indication is for a determined assault upon existing records, and prospects are that several will be broken.

Luther Williams, former star at Oxford Hi, and now a big shot at Madison A. & M. in Georgia, has already served notice that he expects to boost the shot-put mark. This Tar Heel prep school boy handed the track dopesters a grand surprise recently when he threw the 16-pound shot 44 feet 6 1-2 inches to place second to Coleman of Auburn in a field of the South's best collegians at the Southeastern A. A. U. meet, and he may lift the present mark of 46 feet 9, which is for the 12-pound shot prepmen generally throw.

McAninch, of Staunton Military Academy, present co-holder of the exceptionally good 22.4 seconds mark for the 220-yard dash, is another who may easily bag himself a new record.

Just below him on the ladder of potential record breakers are Bowman, Augusta Military Academy's winner of the mile, in 1930; Barrett, an ironman entered for seven events from St. Leo's in Florida; Red Goodwin, Greensboro boy and Riverside sprint star; Tarrall, a fine sprinter at Oak Ridge; Dorrill, a four event star, and Hardaway, sprinter, at Danville Military Institute; and Graves, A. M. A., Kalb, Staunton, and Ray, Oak Ridge, all hurdlers. In the weights the other leaders include Chapman, Staunton; Sigafoos and Brumbaugh, Augusta Military Academy; and Tarrall, Oak Ridge.

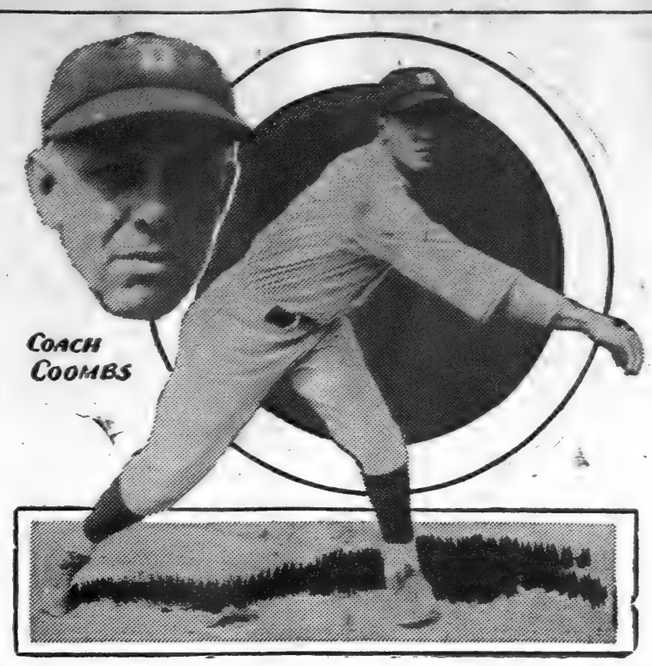
Augusta Military Academy will be the defending champs, but season records indicate Staunton to be just about even in the dope.

Baseball Results

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Washington 5		Cleveland	4
Philadelphia 5		Chicago	2
(Eighth inning)
Boston 4		Detroit	3
(Eighth inning)
New York 6		St. Louis	0
(Eighth inning)

PIEDMONT LEAGUE



Charlotte 5		Henderson	0
Asheville 6		Raleigh	3
High Point 8		Durham	5
(Fifth inning)

BASEBALL
Friday

4:00 p. m.—1. Mangum vs Aycock; 2. Lewis vs Ruffin.

5:00 p. m.—1. Manly vs Old East; 2. Best House vs Independents.

UNCLE AND NEPHEW

Bobby Coombs will probably be on the mound and Coach Jack will be directing from the dugout when the Duke Blue Devils meet the Carolina nine in Durham Saturday afternoon.

BOXING TOURNEY SEES SEVEN NEW MEN WIN TITLES

Overflow Crowd Sees Annual Intramural Mitt Tourney Close With New Champions in All Weights.

Seven new intramural boxing champions were crowned Wednesday night when the finals of the spring boxing tournament were held before another overflow crowd. The final fights saw the best work of the tournament with every fight presenting plenty of action from beginning to end.

The A. T. O.'s had four men in the finals, and two went through to win championships. Graham also sent two men through the tournament without a defeat to tie the A. T. O.'s in this respect. However, the A. T. O.'s with six men entered in the tournament, took team honors. The other championships went to Delta Sigma Phi, Lewis, and Old West.

In the bantamweight scrap; Alan Smith, A. T. O., won a three round decision from Kellenberger, Tar Heel Club. Smith took an early lead and held it throughout in spite of the fact that Kellenberger pushed the fight to the end. Smith landed repeatedly with his left hand, punishing his opponent severely about the body and drawing blood from his nose in the second round.

In the featherweight battle, Frank Errico, Graham, won a decision over McKeithan, Independent, after three rounds of fast fighting. It was Errico's fight all the way but McKeithan gave him plenty of trouble with a right to the head and showed plenty of willingness to mix it.

Lofton Brooker, A. T. O., defeated Fred Wardlaw, Beta Theta Pi, for the lightweight championship in one of the best fights of the night. Both boys went at it hard and fast from the beginning and gave the fans plenty of action. Brooker knocked Wardlaw down in the first round with a right to the head, and continued to batter the Beta scrapper throughout the fight. Wardlaw used a left jab and hook to advantage, but could not stop Brooker's rushes, and the verdict was decisive at the end of the third round.

The welterweight title was forfeited to Dick Battley, Delta Sigma Phi, by Brown, T. E. P., after Brown had twisted his leg in winning over Brunda in the semi-final bout which was held in the afternoon.

The middleweight division saw the best fight of the tournament when Billy Stallings, Graham, met John Preston, D. K. E. battler. Stallings won the decision after three torrid rounds during which he used a left jab repeatedly. Stallings kept his left in Preston's face from beginning to end, but took plenty of punishment about the body in exchange.

The lightheavyweight division saw another good battle as Francis, Lewis, won over Burgwynn, A. T. O., after three rounds of hard fighting. Francis stabbed his opponent with a left to the face that had Burgwynn off balance on several occasions, but Burgwynn always came back with rights to the head that had Francis reeling more than once. Francis jabbed and hooked at long range, but threw a powerful right to the head when in close, while Burgwynn depended chiefly on his right swing which he landed fairly often. However, Francis piled up too many points at long range, and the verdict, although close, was decisive.

In the last fight of the night, Red Sherrill, Old West defeated Barron Grier, A. T. O., in another three round battle. Sherrill had his opponent missing often at long range and tied him up in the clinches to win rather easily. Sherrill used a left jab and hook with an occasional right to the head and body to win his second bout of the tournament.

The officials were: Marty Levinson, referee, Noah Goodridge and Mr. Matthews, judges, and Dail Holderness, timekeeper.

FARMER OUT AS HEEL TRACKMEN LEAVE FOR MEET

Carolina Off to Defend Southern Track Laurels; Fifteen Men Make Birmingham Trip.

The North Carolina trackmen were off today to defend their Southern championship laurels of 1930 at the 1931 meet in Birmingham, Ala., Friday, and Saturday.

Charlie Farmer was left behind when a pulled leg muscle failed absolutely to heal so the Southern sprint champ of 1930 could regain the old kick and drive to carry him through a 100-yard dash faster than 10.3 seconds.

George Bagby, who has been on injured row with Farmer, made the trip, but the University record holder on the high jump has been out for several meets with a sprained ankle and has been jumping far below his peak the last two weeks.

Other competitors making the trip were Brodie Arnold, Cliff Baucom, Theron Brown, Sandy Dameron, Archie Davis, Bob Drane, Jim Hubbard, Mark Jones, Ken Marland, Raymond Ruble, Rip Slusser, J. K. Smith, Tom Watkins, and Lionel Weil.

The Tar Heels took with them a record of no losses in dual meets in the South, Carolina's tenth such feat, and a State title, but didn't regard themselves as anything like favorites.

The tremendous strength already shown by Alabama and Auburn has caused Carolinians to feel the Tar Heels at best are outsiders who can win only by inspired performances in every event.

Carolina's best bets for points will probably be Slusser, Arnold and Ruble, Baucom, Dameron, Smith and Jones, in order named.

Slusser has equalled the Southern low hurdles mark once. Arnold and Ruble have vaulted as high as 13 feet, but not over 12 feet 8 this spring. Baucom has done the best two-mile in the South this spring. Dameron set a new state discus mark at 136 feet 6. Smith has gotten down to 21.8 seconds on the 220, Jones to 4:30 on the mile.

HIGH TEAMS TO PLAY FOR TITLE

Mt. Airy to Meet Rowland High For Class B League Title Here Today.

Forty-nine runs in three games is quite a record, but that's the mark of Mt. Airy, which is to meet Rowland High at the University Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock for the 1931 Class B baseball championship of the State.

The Surry team beat Thomasville 20-1, Bessemer 4-3, and Cherryville 25-1 for the Western title.

Rowland won the Eastern championship less decisively but pressively withal. After topping the field in percentages the Eastern champs beat Erwin in the Fourth Eastern District, 19-6 and Roanoke Rapids 7-5.

King, star pitcher, held Roanoke Rapids to five hits in the final Eastern championship game, so it looks as if there should be an interesting game when Mt. Airy's sluggers go up against this youngster for the championship here Friday.

Mt. Airy has its stars of the mound too. Dean and Coble split time in Mt. Airy's 25-1 win over Cherryville for the Western title, and between them they gave but 4 hits while fanning 19. In an early game with the Carolina Frosh Perry struck out 11.

As a result it looks as if there may be a mound duel of fine proportions, as well as a test for the Surry sluggers.

F. L. Adams coaches the Eastern Champions, and George Underwood, an Elon product, coaches Mt. Airy.

Lineups will probably be: Rowland—Jackson 3b; Faircloth, 2b; E. Royal ss; King p; A. Royal cf; Ivey lf; McCormick c; Rownsend 1b; Bond rf.

Mt. Airy—Coble ss or p; Satterfield 1b; Ayers 2b; Kirkman 3b; Dean 1b or p; L. Badgett cf; McKinney c; Hatcher lf; Jordan rf; C. Badgett rf, with Perry pitching if Coach Underwood doesn't use Coble or Dean.

Large delegations are reported to be following the teams from their home towns. One enthusiastic backer has even reported that "The whole town is coming." The visitors will be augmented and entertained by Carolina students from back home.

THE SMOKE SHOP
EAT WITH US DRINK WITH US

great for a late snack!

BEFORE you go to bed, eat a bowl of crisp Kellogg's Corn Flakes and milk or cream. Delicious—and so easy to digest you'll sleep like a million dollars.

Dietitians say that crisp cereals are just the treat for a late snack. So much better than hot, heavy foods. So remember Kellogg's when you drop in at the campus restaurant around bedtime. Extra delicious with sliced bananas.

Kellogg's
CORN FLAKES

The most popular cereals served in the dining-rooms of American colleges, eating clubs and fraternities are made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. They include ALL-BRAN, PEP Bran Flakes, Rice Krispies, Wheat Krumbles, and Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuit. Also Kaffee Hag Coffee—the coffee that lets you sleep.

You'll enjoy Kellogg's Slumber Music, broadcast over WJZ and associated stations of the N. B. C. every Sunday evening at 10.30 E. S. T. Also KFI Los Angeles, KOMO Seattle at 10.00, and KOA Denver at 10.30.

Nationally Known — FIFTH ANNUAL PROFIT - SHARING SALE — Justly Famous

STETSON "D"

"Nationally Known" - - - :-: - - - "Justly Famous"

ENTIRE STOCK

Starts Friday, May 15th, Few Days Only

REDUCED

MEN'S STOCK SUITS

$29.50 REDUCED TO $19.50

SUITS

$34.50 AND $39.50 REDUCED TO $23.50

Shirts--Neckwear--Underwear--Pajamas--Sweaters

25 to 50 per cent off FURNISHINGS 25 to 50 per cent off

$1.00 Ties 75c :-: $1.50 Ties 1.05

All Linens Reduced

STETSON "D"

"Correct Apparel For College Men"

Nationally Known — FIFTH ANNUAL PROFIT - SHARING SALE — Justly Famous

15, 1931
stly
mous
F I F T H
A N N U A L P R O F I T S H A R I N G S A L E Justly Famous

BASEBALL
CAROLINA-DUKE
DURHAM — 2:30

The Daily Tar Heel

ORIGINAL PLAYS
PLAYMAKERS THEATRE
TONIGHT — 8:30

VOLUME XXXIX | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SATURDAY, MAY 16, 1931 | NUMBER 172

DELEGATES WILL ATTEND ANNUAL CONGRESS TODAY

Federation Will Consider Plans for Closer Relations Between College Organizations.

The University delegation to the second annual congress of the North Carolina Student Federation, which convenes today at Duke university, met in the Carolina Inn Thursday night, and elected Jack Dungan chairman, and drew up a number of policies which they expect to present at today's gathering.

First among the appeals to be put before the congress is a suggestion that the work of the state student government association be put in closer contact with other state student organizations such as the intercollegiate press, state Y cabinet, and the North Carolina social service council.

Policies Considered

Another policy to be considered is that an attempt be made to get the athletic associations over the state to take up the matter of recipocral athletic tickets.

The other two measures decided upon are: that the congress take steps to secure closer relations between men and women on the same campus, and that the congress convening today attempt to bring the federation closer to the campi of the state by allowing local student organizations to be represented in the congress, such as the Phi assembly and the Di senate. The local Phi assembly is being represented today by Bert Haywood.

Delegates Attending

Besides the five regular official delegates appointed by the University student council to attend the meeting at Duke, a number of unofficial delegates will be present. These are: William Medford, vice president of the University student union, Frank Hawley, treasurer of the Y, F. M. James, president of the University Y, Miss Gabrielle McColl, newly elected president of the Woman's Association, and Miss Mary W. Yarborough.

THREE DANCES TO CLOSE WEEK-END

The Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity gave their annual formal dance last night in the ballroom of the Carolina Inn with music by Jelly Leftwich and his university club orchestra from Duke. Girls from all over the state were present to add to the success of the affair.

Immediately following the dance, the fraternity was host to its numerous guests at a buffet supper at the Inn, and the merriment lasted into the night.

Also last night, the Woman's association presented its quarterly dance in Spencer hall. This dance marked the last one of the year for the feminine students. Jack Wardlaw and his Carolina Tar Heels furnished the music for the occasion.

Tonight Delta Tau Delta will give its annual formal dance from 9:00 to 12:00 in the Carolina Inn. Jelly Leftwich will play for this affair.

A second dance scheduled for tonight is the last of the series of eight given this year by the Order of the Grail. It will take place in the gym and begins at 9:00. Jack Wardlaw and his orchestra will play.

Professor Writes Book on Marriage

Professor E. R. Groves of the department of sociology has just finished a new book, "Sex and Marriage," which will go to press soon. It will be published by McCauley Publishing Co., of New York City, and will appear in August.

Professor Groves is also having published a new edition of "Personality and Social Adjustment" and a new and larger edition of "Introduction to Sociology." These books are in press at present and will be out shortly. Longmans-Green are the publishers.

INSURANCE FIRM TO OPEN SCHOOL

Connecticut Company Plans Two Week's Institute to Study Insurance Problems.

The Life Insurance Sales Bureau, of Hartford, Connecticut, an organization held by 144 life insurance companies in the United States, Canada, and foreign countries, is making preparations to open an agency building school here in Chapel Hill. This school, which is to run from June 15 through June 26, is the first of its kind to be started in the South. The other schools are Babson Institute, Babson Park, Massachusetts, and Northwestrn University, Evanston, Illinois.

This school is sponsored by the extension division and the department of commerce with Morgan F. Vining in charge. All general agents, managers, supervisors, home office agency salesmen, and those whose work is of a supervisory nature, are eligible for the school. The instructors in the school will be members of the bureau staff with H. C. Kenaga, assistant manager, as director of the school and C. F. Davies and S. G. Dickinson as his helpers.

The course that will be offered will cover the chief problems that confront the manager and the general agent, which are recruiting, training, supervision, business management, and conservation of business.

Di and Phi Joint Meeting Postponed

The joint meeting of the Di society and the Phi assembly, which was scheduled to take place Tuesday night in the Phi hall, has been called off due to conflicting dates of the two societies. The regular meetings of both societies will take place separately at the usual time when it will be decided on what date the joint meeting will occur.

The bills to be discussed in the Di hall next week are: Resolved, That the Federal Farm Board's policy of selling wheat in Europe below the market price is not for the best interest of America, and Resolved, That the dissemination of birth control information through the registered clinics, to married persons only, is socially justifiable. The bills on the Phi calendar are: Resolved, That the Phi assembly go on record as favoring that students of the University of North Carolina be given credit toward graduation for athletic attainment. Resolved, That the Phi assembly go on record as favoring a system of education as adopted by the University of Chicago under President Hutchinson.

LIBRARY OBTAINS ORIENTAL BOOKS

Gift of Dr. Jacocks Includes Three Volumes of Palm-Leaf Manufacture.

Three palm leaf books have been presented to the University library by Dr. W. P. Jacocks, field director for the international health division of the Rockefeller foundation at Colombo, Ceylon. Dr. Jacocks, who was recently offered the position of head of the state health department, has previously donated ten other Ceylonese books to the library.

The three books just given to the library contain Indian sacred writings relative to the Buddhist religion. They are written in the Sinhalese language, which makes use of a curious alphabet known as Pali.

The books are about two to three feet in length and two inches in width, with the largest about four inches thick.

Writing on Palm Leaves

East Indian books are written on strips of palm leaves which are strung together on cords between unusual covers. One of the books just acquired has a cover of brass plate with silver filigree inlay. Another is lacquered in red and carries on the outside a series of classical Indian designs, while the inside of the cover is decorated with scenes illustrating the life of Buddha. The third has a very beautiful cover of solid ivory with an inlaid lacquer border.

These books are on display in the main lobby of the University library. In the case containing them is also an exhibit of Greek ostraka purchased in Egypt by Dr. W. E. Caldwell for the Hanes foundation. Ostraka are broken bits of pottery used

(Continued on next page)

TAYLOR SOCIETY HEARS HALLETT

General Manager of Kendell Mills Discusses Scientific Maintenance of Factories.

H. K. Hallett, general manager of Kendell mills, in a talk before the student branch of the Taylor society Thursday night on the subject of "Scientific Plant Maintenance," stated that "maintenance is founded on prevention instead of cure." Mr. Hallett has made a success as general manager of the Kendell Mills because he has always tried to prevent rather than to cure unrest among his employees.

Regular Inspection Planned

The speaker discussed the topic of plant maintenance from the standpoint of machinery, belting, electrical equipment, painting, and fire prevention. In turn, each of these topics were discussed in detail, and the most important feature of a maintenance plan was brought out to be inspection. At regular intervals everything that comes under each of the above mentioned items is inspected and the findings recorded in a permanent file. From an observation of these files systematic repair periods are determined.

When the Kendell chain was taken over, it was bankrupt and in such a dilapidated condition that it seemed almost hopeless, but the scientific method of maintenance was instituted and the organization was built up until now it is one of the most efficient in the South. Even in these bad times, when most mills are running only about half time, these mills that are managed by Mr. Hallett are running full time and a ready market is found for the finished articles.

New Campus Structural Units Will Be Completed This Year

Work Is Progressing Rapidly on Graham Memorial, Patterson-Morehead Bell Tower, and Carr Building, and Plans for Final Dispositions Are About Complete.

Progress on Graham Memorial building, the Patterson-Morehead bell tower, and Carr building is going forward rapidly. The electric wiring throughout the student union is now finished and all the rooms on the second floor are completely plastered. The rough primary flooring has been nailed down in the rooms of the upper floor. Iron stairways leading to the upper rooms and basement have been set in place, but the railings and stone steps have not yet been added.

Basement Finished

Masons have recently completed laying the limestone blocks which are to constitute the pavement for the floor of the portico. The basement of the building is practically finished except for fixtures and furniture. The floor of the main room of the basement is paved with red tiles, which lend a good deal of color to the otherwise barren room, and the basement corridor has red cement for the flooring.

The interior decorators and men who are to install the electrical fixtures will soon take charge of the edifice and add the last touches.

Memorial Begun in 1924

Work on the Graham Memorial was begun in 1924, but due to lack of money it was not able to be completed until this spring when an alumnus, who prefers to remain anonymous, donated the funds necessary for its completion. The building was originally scheduled to be finished in time for commencement, but despite all efforts this has been found to be impossible.

The second building project started this spring, the Patterson-Morehead bell tower is slowly reaching skyward. About one quarter of the 186 foot tower already has been built.

The tower rests on a base of seven broad steps which surround it on four sides. The tower is eighteen feet square and is made of red brick and poured concrete with limestone pilasters and cornices. Work on the balcony which is to encircle the tower at about twenty feet from the ground has not yet been started.

The tower is the gift of John Motley Morehead, foreign minister to Sweden, and Rufus Patterson, as a memorial to their respective families.

Set of Chimes

The tower is to contain a set of chimes which will be exact duplicates of those at West Point, which are said to be the best in the United States, and like that set, will be hand operated. There are thirteen bells in this set of chimes, and the bells are to be provided with

(Continued on last page)

Sigma Xi Society Will Meet May 26

The last meeting of the N. C. chapter of the Sigma Xi society for this season will take place at the Carolina Inn on Tuesday evening, May 26.

At this time Dr. O. Stuhlman will deliver his retiring presidential address on the subject, "What Lies Beyond the Axioms of the Rational Sciences." New officers will also be inducted at the meeting and there will be an initiation of new members.

Nomination for membership to the Sigma Xi society are now in order. For eligibility to full membership, the nominee must have had published at least one paper in a research journal.

LAST OF ORGAN CONCERTS TO BE GIVEN SUNDAY

Professor Nelson Kennedy to Play Sixth Vesper Series at 4:45.

The sixth and last concert on the vesper series to be given by Professor Nelson O. Kennedy will be presented tomorrow afternoon at 4:45.

Three guest concerts have been presented by prominent musicians of the state: the first by Professor Frederick Stanley Smith, dean of music at Lenoir-Rhyne college, Hickory; the second by Professor George M. Thompson, head of the organ department at N. C. C. W., Greensboro, and the third by Professor Isaac L. Battin, head of the department of music at Meredith college, Raleigh. The organ has been heard in numerous other concerts, the first of which was the performance of "The Messiah" in December, by the Chapel Hill community chorus. Many musicians of note have visited the music building while passing through Chapel Hill, and have expressed their admiration for the organ.

Beginning with the concert on November 23, Professor Kennedy has played concerts on the vesper series during each month except December. It is estimated that exclusive of the three capacity audiences which attended the dedication of the organ by Edward Eigenschenk in November, more than 3,000 people have listened to Professor Kennedy's playing since the series opened. The success which has attended this series encourages the department of music to announce that during the next school year, beginning with the first Sunday in October, this series will be continued. It was originally planned to bring eight prominent musicians to the University. For various

(Continued on next page)

CLASSICS PROFESSORS TO SEE GREEK DRAMA

J. M. Saunders, George Howe and G. A. Harrer, professors of the classics department, will journey to Lynchburg, Virginia, today to see the annual Green drama, presented by the Greek classes of Randolph-Macon college.

The play this year, Antigone of Sophocles, will be given in the Outdoor Theatre, and is presented in the original Greek. Randolph-Macon is one of the very few colleges that will produces a Greek drama every year, a custom that was prevalent in all the large colleges a half century ago.

FEE NEEDED FOR MAINTENANCE OF STUDENT CENTER

Student Body Will Voice Opinion on Quarterly $1 Fee.

At a banquet of the Student Activities committee Thursday night at the Carolina Inn, a definite proposal for student organization and maintenance of the Graham Memorial building as a student activities union was agreed upon. This was the final step in formulating the future of the building. This proposition, which was decided only after a lengthy and heated discussion in which all those present took an active part, is to be presented to the student body of the University for its decision.

Student Union Fee

The vote on the proposal is to be taken before commencement, and all students of the University will vote together. It embodies the levying of a one dollar per quarter student union fee upon each student of the University, which fee is to be collected by the business office and turned over to the committee of administration of the student union. Therefore, the change means that each student will pay twelve dollars for the use of the building during his four years. This three dollar assessment each year on every student would, figuring on an active student body of 2000, amount to at least $6000 a year. Mr. C. T. Woollen informed the committee that it will take this amount to run the building for a year.

Mr. Woollen justified this amount by saying that the state would not furnish heat, light, or upkeep for the building. These three items themselves will amount to $3000 all told and the remaining $3000 is to be used in equipping the building and maintenance. There are plans for placing a cafeteria in the union which of course would necessitate the buying of the essential equipment.

The committee at the banquet seemed heartily in favor of the cafeteria. There was some discussion however of placing a bowling alley in the basement. In addition to these expenses, will be the salary of a profes-

(Continued on last page)

SLADE TO JOIN RUTGERS FACULTY

J. J. Slade, instructor in mechanics and descriptive geometry in the engineering department, will leave here to teach in Rutgers university, New Brunswick, New Jersey, starting in the fall.

Dean P. H. Daggett, formerly head of the department of electrical engineering here and at present acting in that capacity at Rutgers, offered the position of instructor in mechanics to Slade.

Slade receive his S.B. degree here in 1929 and a year later his M.S. degree. Before coming to Carolina, he received three years of undergraduate instruction at Cornell university and one year at Tulane.

During 1924-1927 he did work in Mexico, and was employed for a time by the government there as an engineer, and later as a contractor for a lumbering company. He will return to Mexico this summer to finish writing a novel that he has been working on for some time.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays. Entered as Second Class matter at the post office at Chapel Hill, N. C., under Act of March 3, 1879.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $4.00 for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

Jack Dungan ..... Editor
H. N. Patterson ..... Bus. Mgr.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Ed French ..... Mng. Ed.

Editorial Board

Charles G. Rose ..... Chairman
J. M. Little — Frank J. Manheim
W. M. Bryson — Will Yarborough
Alden Stahr — Bob Barnett
Wex Malone

Assignment Editors
Otto S. Steinreich
Dan Kelly, Assistant

Sunday Editor
Charles G. Rose

City Editors
Bill McKee — George Wilson
Peter Hairston — Jack Riley

Desk Men
W. R. Woerner — Don Shoemaker
Vass Shepherd

Sports Staff
Jack Bessen ..... Sports Editor

Assistants
T. H. Broughton — P. Alston

News Men
E. M. Spruill — F. W. Ashley
W. E. Davis — Claiborn Carr
Charles Poe

Reporters
Saul Gordon — Bob Reynolds
Woodward Glenn — M. V. Barnhill, Jr.
William Blount — John Burroughs
U. B. Phillips — M. H. Long
Tom Walker — W. L. Gray
Ronald Kochendorfer — Walker Stamps
Phil Sasser

BUSINESS STAFF

Hal Worth ..... Circulation Mgr.
Harlan Jameson ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.
John Manning ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.

Advertising Department

Al L. Olmstead ..... Advertising Mgr.
Pendleton Gray ..... Advertising Mgr.
Bernard Solomon ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
R. D. McMillan, Jr. ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
James N. Nowell — H. A. Clark

Collection Department

Jack Hammer ..... Collection Mgr.
John Barrow — Frank S. Dale
Stokes Adderton — Jack Stokes

Correspondence Department

Ed Michaels, Jr. ..... Correspondence Mgr.
Wynn Hamm ..... Ass't. Cor. Mgr.

Saturday, May 16, 1931

No Annual Institute

At the open forum meeting held in Gerrard hall Wednesday night to discuss plans for furthering the Human Relations Institute, the suggestion was made that the institute be made an annual event rather than a quadrennial one as is the present plan. Those favoring this motion apparently did not see what would be the harm in having the Institute each year.

Were this yearly plan carried out it would mean that the Human Relations Institute would not be a thing to be looked forward to by students. It would come to be a mere matter of course. One of the main reasons now why the present plan is so successful is that the Institute comes only once in a student's college career. Not that it is not worthy of coming each year, but were the annual system put into effect, the speakers would lose their novelty. The fact that a man has never been heard before is one reason why he is often successful in first appearance.

The students do not go to the lectures to only hear the speakers for the first time, but to get the speakers' ideas on the subjects which they discuss. But even in this case if the Institute continued to bring speakers in the lines of Inter-racial, International, and Politics and Government, the time would soon come when the student body would have heard all about these subjects they desire. The annual plan would mean that a large sum of money would have to be raised each year. But there is no senior class to give five hundred dollars each year, nor is the Weil Lecture fund willing to contribute its speaker for each time.

If the Rockefeller foundation or some other large financial group could be interested in sponsoring this movement, there would be no objection to this change. But until this yearly fund is definitely received from some such fund no plans should be made to an annual institute.

Finally, were the institute put on each year it would not be able to have such a large program. By having the speakers come here only once in four years, many of them were asked for the second time this year. In other words it would be no easy job to get an entirely new set of speakers each year. If a new set can not be gotten once in four years, certainly by having them appear each year, it would necessitate considerable re-appearing on their part.

In other words unless some definite arrangement could be made for sufficient financial support each year and unless a different set of speakers could be secured each year, it is our contention that the Human Relations Institute will not be successful as a yearly event.

—C.G.R.

Who Is Lying?

Somebody is giving false testimony to the Ward Investigating Committee over at Raleigh. Senator Hinsdale, President S. Clay Williams and their assistants are considered to be reputable men, but of necessity there is something wrong with the investigation as it now stands.

The people of North Carolina are not going to be contented with dropping the bribery issue without a showdown. Investigations during the past few years have been generally unsuccessful. Something must be done to stop perjury on witness stands of this nation.

This type of thing not only makes it possible for our legislative bodies to be corrupt, but it is also the basis for the large amount of crime that runs rampant throughout our country.

We beg of Senator Ward and his committee not to let this matter drop where it now stands. Let's have a showdown on the bribery issue. Somebody should be vindicated and somebody should be proven guilty. The sooner we get to a place where there is no longer perjury, the sooner we will have good government in our country.

—K. C. R.

With Contemporaries

The Passing Of Student Liberalism

Writing in the current number of the New Republic under the heading "A Dirge for College Liberalism," a Yale senior takes occasion to demarcate and lament the passing of "whatever connotations of radicalism and insurgency (which) may have accompanied the phrase 'younger generation' ten years ago." He calls to witness the disappearance of student and college interest in politics, "the expression of young and untrained opinion as a foil to the dogma of vested interest." The conservatism of dress, the acquiescence of undergraduate temper. In fine, there is "something awkwardly self-conscious and unbending pervading the social air as well as the sartorial system. . . . A certain staleness, a brackish odor, hovers over blossoming manhood."

While these views are offered with a condition of the East's Big Three directly in mind, the peculiarity of Michigan's situation always has been the scene of counter-forces in undergraduate traditions and attitudes—here a natural community of view with Eastern colleges is in flux with the provincialism and unsophistication of the Middle West. Because each tendency tempers the other the only characteristic which may be called well-formed among students is a growing individualism, a more self-aggressive attitude in individual affairs.

Nevertheless, the dearth of liberalism, even enlightenment, in particular sectors of the campus and among certain groups where one would expect these qualities makes it easy to add our lament at its absence, or passing, to that of the writer above.

This fear of innovation or any sort of insurgency has thus far begged solution. Even the New Republic's writer admits a loss to suggest a remedy. He states, however, that "In default of undergraduate leaders or independent curiosity, it should be the duty of the university heads themselves to introduce provocative and controversial lecturers. . . . A courageous university could do much to change the conservative obsession of its students by including a hot-head or two among its major teachers. . . . A big man or two on the staff to brace the waning student vitality would be a healthy move, but one requiring courage—a quality not common to most faculties."

In this respect, also, the writer is right in citing the courage of a faculty which would contemplate such a move as his suggestion and the rarity of this commodity in a typical academic group; further, he is again laying his finger upon a situation prevalent at Michigan. One need contemplate only the experiences of ex-President Little with his faculties to realize the nature and truth of the charge against them. A later and more outstanding example of this faculty attitude is exemplified in the case of former Dean Cabot of the Medical school. His ouster last spring was unquestionably due chiefly to friction between an emphatic and frank "hot-head" and the prevailing group of old maids. Outspoken liberalism or insurgency among faculty, even in isolated cases, is anathema to the academic mind; they may be regarded as colorfully or picturesquely futile, but they are not tolerated.

Trained under the mantle of this conservatism, it is little wonder that liberal student opinion is vitiated. An attitude of laissez-faire, of enervation results. This armed neutralty between the normal springs of student insurgency and the crystallized conservatism of the faculty possessing the mortmain is sorry and sterile soil for nurturing the liberal spirit. Whether this is cause for melancholy, or for merely indicating the passing of the fruits of leadership from the hands of the colleges to other agencies lies with the decision of the next decade.

—Michigan Daily.

Pooh— Bah

The "inside dope" on the athletic policies of Yale, Harvard and Princeton is given by John R. Tunis in an article, "Pooh-bahs of Sport," which appears in the may issue of The Forum. A Pooh-bah, incidentally, is an athletic director. "College athletics," says Mr. Tunis, "are amateur athletics, they are supposedly the finest example we have of amateur sportsmanship, and they are—or should be—an inspiration to everyone who loves games for their own sake." On the basis of this correct principle, he finds much to criticize in the present status of intercollegiate sport: principally the extent of the control exercised by the athletic directors, the three gentlemen in office at Yale, Harvard, and Princeton serving as cases in point.

These athletic directors, we are told, are intelligent sportsmen whose feelings are in line with the best conceptions of sportsmanship. Nevertheless, they have their "jobs" to consider, and the result is a complicated underground diplomacy in jockeying for schedules and gate-receipt slices, that is only paralleled by governmental foreign offices. Often, the actual attitudes and relationships of student bodies have as little to do with intercollegiate hostilities and "breaks," as "a certain murder down in Sarajevo in 1914 had to do with the World War." The director feels that it is part of his obligation to increase the prestige of his university and the funds of his A. A. To this end, he abets the "emphasis on winning," and the general result is encouragement of that professionalizing of college athletics which all unite in condemning.

Toward changing this undesirable condition, Mr. Tunis urges the transfer of control to the students themselves, leaving only a sort of "bursar" to handle routine details of business. At first glance, this proposal appears excellent—certainly, the amateur should play how and with whom he chooses. But further consideration proves it utterly impractical. In the first place, control would necessarily be delegated to a small number of men. In loyalty and in the desire for a creditable record, they would be equally eager to advance the finances and reputation of their alma mater. At the same time, to do this inoffensively they would lack the ability, judgment and tact that only experience can give. The effect would hardly be to lessen the distrustfulness and sensitiveness already existent between various institutions. And in the long run, the tendency of the curriculum-ridden student would be to shift more and more of the responsibilities of the athletic program to his "bursar."

Finally, it is safe to assert that the undergraduate bodies of most institutions generally have confidence in their athletic directors. Nevertheless, Mr. Tunis' well-intentioned reflections point out two failings which are not beyond remedy. Athletic directors too frequently disregard the true student sentiment in intercollegiate policies, and the students themselves are at fault in failing to unite insistently in presenting their opinions and desires.—Princetonian.

The Hoot's Hale

In tomorrow's issue of The New Republic will appear another article from the pen of Yale's liberal extraordinary, undergraduate William Harlan Hale. The author, who was co-founder of The Harkness Hoot, Yale liberal periodical, has already received considerable publicity by virtue of his attacks upon this, that and the other. In this case, he writes "A Dirge for College Liberalism," in which he laments the fact that "to be an Eastern college man is to be a collared conservative."

In a part of his article, Mr. Hale makes thoroughly justified criticisms of the general attitude of present-day Princeton, Yale, and Harvard undergraduates. He takes a wholly logical stand, for example, in deploring the decline of student interest in political affairs. Few thoughtful individuals deny that greater undergraduate enthusiasm regarding public questions is desirable from the standpoint of the individual as well as of politics as a whole.

"A Dirge for College Liberalism," like many of Mr. Hale's writings, contains sufficient truth to make it at least interesting reading matter. However, it reveals in places that peculiarly superficial knowledge of the facts which appears to constitute the background for so many of the utterances of the writer and of his publication, The Hoot. This characteristic, as well as the author's general outlook, is evidenced particularly in his accusation that a college paper is an arch-conservative because it has "sunk into almost total agreement with the authorities." Moreover, one is amused to read, further in the article, that colleges cannot employ controversal lectures because "the capitalistic trustees and corporations which dominate the scene are averse" to it.

Throughout his writings Mr. Hale displays that devotion to liberalism which carries him to the point of deploring the modern undergraduate's conservative dress. Apparently, in the course of making a self-conscious attempt to be radical he deems it unnecessary to trouble unduly his ultra-liberal head with clearly ascertaining the facts, or with giving audience to both sides of a question. Undoubtedly, the presence of an individual who does not hesitate to criticise freely is a healthy influence in any university community. However, it is likely that the value of Mr. Hale's writings would be greatly enhanced if it were felt that his utterances were motivated more by absolute sincerity and less by the sheer desire to attract attention.—Princetonian.

Ivan The Terrible

Communism has such a strange psychological effect on New York that by merely smelling the cork she seems to be completely intoxicated under its influence. Union Square riots assume absurd proportions when policemen swinging lead-weighted billies charge indiscriminately into a whole mob, where a few patrol wagons would easily take care of all those deserving arrest. Mayor Rolph of San Francisco under similar circumstances once welcomed the Reds to the city hall, provided a speaker's platform and thanked them for coming to see him. Everythng went fine.

In addition to the notorious practial workouts that the New York police perform with the aid of the Communists, there is the famous Fish inquiry into the activities of communists and its deprecatory effects on Amtorg and hence on American trade. But in spite of all this we were quite startled to learn suddenly that Mayor Walker is blaming his hard luck on a newly discovered species, the "parlor communist," which even infests the ranks of organized religion. If such charges are true, it is indeed a subtle approach for followers of Lenin, but we are inclined to accredit Mayor Walker with being the smooth one, in finding an easy approach to the prejudices of New York.

The Russians themselves set 200 years for the downfall of capitalism in the United States. The tiny representation of the Communist party in this country has microscopic proportions. Stalin pointed out that the present business depression in America was a mere indicator of the weakness of our system and that the United States had a long period of prosperity ahead.

These Russians are pessimists.—The Dartmouth.

Justice, in New York city, might leave the bandage on her eyes, since it can do no harm and may help the headache.—Detroit News.

LIBRARY OBTAINS ORIENTAL BOOKS

(Continued from first page)

in ancient Greece and Egypt bear notes, rough memoranda, business transactions, and similar informal records. These ostraka were probable written by Greek residents in Egypt.

LAST OF ORGAN CONCERTS TO BE GIVEN SUNDAY

(Continued from first page)

reasons, five of these concerts could not be given. This makes it possible to carry forward plans for another guest series beginning in the fall.

In communication with various colleges and universities where organ concerts are a feature of the campus life, it has been learned that it is necessary to educate the audience to the character of organ literature and playing exactly as it is in the case of the symphony orchestra. In planning the concerts throughout the past year this fact was kept in mind, and suggestions were invited. The great volumes of organ literature is unknown except when organ concerts are consistently performed. Organ music rarely appears in transcribed form for piano orchestra, which makes it inaccessible except where there is an organ. The department is highly gratified over the response accorded all of the musical events in the music auditorium since its opening.

The program to be given next Sunday afternoon is as follows: Rogers, Andante Quasi Fantasia; Alexander Russell, The Bells of St. Anne de Beaupre; Wallenstenholme, Allegretto; Kinder, Jubilate Amen; Rachmaninoff, Prelude in C sharp minor, George B. Nevin, In Memoriam, and Widor, Finale (Second Symphonie).

A Boston heiress has married a plumber. The concentration of wealth seems to go on.—American Lumberman.

"Girls ready-to-wear clothes" read an advertisement. At last! —Passing Show.

CAROLINA

TODAY

6 CYLINDER LOVE

with SPENCER TRACY, SIDNEY FOX, EDWARD EVERETT HORTON

Thrill-a-second. Laugh-a-minute

Directed by Thornton Freeland

Funnier than a family in an Austin!

also

Comedy — Novelty

FANCY ICES SHERBETS

DURHAM ICE CREAM CO., Inc.

"Blue Ribbon"

Ice Cream

DURHAM, N. C.

"Won Its Favor By Its Flavor"

BLOCKS PUNCH

State Baseball Crown Depends On Result Of Tar Heel-Duke Contest

Crucial Game on Tap This Afternoon; Duke Needs Victory To Grab Third Title.

CAROLINA		DUKE
Peacock, cf		Kersey, 2b
Ferebee, ss		Harrington, cf
House, lf		Robertshaw, ss
Dunlap, 1b		Bost, lf
Croom, rf		Rochelle, rf
Potter, c		Shore, 3b
Wyrick, 2b		Colley, 1b
Powell, 3b		Voorhees, c
Hinton, p		Coombs, p
Longest, p		McKeithan, p

Apparently determined to break the winning streak of the Blue Devils when they clash with Duke in Durham Saturday at 2:30 o'clock, the Carolina baseball players have recently fattened their batting averages at the expense of Virginia and Davidson.

A check-up of batting averages shows that hitting honors in the last four games go to Paul Dunlap, first baseman; Bill Croom, outfielder; and George Hinton and Paul Edwards, pitchers.

Croom had a field day at the expense of Virginia Saturday, with three doubles and a triple for five times up. And against Davidson Monday he continued with a homer and a single for four tries. That gave him a .600 for the last four games and raised his season average from .151 to .262—quite a spurt.

Dunlap Leading Hitters

Dunlap in the last four games has just been carrying on, for the big "find" at first base has been larruping them far and wide all season. The last four games have netted Dunlap nine hits for eighteen tries, a .500 average, which leaves his season mark at .458. The big boy has also had two homers, three doubles, and seven triples this year, while hitting safely 33 times for 72 tries.

Henry House, who has been fielding fairly well and doing some really fine hitting, slumped from .421 to .398, and shortstop Ferebee dropped from .311 to .278, but most of the Tar Heels fattened their averages considerably at the expense of State, Virginia, and Davidson.

Pitcher Edwards, who won the Virginia game at Greensboro, jumped from .250 to .300, when he hit a booming homer and two singles for five tries in the Gate City. Second-baseman Wyrick jumped from .296 to .309, outfielder Peacock rose from .304 to .317, Captain Potter stayed on .295, and outfielder Blythe dropped from .312 to .286.

George Hinton leads the pitchers. When Hinton limited Virginia to three hits at Chapel Hill last Friday he ran his season record to five wins for five starts. He has had no losses in six games and in 46 innings pitched he has given up but twenty-five hits.

Hinton Faces Coombs

Shields, Edwards, and Longest also have good mound records, for Carolina has a season record of 14 wins for 3 losses and two ties. Hinton's tops the list, however, and it is probably the big right-hand ace who will oppose Coombs, Duke ace, as Carolina and Duke mix it up at Durham Saturday in a game that will go far toward settling the 1931 Big Five title.

Carolina and Duke will meet here Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the second and final game this season between the old rivals.

Baseball Results

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Brooklyn 6		Chicago 4
Pittsburg 3		N. Y. 2
Cincinnati 10		Philadelphia 5
St. Louis		Boston
(Rain)

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Philadelphia 4		Cleveland 0
New York 0		Detroit 2
St. Louis 4		Washington 2
(Fourth inning)
Boston 10		Chicago 8
(Eighth inning)

College Leaders Talk at Duke On Racial Problems

According to Dr. N. C. Newbold, director of the Negro division of the state department of education, in an address before the North Carolina commission on inter-racial cooperation at Duke memorial church Thursday, raising the standard of living among the Negroes of the South through the payment of wages and through general education is of vital importance to the economic and social life of this section.

The speaker attributed crime, disease, and the manifold evils as attendent upon low wages and low standard of living and suggested fewer police and a big increase in welfare work to bring about better health and a more prosperous South.

The inter-racial commission was organized for the purpose of discussing common problems and through such discussions to arrive at a better understanding on matters affecting the races.

Among the other speakers of the day were L. A. Oakley, director of the division of Negro welfare work of the state board of charities and public welfare; John Mitchell, district agent of the United States department of agriculture; Dolores Mitchell, student at Bennett college; and Joe E. Moore, student State college.

Dr. W. C. Jackson, president of the commission, presided over the conference. He is also vice-president of the North Carolina College for Women in Greensboro. President Frank Graham, of the University, attended the conference.

Scouts Initiated

Alpha Phi Omega, national honorary scouting fraternity, recently initiated the following men: Ralph Shoemaker, Salisbury; Stephen A. White, Mebane; Tom Spencer, Charlotte; John Jay Pittman, Rocky Mount; and Sidney G. Roth, Brighton Beach, New York.

WISNER TO LEAD STRONG CAVALIER SQUAD IN MEET

Virginia Track Captain Set New Records in Two Events in Recent State Meet.

Frank Wisner from Laurel, Miss., who is captain of the undefeated track team of the University of Virginia, heads the squad of eight Cavaliers who will compete in the Southern Conference championship meet in Birmingham today.

Captain Wisner has been high scorer in every meet in which he has taken part during the out door season. He has competed in eleven events and has won them all. His specialties are the dashes and the broad jump, and he holds the state conference meet record in all three.

Others who made the trip to Birmingham under the supervision of Coach Hahn are Hudsdon Cary, Jr., of Richmond, half miler; Robert Boles, Jr., of Charlottesville, and Theodore A. Dees, Jr., of Lake Charles, La., hurdlers; Herbert Bryant of Alexandria, discus and shot put; Howard T. Holden of Rabun Gap, Ga., two miler; William J. Lauck, Jr., of Fredericksburg, miler; Lemuel E. Mayo, Jr., of Portsmouth, pole vaulter and high jumper; and William S. Dix, Jr., of Berryville, manager.

At the state meet of Southern Conference teams in the Old Dominion held in Lexington last Saturday, Wisner lowered two marks. He ran the 100 yard dash in 9.9 and the 220 yard dash in 22 seconds. In an earlier meet he had extended the broad jump record to 24 feet, 3½ inches.

Since hurting his back in an indoor meet in Chapel Hill two winters ago Wisner has not been able to do much jumping. He has practiced very little and in only one meet this spring has he taken more than one jump in order to win first place.

Wisner has been twice captain of track at Virginia. He came here from Woodberry Forest where he first began to make a name for himself on the cinder path. He is most popular and his class work in the college has won him a place on the "Dean's List" of distinguished students. He belongs to the Delta Kappa Epsilon national fraternity and many other organizations.

Virginia has not competed in the Southern Conference meet since 1926 when the Cavalier team won second honors. The eight men who are going to Birmingham form a well balanced company.

Freshman Chapel

At freshman chapel Monday and Tuesday, Edward Scheidt, director of the student survey, will tell about the University's work with prospective students.

Infirmary List

Those confined to the infirmary yesterday were Frank Dunn, Stanley T. Peace, William H. Potter, Clyde Ramsey, Adam W. Cary, and A. H. Powell.

Gandhi is coming to America. We hope these wear-no-hat boys don't get fool ideas about pants and shirts, too.—Dallas News.

Yeomans And Hendlin Enter Semi-Final Round

Hendlin Upsets Judge Beaver, Tulane, While Yeomans Defeats Mayer, Tulane.

Racketmen of the University of North Carolina and Tulane university split honors in the quarter-finals of the annual Southern Conference net tournament, being held in Birmingham, Ala., this week.

Both Carolina singles players and the doubles team advanced to the semi-finals while Tulane advanced one singles player and two doubles teams.

Burwell of Sewanee is the other singles player in the semi-finals round while Beaver and Napier of Georgia will make out the remaining doubles team.

In the quarter-finals round Yeomans, Carolina No. 3, defeated Martin Mayer, Tulane No. 2, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1, to enter the semi-finals while Hendlin, Carolina No. 4, entered the semi-finals upsetting Judge Beaver of Georgia, who paired with Wilmer Hines of North Carolina to win the junior doubles championship of the United States, 2-6, 6-1, 6-4.

Neither Hendlin nor Yeomans had any trouble advancing, defeating their opponents easily.

The quarter-finals round of the doubles brought the biggest upset of the tourney so far. O'Kelly and Doyle, unseeded Tulane doubles combination, defeated Burwell and Hare of Sewanee, seeded No. 3, 1-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Hendlin and Yeomans advanced to the doubles quarter-finals by default when the Faulkner brothers of Mississippi failed to appear.

The semi-finals will find Yeomans of Carolina meeting Eastman of Tulane; Burwell of Sewanee meets Hendlin of Carolina. In the doubles Hendlin and Yeomans of Carolina meet O'Kelly and Doyle of Tulane and Beaver and Napier of Georgia will meet Eastman and Mayer of Tulane.

SEDALIA SINGERS WILL GIVE CONCERT THURSDAY

The glee club of the Palmer Memorial institute at Sedalia, near Greensboro, will give a concert next Thursday evening at 8:30 in the Pickwick theatre. The program will include the singing of Negro spirituals by a mixed quartet.

Twenty-five talented Negro singers compose the glee club. Last year it sang at Boston, where it was greeted by a large audience. Its performance was highly praised by the music reviewers of that city.

The program for Thursday is under the management of Mrs. Charlotte Hawkins, of the Palmer Memorial institute. The entertainment was brought here by the Negro Methodist church of Chapel Hill, through a committee headed by Nathaniel Sellars. Special seats in the theatre will be reserved for white people.

Senator J. Ham Lewis predicts four political parties in 1932. No, no, Jim, we really haven't enough graft for the two we now have.—Hubbard (Ore.) Enterprise.

After spending a month at the bottom of the league, the Philadelphia Athletics, world champions, now hold grimly on to first place. Looks like history will repeat . . . After startling the baseball world for three weeks, the Boston Braves have carefully wended their way down to the second division in the National League, which is their normal station in life . . . Because Jim Londos would not meet Strangler Lewis, the grand old man of the mat, the Illinois Athletic Commission, has declared the heavy weight title vacant . . .

There are rumors going abroad that Coach Jim Ashmore has accepted a scouting job with the St. Louis Cardinals. If these reports are true, then Carolina will lose a great coach and the Cards will get one of the shrewdest, keenest baseball experts ever to don a pair of spiked shoes . . . Carolina's loss is St. Louis' gain . . . At George Washington University, the football letters are very insignificant. They are eight inches high by a foot wide, and any man of slightly larger than the average can wear one . . . Rugby is invading the Northwestern campus. An exhibition game will be played tomorrow in the Dyche Stadium. If the students approve, then the game may be inaugurated as a varsity sport next year . . .

The Davidson seniors defeated the faculty recently, 17-11. At Durham yesterday, the Duke profs carried off a 11-6 decision over the graduating class, which proves that baseball is over-emphasized at the Blue Devil school . . . Continuing a tradition of many years' standing, the members of the boards of the Harvard Lampoon and the Princeton Tiger will get together at the Orange school for the baseball game and the banquet following the game. The game will introduce a new feature of baseball and one that might be used very well by the Brooklyn Robins. As many as twenty men can be used on one side. . .

After going homerless for almost two weeks, Lou Gehrig started earning his salary Thursday when he hammered his fifth and sixth circuit clouts of the year. . . Big Bill Tilden took his third straight match from Vinnie Richards yesterday, 6-4, 5-7, 7-5, 6-2. . . Sam Gurneau is a sophomore at State and has already won four major letters. Not bad at all . . . Don't be surprised to see Lefty

(Continued on last page)

HOUSE FOR RENT

Five room furnished cottage for rent; summer months; shower bath and all conveniences. Phone 6381 before June 1st.

STATE BASEBALL TITLE CAPTURED BY MOUNT AIRY

New Champions Defeat Rowland, 14-13, in Unusual Contest; Perry's Relief Work Shines.

The Mount Airy high school nine won the Class B high school championship here yesterday when they took a 14-13 decision over Rowland, eastern finalists.

"Dizzy" Dean, star of the champions' mound staff, hurled all but two-thirds of the final inning. Dean was hammered hard, allowing thirteen hits and errors by his mates accounting for most of the losers' runs. The Mount Airy left hander struck out thirteen Rowland batsmen and walked three. In the ninth inning, Dean was removed in favor of Perry, big right hander, when the losers staged a rally, in which they were aided by two rank errors on the part of the Mount Airy infield.

King started on the hill for Rowland and pitched five innings before being relieved by McCormick, who up to that time was catching. McCormick limited the victors to two hits in four innings.

Faircloth, Rowland, was the hitting star of the game, getting four hits, including a single, two doubles and a triple, in five times at bat. E. Royal was close behind his team mate with three safe blows, all singles.

Dean, winning pitcher also led his team at bat, garnering three hits, one a double, in five time at bat. Kirkman and Badget hit safely twice, both batters making triples.

The box score:

Mt. Airy (14)	ab	r	h	e
Coble, ss	4	3	1	1
Satterfield, 1b	3	1	0	2
Ayers, 2b	3	3	2	1
Kirkman, 3b	5	1	2	1
Dean, p	5	3	3	0
Badget, cf	5	2	2	0
McKinney, c	5	0	1	0

(Continued on last page)

WIN Your Share of the $100,000 Awards in KODAK'S INTERNATIONAL PICTURE COMPETITION

COME IN today for a circular, giving the simple contest rules and suggestions. Get started at once. Be determined to win one of the big money prizes!

For pictures of prize-winning quality, load up with Kodak Film and let our experts handle the developing and printing. You'll find that it pays. Make our store your headquarters for contest information and all picture-making supplies.

You can rent a Camera from our store—No deposit required. Rent one today for the week-end.

Students' Supply Store
"Headquarters for All Photographic Supplies"

THE SMOKE SHOP
EAT WITH US DRINK WITH US

DANCE

JACK WARDLAW AND HIS TAR HEELS

LAST DANCE OF SPRING QUARTER

Tickets on Sale at Book Exchange and Pritchard-Lloyd Drug Store
Tickets Will Be Sold at Front Door of Gym Tonight at 8:30

Order Of The Grail

SURVEY MADE OF SELF - HELP MEN LISTED AT YALE

Report Shows One-Third of Students Are Self-Supporting But Not "Grinds."

Self-supporting students at Yale who receive scholarships and achieve higher marks than their classmates are not mere "grinds," but participate in student affairs almost as successfully as do those who are not working their way through college. This was learned recently when John C. Diller, associate director of the bureau of appointments at Yale, gave the results of a survey of the records of 2,342 students made for the Yale alumni university fund association by the department of personnel study at Yale.

The announcement was made at the annual spring meeting of the class representatives of the alumni fund, which this year is concentrating its efforts chiefly on raising funds for the assistance of self-supporting students at Yale, and is, therefore, interested in analyzing the personal and all-around qualifications of students thus to be assisted. The dinner took place at the University club. George Parmly Day, treasurer of the college, and Dean Clarence W. Mendell, were the other speakers. Lansing P. Reed presided.

Classes Compared

The present sophomore, junior, and senior classes at Yale, Mr. Diller said, were used in making the study, which consists of a comparison of extra-curricular activites of scholarship recipients all of whom are registered at the bureau of appointments, and those who are not self-supporting. Forty-four percent of the scholarship holders (as compared with fifty-four percent of their classmates) were found to have won distinction in some form of organized student activity. Even the much-coveted 'Major Y' was won by as large a percentage of the working students as of the others, though a somewhat larger proportion of those not self-supporting won other forms of athletic insignia. Twenty-four percent of the students who earned part of their own way achieved prominence in non-athletic activities, as against thirty percent of those who do not work for their expenses. Twenty-seven percent of the scholarship recipients and twenty percent of all self-supporting students moreover won scholastic honors as against nine percent of the rest of the class. Only in respect to the percentage who are members of fraternities do those more financially-favored students significantly exceed the ones who are earning their own way.

One-Third Self-Help

One-third of the Yale undergraduates are shown by these figures to be working their way through college. Many additional students are also registered for term-time or summer employment at the bureau of appointments, but in this survey only those of whose earnings the Bureau had actual records during the past year, were included in the self-supporting group. The care with which recipients of scholarship aid, from university and alumni funds, are selected, is shown both by the relatively small proportion of students thus aided, and by the high calibre of their achievement. Only one-fifth of the entire student body, and three-fifths even of those working their way through, obtained scholarships or loans, and these men, as shown by the analysis of activities, are also the outstanding and most versatile among the working students.

Zimmerman's Article In German Magazine

Dr. E. W. Zimmerman, of the commerce school wrote an article that was printed in the April number of the Weltwirtschaftthches Archiv. This magazine is published by the Institute for World Economics at the University of Kiel.

Some of the main facts in Dr. Zimmerman's article are as follows:

"Modern world economy, still in the amorphous stage, is subject to radical changes, both structural and functional. These changes destroy the priori comparability of the different branches of production as well as of commodities. Thus the premises on which the law of comparative costs rests loses their practical significance. A new basic pattern of conditions underlying world economy is, therefore, suggested as a supplement to or a substitution for the traditional pattern. The form of the new pattern is that of a hierarchy.

"The mechanical revolution has created a new resource basis of civilization. This new basis is composed of inanimate energy (energy derived from the fossil fuels), inorganic substances (the metals), science, and capital. As an instrument of material production this modern resource basis is intrinsically superior to the ancient basis made up of sunshine, rain, soil, muscular energy, and living organic substances. The nations of the world which for geographical, racial, and historical reasons are in a position to build their economies on the new resource basis are predestined to dominate the regions of the world condemned to continue their economic life on the ancient resource basis. World economy, therefore, has become a hierarchical structure."

New Campus Structual Units Will Be Finished During This Year

(Continued from first page)

a console, which will be located in a room in the tower directly beneath the chimes and will be connected with the bells by wire cables.

The casting of the bells is now being done at the Meneely Bell Foundry in Troy, New York. From the chimes a remarkable great number of tone changes can be affected; the set for the University will permit of 479,091,600 shades of tone.

The tower, completely installed with the chimes, is to be ready for dedication Thanksgiving day, 1931, just before the annual Carolina-Virginia football game.

Dedication in November

Operations begun on Carr building March 15 have been steadily carried on and the building will be completed by June 15. The structure has been entirely renovated on the inside and has been extensively overhauled externally. New doors have been made for both entrances, windows have been fixed, tiles on the roof replaced, and the bricks cleaned.

To date all the rooms, some thirty in all, have been replastered and new flooring laid. There is to be running water in each room. One of the features of the building is that the mail box has been built into the wall so that the doors to the individual boxes are flush with the wall.

There was some talk of the Law association requesting the use of the building as quarters exclusively for law students and that the building would be modeled after Smith building, dormitory for graduate students, but nothing definite has yet been said as to the final disposition of the structure.

Mention The Daily Tar Heel when buying.

FOUR BUSTS ARE ADDED TO N. Y. U. HALL OF RENOWN

Whitman, Monroe, Maury, and Whistler Join Ranks With Other Great Americans.

The busts of four noted Americans were unveiled in the Hall of Fame at New York university, May 14. They were Walt Whitman, the poet, who spent his youth in Brooklyn, New York, did newspaper work in New Orleans, and was a resident of Camden, New Jersey, at the time of his death; James Monroe, a resident of Virginia, fifth president of the United States and sponsor of the Monroe doctrine; Mathew Fontaine Maury, oceanographer and scientist, who was born near Fredericksburg, Virginia; and James Abbott McNeill Whistler, painter and etcher, who was born in Lowell, Massachusetts.

The Hall of Fame for great Americans at New York university was founded in 1900 by Helen Miller Gould, philanthropist, by a donation of $100,000.

150 Tablets

The building is a semi-circular colonade around the library of the university containing 150 tablets to be inscribed with the names of the most notable Americans, nominated by a jury of 100 and passed on by a committee of judges.

The Hall of Fame was opened on Decoration day, 1901, when twenty-nine tablets were unveiled to the following great Americans: George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, Daniel Webster, Benjamin Franklin, Ulysses S. Grant, John Marshall, Thomas Jefferson, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Robert Fulton, Henry W. Longfellow, Washington Irving, Jonathan Edwards, Samuel F. B. Morse, David Glascoe Farragut, Henry Clay, George Peabody, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Peter Cooper, Eli Whitney, Robert E. Lee, Horace Mann, John James Audubon, James Kent, Henry Ward Beecher, Joseph Story, John Adams, William Ellery Channing, Gilbert Charles Stuart, and Asa Gray.

Classes of Notables

The names of the members of the Hall of Fame are most generally divided into the following thirteen classes: authors and editors; explorers and missionaries; business men; educators; inventors; preachers and theologians; scientists; engineers; and architects; judges and lawyers; musicians and artists; physicians and surgeons; statesmen; and soldiers and sailors.

The rules adopted by the university council prescribe an addition of five tablets at the end of each five years until the year 2000 when the list will be complete.

STATE BASEBALL TITLE CAPTURED BY MOUNT AIRY

(Continued from preceding page)

Hatcher, lf	4	1	1	0
Jordan, rf	5	0	1	0
Perry, p	0	0	0	0
	39	14	13	5

Rowland (13)	ab	r	h	e
Jackson, 3b	6	3	1	0
Faircloth, 2b	5	3	4	1
E. Royal, ss	5	1	3	0
King, p, c	6	0	1	1
A. Royal, cf	3	0	0	2
Ivey, lf	5	1	0	0
McCormick, c, p	4	1	1	1
Townsend, 1b	4	3	2	0
Bond, rf	5	1	0	0
	43	13	12	5

Rowland	040	202	401
Mt. Aairy	350	320	01x

Summary: three-base hits: Badget, Kirkman, Faircloth; two-base hits: King, Faircloth (2), Dean, Ayers; hit by pitcher: McCormick (Coble), Dean (McCormick); umpires: Magner and Sapp (U.N.C.).

FEE NEEDED FOR MAINTENANCE OF STUDENT CENTER

(Continued from first page)

sional manager of the union who must also take charge of the equipment. The lounge room on the first floor must also be furnished.

After the union has gotten on its feet the fee will, in all probability, be reduced, as the income from various amusements which are being planned to go in the building, will help defray some of the expenses.

Building Almost Complete

The Graham Memorial building has been a long time in the making. During the process of its life there have been many times when people have thought that it would never be completed. The campaign to raise the money for the erection of a memorial to the late President Edward K. Graham, began in 1921. Due to the business depression of that year the campaign was stopped in 1922, but reopened in 1923 and by 1924 enough money had been gathered to start work on the construction of the building. Then the work stopped when the fund was exhausted and the building remained unfinished until this past fall when a New York alumnus gave $80,000 for its completion. During the conscription of the money the students of the college themselves collected $30,000 which was handed over to the fund. On three different occasions, a committee from the student body tried to take over the whole proposition, to collect the necessary fund and then to organize the future of the building.

At the banquet, Mr. R. B. House was confident that this interest the students have shown in the past would increase with the realization that the $80,000 to finish the Memorial had helped solve their problem.

Budgets Rearranged

The committee selected to rearrange the budget of the four classes made its report through Mayne Albright, president of the student union who presided over the banquet, and it was found that the junior and senior dues would remain the same, that is, ten dollars and nine dollars respectively, while the fees of the two lower classes would be raised to four dollars a year for each class. The reason the senior and junior dues remain the same is that both of these classes had a large surplus this year, above $800, and so the regular class dues of these classes were reduced $2.75, and the debate dues for each was cut from fifty cents to twenty-five, which along with the three dollars for the union, would make the same sixteen-fifty for seniors and nine-fifty for juniors that they have always paid. In the case of the lower classes three dollars was added to their usual fee of one dollar.

Besides this discussion of the proposed union, President Albright announced the committee that was to attend the Student Federation meeting at Duke this week-end. John Lang, president of the North Carolina Federation, spoke of that organization's meeting in Durham, outlining the program. Then Albright announced that awards night had been set for May 25, and stressed his desire to have a large attendance on that night rather than just those few that were to receive the honors. He said that it was his belief that this should be the largest mass meeting of the year. With the committee voting to go on record as being strongly in favor of the $1 a quarter fee to be placed on each student for the running of the union, it was decided that the proposition be put before the student body in the near future.

Student Leaders

The students at the meeting were Mayne Albright, president of the student union; W. C. Medford, vice-president of the student union; Haywood Weeks, secretary of the student council; Jack Dungan, editor of the Daily Tar Heel; Holmes Davis, editor-elect of the Yackety Yack; D. C. McClure, editor of the Carolina Magazine; Pete Gilchrist, editor of the Buccaneer; F. M. James, president of the Y. M. C. A.; K. C. Ramsay, president of the Di senate; McB. Fleming-Jones, senior representative on the Publications Union board; John Phil Cooper, president of the Interfraternity council; Hamilton Hobgood, president of the rising senior class; Sparks Griffin, president of the rising junior class; Walter Jones, president of the rising sophomore class; Theron Brown, president of the Athletic association; J. A. Williams, president of the Law association; Ed Hazelwood, chief cheerleader; Miss Reeme Moore, retiring president of the Woman's association; Miss Gabrielle McColl, president-elect of the Woman's association; W. B. Snow, retiring president of the German club; Red Greene, former president of the student union; John Lang, president of the State Student Federation and Bert Haywood, speaker of the Phi.

Faculty Invited

The faculty members who attended the banquet were: President Frank P. Graham; Dean F. F. Bradshaw; R. B. House, executive secretary; Dean A. W. Hobbs, of the liberal arts school; Dean. D. D. Carroll, of the commerce school; T. J. Wilson, Jr., dean of administration; L. R. Wilson, librarian; G. A. Harrer, of the Latin department; M. T. Van Hecke, of the law school; W. M. Dey, of the romance language department; C. T. Woollen, graduate manager of athletics; Henry Johnston, Jr.; H. G. Baity, dean of the engineering school; J. G. Beard, dean of the pharmacy school; J. M. Saunders, alumni secretary; H. F. Comer, secretary of the Y. M. C. A.; W. S. Bernard; J. M. Booker; H. D. Myers; H. S. Dyer, head of the music department; R. A. Fetzer, director of athletics; and E. J. Woodhouse.

SPORTS

(Continued from preceding page)

Jenkins perform in a Durham unie this summer. Lefty had his salary cut from $300 to $150 by the Springfield club of the Eastern League, all of which doesn't suit Jenkins one bit. . . After thrilling North Carolina football fans this last fall, Buzz Rosky may start panicking the East—that is if he accepts the appointment to West Point that was offered him recently. . . Twenty Grand is our pick for the Kentucky Derby today.

David Belasco Dies Of Heart Trouble

David Belasco, hailed as dean of the American stage, succumbed to a heart attack Thursday afternoon in New York following a previous attack of pneumonia which caused him to be brought home from Atlantic City where he was trying a new play. His 77th birthday was two months away.

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow morning at 11:00 o'clock.

Daily Tar Heel Advertisers

For The Week Ending May 16, 1931

Paragon Ice Cream Store
Chapel Hill Movie Guild
Carolina Theatre
W. B. Sorrell
Dr. H. P. Ross
University Book and Stationery Store
Smoke Shop
Coldex
Seeman Printing Company
Carolina Playmakers
Students' Supply Store
Randolph-McDonald, Inc.
International Merchants Marine Co.
Berman's Department Store
Finchley
Metal Arts Co.
American Bus Lines, Inc.
Grail Dance
Edwards Tailoring Co.
Kellogg Cereal Co.
Strowd Motor Co.
Model Market & Grocery
Stetson "D"
Durham Ice Cream Company

FACULTY, STUDENTS, AND ALUMNI!

The Daily Tar Heel

Heartily Endorses the Above Firms and Asks You To Patronize Them.

ORGAN CONCERT
NELSON O. KENNEDY
MUSIC HALL—4:45

The Daily Tar Heel

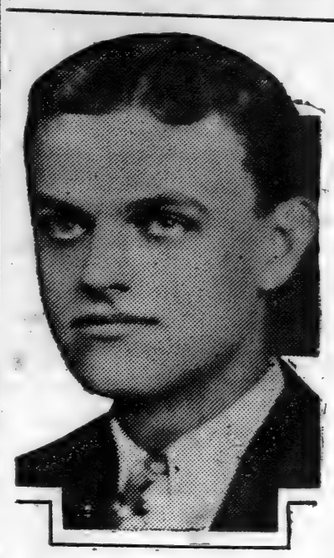
ORGAN CONCERT
NELSON O. KENNEDY
MUSIC HALL—4:45

VOLUME XXXIX | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SUNDAY, MAY 17, 1931 | NUMBER 173

NEW YORK FUND PLANS STUDY OF NEGRO QUESTION

Rhodesian Student Will Be Sent Here to Investigate Race Problems.

New York, May 16.—The appointment of Roger D. H. Jones, a graduate of Cambridge university, to study astronomy at the University of Virginia, and of George Stark, attached to the Native Development Department of Southern Rhodesia, South Africa, to study problems of Negro education at the University of North Carolina, was announced today by the Commonwealth Fund, of New York, of which Edward S. Harkness is president.



These British visitors, with thirty-four others enrolled at other universities, will come to the United States next September for a two-year period as Commonwealth Fund fellows. The fellowships were established in 1925 to further the development of understanding and good-will between Great Britain and the United States. Under this plan, 147 men and women from British, Scottish, and Welsh universities, from the dominions and colonies, and from the government services overseas have already come to American universities for graduate and special study.

Interested in America

According to a report written by a fellow just returned to England, "Every young Englishman today is curious about and interested in the United States of America. In England no other country in the world arouses more discussion, more difference of opinion or reveals more knowledge and ignorance than your country. If one were

(Continued on page three)

Retiring President

John A. Lang, retiring president of N. C. S. F., went out of office with the meeting of the association in Durham yesterday, which was attended by students from all over the state.

CECELIA BASON TO STUDY IN EUROPE

Miss Cecelia Bason, of the University faculty in the school of education, has been appointed a member of a select group of American teachers who are to sail from New York May 21 for an educational tour of France and Germany during the summer months.

The tour is being sponsored by the International Institute of College Teachers, Columbia university, New York City. In Europe the tour will be under the educational direction of the ministry of education in France and Germany, which means that the delegates will have entree to libraries and museums not open to the average tourist, and that other honors, and privileges will be accorded them.

The delegates will visit leading colleges and universities in both countries.

Columbia University President Writes On Modern Day Liberty

In the Opinion of Nicholas Murray Butler, the Modern Citizen Is Surrounded by Both Opportunities and Limitations

(Reprinted by permission of the Columbia Spectator)

By Nicholas Murray Butler

Liberty is the freedom from all restraints but those which the lawful rights of others impose. Liberty, therefore, attaches to man as a social and political animal. It relates to his conduct and opportunities as a member of a body politic. Liberty contradicts and denies license just as completely as it contradicts and denies tyranny. To escape from restraints other than those imposed by the lawful rights of others, men have made every conceivable sacrifice. To be permitted to hold opinions of one's own choosing, to pursue the calling of one's own preference, to move about as inclination and opportunity may lead, to retain as one's own possession the rewards of one's labor and skill, are inseparable from liberty. The free man, therefore, lives surrounded by both opportunities and limitations. The opportunities are an invitation to the exercise of his own capacities; the limitations are the just opportunities and privileges of others. It is one of the paradoxes and marvels of human nature that man grows in power and in grace as he lives and works with others who have the same privileges and opportunities as himself. As he rises superior to these limitations and through sacrifice overcomes them and turns them into elements of strength and power for himself, he grows in individuality and usefulness as a citizen.

It is law which imposes the limitations that are characteristic of liberty. Law is nothing more or less than the system of collection of principles and rules of human government in their application to property and conduct, to be enforced by a political authority, which are upheld by the common will. Laws themselves change, but the principles underlying the existence of law do not, and can not, change, unless society and civilization are to be destroyed. They are the long and painful product of evolution operating in the field of human conduct and human affairs. The really intelligent man regards the tried and tested products of time with high respect; the revolutionist would destroy them at one blow for the pleasure of returning to chaos. It is of high importance to teach that law is not caprice, that it is not tyranny, that there is to be no discrimination in its application. It is the sovereign people themselves who speak by the mouthpiece of the law, and the institution and enforcement of law are the people's own institutions and agencies.

Carolina No Longer Light Of Liberalism For South

Excessive Faculty Restrictions in Regard to Student Privileges and Activities Have Raised Warranted Protests From Open-Minded University Men.

EDITOR'S NOTE: It is with no flippant or bitter attitude that we here present the protest of six student leaders who, having the interest of student activities at heart and seeing their apathetic condition a deplorable state, have sought a reason for such a state and sincerely have come to the conclusion that there is no single student activity genuinely a student activity, due to the unconscious and gradual encroachment of faculty members and their eventual overshadowing of students.

The Daily Tar Heel has been enlisted in the cause of STUDENT CONTROL OF STUDENT ACTIVITIES. We ask a sane and open minded consideration of the problem by everyone concerned, and the same right to speak out bravely and sincerely that which has been rumored and whispered for years, as did our forefathers at Independence hall.

Insidious in its nature and innocuous in its effect has been the gradual unconscious assuming of control of the student extra-curricular activities on the campus here by members of the faculty and the administration. Perhaps student generations in the past have looked with approval upon this assumption of student prerogative by unofficial and unelected faculty boards, committees, and individuals. However, for four years rumblings and discontent have been sporadically issued. At last and but recently the student voice in the shape of a newly elected group of conscientious student officials has become articulate.

The University, if it were ever truly liberal, is no longer as one Tar Heel writer has said "the beacon of liberalism for the whole South."

Among movements aimed at furthering the conservatism of the already declining liberal center here was the movement on the part of the deans of the schools of commerce, "liberal" arts, and applied science by which they successfully maneuvered the faculty into abolishing optional attendance and the cut system, limiting absence to three and five a quarter. The liberalism of Royster and Hibbard went by the board when the former died and latter was able to escape these ever narrowing walls.

Hibbard's System

It was Dean Hibbard's plan to give optional attendance to the two upper classes, and to allow as many as ten cuts to freshmen and sophomores. During the time that this plan was in effect, it was found that the number of students making the honor roll was larger than this year under compulsory attendance despite what has been said. Further investigation revealed that Hibbard was of the opinion that the members of the junior and senior classes were perfectly able to think and act for themselves.

Faculty Meeting

At a meeting of the faculty a few months ago attendance rules were passed which allowed optional attendance to no one, permitting three to five cuts per quarter as a course has classes per week. In order for a student to receive credit for a course he must have attended that class at least seventy-five percent of the time they have ruled.

These regulations were not to be put into effect until the beginning of the fall quarter, the attendance problem of this quarter being placed under the heads of the several departments. Acting with this as their backing, the dean of the liberal arts school and the dean of the commerce school have practically "outlawed" cutting classes in these two divisions arbitrarily and mechanically putting men on probation and under threat of suspension with little human feeling.

Acting also under this same faculty ruling, the psychology department placed even more rigid restrictions upon students. It was first announced that all persons missing a psychology class must make up this absence and be fined fifty cents, and that "announced" quizes missed would have to be punished by a fine of one dollar unless the instructor decided to fail the student on that quiz. A committee of students was chosen to confer with the department head in an attempt to reduce make-up charges. The fifty cents unexcused class make-up fee was reduced to twenty five cents, and likewise the laboratory fee, but the other charges remained the same.

Yellow Journal Suppressed

In the spring of 1929 members of Sigma Upsilon, a national literary fraternity, published a scandal sheet known as the Yellow Journal in which faculty men as well as students were unjustly lampered. Despite the fact that such a publication was exceeding bad taste it has been found that the stories all had sane basis of fact in them. Instead of prohibiting further publication of the sheet, the administration saw fit to bring tremendous pressure to bear upon the student council and to have "shipped" all persons connected with the journal.

Student Entertainment

Nowhere is there a single student activity in which students have actual and final control. The students on the Student Entertainment Committee have only a theoretical voice in the selection and management of the course. The faculty members pay little or no attention to what students may desire, and little if any responsibility is felt on their part, despite the fact that the money for such entertainment is contributed in an extra-curricular manner by the student body. The Tar Heel asks with full cause why this committee can not operate as efficiently with a student majority expressing student desire.

Athletic Council

In some educational institutions students have a vote which is heard and respected by those administrating and controlling student athletics. We have yet to hear of many incidents in which the Athletic Association has been guided by student opinion rather than what they may consider student opinion to be. If athletics at the Univer-

(Continued on last page)

Vesper Concert

As his final presentation of the year, Professor Nelson O. Kennedy will give his sixth vesper concert of the year in the music auditorium this afternoon at 4:45.

In addition to the five concerts by Professor Kennedy, a series of three guest organists has taken place since the dedication of the organ by Edward Eigenschenck in November.

The program scheduled for today includes: Rogers, Andante Quasi Fantasia; Alexander Russell, The Bell of St. Anne de Beaupre; Wolstenholme, Allegretto; Kinder, Jubilate Amen; Rachmaninoff, Prelude in C sharp minor; George B. Nevin, In Memoria; and Widor, Finale (Second Symphonie).

EXTENSION MEN AT CONFERENCE

M. F. Vining, R. M. Grumman, and E. R. Rankin, of the extension department of the University, left yesterday for New York where they will attend the sixth annual meeting of the American Association for Adult Education, which will occur there from Monday to Wednesday, in the new school for social research.

Grumman is a member of state and national commissions on the enrichment of adult life, while Rankin and Vining are being sent by the University extension division. The University is planning to expand its adult educational activities soon. A sectional meeting will be devoted entirely to discussion of University extension.

Among some of the several notables that have been obtained to address the association are: President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University; Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War; and Miss Dorothy Canfield Fisher, authoress.

HILL MERCHANTS WILL ENTERTAIN CAROLINA SENIORS

Local Stores Will Treat Graduating Class to Week of Free Attractions.

The annual senior week activities will get underway Monday and continue through Friday. The various merchants of Chapel Hill have offered to continue their annual display of generosity by opening their establishments to the seniors in a regular schedule. On Monday the Smoke Shop and Lacock's Shoe Shop have offered free drinks and free shoe shines, respectively. Tuesday the seniors will be treated by Suttons' to free drinks and they will play miniature golf free. After this exercise they will be treated to free buttermilk at the Durham Dairy Products company. Wednesday more drinks and shoe shines at Pritchard-Loyd's and the University Shoe Shop are scheduled. At the Paragon Ice Cream company and the Waffle Shop the seniors may obtain ice cream and coffee.

More Treats

If the members of the class have survived this first assortment of treats, they will have one last splurge on Friday. The D. and G. Cafe will serve ice tea and cakes all day except during the lunch hour. Harry's Grill will give apples or cigars to go with the free drinks of the Carolina Coffee shop. After having their footwear treated for the last time through generosity, the seniors will feast at the Friendly on coffee and cakes, the cakes coming from the Hill Bakery, at 10:30 p. m.

Then with the peanuts given by the Campus Confectionery they will attend the free show at the Carolina Theatre at 11:15.

'John Barleycorn' Is Supreme At North Carolina University

Eighteenth Amendment Is Farce Here When Students Wish to Obtain Any Assortment of Orange County Thirst-Quenching Beverages.

(EDITORS NOTE: This is a composite story by five members of the DAILY TAR HEEL staff who have made a recent investigation into the liquor situation at the University.)

Prohibition, as a "Noble Experiment," has as its laboratory the various colleges and universities of the nation, where today's youth and tomorrow's citizenry congregate, for it is among these future leaders and voters that the theory will meet its final test, not among the more partial generation which has been responsible for the passage of the present enforcement laws.

The state of North Carolina has taken stringent means of barring drink from the campus of the University of North Carolina. The "wet-drinking, dry-voting" taxpayers have not been willing to permit any laxity whatsoever of moral behavior on the campus of a state-supported institution. Thus, as is typical of most state universities, there is a condition of extreme enforcement: the federal laws are upheld by the local police, and local laws are made and enforced by the faculty and student government.

Laws Are Farce

Yet, even in this extreme condition, the laws are a farce. "John Barleycorn" is king at practically all social gatherings among students here. From banquets to entertaining a friend, from house-parties to private dates, from football games to dances, spirits are accepted as indispensable to the general gaiety. Even the age-old feminine attitude of opposition to strong drink has broken down, and a large percentage of girls are not averse to drinking in moderation themselves. Added to the natural exhiliration obtained from drink, is the lure of the forbidden fruit, of accomplishing the forbidden, and of following personal convictions in defiance of arbitrary law.

For the first time in several years, the town authorities seem to have taken a hand in an attempt to curb drinking at the University. This is based on the rumor that federal agents were to be brought to raid fraternity houses and dormitories. No real action was taken by the police department, but the rumor served to curb drinking for a short while.

Drinking Very Apparent

At this time of the year, drinking becomes more apparent, due to the many social affairs taking place on the Hill. This is not an indication that drinking is increasing, but that it seems

(Continued on last page)

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays. Entered as Second Class matter at the post office at Chapel Hill, N. C., under Act of March 3, 1879.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $4.00 for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

Jack Dungan ..... Editor
H. N. Patterson ..... Bus. Mgr.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Ed French ..... Mng. Ed.

Editorial Board

Charles G. Rose ..... Chairman
J. M. Little — Frank J. Manheim
W. M. Bryson — Will Yarborough
Alden Stahr — Bob Barnett
Wex Malone

Assignment Editors
Otto S. Steinreich
Dan Kelly, Assistant

Sunday Editor
Charles G. Rose

City Editors
Bill McKee — George Wilson
Peter Hairston — Jack Riley

Desk Men
W. R. Woerner — Don Shoemaker
Vass Shepherd

Sports Staff
Jack Bessen ..... Sports Editor

Assistants
T. H. Broughton — P. Alston

News Men
E. M. Spruill — F. W. Ashley
W. E. Davis — Claiborn Carr
Charles Poe

Reporters
Saul Gordon — Bob Reynolds
Woodward Glenn — M. V. Barnhill, Jr.
William Blount — John Burroughs
U. B. Phillips — M. H. Long
Tom Walker — W. L. Gray
Ronald Kochendorfer — Walker Stamps
Phil Sasser

BUSINESS STAFF

Hal Worth ..... Circulation Mgr.
Harlan Jameson ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.
John Manning ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.

Advertising Department
Al L. Olmstead ..... Advertising Mgr.
Pendleton Gray ..... Advertising Mgr.
Bernard Solomon ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
R. D. McMillan, Jr. ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
James N. Nowell — H. A. Clark

Collection Department
Jack Hammer ..... Collection Mgr.
John Barrow — Frank S. Dale
Stokes Adderton — Jack Stokes

Correspondence Department
Ed Michaels, Jr. ..... Correspondence Mgr.
Wynn Hamm ..... Ass't. Cor. Mgr.

Sunday, May 17, 1931

House Should Accept Compromise

The conferees have mapped out a revenue program which, of course, is not absolutely satisfactory. No compromise measure ever has been ideal. They have, however, mapped out a program with the fifteen-cent ad valorem tax and higher corporation taxes which should be acceptable to both houses.

The senate which has been so unreservedly opposed to any form of a sales tax probably will raise no objections to the measure. Representative Angus Dhu MacLean should throw his strength in the house to the proposed measure. The bill would raise all but $4,000,000.00 of the necessary $18,000,000.00 for schools from sources other than ad valorem, and furthermore, the proposed plan reduces ad valorem tax for the support of schools nine cents in Forsyth and eighty-seven in Richmond. In this way it is seen that the poverty stricken counties get a large amount of relief, and the rich counties get a relatively small amount.

But this is placing the burden of taxation where the money is, and that is what the House has been crying for. The corporations, especially the public utilities, will have to bear a heavier burden by the proposed plan, but the farmer will have much less to pay.

We believe that the mandate from the people of Beaufort county will be answered if the proposed measure is adopted. Hence we say Representative MacLean, You and your group in the House should fall in behind the conferees revenue bill and speed the adjournment of this tired and weary legislature.
K. C. R.

The Sunday Hangover

By Wex Malone

From all reports I can gather from the students who actually used the extended chapel period to attend the Human Relations Institute, the lectures were more or less a success, and not totally uninteresting. Such was not the fate of the book shop conducted by the Institute in the lobby of Memorial hall. When the week was over an inventory of the sales of the book store was made. To the disgust of the officials it was discovered that only one book was sold. A glance revealed that the purchaser of the volume was a gentleman named Mayne Albright. The title of the book was Politics and Personality.

* * *

"Daddy, there's a man in the closet." Perhaps you have heard the story. I wonder, however, who knows who the man really was. I discovered the other day that he was no one but little Peedie Weedie Glidewell. According to Billie Carbine, he was in the clothes closet at about 3:00 a. m. one morning. Peedie Weedie insists that Carbine is all wet. Bill retorts that wet doesn't half express the condition of Peedie Weedie that night. Peedie Weedie went back to bed on his own power, and din't even awake.

* * *

It seems that sleep-walking has been very much in vogue lately. Of course everyone knows Titian-haired Ellen Stewart, child prodigy and author of A Very Pale Pink Angel, and Pleasingly Purple. It is rumored that this very pale pink angel was herself pleasingly purple with the cold the other night when she wandered down stairs and out the door on a sleep-walking expedition. As bad luck would have it the night latch snapped behind her. Poor little angel, she didn't know what to do. For some reason she felt that were she to wake up the sleeping inmates they would never understand her situation. After sitting on the front porch with the family cat in her arms for some time the little dear suddenly conceived the brilliant idea that a window might be unlatched. As luck would have it, such turned out to be the situation and Ellen was soon in the arms of Morpheus again (Morpheus, dear children, is the classical name for sleep.)

* * *

Following the example of Al Capone, it is rumored that Skinny McDade, leader of the North Side gang, whose activities were recounted in this column last Sunday, is dead. Those who are best acquainted with McDade report that the crime king has been dead for twenty two years. Others declare that he has just been sleeping.

* * *

I am sorry it is getting late and I won't have time to tell you about the time little Martin Cannon took a pretty waitress from a local cafe to ride in his new Marmon. Never mind, Martin, you will be a big boy soon, and can take your place in the grown people's section.

Oklahoma woman says college women need nighties, spankings and low heels. This illustrates the difference between demand and need.—Dallas News.

You can say one thing for Mr. Mellon. He kept on predicting a defiicit until he got one.—Pottsville Journal.

The stock exchange annex will be 400 feet high. It will be nice to have something in that region up to 400.—Port Arthur News.

(Spring Studio Production, May 14, 15, and 16, Reviewed by James Dawson.)

Notable as the last development in the phenomenon of Carolina playmaking on this campus, the bill of studio productions of original plays was pushed across the footlights with the manner that has been characteristic of the group for the past three years. We grow older, and so do the Playmakers, but neither of us seem to grow any more discerning as the years trickle by. It may be that the plays are as good as they ever were, and that we are losing our grasp, but the odds are all on our side.

Irene Fussler's Love an' Likker is a folky play of Dakota. Couldn't you guess it from the title? The remarkable feature of the piece seemed to be the fact that it had three distinct climaxes, and yet managed to remain within the physical bounds of a one-act play. It concerned itself with the bearing of a child, the crossing of an icy river by a young girl, and the fight of a young man against the demon rum. Ten Nights in a Barroom, if you remember, was satisfied with only one of those themes. Most dramatic was the last climax of the piece, the one in which Sweyn took away the cup of rum from Beel, threw it away, and cried: "You deed as much for me, Beel!" And we are overlooking the intriguing fact that we never found out what it was Beel had done for Sweyn.

Betty Jones and the big St. Bernard who played Jacques took all the honors. Miss Jones' accent was at least consistent, her costume was perfect, and her blonde beauty was suited to the Nordic girl she impersonated. Charles Elledge, as Sweyn, was at ease, but the sound of a broken, Scandinorwegian accent coming from a man who is so far from Nordic was nothing if not shocking. Horace Ward's makeup was bad, and he failed to get the most out of his lines. Robert Reid, as Beel, was adequate, and wore a convincing beard. The Dawg was excellent, by dint of keeping still.

In The Stray Bullet, Playwright Robert Barnett leaped at an idea that was obviously too big for him, and bruised his technique when he missed the mark. The play tried to surround Imeprialism, white supremacy, morals, ethics, the justice and the injustice of war, apart from the comparatively simple theme of a sensitive young soldier who had his ideas on war changed by the death of his friend. We may have been unusually dense, but we could not exactly place his characters in the hierarchy of the army. They wore Sam Brownes, therefore they were officers. But they were doing a sort of sentry duty, so they were privates. Then headquarters sent them orders, and they were officers again. Apart from such a trifle, the whole play was an incident, even labelled so, and had not the magnitude of a one-act play.

Everett Jess, as McKenzie, had an unfortunate tendency to strain his voice too much, in his attempt to create the hard-boiled character. It led to an accenting of unimportant words in his lines, and often destroyed the meaning intended to be conveyed. His efforts at a British accent tricked him into saying "Occidentally" for "accidentally," which threw the audience off the track of the Oriental play. Elmer Oettinger was ill at ease in the part of Hager. His hands bothered him, he played with his belt, he kept his back half bent during most of the action. D. D. Carroll, Jr., made a convincing Boy Scout in the short time he was on the stage.

The setting of the play was simple. It almost succeeding in suggesting the barricade of the concession, except for the unhappy moment when the barbed wire collapsed. The electric fan machine gun offstage reminded one of the wooden toys one buys at circuses to make a rapid clicking noise.

Tom Loy's Glenhurst had more promise than any of the other plays. It was too long, it became tedious to the audience, and there was a great deal of shuffling about in the seats. By the time Beulah made her remark about this "good old familiar kitchen," the place was like home to the audience. We felt we had been there all our lives, and we were even intimate with the old stove, for we have seen it in every folk play since Fixins. And we really felt sorry for Baby, who had to handle those dishes and pewter wares throughout the whole play, when she wasn't cutting bread baked by the Foxville branch of the Chapel Hill bakery. And they never ate it! Good old Daisy was the most annoying character in the piece. She appeared only by proxy, but she kept coming in until we were glad she was dead.

Marion Tatum, as Mommy, was the best character. She wasn't Marion, she was a very old woman. She was convincingly feeble, petty, and whining. Marjorie Good did well with the part of Beulah. Ted Herman was just Ted Herman. He shone through his role and his lines to the detriment of his characterization. Aileen Ewart was merely herself, but the self happened to coincide acceptably with the character of Baby. Her pantomime needed polish in spots, and the business she was given to perform with the plates and bread was enough to spoil any actress' nerves. Tom Loy, in the unimportant part of Dr. Johnson, was too juvenile and too light for the role.

Pleasantly Purple, Ellen Stewart's so-called satire (are we going crazy? We saw no satire.) was about as pleasant as purple could be. Apart from having the usual clever lines and the usual plot, trivial as it was, it made shocking use of soliloquy and aside, things that are somehow just not convincing to an audience that finds them anywhere outside of Shakespeare. There isn't much to be said about the piece, because it didn't have much in it.

Ellen Stewart, as Anita, and Ralph Westerman, as the King, were all the play demanded, which is simultaneously the most and the least that can be said for them. They got everything out of their lines, (and there were one or two that got laughs) and their pantomime was at least lifelike. Charles Keener made almost no impression in his very small part.

And so we have fallen into evil times. There was a day when we went to the Playmakers for good, healthy melodrama, and got it. But now they have grown up, they are ashamed of melodrama, and the result is a completely boring evening for the audiences. And it might not be too much to say that the players themselves were bored, to judge by their lack of the good old verve.

Mr. Koch delivered his usual pre-curtain introduction, but made it unusual by saying: "I don't usually make speeches."

Note: Moore ("Block") Bryson, take back your throne. Another of these would be the end.

Band Rehearsal

President John Clinard requests that all members of the band report for rehearsal tomorrow night at 7:00 o'clock. Plans for the final concert and the commencement band will be made at that time.

A statistician says that we have coal enough to last seven thousand years. What does he mean by "we"?—Punch.

ROZZELLE TO SPEAK IN GREENSBORO MONDAY

The Rev. C. E. Rozzelle, pastor of the Methodist church, will be the main speaker on the program at the banquet given by the Greensboro Merchants' Association when it entertains delegates to the annual convention of the North Carolina Merchants' Association, Monday night.

The speaker served the Myers Park Methodist church prior to coming to Chapel Hill and is a popular member of the Western North Carolina Methodist conference. His address will be one of a series arranged during the two-day convention.

Introducing TALLULAH BANKHEAD

Golden-haired daughter of Dixie!

An American actress, she is the best-loved star of the London stage! She returns now to greater triumphs in her native land!

HERE is the drama of the woman for whom all the world makes delicate, exquisite things! Sure enough of her social position to scorn it! Accustomed enough to money to fling it to the winds!

Yearning enough for love to risk all—name, luxury, money—on one reckless evening, spent before her loveless wedding with the boyish lover she can never hope to marry!

Paramount presents the new woman of the world star

TALLULAH BANKHEAD

in a strong modern drama by Donald Ogden Stewart

"Tarnished Lady"

with

CLIVE BROOK

Alexander Kirkland
(Theatre Guild Star)

— ALSO —

Charlotte Greenwood Comedy "GIRLS WILL BE BOYS"

Paramount Sound News

— Monday —

Tuesday

Ten Powerful and Jealous Men Vow To Get Him!

A bold drama of a man who makes money from love, until fate forces him to pay.

WILLIAM POWELL
in Paramount's
"LADIES' MAN"
RUPERT HUGHES' Sensational Novel With KAY FRANCIS — CAROLE LOMBARD

Also
Audio Review
and
Stan Laurel—Olive Hardy
in
'CHICKEN COME HOME'

Wednesday

A Warner Bros. And Vitaphone Comedy Hit!

GOD'S GIFT TO WOMEN

With FRANK FAY

Wednesday—11 P. M.
Maurice Chevalier
in
"Le Comedien (Playboy) De Paris"

Thursday
BEN LYON
LILA LEE
in
'Misbehaving Ladies'

Friday
ROBERT MONTGOMERY
CLIFF EDWARDS
ERNEST TORRENCE
in
"Shipmates"

Saturday
EL BRENDEL
FIFI DORSAY
in
"Mr. Lemon Of Orange"

One of the Publix-Kincey Theatres

CAROLINA THEATRE

Coming
JOHN BARRYMORE
—in—
"SAVENGALI"

Popular Sports Of Today Date To Ancient Greeks And Romans

Many Sports Can Be Traced Back to Ancients; Future to See Many Changes Developed in Intercollegiate and Professional Sports.

By Thomas H. Broughton

Million dollar gates have become commonplace. Thousands attend the annual football classics such as the Yale-Harvard game or the Army-Navy game, which has been re-established as an annual classic after a period of several years, during which time athletic relations between the two government schools were somewhat strained. Yet, of those thousands, who annually pay millions of dollars to witness the various sports events of the year, how many know the age or the origin of sport they pay to see?

Early Greeks and Romans

Many sports have been traced back as far as the early Greeks and Romans. Tennis has been traced back to the early Greeks, vague references to the game being found in the sixth book of Homer's Odyessy. The origin of football has been found to be very ancient, and it is spoken of on many occasions in the literature of England in the twelfth century; and even further back than that it is evident that the Greeks and Romans had something which might be called similar. Later, in England whole villages played against each other, and the ball was kicked or carried through the streets of the village. Golf was a popular game in England as early at 1457. Bowling came into being about the time of the Middle Ages. Quoits also had their origin with the ancient Greeks, who had a form of discus throwing which was similar in many respects. Polo is traced back before the time of Christ. The Chinese, Japs, and people of India are credited with the origination of the game, although the Persians are given credit for adapting this sport to horseback.

Baseball in Egypt

Our own national game of baseball was played in Egypt over forty centuries ago, but the Americanized form of the game is strictly original. The Chinese had their own form of ball, but the nearest approach to our baseball is the modern cricket of England. Baseball in its present form originated in 1839, in Cooperstown, N. Y.

In spite of all these ancient originations of our modern sports, basketball is one sport that all credit has to be given to the modern world. Credit for its invention is given to Dr. James Nasmith in the early part of the year 1892.

Rowing, another recent sport, is one of the few which was begun in colleges. In approximately 1841 the two large English universities of Oxford and Cambridge began to hold rowing contests annually.

Croquet in its present form is a comparatively modern game. The name seems to indicate France as its origin, and it is said to have been brought from there to Ireland, from Ireland to England, and hence to the United States. Tradition has it that it was evolved from the French game of paille-maille which was played with mallets, balls and hoops as far back as the thirteenth century. Possibility of the game of polo having originated from the French form of crochet is also credited.

Professionalism

Although unable to take credit for the origination of any sport to any great extent, it was left to the Americans to bring into athletics professionalism. Today every sport has its professional counterpart. Baseball was probably among the first of the various sports to become professionalized. As early as 1871 the National Association of Professional Baseball Players was formed. The first organization contained a ten club circuit which was followed by the National League in 1876, the American Association in 1882, and the American League in 1902. Now there are two major leagues, which annually play-off for the diamond championship of the world, and various other smaller leagues. Players for the professional leagues are recruited from colleges and sandlots, an example of which is found in the recent ineligibility of Captain-elect Burgess Whitehead of the 1931 Tar Heel nine,

(Continued on next page)

Carolina Athletic History Lists Thirteen Making Three Letters

George Thompson, a Senior, and John Phipps, a Freshman, Are Best Bets to Make Three Letters of Men Now in School.

By Phil Alston

Due to the tendency during recent years towards specialization in athletics, many of the old timers have set up the cry that no longer are college men all-round athletes, but are specialists in any one particular field. The book of athletic records at Carolina shows that there never has been an oversupply of three-letter men here, and that almost half the number were enrolled here during the past decade.

Carolina first began to have organized teams for intercollegiate competition in 1889 when football and baseball teams took the field. Track was added in 1900, tennis in 1908, basketball in 1911, wrestling in 1923, and boxing and cross country in 1926. For the first eleven years of the athletic history here, then, there were no three letter men, but, with the organization of a track team in 1900, three sport men came into existence for the first time.

Three Letter Men

Carolina has had, in all, thirteen men to receive the varsity award in three sports, and, of this number, six accomplished this feat within the last ten years. Only one man has made his monogram in four sports, this being John Gray Johnson, who won his letter in football, baseball, basketball, and track.

Wade Hampton Oldham was the first man to attain three letter honors but he was followed a year later by Walter Wooten Council. Oldham played baseball from 1900 to 1904, and was on the track team in 1900, in addition to making his monogram in football 1900-01. While Oldham was a member, the baseball teams turned in some exceptional performances, defeating Georgia 40 to 6 and N. C. State 30 to 3 in 1901, and winning two and tying one against Virginia in 1903.

Council made his letter in football in 1900-01, baseball 1901-02, and track in 1901. For the next few years there was a dearth of all round stars on the campus, but in 1910 Lenoir Chambers made his letter in football, and the next year made letters in football, tennis, and basketball. He played tennis and basketball again in 1913-14, being captain of both teams in 1913.

Following Council came an-

(Continued on next page)

YEOMANS ENTERS FINAL ROUND OF NET TOURNAMENT

Meets Burwell for Title; Hendlin-Yeomans Meet Beaver-Napier in Doubles.

Sewanee and North Carolina were on top in the Southern Conference tennis tournament at the close of Friday's play, and the singles final will be fought out by Teddy Burwell of Sewanee and Ed Yeoman, Tar Heel netman.

North Carolina also entered the doubles final and will contend with Georgia for this title. The Carolina team eliminated Sewanee in the doubles semi-finals and Tulane was set aside by the Georgians.

Burwell went into the singles finals defeated Hinkey Hendlin of North Carolina, 6-0, 6-3, 6-0, while Yeomans won from Perry Eastman of Tulane, 6-4, 6-4, 7-5.

In the doubles semi-finals Yeomans and Hendlin beat Warren Doyle and Lucien O'Kelly of Tulane, 6-1, 6-0, 2-6, 6-0. In the other match Judge Beaver and H. Napier of Georgia defeated Eastman and Martin Mayer of Tulane 6-4, 14-16, 6-3, 6-2.

Yeomans and Hendlin met Beaver and Napier yesterday for the doubles title.

The elimination of Tulane marked the first time since 1928 that the Greenies failed to reach the tournament finals. The Wave netmen entered competition this year with an all-new team. Clifford Sutter, 1930 singles champion, was not defending his title, having left Tulane to enter Davis Cup competition. His champion doubles partner, Maurice Bayon, was graduated last year.

CAVALIERS DROP 18 TO 9 MATCH TO HEEL LINKSMEN

North Carolina golfers yesterday defeated Virginia 18-9 in a match played in high wind on Swannanoa Club course.

In foursomes Mason and Adams, Carolina, defeated Evans and Rains 2-1; Miller and Kern, Virginia, defeated Brown and Goodes, 3-0, and Brooks and Carter, Carolina, defeated Broun and Moore, 3-0.

In twosomes, Mason, Carolina, defeated Evans, 3-0. Adams and Rains played a draw. Miller, Virginia, defeated Brown, 2½ to ½; Goodes, Carolina, defeated Kern 2½ to ½; Brooks, Carolina, defeated Broun 3 to 0, and Carter, Carolina, defeated Moore 2½ to ½.

PICTURES OF GRANADA SHOWN TO SPANISH CLUB

Presenting a number of pictures of Granada and the Alhambra, Dr. S. A. Stoudemire, of the romance language department, gave an illustrated lecture on the famous Spanish city to the Spanish club Friday evening.

Dr. Stoudemire also showed a number of slides about gypsies of Spain. C. H. Cantrell's presentation of "El Cantar de Zamora," O. T. Slate's of "La Historie de Seville," and A. K. Shield's of "La Gente de Espana" completed the program.

D. A. R. Meeting

The May meeting of Davie Poplar chapter of D. A. R. will take place at 3:30 Tuesday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. A. C. McIntosh, who is joint hostess with Mrs. F. F. Bradshaw.

The election of next year's officers is scheduled for this time.

But King Alfonso still has an ace. He can have the results of the election analyzed by a Wickersham commission.—Chicago Daily News.

Baseball First Inaugurated At University Under Graham In 1867

First Intercollegiate Game Played Against Trinity College in 1891; Tar Heels' Best Season Was in 1921-22 With Nineteen Won and Two Lost.

By Jack Bessen

The first record of any organized attempt to play baseball at the University was in 1867. During that year a representative team was selected and Alexander Graham chosen as its captain. The other players on the team were: Hargrave, pitcher; Barbu, catcher; Anderson, first base; Captain Graham, second base; Horner, third base; Jefferson, short stop; J. P. Rives, left field; Augustus Graham, center field; and Smith, right field.

This team played two games each with the Crescents and the Stars, two independent teams of Raleigh. The University won all four games, but the only score that can be located was for the game that ended 34-17 in favor of the University. The game was played according to the old style rules, with underhand pitching, no gloves, and to catch on the first bounce was out.

Game Revived in 1875

When the University reopened in 1875, so much interest was displayed in that sport, that the student body petitioned the school to organize an Athletic Association. This request was granted and with the forming of the Association, another team was organized. As was the case earlier, several games were played but none of these were with college teams.

The most singular thing about this team was that it marked the transition from the old to the new. The old style of under hand pitching was still used, and pitching with the hand above the hip entitled the batter to a walk; nor was putting out the runner on the first bounce obselete. The bats used in that era were very much the same as today. Gloves to protect the fielder's hand were considered very effeminate and as a result were not in use.

Baseball was still played after 1875, but it was ten years before another school team was organized. Again several games were played, but of none these were with rival colleges. Instead such teams as the Durham league team and Bingham's school were played, the results being very satisfactory to the Carolina students. The style of play leaned more and more toward the modern trend.

In 1890, the national game was frowned upon by the faculty with the result that only intramural games were played. Meanwhile, in 1899 two games were played, both with the Bingham school. The Tar Heels won both games, which were played on consecutive days.

Faculty Ruling Rescinded

The faculty ruling was rescinded in 1891, mainly because the student body objected so strenuously. This year marked the first University team to play a rival intercollegiate institution, the Carolina team hopping off on the right foot in her time-honored feud with Trinity College, now Duke. The first game was played April 17, 1891 at Winston-Salem, Carolina winning, 8-3. The next game, with Wake Forest, at Raleigh was won by the Deacons by the score of 10-7. Then came the first game with Virginia on May 1st of the same year. The game was played at Richmond on the old Island Park, Mayo's Island. The following quotation from one of the players tells us the story of the game:

"It was this year (1891) that the first game between the Universities of North Carolina and Virginia was played at Richmond, Va., on old Island Park, Mayo's Island, in the middle of the James River. Virginia was betting that they would win the game and North Carolina could name the odds that Virginia must give—two to one that Carolina would not score, and even money that we would not get a hit or get to first base. Virginia came very near making that bet—or, at least, that offer to bet—good. The game went until there were two out in the ninth inning, and we had neither made a hit, nor gotten to first base. After two were out, one of the weakest hitters on the team, H. R. Ferguson, got a single to right, and went to third when Captain Smith, Virginia's first baseman, failed to handle the ball on throw from the pitcher to catch Ferguson off of the base. Then Perrin Busbee hit a ball on the end of his bat that went twisting along the base line, taking reverse english on every hop, and it was errored by Captain Smith who made the second of the only errors he committed that season, thus allowing Ferguson to score. The game ended: Virginia 6; Carolina 1."

Notable Names in Line-up

The line-up of that team of 1891 according to batting order was: P. Busbee, center field; George Graham, right field; Jesse Oldham, catcher; L. B. Jones, third base; H. B. Shaw, shortstop; H. Hamlen, left field; R. H. Johnson, pitcher; H. Johnson, second base; E. P. Willard, first base; R. F. Ferguson, W. M. Hendren and George Ellis were the substitutes, and Andrew Patterson, the manager.

Intercollegiate baseball has become very popular from the very outset, and every team that has come forth from the University from 1891 till the present day has been one that was able to hold its own against any rival.

Great Team in 1922

Perhaps the greatest record made by a Carolina baseball team was that established by the 1921-22 team, coached by Bill Fetzer, now at William and Mary. That year, the squad played twenty-one games, winning nineteen and losing two. One game was postponed on account of rain. Such teams as Georgia, Swarthmore, C. C. N. Y., and New York university fell before the attack of the Tar Heels.

The Tar Heels amply avenged the 1891 defeat that Virginia inflicted by shutting out the Cavaliers three times in a row by scores of 6-0, 7-0, and 4-0.

The men receiving their monograms that year were: Clement L. Llewellyn (captain); Merle D. Bonner; Herman J. Bryson; Wilfred I. Johnson; A. Morris McDonald; Allen M. McGee; Joe McLean; Fred Morris; Roy Morris; Ernest Shirley; Ed Sweetman; Ed Tenney; and Lawrence "Lefty" Wilson.

Mention The Daily Tar Heel when buying.

BROWNLEE SETS NEW CONFERENCE MARK IN PRELIMS

Duke Star Sets New Record of 24 Seconds in Low Hurdles; Wisner Ties Old Mark.

A conference record was broken and another tied in preliminary events for the Southern Conference track and field meet in Birmingham yesterday.

Brownlee of Duke established a new league mark of 24 seconds flat in the 220-yard low hurdles and Wisner Virginia, tied the conference record of 9.8 seconds in the second heat, 100 yard dash.

The Shipwreck Kelly of football fame took high honors winning his heats in both the 100 and 220-yard dash events and qualifying in the broad jump. De Coligny of Tulane won his heats in both the 120 high hurdles and 220 low hurdles.

Officials said the track today was in the best shape in history and predicted a generous list of new records tomorrow, weather permitting.

NEW YORK FUND PLANS STUDY OF NEGRO QUESTION

(Continued from first page)

to make an analysis of the news in the English press, if one were regularly to attend the debates in Commons or Lords, if one were to keep in touch with all the cultural organs of schools and universities, one would be amazed at the lively interest displayed in every aspect of your life."

The Prince of Wales is honorary chairman of the British committee of award which selected the thirty-six new fellows out of a total of 176 applicants. Sir Walter Buchanan-Riddell, chairman of the university grants committee, is the active head of the committee of award, which includes Sir James Irvine, principal of the University of St. Andrews; Viscount Chelmsford, formerly First Lord of the Admiralty and Viceroy of India; John Harold Clapham, professor of economic history at Cambridge; H. J. W. Hetherington, vice-chancellor of the University of Liverpool; Sir Edwin Cooper Perry, vice-chairman of the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine; and Richard Vynne Southwell, professor of engineering science at Oxford.

Beer Suits

The Beer suits have arrived. They are being distributed at Randolph-McDonald, Inc., and may be obtained by calling at that store.

DR. H. P. ROSS
Optometrist
Specialist in Anomalies of the Eyes
For Appointment Dial N-2361
102½ West Main Street
Durham, N. C.

DR. W. B. SORRELL
Optometrist

THE SMOKE SHOP
EAT WITH US DRINK WITH US

Carolina Inn
Open Throughout the Summer
Special Rates
to
Summer School Students
Cafeteria Always Open
Dining Room Open Saturday and Sunday
Annex Also Open

Popular Sports Of Today Date Back To Greeks And Romans

(Continued from preceding page)

who forfeited his amateur standings by signing an agreement with a professional club.

Professionalism is gradually entering all sports. Recently "Big Bill" Tilden, for years king of the American courts, signed a professional contract. Bobby Jones, recognized as the world's greatest golfer, forfeited his amateur standing, after having won every available golf crown in sight, by signing a contract to write a series of articles for American newspapers and to make motion pictures, showing the correct forms of playing golf.

Football, our national collegiate sport, has been put on a professional basis with the formation of professional leagues and the signing of such outstanding college stars as Red Grange, Ernie Nevers, and others who have flashed across the football horizon as all-Americans. Nevertheless, professional football has not had the success that has attended the professionalization of other sports. It seems that the American public wants to save something for the amateur and it has chosen football.

However, regardless of the wholesale signing of collegiate stars to pro contracts, the college athlete still has his following and everywhere college athletic authorities are preparing for banner seasons. Great stadiums, seating thousands, are being built annually. Alumni are scouring the country for prospects to send to their respective alma maters. And even though football is the only paying sport at most institutions, most schools over the country are developing athletics on an even bigger scale than ever before.

Many Changes

Many hitherto minor sports are being made major sports. With the development of strong minor sports teams, such as our own tennis team, they are becoming more and more popular. Columbia has taken the lead, passing a rule that, regardless of the sport, regular major sport letters will be given to all athletes of that institution. They say what difference does it make whether an athlete gives his best in a football game or a fencing match. The athlete is going to get the best award that Columbia can give him regardless of the sport in which he participates.

The University of Pennsylvania has come forward with another radical ruling. According to a recent ruling of the Pennsylvania athletic council, all members of the coaching staff shall receive a set salary regulated on the same scale as any other member of the faculty. Dr. Cariss, the Penn baseball mentor, in an interview, at which the writer was present, stated that he was not in favor of the new rule. He stated that he saw no reason why a member of the coaching staff should carry the title of professor, a regulation of the new ruling, or why they should receive the same salary as the members of the faculty. Dr. Cariss, who is a specialist by profession, is an unprejudiced observer. He receives no salary for his work with the Penn baseball nine, coaching being merely a hobby with him.

Another adoption of the Penn athletic council is one whereby members of the varsity teams will be selected from intramural teams. Men showing up well in intramural play will get a chance at a varsity position. This rule was passed to do away with the subsidizing of high and prep school athletes. This will also to some extent hurt the professional teams in their search for major league prospects among college teams.

Columbia and Pennsylvania will be rapidly followed by other colleges throughout the country.

With the evils of subsidization and professionalization of athletes seriously hampered to some extent the colleges throughout the country are preparing for a big season in an athletic way. New stadiums are being built, everywhere preparations are being made for a banner season and athletics are facing a brilliant future in a collegiate and professional way.

Carolina's Athletic History Lists 13 Men Making Three Letters

(Continued from preceding page)

other great star, Roy McRae Homewood, with letters in football, track, and basketball. Homewood played football from 1912-15, track 1913-16, and basketball 1913-14. The 1914 football team, of which Homewood was a member, won ten games while losing one and claimed among its victims South Carolina, who was defeated by a score of 48 to 0; Georgia, who was defeated 41 to 0; and Wake Forest, who also went down before the onslaught by the score of 53 to 0.

Along about the same time John Gray Johnson began his career and made letters in football 1912, baseball 1913, track 1915-16, and basketball 1914, '15, and '16 to gain the honor of being the first four letter man in the history of the university. In addition to this honor, Johnson was captain of the 1916 basketball team.

Bill Folger was next with letters in track in 1916, football in 1916, and baseball in 1917. Folger's greatest single performance while at Carolina was a forty yard run in the third quarter against Virginia in 1916 to give the Tar Heels their first victory over a Cavalier football squad in many years.

Folger was the last of the prewar heroes, and, after his departure from the campus, athletics slumped on account of the World War. But, beginning with 1920, things picked up again and one of Carolina's greatest stars put in his appearance. Angus Morris McDonald, the famous "Monk" McDonald, began by making his letter in three sports his first year. He continued to do this through the spring of 1924 when he became ineligible. As a football star, McDonald helped defeat Virginia in 1921 and 1922, and tie the Cavaliers in 1923. One of his most spectacular feats on the gridiron was a 95 yard run from kick-off against N. C. State in 1922, enabling Carolina to defeat the Techmen 14 to 9. From 1921 to 1924, McDonald ranked as one of the leading shortstops in the South.

McDonald played on the state championship basketball team in 1921 and for the next three years was a member of the wonder teams that won the Southern Conference championships at Atlanta in 1923 and '24, and the South Atlantic championship in 1922. After completing his alloted time as a contestant, McDonald returned to Carolina and coached the 1925 basketball team to another Southern Conference title.

Following McDonald, came Charles C. Poindexter, who played football 1921-'24, was on the track team in 1923, and was a member of the first wrestling teams, 1923-'24, being captain in 1923.

Bill Dodderer, playing baseball, basketball, and football, was next. Dodderer began his baseball and basketball careers in 1924 and made his letter in football for the first time in 1925. He was a member of three consecutive Southern Championship basketball teams and was captain of the 1926 squad. He was an end on the football squad.

Recent Three Sport Men

Odell Sapp, with letters in baseball, boxing, and football, was added to the list in 1927. Sapp played football in 1926, '27, and '28 and was a member of the boxing team in 1927, '28, and '29. After one year of baseball, 1926, Sapp ruined his arm and was forced to give up this sport. Since completing his collegiate career, Sapp has coached freshman teams in all three of these sports.

Another boxer entered the list when Add Warren won his letter in football, boxing, and wrestling. Warren captained the wrestling and boxing squads while here and was a tackle on the football squad. Since leaving Carolina, Add has gone into professional boxing, and has been highly successful in the South. He was recently appointed coach of the 1932 Duke boxing team.

The last of Carolina's three sport men was Lacy ("Puny") Harper, who completed his career by being elected captain of the 1930 basketball team. The popular 225 pounder was a tackle on the 1929 football squad, and, until this year, held the state record for the discus with a distance of 136 feet three inches.

Although there are, at present, no three letter men on the campus, there are at least two that have extremely good chances of winning the honor. One is George Thompson, tackle on the football team for the past two years, and a wearer of the minor letter for wrestling. Thompson is a member of the track squad this spring, and if he should be awarded his monogram, would be the fourteenth man to win the award in three different sports.

Promising Candidates

Another promising candidate is John Phipps, freshman. Phipps was a star halfback on the 1930 freshman football squad and is now playing shortstop on the baseball team and performing in the high jump for Coaches Fetzer and Ranson. While in prep school, Phipps also played guard on the basketball team. He will enter varsity competition next year with one of the best records of any freshman in recent years.

'John Barleycorn' Is Supreme at University

(Continued from first page)

more prevalent because of the publicity of the occasions.

At all times, the students have been able to obtain liquor easily. As in almost every community in North Carolina, there seem to be plenty of bootleggers in and around Chapel Hill, including student bootleggers. In fact, Chapel Hill negroes and bootleggers will deliver liquor at your back door at almost any time of day or night.

The purchase of whiskey is relatively simple. There are well known filling-stations where anyone can obtain corn whiskey for the standard price of $1.25 a pint. Often self-help students make extra money by distributing whiskey among the dormitories at a small profit. At the fraternity houses there are regular days on which one of the large-scale bootleggers will drop by, selling his "rye," or "corn," for $4.00 per fruit-jar. Those desirous of a still higher grade of whiskey can obtain a Durham telephone number from any of the fraternity houses and, provided he wants at least a gallon, have it delivered directly to his room.

Bootlegger Competition

At present Chapel Hill is the scene of great competition among bootleggers. Three large factions are selling their wares on the campus, both directly and by proxy. One of these operates from a distance as great as Raleigh, approximately thirty miles. The standard whiskey is "corn," artificially colored or just plain white. For slightly more money . real charred, though not sufficiently charred, whiskey may be obtained from ter town, a room number in a the Durham branch. In the latlarge hotel will enable one to buy Champagne, imported Scotch , Rye, and gin. The latter drink is often brought down personally from large northern cities and distributed among friends. There are also frequent visits from wine-dealers, who represent the California Vineyards Co., shipping grape juice to the purchaser by express with the specific instructions to let it sit in a warm place. These kegs are sent C. O. D.

Home-Brew

Good old-fashioned home-brew is also a campus art. This is exclusively a fraternity sport, some houses having their crocks fermenting in the basement. When the warm sunshine is conducive to the spring sun-baths, many students may be seen extended on their rouse-roofs, practicaly nude, with a bottle of brew to quench their thirst. Needless to say, this is considered one of the most pleasant customs ever originated.

Liquor is very easily available in Chapel Hill. There are, we would estimate, at least fifteen bootleggers within a block of the business section of Franklin street. In addition to this, there are a large number of places, both in and out of town, where a student may get his two pints or half gallon with very little difficulty. The distribution of the liquor is accomplished mainly by negroes, waiters in boarding houses and Carrboro entrepreneurs, although there are several white people close around the campus who supply a great deal of liquor to the students.

The liquor is bottled into sizes of a short pint (usually very short), a full pint, quart, a half-gallon, and a gallon. There are no bars anywhere at which a student may obtain a single drink, as there are in northern college cities. If a student wants a drink, he must buy at least a short pint of corn.

Everything considered, liquor is rather low priced in this town this year, probably due to the present business depression. A pint of home-made whiskey can be bought anywhere for a dollar and a quarter, while whiskey can be bought in quantities of a half-gallon or more for as low as sixty-five or seventy cents a pint. Some liquor is brought from New York, Richmond, and other cities, and, occasionally, even from Canada. Of course, the local rates do not apply to that liquor. Prices on it vary from a dollar and a quarter a pint on up.

The quality of the student's whiskey varies. It depends on several factors, among which are its source of supply, its maker, the type of still in which it was prepared, its age, and how the particular lot of which a given sample is a part was made.

All in all, drinking on the campus is more spontaneous than habitual. Despite the common appetizers and after-dinner high-balls, drinking is for the most part confined to occasions of festivity. The student at the University may be described as having no desire to drink continually, but every desire to drink on festive occasions. Prohibition serves as a stimulus rather than a detriment to this plan, being practically impossible of enforcement here.

Carolina No Longer Light of Liberalism

(Continued from first page)

sity of North Carolina are actually extra-curricular adventures and not just other faculty and administration courses of instruction, then student managers of teams, and boards of policy advised by older minds should be instituted at once. If, on the other hand, athletics here are faculty and administration matters over which students have no authority, it is reasonable to ask that there be an immediate cessation of this "school spirit talk" when it is not for the student body and the school that athletes work, and that participants in games here be paid regular salaries or be given credit toward graduation. In addition to this if the athletic association feels no responsibility to the students for the amount of money that they collect from them each year, all compulsory and blanket athletic fees should be lifted at once and all games should be placed upon a paying basis at the gate.

P. U. Board

Ever since its formation the Publications Union board has had two members of the faculty sitting as advisor. It was planned in the beginning that these two would merely advise the student members of the board, but investigation shows that not only do these advisors suggest managers for the publications, but in many cases do all in their power to put them into office, against the wishes of the students on the board. Likewise no re-election has taken place since the present two members were first named years ago, nor have they been officially re-appointed in any way.

Since its origin the board has been accumulating a surplus of revenue of from $13,000 to $17,000. Instead of drawing on this sum, the salaries of the publication editors and managers have been steadily reduced and the student assessment for publications has been increased.

No student editor or manager has any final authority in his department. All matters of finance are arbitrarily decided by these faculty men. They have even subtly assumed by suggestion some editorial influence, because they control the purse strings of the Publications Union. No editor has the privilege of awarding charms or keys unless approved by them. Suggestions are even made as to whom should be members of the staffs.

As student members of the board there have always been candidates for the managing-editorship of the Daily Tar Heel, for business managerships, or editorships; they have felt constrained to silence and the farce of so-called student control has gone merrily on. There are less than a score of faculty subscribers to publications here and some twenty-four hundred student subscribers. On no grounds can justification be made for such arbitrary faculty control through chance or by any other medium. Another method of selection on the part of the student body—possibly prohibiting publication board men from applying or running for managerships or editorships for a period of one year after having served on the board—as well as the provision by President Graham for the appointment for two year terms only of whatever faculty members of the board a new constitution of the board may provide for is entirely necessary. At no time should faculty men overshadow the desires of student majorities.

Y. M. C. A.

The secretary of the Y. M. C. A. as a result of this gradual tendency, feels no responsibility to the student membership of the organization. It has even been rumored that professional members of the organization have until this year handpicked the student presidents. With no quarrel with their choice (which we do not disapprove of) if this condition be true, then there is high need of an immediate change and the inauguration of student control of all the activities of the organization, if it be a student activity. If it be a faculty matter or a matter for the churches of the town, then it should immediately stop canvassing for student contributions, and depend upon the administrative budget or the churches for its support.

Other evidences of the conservative trend here on the campus is shown by the fact that some professors, instead of taking students' words for their having actually read outside reading, require detailed reading reports to accompany each book reported.

Gorman's Introducer

It was rumored during the Human Relations Institute that when Francis Gorman was scheduled to speak here, the committee in charge of the institute was unable readily to secure anyone to introduce him. It is said, that when the faculty men were approached that they usually had excuses, saying that it was the duty of the secretary of the association sponsoring the Institute to do the introducing. In past years professors would have been delighted to have introduced men presenting a side opposite to their beliefs, but today apparently such is no longer the case.

Book Exchange

When the Book Exchange was first begun, it was planned that it be run on a profit-sharing basis with the students. Since its development, however, this plan has not been followed out, but instead the price of books on sale have been materially increased above the regular retail price. Students have nothing to do with the management of the store, and all of the profits flow through other hands.

The decline of interest in the Cosmopolitan club, Polity forum, and Liberal club are other proofs that liberal atmosphere is waning in the University.

Co-eds "Curfewed"

Despite the fact that this is an institution in which students are supposedly old enough to conduct themselves well, "curfew" rings twice each night to warn the co-eds that they should be in their rooms.

Student Interest

Because of the control which the faculty has gained over campus activities, students are beginning to lose interest in these organizations and are turning most of their attention to the social functions. Social life, heretofore, held in better balanced curriculum, is being overplayed.

We have presented nothing which is not generally known, nor do we propose any revolution. We do ask with full justification that STUDENT CONTROL FOR STUDENT ACTIVITIES be instituted at once.

PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS

The Chapel Hill Movie
Guild
Presents
PHILIPS HOLMES
in
"Man To Man"

SENIOR WEEK TALK
ARCHIBALD HENDERSON
DAVIE POPLAR — 7:00

The Daily Tar Heel

McNAIR LECTURES
DR. H. E. KIRK
GERRARD HALL — 8:30

VOLUME XXXIX — CHAPEL HILL, N. C., TUESDAY, MAY 19, 1931 — NUMBER 171

STUDENT MEETING ELECTS C. G. ROSE OFFICER FOR 1931

University Student Will Be Vice-President of State Student Federation for Coming Year.

Duke university was host to the second annual congress of the North Carolina Federation of Students, Saturday, May 16.

At the first group session of the gathering problems were discussed of having open student council meetings in the various institutions. The conclusion reached was that they would not be open. The problem of drinking was the next one to confront the assembly. Punishment for different degrees of drinking was decided upon.

Reports Made

A general session was held in the afternoon at which time the report of the National federation was made by the executive secretary. The financial report of the state organization was made by the treasurer, Mayne Albright, of the University. By the motion of Jack Dungan, of the University, the federation invited the Intercollegiate Press association of North Carolina, and the State social service council to meet as a part of the North Carolina Student Federation at their next annual congress, which is to meet at North Carolina College for Women next year.

The second group discussion took place from 2:50 to 4:00 o'clock, the women meeting with Miss Alice Baldwin of Duke. Dean Justin Miller of the Duke law school met the men and discussed phases of student self government. Following these meetings, the congress attended the Duke-Carolina baseball game.

Supper for the assemblage was in the form of a banquet in the Union building. Notables present for this occasion were from the United States congress, Senator Josiah W. Bailey, Representative Frank W. Hancock, and President W. P. Few of Duke university, and President Frank P. Graham of the University. President Few made a short talk introducing the speaker, President Graham who in his address suggested some problems that could be

(Continued on last page)

STUDENT SURVEY WORK EXPLAINED

Edward Scheidt, director of the student survey, addressed freshman chapel yesterday, and told of the functions of the student survey. "A great university needs, not only a strong faculty and good equipment, but it needs a high type student body. It needs high type students in both athletics and scholarship."

Among the pamphlets printed by the University concerning different phases of life here is Tar Heel Topics, a magazine issued ten times a year. The purpose of this pamphlet is to arouse interest in the University of North Carolina and to stimulate the high school students to attend the University. It is sent to about 250 high schools and preparatory schools.

Another function of the student survey is to send out several men, during the latter part of the school year, to talk to high school students about the University. Mr. Scheidt urged his listeners to create a favorable impression in the minds of prospective students.

Di And Phi To Elect New Officers Tonight

At the sessions of the Di and Phi societies tonight at 7:15 officers will be selected for the fall quarter of next year. In the the Phi assembly the following officers will be chosen: speaker, speaker pro-tem, sergeant-at-arms, treasurer, reading clerk, and members of the ways and means committee.

The Di senate will elect officers for the following positions: president, president pro-tem, sergeant-at-arms, reading clerk, critic, and members of the ways and means committee. The treasurer for the Di senate was chosen at a recent meeting.

PLAYMAKERS TO OFFER MYSTERY

Presentation of A. A. Milne's 'The Perfect Alibi' Planned For Memorial Hall.

A. A. Milne's play, The Perfect Alibi, which is to be produced by the Carolina Playmakers, May 23, in Memorial hall, proved to be one of the most popular mystery plays in New York last year, running through the entire season at the Hopkins theatre.

Mystery Play

In this mystery play, the problem is not who committed the murder, but how the people involved and suspected are going to clear themselves and get the guilty party, whom the audience knows, for the crime is staged right before its eyes in the first act. In a word, Mr. Milne deals with reactions rather than with actions and in that way makes his play much more valuable and interesting.

The third act is considered to be quite thrilling and there is a lot of comedy in it, due chiefly to the lines of the country constable. The official cross-questioning is done by a young sergeant from Scotland Yard, who happens to be visiting his father, the local constable. This play which is the last of the year has prospects of being also the best.

Seminary Students Address Y Cabinets

Two seminary students, Will Harlee Bordeaux and James Moore, of Westminister seminary, Philadelphia, were the guests of the Y cabinets at their first joint meeting under the new officers last night. These boys, graduates of Davidson college, are on a tour of the South in the interest of their seminary.

It was announced that the annual hillside meeting will take place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Comer next Sunday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock. President "Pardner" James also made a report on the delegation to attend the Blue Ridge conference this summer.

HENDERSON TO BE GUEST OF SCOTLAND NECK GROUP

Dr. Archibald Henderson, head of the department of mathematics at the University, will speak to a literary group at Scotland Neck Thursday afternoon under the auspices of the Clarksville Literary club. His subject will probably be the life of George Bernard Shaw.

Lamar Stringfield, composer, conductor, and winner of the Pulitzer prize in 1928, will also be the guest of the club and make a brief talk.

To Members Of The Senior Class

In view of the fact that the senior class treasury is depleted and we feel that the $500 contribution to the Human Relations Institute is an inadequate class gift, the gift committee, with the help of Mr. Felix Grissette, has hit upon a scheme by which it thinks the class of 1931 can make a very substantial and notable contribution to the University.

The contribution is in the shape of a "Hope Pledge," whereby the members of the Class of 1931 pledge that they hope to contribute a certain sum annually—which implies no legal obligation, but is an indication of what the student hopes to give the University. Through such a method, a substantial fund can be raised in several years with which the class can make an adequate contribution.

The committee feels that in previous years the graduating classes gave little thought to their gifts, but merely "bought" something after all other expenses had been paid for. The committee feels that the contribution of the Class of 1931 to the University should be of important concern to each and every member and everyone should take just pride in what he and she gives.

The committee, therefore, wants to bring this suggestion before the class, and hopes it will give the suggestion proper consideration and thought.

Respectfully submitted,
The Senior Class Gift Committee.

A "HOPE PLEDGE"
To the University of North Carolina

Beginning in ..... I hope to give annually to the University through the Alumni Loyalty Fund the sum of ..... dollars. I understand that this is not a legal obligation binding me or my heirs, but an indication of what I hope to give the University. I wish to be reminded on ..... of each year.

Name .....
Class .....
Address .....

Decline In Drinking Found In Probe At Michigan University

Drinking by students is not a major problem at the University of Michigan, according to a report submitted to the House of Representatives last week by the special committee appointed to investigate liquor conditions at the university.

Appointment of the committee followed raids by Ann Arbor authorities on five fraternity houses the night of February 10. The fraternity houses closed until September, 1932.

Although intoxicating liquors were found in each of the five fraternity houses, this fact does not constitute an indictment of the entire membership, according to the committee. In each case the committee reported, the liquor was in possession of a few students rather than that of the fraternity itself.

No considerable amount of liquor was found at any of the houses, the report points out.

The committee directed attention to a university rule prohibiting intoxicating liquor in fraternity houses and added that each of the fraternities had a similar rule of its own.

The time at which the raids were conducted was, according to the committee, "a period of general relaxation and celebration," examinations being almost finished and the junior hop set for the immediate future.

The committee, on studying the question, said: "Drinking is not a common practice among students. Conditions are materially better than they were five years ago, and there is less drinking on the campus by the students than there was before the adoption of prohibition."

PLAYMAKERS PRESENT SET OF ORIGINAL PLAYS

Last night in the Playmakers Theatre, three original plays were presented, the last of this type for the current season.

Beginning at 8:30 o'clock, the first play on the program was A Village Tragedy by Dr. Charlotte Hammond which deals with the Maine folks. The House of Grief, a poetic fantasy, by Margaret Vale was next presented. Lonely Hearts, a comedy of the Alabama backwoods, by Phillip Milhous completed the program.

Di And Phi Plan To Discuss Regulation Of Carolina Dances

At a joint session of the Di and Phi societies Thursday night at 7:15 in the Phi hall, the prorogatives of the German club will be considered. At a joint meeting of the two societies last Tuesday a bill was proposed by Senator Rector to strip the German club of its powers to regulate dances and house parties on the Hill. The bill was passed by a large majority.

After the bill had been passed, Representative Uzzell introduced a resolution providing that another joint session be held to give the German club an opportunity to defend itself against charges brought against it. As a result of the passage of this resolution by the two bodies, Speaker Haywood and President Ramsay have called this joint session.

Dey Will Represent University at French College Anniversary

Dr. W. M. Dey, head of the department of romance languages, has been selected to represent the University at the celebration of the four hundredth anniversary of the founding of the College de France by Francois I.

Among the events which will take place on June 18, 19, 20, will be a trip to the chateau of Fontainbleau. The Comedie Francaise is also planning a presentation dealing with the history of the college.

Invitations were sent out by the administrateur of the college, Joseph Bedier, of the French Academy.

The commemoration was to have been last year, but the French government failed to make an adequate provision in its budget. The college is entirely free to anyone wishing to attend the lectures, and no degrees are given.

Graduate Applications

All candidates for higher degrees who have not filled out the cards "application for degree" should do so before Tuesday noon. These cards may be secured at the Graduate office, 202 South.

Seniors Will Hear Henderson Tonight

Today the wearers of beer suits, numbering some 160 seniors, will be honored at several of the town's stores. Sutton's Drug store is serving drinks to all the members of the class of '31, and these men will also have the privilege of playing miniature golf free on the local course. The Durham Dairy Products company is giving buttermilk to the seniors.

Dr. Archibald Henderson, head of the mathematics department, will speak before the last year men under Davie Poplar at 7:00.

McKEE WRITES ON INDIAN EDUCATION

University Professor Is Noted Authority On Social Affairs Of Modern India.

"New Schools for India," by Professor W. J. McKee of the department of education, is a recent publication of the University Press. The book is the result of much study and research in the difficult field of educating the rural population of India.

"One of the most vital problems facing India today is that of providing a basic education for its teeming millions of people." The British have not made adequate provision, and the Indian Nationalists have been occupied with other questions.

Education in India

In considering the problem Professor McKee discusses the history of education in North India and the methods now in use, their weaknesses and merits. A plan is suggested for development of curricula for rural education. This plan has already been effectively worked out at Moga, Punjab.

After decades of ignorance and backwardness, India is now seeking a more respectable place among the nations of the world. Education must play a major part in fitting India for dominion status. Professor McKee has given to India a valuable work.

Instructor Escapes Death In Airplane

A. G. Bayroff, of the psychology department of the University, was one of the eighteen passengers who escaped death on an Eastern Air Transport plane Friday afternoon, May 15.

The plane, a twin-motored Curtiss Condor, burst into flames about thirty-five miles northeast of Baltimore, Maryland; through the heroic efforts of the two pilots the plane continued its flight for ten miles and was landed safely on the government reservation at Fort Hoyle.

The eighteen passengers displayed admirable presence of mind remaining calmly in their seats while one of the pilots fought the flames with a fire-extinguisher.

Mr. Bayroff was on his way to New Jersey for a short visit to his parents before commencement. He had been appointed to a national research fellowship for 1931-32. This was Mr. Bayroff's first airplane trip.

Infirmary List

Those confined to the infirmary yesterday were: Charlotte Hayer, James K. Bridgers, Stanley T. Peace, and Benjamin C. Prince.

KIRK WILL OPEN McNAIR LECTURE SERIES TONIGHT

Baltimore Minister To Speak On "From Stars to Atoms" In Gerrard Hall at 8:30.

Dr. Harris E. Kirk, D. D., of the Franklin Street Presbyterian Church of Baltimore, will deliver the opening address in the McNair lecture series in Gerrard hall this evening at 8:30. This is the nineteenth address to be given under this fund. Dr. Kirk will present three lectures, the subjects of which will be: "From Stars to Atoms," "From Atoms to Mind," and "From Mind to God." These talks will take place each evening from tonight through Thursday.

Begun in 1908

John Calvin McNair of the class of 1849, the founder of this lecture fund, made provisions for its establishment in his will. The amount was not available for use until 1906, and by 1908 the interest therefrom was such that the lectures could begin. The honorarium for the series amounts to $500 annually and the interest provides for the publication of the lectures.

In Mr. McNair's will the object of the lecture series was definitely set forth as being "to show the mutual bearing of science and religion upon each other and to prove the existence of attributes of God from nature." The chairman of the fund has kept this purpose in view in the past when selecting the best men available to talk before the students and friends of the University.

God and Universe

The first of the series was presented in 1908 when Professor Francis H. Smith, LL.D., of the University of Virginia addressed the students on "God Manifest in the Material Universe." Since that time the lectures have been delivered annually with the exception of the years 1918-1919 during the World War and in 1926 and 1929.

The speaker last year, Dr. Michael Pupin of Columbia university, was unable to be

(Continued on page two)

FORENSIC TEAM WILL BROADCAST VIRGINIA DEBATE

The third annual Virginia-Carolina radio debate will be broadcast at 10:00 o'clock tonight from station WRVA, Richmond, Virginia. The subject chosen for this year's debate is: "Resolved: That the influence of the talking movies in this country in the next ten years will be more beneficial than harmful."

The team representing Carolina in the debate is composed of J. Carlyle Rutledge, H. H. Hobgood, and McBride Fleming-Jones. The two constructive speeches will be delivered by Rutledge and Hobgood, while Fleming-Jones will offer the rebuttal. Carolina will uphold the affirmative side of the discussion.

This series of debates was begun in April 1929, with a debate in Richmond on the influence of national advertising. Last year's debate on the thirteen-month calendar was held in Raleigh.

The Carolina team motored up to Richmond yesterday and will probably return tomorrow.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays. Entered as Second Class matter at the post office at Chapel Hill, N. C., under Act of March 3, 1879.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $4.00 for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

Jack Dungan ..... Editor
H. N. Patterson ..... Bus. Mgr.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Ed French ..... Mng. Ed.

Editorial Board

Charles G. Rose ..... Chairman
J. M. Little — Frank J. Manheim
W. M. Bryson — Will Yarborough
Alden Stahr — Bob Barnett
Wex Malone — K. C. Ramsay

Assignment Editors
Otto S. Steinreich
Dan Kelly, Assistant

Sunday Editor
Charles G. Rose

City Editors

Bill McKee — George Wilson
Peter Hairston — Jack Riley

Desk Men

W. R. Woerner — Don Shoemaker
Frank Hawley — T. W. Blackwell
Vass Shepherd

Sports Staff

Jack Bessen ..... Sports Editor

Assistants

T. H. Broughton — P. Alston

News Men

E. M. Spruill — F. W. Ashley
W. E. Davis — Claiborn Carr
Charles Poe

Reporters

Saul Gordon — Bob Reynolds
Woodward Glenn — M. V. Barnhill, Jr.
William Blount — W. F. Lee
U. B. Phillips — M. H. Long
Tom Walker — W. L. Gray
Ronald Kochendorfer — Walker Stamps
Phil Sasser

BUSINESS STAFF

Hal Worth ..... Circulation Mgr.
Harlan Jameson ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.
John Manning ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.

Advertising Department

Al L. Olmstead ..... Advertising Mgr.
Pendleton Gray ..... Advertising Mgr.
Bernard Solomon ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
R. D. McMillan, Jr. ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
James N. Nowell — H. A. Clark

Collection Department

Jack Hammer ..... Collection Mgr.
John Barrow — Frank S. Dale
Stokes Adderton — Jack Stokes

Correspondence Department

Ed Michaels, Jr. ..... Correspondence Mgr.
Wynn Hamm ..... Ass't. Cor. Mgr.

Tuesday, May 19, 1931

No Trimming

To trim has become the classic occupation of such theoretical progressives as the right Honorable Senator Borah. This editorial board speaks the truth as it sees the truth. It assumes full responsibility for any editorial policy which it undertakes. However, there being as many potential kinds of interpretations of what has or may be said as there are persons, to explain is the legitimate province of any who expose in any official manner their own or those of a group.

Former student generations opinions, from our viewpoint at least, have through disinterest or inefficiency practically made it imperative that members of the faculty, like physicians over the sick beds of activities here, step in to straighten out and correct by advice, inspiration, and leadership. It was no one's intention to prove that the fault of faculty control (there are, of course, persons who say it is not a fault) can be blamed upon anyone but the members of past student generations.

The problem and the ideal situation, as the writers of the Sunday article of liberalism saw it, is a situation in which a mutually co-operative order exists. The faculty serving in activities as sage councellors can exert in infrequent meetings as much educational influence as they do in many full courses. The University, and particularly the state University, is obligated to society to produce high-class leadership intelligently trained. By turning over extra-curricular activities, as much as it can be mutually agreed upon as being practical, high class leaders can be developed. What most colleges and universities do turn out is a type of high class followers, who because of their having been reared under a paternalistic educational system, and never having opportunity to meet with conflict, fall easy prey to professional demogogues in all walks of life. To conform is increasingly the order of the day. Perhaps that is what is after all most desirable, but it is not at all compatible with the traditional American individualism, or the Nietschean superman of the future.

Of course the University of North Carolina is liberal. We cannot blame the printers for any article having inferred otherwise. What if the University should be the most liberal university in the entire world, however, and there were practices or philosophies which if corrected would permit it to advance even further, by the very nature of the fact that it was the most liberal and therefore had done something to advance over others would make it obligatory to keep on advancing. There is no end in such things.

At no time has any large majority of the students felt an absolute antipathy or irreconciable breach to exist between faculty and students, but an increasing number have felt that misunderstanding has been on the increase. We as students want to become leaders through the friendly guidance of the professional hands, and not just moronic followers.

Freedom

Bertrand Russell stated that "freedom, in short, demands only that our volitions shall be the result of our desires, not of an outside force compelling us to will what we would rather not will."

Real freedom of the will is practically non-existent, for all our actions are caused or affected by our social and physical environments. We can, however, have a determination which resists attempts at compulsion by wills other than our own.

The uniformity in nature, or so-called "casual necessity," is beyond any personal control, and we have no cause for shame in conforming to it. It is, however, sheer pusillanimity to allow our rights to be subordinated to the demands of others, when those demands constitute an infringement on our individual liberty.

The recent restrictions on student liberty in this university as imposed by a few "wills" in authority constitute just such an infringement. A certain amount of this "imposition of one will on another" is necessary in bringing up children, for example, but if we are to be called college "men," why should we not be treated as such? We may have freedom in theory at this university, but we fail to put it into practise.

—A. J. S.

Politics and Economics

When President Hoover vividly pointed to the atrocity of the $5,000,000,000 world annual expenditure for armaments at the congress for the International Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Strawn, an American delegate, bemoaned the fact that the President was dragging poltics into economics.

This conference met last week with 1,000 delegates from 35 countries assembled to discuss the problems of the present world-wide depression. The questions of war debts, unemployment, silver, and tariff were hovering over the crowd of delegates and it is thought that President Hoover designing to decoy the meeting from entangling themselves in questions which might be costly to us brought up the question of armament as the balance point, the panacea for the economic depression.

Mr. Strawn's reaction was a typical one. The fact that our biggest business, government, is with calculated and deliberate purpose pouring $5,000,000,000 into the purses of makers of death dealing instruments cannot be strictly regarded as an economic and moral monstrosity because it is political. This is because we cannot separate politics from intrigue, corruption, narrowness, emotionalism, and loyal impulsiveness. We do not yet see that today business, economics, production, consumption, and distribution is at the very heart of our life and that politics must use the economic expert to be dynamic and the economist must cooperate with the politician and the statesman to fulfill his capacity in modern society.—R. W. B.

A Good Bargain

With a steady increase in size of the student body has come need for a bigger and better student union building. The only meeting center which students of the past few decades have been privileged to enjoy has been the Y. M. C. A. building. But now that this is beginning to show signs of wear and since more students are now enrolled, time has come for the student-body to have additional stamping grounds.

The new Graham Memorial hall which is being completed through the generosity of one of our alumni may be the scene of future party battles, and a center for campus activities. Plans are being discussed for a student barber shop, a dining room or cafeteria, a soda fountain, probably a bowling alley, and several other such attractions which will add much to the value of the union. The building will be furnished with all modern conveniences and will be of no small benefit to the entire student-body.

During the time of big athletic events a union such as this will afford an excellent place for returning alumni to get together. It will also be the reception room for all University visitors. And when the family comes up for a visit, rather than entertain them in automobiles, they can be made at home in Graham Memorial. When the weather man goes on the war path, instead of passing the time alone in his room, a student can profitably spend his time associating with his fellows.

The building will be another means of bringing students closer together. Heretofore because of inadequate space, a large group has been unable to mix at one time. Now, however, with the completion of a new union with more room, a great number of contacts can be made.

By coming in personal contact with each other in the new hall, students will begin to feel that they have more in common with one another. They will be more willing to cooperate in student movements. Graham Memorial will be a means of welding the University students closer to one another.

In order to support such a building, however, it will be necessary that a small fee be charged students. It has been estimated that the building can be adequately administered by each student paying but one dollar a quarter. Before this charge is placed it will, of course, be necessary that the student-body favor such a fee.

The question will be voted upon soon, and in case a majority of students do not favor this very reasonable assessment it will mean that a new building will be left to decay. If before voting each student will pause to think of what the hall will mean to the University, there is no question as to what the outcome will be. —C. G. R.

The Blessed Trinity

(The following is the HARVARD CRIMSON'S comment on a similar article to the TAR HEEL'S Barleycorn piece which was published in THE ISIS of Oxford University in England.)

Oxford, Buenos Aires and Chicago are the three most intoxicated districts in the world according to the university's magazine The Isis. The two cities have no designated reason for their debauchery, but the Oxonian undergraduates drink "from habit." Why The Isis should object to this is hard to understand when one realizes that huntsmen dress purely as a matter of habit.

Nevertheless this explanation of bibulousness does not validate the sad state. Oxford has no divisionals, no prohibition to spur it on; they exidently just drink on general principles, and now and then on each other it is hoped. The Isis goes into great detail as to the kind of drinkers that exist at the University. There are those who drink only on Saturday night, and there are those who indulge only after long and arduous physical discipline. This last category the magazine admits quite frankly are "horrid." -

If this state of affairs continues the phrase "come down" will have to be modified to the more expressive "fall down," which would be an emphatic come down. But while the admission of The Isis is depressing, particularly so because it associates one of the finest educational institutions in England with two of the lowest cities of the world, it is at least enlightening. The reason for the peculiar pronunciation of Magdalene becomes self evident to the veriest dullard.—Harvard Crimson.

While some progress has been made, it is still true that war is better at abolishing nations than nations are at abolishing war.—Tampa Times.

Speaking The Campus Mind

Forsakes Old Love

Editor The Daily Tar Heel:

The University tried to play perfect host to the prep track stars Saturday, but several participants remarked that the Daily Tar Heel carried no advance story of the prep championships Saturday, neither did it carry stories Sunday morning on the prep track championships here, Carolina-Duke baseball in Durham, or Carolina entries in Southern track and tennis tournaments. Several unessential stories were run Saturday, and Sunday; you devoted 14 of 24 columns to features, one of which, the "John Barleycorn Supreme" story, was even said by many to be uncalled for, flagrantly exaggerated and in bad taste.

It seems to me, Mr. Editor although I may be biased, of course, that more persons than the coaches, managers, and participants would have been interested in the results of these four championship athletic contests than in your Sunday features, which could run any time. You, of course, are Editor, and I but a law student and former business-manager. Still a cat can look at a queen, and so in my humble way, I ask you these questions: Does the Publications Board pay you and your managing editor to get out, a so-called daily paper that you put to press Saturday at lunchtime? Are you running a paper for news, students want, or a Dungan paper? Is there any reason for having a daily paper, if we can't have the news until it's two and three days old?

Marion Alexander.

Ed. Note:

You are quite right, Mr. Alexander. The Tar Heel did most certainly slip up on its sport program. Do you know, however, that thanks to yourself, Mr. K. C. Ramsay, and Mr. Jack Bessen, The Daily Tar Heel has day in and day out the best college daily sports page of the thirty-five college dailies we receive?

You, having served as business-manager must surely appreciate the fact that the Publications Union Board has been handicapped in the matter of funds with which to employ extraordinarily gifted editors and business managers, and that we just struggle along the best way possible.

KIRK WILL OPEN McNAIR LECTURE SERIES TONIGHT

(Continued from first page)

present as scheduled on account of illness.

The last speaker in the McNair series was the Reverend Thornton Whaling, D. D., of the Presbyterian Theological seminary, Louisville, Kentucky. The subject of his addresses were "Science and Philosophy" and "Science and Religion." He delivered these talks in 1928.

A luxury automatically becomes a necessity when you find you can make the down payment on it.—Louisville Times.

Fun
ON THE ROLLICKING WAY
to EUROPE

Admission to this orchestra—$105 (up)
And it's worth it! Then you really get your passage, meals and accommodations free. Your ticket in the rollicking, frolicking Tourist third cabin on IMM liners also entitles you to one even barrel of fun...daily. No wonder the record number of 60,522 passengers traveled "IMM Tourist" during 1930!

$105 up

Delightful Tourist third cabin accommodations on such famous liners as Majestic, world's largest ship, Olympic, Homeric, Belgenland and many others. Several sailings each week to the principal ports of Europe and the British Isles.

NO CLASS DISTINCTIONS on the Minnekahda, nor on the Tourist third cabin liners de luxe Pennland and Westernland. Their entire former cabin accommodations are devoted exclusively to "Tourist." The only steamers of their kind in the world.

Send for fascinating literature describing our Tourist third cabin in detail.

111 E. Plume St., Norfolk, or any authorized agent

WHITE STAR • RED STAR • ATLANTIC TRANSPORT
International Mercantile Marine Lines

GOLD SEAL
LACTIC MILK

"Made Fresh Every Day"

The flavor of Gold Seal Lactic Acid Milk is better because it is made FRESH every day—and no doubt this is the reason more GOLD SEAL Lactic is sold in Durham and Chapel Hill than all other brands combined.

Lactic Acid Milk is generally recognized as an excellent health beverage for young and old. It is also known to be very beneficial to those troubled with minor digestive disorders.

Order GOLD SEAL Lactic Acid Milk today. Drink lots of it---it's good for you.

GOLD SEAL DAIRY FOODS

Durham Dairy Products, Inc.
DURHAM NORTH CAROLINA

Longest Holds Devils To Three Bingles As Carolina Breaks Jinx, 6-2

McKeithan and Duffey Hammered for Ten Hits; Tar Heels Play State Tomorrow At Raleigh.

Holding the highly touted state championship Duke nine to three hits, Carolina upset her four year old jinx, defeating the Blue Devils, 6-2, yesterday at Emerson field.

The victory was a fitting tribute to the out-going senior class, being the first baseball victory over Duke that they have witnessed.

While Longest was putting on his first class performance, the Tar Heel bats awoke to rattle ten hits off two Duke slabsters.

For a while it looked like history would repeat and that the Tar Heels would bow again, but Carolina got her hits at the right time to upset the dope.

Attention Mr. Ripley

Duke pushed over two runs in the second inning without a single hit. In fact the Blue Devils went hitless for six and two thirds innings. Bost, first up in the second inning, walked; that started off the error making. Rochelle got a life when Willie Powell threw wild over Dunlap's head. Shore was safe on first when Ferebee fumbled his grounder. An infield out and a wild pitch counted Duke's lone runs.

The Tar Heels got one run back in their half of the second. Captain Potter singled and advanced on an infield out. Powell then delivered another one of his timely hits to score Potter and put the Tar Heels in the ball game.

Score Two in Sixth

Carolina's big inning came in the sixth frame when they hit McKeithan for three hits and two runs. House singled to center. House was out on Dunlap's easy roller. Potter's hit scored Dunlap with the tying run, on which play both Potter and Dunlap showed brilliant base-running. Johnny Peacock then got the only extra base hit of the game, a long triple to center field to score Potter.

Briefs

Voorhees, the Blue Devils' regular receiver, was stricken with appendicitis Saturday while behind the bat. The catcher was hurried off to the hospital and at the latest report is resting well.

Captain Potter was a victim of the terrific heat yesterday. "Piggy" almost passed out during the fifth inning, but after receiving some medical attention, resumed play.

Tim McKeithan is a fast boy going down to first. Ferebee's throw on a ground ball just barely beat him to the bag.

Wee Willie Powell has been playing bang up ball lately. He has the happy knack of hitting safely with men on third or second. And there's nothing wrong with that throwing arm of his either.

The box score:

Carolina (6)	ab	r	h	e
Croom, rf	5	0	1	0
Ferebee, ss	5	0	1	1
House, lf	2	0	1	0
Dunlap, 1b	4	1	0	0
Potter, c	4	3	2	1
Peacock, cf	3	0	1	0
Powell, 3b	3	1	1	2
Wyrick, 2b	4	0	2	0
Longest, p	3	1	1	0
Total	33	6	10	4
Duke (2)	ab	r	h	e
Kersey, 2b	5	0	1	0
Harrington, cf	5	0	1	0
Robertshaw, ss	3	0	1	0
Bost, lf	3	1	0	0
Rochelle, rf	2	1	0	0
Shore, 3b	4	0	0	0
Colley, 1b	4	0	0	0
Werner, c	2	0	0	0
McKeithan, p	3	0	0	0
Duffy, p	0	0	0	0
Howell	1	0	0	0
Coombs	1	0	0	0
Total	33	2	3	0

Score by innings:

Duke	020 000 000
N. C.	010 002 12x

Summary: Three base hit: Peacock. Double plays: Robertshaw to Kersez to Colley; Colley to Werner to Colley. Stolen bases: Potter (2), Bost. Base on balls: off McKeithan, (2); off Duffy, (2); off Longest (4). Umpire: Weaver.

DIXIE PREP TITLE EASILY TAKEN BY STAUNTON CADETS

Riverside, A. M. A. and Danville Finish Out First Four; Four Records Broken In Prep Meet.

Staunton Military academy easily took first place in the fifth annual Southern Prep School track championships, sponsored by the University of North Carolina. There were four records broken, and two were pushed by the prep school trackmen.

The winners gained a total of 53 points, with Riverside coming second with 27 1-6. Staunton showed a well-rounded out team, being strong in all events. Augusta Military academy, defending champions, took third, mustering only 16 1-2 points.

Other team scores were as follows: Danville, 15; Greenbrier, 8; Oak Ridge, 6; Hargrave, 4; Blue Ridge, 4; St. Leo Prep, 3; Asheville school, 1 1-3.

Staunton took seven firsts out of the thirteen events, McAninch leading the way with two firsts and one third place. The Staunton flash copped first in the 100 yard dash, third in the broad jump, and set a new record in the 220 to win the event. The new mark is 22.2 seconds.

Chapman, also of Staunton, got firsts in both the discus and the shot. He set a new mark in the shot-put with a toss of 48 feet 11 inches.

There were several other individual stars. Bowman, distance star from Augusta, won the half mile and equalled the old record of 2 minutes 3 seconds in the half mile. Dorrill, of Danville, took top honors in two events, tying the old mark of 16 seconds for the high hurdles, and winning the low hurdles.

Perry, Staunton, set a new broad jump mark of 22 feet, the old distance being 21 feet 7 1-4 inches. The other record shattered was in the pole vault. Hannum, Riverside, raised it from 11 feet 5 inches to 11 feet 8.

The Carolina freshmen, who had an exhibition meet with the high school leaders, cleaned up in all but two events. They faltered in the half mile, which was taken by Cadman, of Winston-Salem, and in the javelin, which Key, of Elon, won.

The freshmen who won firsts were Ashkenas, Cordle, the Sullivan twins, Glenn, Mullins, Dockery, and Higby. Higby performed very well in the broad jump, making a jump of 23 feet 2 and 3-4 inches. In the mile run, Hardrock Simpson, famous Elon marathoner, ran, but was defeated by the speedy Carolina runners. His endurance did him no good in this race.

Summary:

100-yard dash—McAninch, Staunton, first; Goodwin, Riverside, and Perry, Staunton, tied

(Continued on last page)

TULANE CAPTURES SOUTHERN TITLE; CAROLINA FOURTH

Virginia Second and Alabama Third; Tar Heels Score Twenty-five and a Half Points.

Carolina placed fourth with 25 1-2 points as Tulane rallied in the final event of the day to nose out Virginia 31-29 in the Southern Conference track meet at Birmingham, Alabama, Saturday. Alabama placed third with 28 1-2, while V. M. I. followed the Tar Heels with 18.

Led by Captain Frank Wisner, Virginia jumped off to an early lead and held it until the final event, the javelin, when Haynes took second and Zimmerman fourth to give the Greenies six points and the meet. Carolina and Alabama also rallied in the last few events to cause one of the closest finishes in the history of the Conference.

As in 1930, when they won the title, Carolina was able to register but one first place, Dameron winning the discus throw with a heave of 134 feet three inches. Baucom placed second in the two mile and Ruble in the pole vault to push Dameron for high score honors for the Tar Heels.

Five records were broken and one tied during the two days of competition with Alabama leading in this respect by hanging up two new records. Joyce finished the 440 Saturday in forty-nine seconds flat to break the old record of 49.2 made by Roy, Clemson, in 1926. The Alabama relay team, composed of Smith, Lipe, Scheur, and Joyce, broke Vanderbilt's record for this event by negotiating the distance in 3.22.3.

Brownlee of Duke set a new record in the low hurdles with a time of twenty-four seconds flat Friday and again bettered the former record by taking first place Saturday in 24.2. Wisner, Virginia, tied the record for the 100 yard dash, held by Hamm, Georgia Tech and Foster, V. M. I., in 9.8 in the qualifying heats Friday.

Big Jim Swart, V. P. I. weight man, broke the old record for the shot made in 1929 by Oelkers, Tulane, with a heave of 47 feet 7 1-2 inches. The other record to fall was that made by Jack McDowell of N. C. State in the high jump. The new record was made by Stewart, Auburn, at a height of 6 feet 2 2-3 inches.

Coleman, Auburn's star weight heaver, was kept out of competition by an injury, and the showing of the Plainsmen was, as a result, disappointing. Auburn tallied 14 1-2 points to nose out L. S. U. with thirteen points, for sixth place. Other team scores were: Kentucky 12, Georgia 10, Duke 8, Tennessee 6, V. P. I. 5, Florida 5, N. C. State 5, Vanderbilt 4, South Carolina 3 1-2, Clemson 3, Mississippi A. & M. 3, Sewanee 1.

Wisner, Virginia, took scoring honors for the day with fourteen points gathered by firsts in the 220 yard dash and the broad jump, and a second place in the 100. He was followed by "Shipwreck" Kelly, who scored all but one of Kentucky's points by taking first in the 100, second in the 220, and fourth in the broad jump for eleven points. DeColigny, Tulane, with seconds in both hurdle events, was next with eight points.

Rip Slusser, the Tar Heel's hurdler placed third in the low hurdles behnd Brownlee and DeColigny, while Theron Brown added two points to the Carolina total with fifths in the discus and javelin. The Tar Heel relay team, finishing second as Alabama broke the record in

(Continued on last page)

Carolina Netmen Defeat Duke Blue Devils, 9-0, In Final Match Of Season

Tar Heels Close Season With Perfect Record; Heels Win Southern Doubles Title.

The Carolina netmen closed the most successful season ever enjoyed by a Tar Heel tennis team with a 9-0 shutout over the Duke Blue Devils yesterday afternoon. It was the Heels' fourteenth successive win of the season and their second over Duke by the shutout route this year.

In the singles matches Grant defeated Rogers, Duke No. 1, easily in straight sets, 6-1, 6-2, allowing the Duke captain only three games. Wilmer Hines defeated Myers of Duke in the No. 2 singles matches, 6-3, 6-4.

Yeomans was the only Carolina player to lose a set in the singles play, dropping the first set to Garber, Duke No. 3, 4-6, and winning the two remaining sets easily, 6-1, 6-1. Garber put up a good fight in the opening set but was unable to do anything with Yeomans in the final sets.

Hendlin shut out Peake in the first set of the No. 4 singles match and in the second set allowed the Duke netter only two games to win, 6-0, 6-2.

Captain Graham easily beat Clark of Duke, 6-0, 6-2, to win the No. 5 singles match, while Wright finished out the Tar Heel victories with a 6-0, 6-2, win over Fulp in the No. 6 singles match.

Captain Graham, Abels, and Hines have perfect records for the season's singles play, while Grant has lost two matches, losing to Ryan of Yale and Gregory Mangin of Georgetown; Hendlin, one, and Wright, one.

In the doubles matches, Grant and Hines were pushed three sets to win over Rogers and Myers of Duke in the No. 1 doubles match. The Heel aces took the first set easily, 6-4, dropped the second to the Duke pair 3-6, and took the final set, 6-3, to win the match.

In the No. 2 doubles Yeomans and Wright paired to defeat the Blue Devils combination of Garber and Peake, the match going three sets. The Duke pair defeated Yeomans and Wright in the opening set after a hard fight, 8-10, but in the remaining sets were unable to cope with the Tar Heel pair, who won the remaining sets, 6-2, 6-4.

In the final doubles match of the afternoon, Graham and Hendlin paired to defeat Clark and Fulp in straight sets. The Heels were pushed to take the first set, 7-5, but in the final set easily won, 6-3.

After the match it was decided that a captain would not be elected for next year but that a captain would be appointed for each match by the Coach. This decision was reached because of the wealth of eligible men for the captaincy.

Southern Champions

In the annual Southern Conference tennis tournament held on the Tulane university courts at New Orleans, the Tar Heel doubles entry of Yeomans and Hendlin defeated Judge Beaver and Napier of Georgia, 6-3, 5-7, 6-2, 10-8, to win the Southern doubles title. Beaver is rated as the outstanding doubles player in the South, pairing with Wilmer Hines, Carolina No. 2, to win the National Junior singles title last summer.

In the singles play, Yeomans was defeated by Billy Burwell of Sewanee after winning the first two sets. Yeomans tired in the final sets and changing his style of play to a driving game, dropped the next three sets to the Sewanee act. The scores of the match were, 4-6, 5-7, 6-3, 6-0, 6-1.

Summary:

Singles:

Grant (C) defeated Rogers (D), 6-1, 6-2.

Hines (C) defeated Myers (D), 6-3, 6-4.

Yeomans (C) defeated Garber (D), 4-6, 6-1, 6-1.

Hendlin (C) defeated Peake (D), 6-0, 6-2.

Graham (C) defeated Clark (D), 6-0, 6-2.

Wright (C) defeated Fulp (D), 6-0, 6-2.

Doubles:

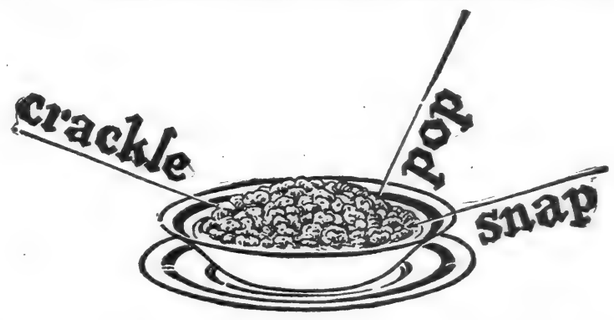
Grant and Hines (C) defeated Rogers and Myers (D), 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

Yeomans and Wright (C) defeated Garber and Peake (D), 8-10, 6-2, 6-4.

Graham and Hendlin (C) defeated Clark and Fulp (D), 7-5, 6-3.

The Seeman Printery
Incorporated
For more than 46 years this company has been serving an ever-increasing number of customers.
Are you among them?
If not, try us—
110-112 Cocoran Street
Durham, N. C.

Rifle Club



There will be a meeting of the rifle club in the basement of Alumni building Tuesday night at 7:30.

You see, it isn't wicked for the government to take part of the liquor revenue if it's called an income tax instead of a license fee.—Milwaukee Leader.

COLDEX
Brings Quick Relief to Thousands
You too, can stop colds and coughs with this remarkable liquid medicine that so safely gives such quick and lasting results. Just say Coldex to your druggist. Only 50c. Recommended and guaranteed by
Sutton's Drug Store

NO DON JUAN!
Women's adoration leaves him cold — but he uses it for his mysterious purpose.
WILLIAM POWELL
IN
"Ladies' Man"
A Paramount Picture
with
CAROLE LOMBARD
KAY FRANCIS
also
Comedy
Novelty
Now Playing
CAROLINA

THE SMOKE SHOP
EAT WITH US DRINK WITH US

Just before bedtime

DO YOU ever get hungry late at night? Just drop in at the campus restaurant and order a bowl of crunchy-crisp Kellogg's Rice Krispies.

Enjoy with milk or cream—fruits or honey added. It's delicious—and so easy to digest, you'll sleep like a top! Try it tonight.

Kellogg's Rice Krispies are nourishing rice bubbles that actually crackle in milk or cream. Fine for breakfast. Treat for a quick lunch. Ask that this "different" cereal be served in your fraternity dining-room.

Kellogg's
RICE KRISPIES

The most popular cereals served in the dining-rooms of American colleges, eating clubs and fraternities are made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. They include ALL-BRAN, PEP Bran Flakes, Corn Flakes, Wheat Krumbles, and Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuit. Also Kaffee Hag Coffee — the coffee that lets you sleep.

You'll enjoy Kellogg's Slumber Music, broadcast over WJZ and associated stations of the N. B. C. every Sunday evening at 10.30 E. S. T. Also KFI Los Angeles, KOMO Seattle at 10.00, and KOA Denver at 10.30.

TULANE CAPTURES SOUTHERN TITLE; CAROLINA FOURTH

(Continued from preceding page)

this event, boosted the total by four more points.

The summary of events follows:

100 yard dash—First, Kelly, Ky.; second, Wisner, Va.; third, Bradley, Ala.; fourth, Smith, Ala.; fifth, Whatley, Tulane. Time 10.1.

220 yard dash—First, Wisner, Va.; second, Kelly, Ky.; third, Smith, Ala; fourth, Bradley, Ala.; fifth, Whatley, Tulane. Time 21.9.

440 yard dash—First, Joyce, Ala.; second, Klamke, L. S. U.; third, Miller, Tulane; fourth, Woodward, Vanderbilt; fifth, Weil, N. C. Time 49 seconds. New record. (Old record set by Roy, Clemson, 1926, 49.2 seconds.)

880 yard run—First, McGinn, N. C. S.; second, Romm, V. M. I.; third, Crane, Tenn.; fourth, Hundson, Va.; fifth, Barron, Sewanee. Time 1.59.6.

One mile run—First, Lauck, Va.; second, Smith, V. M. I.; third, Lineberger, Clemson; fourth, Wise, V. M. I.; fifth, O'Bryant, Ky. Time 4:26.3.

Two mile run—First, Bond, V. M. I.; second, Baucom, N. C.; third, Holdon, Va.; fourth, McQueen, Auburn; fifth, Hubbard, N. C. Time 9:52.3.

High hurdles—First, Moreau, L. S. U.; second, DeColigny, Tulane; third, LaCoste, L. S. U.; fourth, Maddox, Ga.; fifth, Stewart, Auburn. Time 15.3.

Low hurdles—First, Brownlee, Duke; second, DeColigny, Tulane; third, Slusser, N. C.; fourth, Lipe, Ala.; fifth, Maddox, Ga. Time 24.2.

High jump—First, Stewart, Auburn; second, tie between Baker, Ala. and Bostwick, S. C.; fourth, tie between Stacy, Auburn, and David, Ga. Height 6 feet 2 2-3 inches. New record. (Old record held by McDowell, N. C. S. 6 feet 1 3-4 inches.)

Pole vault—First, Zimmerman, Tulane; second, Ruble, N. C.; third Reigels, Ala.; fourth, tie between Arnold, N. C. and Dickens, Ga. Height 13 feet.

Broad jump—First, Wisner, Va.; second, Owens, Ga.; third, Fulmer, Duke; fourth, Kelly, Ky.; fifth, Wells, Miss. A. &. M.; Distance 23 feet 3 3-4 inches.

Mile relay—First, Alabama (Smith, Lipe, Scheur, and Joyce); second, Carolina; third, Florida; fourth, Vanderbilt; fifth, L. S. U. Time 3.22.3. New record. (Old record set by Vanderbilt, 1926, 3.23.)

Shot put—First, Swart, V. P. I.; second, Oelkers, Tulane; third, Hickman, Tenn.; fourth, Cox, Miss. A. & M.; fifth, Bryant, Va. Distance 47 feet 7 1-2 inches. New record. (Old record set by Oelkers, Tulane, 1929, 46 feet 9 1-2 inches.)

Discus throw—First, Dameron, N. C.; second, Bryant, Va.; third, Payne, Tulane; fourth, Jenkins, Fla; fifth, Brown, N. C. Distance 134 feet 3 inches.

Javelin—First, Robinson, Auburn; second, Haynes, Tulane; third, Wright, V. M. I.; fourth, Zimmerman, Tulane; fifth, Brown, N. C. Distance 181 feet 8 1-2 inches.

McNair Lectures

Dr. Harris E. Kirk, D.D., of the Franklin street Presbyterian church of Baltimore, will deliver the nineteenth series of the McNair lecture group in Gerrard hall Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of this week at 8:30 p. m.

STUDENT MEETING ELECTS C. G. ROSE OFFICER FOR 1931

(Continued from first page)

solved by the federation, including state wide athletic standards and also state wide standards for conducting collegiate social functions.

Graham's Talk

Continuing, President Graham emphasized the value of federations. The key word of his speech was "federation" and he gave several examples of obstacles which have been overcome in legislative history and goals which have been attained through the organization of a federation.

Following the banquet, the annual election of officers took place in the Union building. For president, Frank Gorham of State college was elected. Charles G. Rose of the University was made vice president of the organization; Miss Pierce of Duke, secretary; and Jack Mckinnon of Davidson was elected to fill the position of treasurer.

The outgoing officers are: John A. Lang of Carolina, president; Bill Murray, of Duke, vice president; Miss Mary Jane Wharton of North Carolina College, secretary; and Mayne Albright of the University, treasurer.

Hon. Josiah William Bailey, United States senator from North Carolina, spoke at the final session of the congress after which the inauguration of the newly elected executives took place. This concluded the second annual congress.

DIXIE PREP TITLE EASILY TAKEN BY STAUNTON CADETS

(Continued from preceding page)

for second; Tarrall, Oak Ridge, fourth. Time 10 seconds.

220-yard dash—McAninch, Staunton; Goodwin, Riverside; Buesching, Staunton; Shaver, Augusta. Time 22.2 seconds. (New record, old mark 22.4.)

440-yard run—Buesching, Staunton; Taylor, Greenbrier; Sanford, Hargrave; Paul, Riverside. Time 52.4 seconds.

880-yard run—Bowman, Augusta; Scaggs, Greenbrier; Leach, Staunton; Dalton, Staunton. Time 2:03. (Tied record.)

One-mile run—Bowman, Augusta; Leach, Staunton; Stewart, Greenbrier; Page, Asheville. Time 4:40.4.

120-yard high hurdles—Dorrill, Danville; Chapman, Staunton; Kalb, Staunton; Kingan, Hargrave. Time 16 seconds. (Tied record.)

220-yard low hurdles—Dorrill, Danville; Graves, Augusta; Kalb, Staunton; Allen, Riverside. Time 25.6 seconds.

12-pound shot — Chapman, Staunton; Tarrall, Oak Ridge; Ray, Oak Ridge; Wesselhoft, Riverside. Distance 48 feet 11 inches. (New record, old mark 46 feet 9 inches.)

Discus—Chapman, Staunton; Phillips, Riverside; Minot, Staunton; Sigafoos, Augusta. Distance 115 feet 2 inches.

Javelin—Lineweaver, Staunton; Barrett, St. Leo; Goodwin, Riverside; Kingan, Hargrave. Distance 148 feet 4 inches.

Pole vault—Hannum, Riverside, first; Perry, Staunton; Goodwin, Riverside; Sigafoos, Augusta; and Stover, Blue Ridge all tied for second. Height 11 feet 8 inches. (New record, old mark 11 feet 5 inches.)

High jump—Dorrill, Danville, first; Stover, Blue Ridge, and Hannum, Riverside, tied for second; Phillips, Asheville; Roper, Riverside, and Coker, Riverside all tied for fourth. Height 5 feet 7 3-4 inches.

Broad jump—Perry, Staunton; Allen, Riverside; McAninch, Staunton, and Hannum, Riverside. Distance 22 feet. (New record, old mark 21 feet 7 1-4 inches.)

SPECIAL
for SENIORS
DURING SENIOR WEEK
Half Soles and Heels
$1.00
Regular Price $1.50
Lacock's Shoe Shop

CAROLINA
Wednesday, 11 p. m.
MAURICE CHEVALIER
in
"Le Comedien
(Playboy) de Paris"

Carolina Inn
Open Throughout the Summer
Special Rates
to
Summer School Students
Cafeteria Always Open
Dining Room Open Saturday and Sunday
Annex Also Open

$50,000
Paid to Winners of CAMEL CONTEST!

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company takes pleasure in announcing that the decisions of Judges CHARLES DANA GIBSON, ROY W. HOWARD and RAY LONG in the $50,000 Camel Prize Contest have been reached and that prizes accordingly have been awarded as follows:

First Prize, $25,000
JAMES THOMAS SHARKEY, 101 Train Street, Dorchester, Mass.

Second Prize, $10,000
MRS. WALTER SWEET, Navy Yard, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Third Prize, $5,000
JULIUS M. NOLTE, Glen Avon, Duluth, Minn.

5 Prizes of $1,000 each
A. B. FRANKLIN, III, 52 Kirkland St., Cambridge, Mass.
JOHN R. McCARTHY, 721 Main St., Willimantic, Conn.
FREDERICK E. ROBINSON, Coronado Beach, Calif.
WM. A. SCHRADER, Brent Apts., New Albany, Ind.
DR. D. H. SOPER, 523 E. Brown, Iowa City, Iowa.

5 Prizes of $500 each
F. CARTWRIGHT, Transp't'n Bldg., Washington, D. C.
EDITH COCHRANE, Glenvale Ave., Darien, Conn.
BARBARA LAWLESS, Ardmore, Pa.
JANE PARSONS, 325 E. 79th St., New York, N. Y.
RICHARD W. VOGT, Green Bay Road, Waukegan, Ill.

25 Prizes of $100 each
MARIE ALBERTS, 6252 So. Spaulding Ave., Chicago
W. B. BARKER, JR., 420 N. Spruce, Winston-Salem, N.C.
EUGENE BARTON, 3625 La Luz St., El Paso, Texas
MRS. EDW. F. DALY, 1133 Louisville St., St. Louis, Mo.
WM. G. ERBACHER, 308 N. Front St., Conway, Ark.
LEROY FAIRMAN, 69 Dartmouth St., Forest Hills, N. Y.
KATHRYN R. FRANCIS, 448 E. 22d St., Baltimore, Md.
MRS. ALEXIS GODILLOT, 191 Waverly Pl., New York
C. W. GRANGE, 2316 Central St., Evanston, Ill.
C. S. GRAYBILL, Paxtonville, Pa.
JOHN I. GRIFFIN, 1208 Jackson, Pueblo, Colorado
DAVID C. HILL, Peyton and Arlington Rds., York, Pa.
ELIZABETH JARRARD, Porter Apts., Lansing, Mich.
J. W. KEATING, 523 Prospect Ave., Cleveland, Ohio
J. H. KENNEDY, 2627 W. State St., Milwaukee, Wisc.
JOHN KILPELAINEN, West Paris, Maine
DR. CLIFTON B. LEECH, 211 Angell St., Providence, R. I.
EDWARD MARTIN, 121 Liddell St., Buffalo, N. Y.
MRS. L. C. MILLARD, 609 Stockley Gardens, Norfolk, Va.
EUGENE SARTINI, 745 Chapel St., Ottawa, Ill.
GREGORY LUCE STONE, 755 Texas St., Mobile, Ala.
DR. C. L. THOMAS, Mount Airy, N. C.
LEE R. WOMACK, 448 Tenney Ave., Amherst, Ohio
J. ARTHUR WOOD, 21 Burke St., Mechanicville, N. Y.
EMERY HERBERT YOUNG, Painted Post, N. Y.

IN congratulating the winners in the great Camel contest we want at the same time to thank most cordially the approximately million men and women who displayed their friendly interest by sending in an entry.

We wish also to thank the millions of smokers throughout the country for the appreciation they are showing for our new Humidor Pack as is evidenced by the notable increase in the sale of Camel cigarettes.

By means of this dust-proof, germ-proof, moisture-proof Cellophane wrapping the rich aroma and full flavor of choice Turkish and mellow Domestic tobaccos have been air-sealed in Camels for your enjoyment.

If you have not tried Camels in the Humidor Pack all we ask is that you switch over to this brand for one day.

After you have learned how much milder, how much cooler, how much more enjoyable it is to smoke a perfectly conditioned fresh cigarette, go back to the harsh hotness of stale cigarettes if you can.

CAMELS
Smoke a fresh cigarette
©1931, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

SENIOR WEEK TALK
R. M. HANES
DAVIE POPLAR — 7:00

The Daily Tar Heel

McNAIR LECTURES
DR. H. E. KIRK
GERRARD HALL — 8:30

VOLUME XXXIX — CHAPEL HILL, N. C., WEDNESDAY, MAY 20, 1931 — NUMBER 175

FIVE BILLS CITED AS CHIEF WORK OF LEGISLATURE

Major W. D. Harris Speaks to University Class on State Government.

"Much constructive legislation has been enacted by the 1931 General Assembly and on the whole the record of the legislature is creditable," said Maj. William D. Harris, former head of the state department of conservation and development, in addressing a class of students of State government at the University.

"Due to the long controversy over the revenue bill," said Major Harris, "people generally have overlooked many forward-looking accomplishments of this General Assembly, which has had more difficult problems to deal with, due to the world-wide depression, than any North Carolina legislature of the past half century. Governor Gardner also is entitled to great credit for this splendid record."

Five Laws Cited

Five major measures were discussed by Major Harris, as being deserving of the commendation of the people of the State and of students and advocates of good government generally. These he listed as the local government commission act, the state highway reorganization act, the provision for consolidation of the North Carolina State college and the College for Women with the University of North Carolina, the creation of a commission to study and submit a revision of the constitutions of 1868 to the 1933 General Assembly, and a group of administrative reorganization measures.

"This last group," he said, "includes acts providing for a state purchasing agency, estimated to save the state $400,000 annually, a personnel commission, which may mark the beginning of a reasonable civil service in North Carolina, a

(Continued on last page)

BAILEY ADDRESSES GRADUATING CLASS

Under Davie Poplar Monday night the senior class of the University met for their first regular meeting of annual senior week. Senator Josiah William Bailey, of Raleigh and representative of North Carolina in Congress, was the speaker for the occasion.

Preceding the speech the University band played "Hark the Sound" as an introductory note for the program. Following this the speaker was introduced by Will Yarborough, of the senior week committee. As his topic for the occasion Senator Bailey chose "Old Landmarks and New Occasions." "Satisfaction is the only goal to strive for," stated Bailey. The three things one must possess to attain satisfaction, according to the speaker, are filial piety, diligence, and honor. Mentioning some ideas which have express satisfaction he included the Ten Commandments, the North Carolina Bill of Rights, Washington's Farewell Address, and Jefferson's Inauguration Address.

Continuing Senator Bailey stated that in his opinion four men have accomplished satisfactorily their ends. These are: Jesus Christ, Julius Caesar, George Washington, and Robert E. Lee.

Alumnus Accidentally Killed By Pistol

Funeral services were conducted Monday afternoon in the First Baptist Church, Charlotte, for Phillip Dawson, Jr., University alumnus of the class of 1929, who was accidentally killed Saturday night by a bullet from one of his large collection of fire-arms.

Dawson, a young man of twenty-two years, met his death by the discharge of an old type Colt .45 pistol which he was inspecting immediately before going to bed. The bullet entered the left side of his throat and he never regained consciousness.

NEGRO HELPERS HEAR STUDENTS

Albright and Dungan Are Speakers at Meeting of University Janitors' Association.

Mayne Albright, president of the student union, and Jack Dungan, editor of the Daily Tar Heel, were the main speakers at a regular meeting of the Janitors' association of the University yesterday afternoon.

President Albright expressed the confidence which students on the campus have in the janitors, and congratulated them on the good work that they had done. He went on to say that the colored employees of the University played a large part in the life of the institution. In conclusion he stated that it was his hope that the newly-formed organizations would continue its good work to better the conditions for the colored race of Chapel Hill.

Janitors Complimented

In his talk, Dungan complimented the janitors for the honest name which they had made among students in dormitories, and also on their reputation of dependability.

Kennon Cheek, ex-president of the organization introduced the speakers, and following the talks voiced the appreciation of the group for the two students having taken time to come and speak. He continued by stating that it was the purpose of the organization to raise standards of Negroes in Chapel Hill. He expressed thanks to the Human Relations Institute for having allowed one of the Negro race to speak on its program.

New Organization

The Janitors' association was first formed approximately twelve years ago, and since that time has continually developed, according to officials of the buildings department. It is reported that a special committee of the group has been formed which takes complete charge of recommending new men to be employed by the University. This committee, when jobs are open for new men, investigates the character and ability of those recommended, and makes a report to officials in charge of hiring new men. A finance committee and several other special committees are also a part of the association.

According to H. D. Williams, of the buildings department, since the organization of this association there has not been a single employee fired from the janitor's force.

The officers of the organization are: Adolphs Clark, president; Eugene White, vice-president; Jim Harrington, secretary; and John Couch, treasurer.

EXAMINATION SCHEDULE

Note: The schedule below gives the order of examinations for academic courses meeting Monday to Friday or Monday to Saturday, inclusive, and for those meeting Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. Courses meeting Tuesday and Thursday or Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday are either assigned on the schedule or will be assigned by the instructors after consultation with the registrar.

Examinations for courses in engineering, including drawing and engineering mathematics are scheduled in Phillips hall.

Examinations for courses in accounting will be announced by the instructors in these courses.

By action of the faculty, the time of no examination may be changed after it has been fixed in the schedule.

Monday, June 1st at 9:00 A. M.—All 12:00 o'clock classes.
Monday, Just 1st at 2:30 P. M.—All 2:00 o'clock classes and all sections of Economics 2.
Tuesday, June 2nd at 9:00 A. M.—All 8:30 o'clock classes.
Tuesday, June 2nd at 2:30 P. M.—All 3:00 and 4:00 o'clock classes and all sections of Economics 1.
Wednesday, June 3rd at 9:00 A. M.—All 9:30 o'clock classes.
Wednesday, June 3rd at 2:30 P. M.—Open for examinations which cannot be arranged otherwise.
Thursday, June 4th at 9:00 A. M.—All 11:00 o'clock classes.
Thursday, June 4th at 2:30 P. M.—Open for examinations which cannot be arranged otherwise.

Seniors Arrayed In "Beer" Suits Are Objects Of Great Curiosity

Graduating Class Named Street Cleaners, Painters, and Even Members of a Chain Gang by Students Seeing Regalia for First Time

By Otto Steinreich

Monday morning dawned hot and cloudy and from the mists strode white robed figures. To the early risers who hail from the city the sight was reminiscent of milkmen making their rounds. Other persons imagined that the campus had been invaded by street cleaners, still others thought that an army of painters had arrived to decorate Graham Memorial. The sight of the numerals '31 drawn on the back of the suits even brought some persons to the conclusion that a chain gang from the state penitentiary had been imported to pave Cameron Avenue.

Distinctive Regalia

No one even remotely imagined, however, that the persons attired in the white overall suits could possibly be seniors arrayed in their much publicized "beer" suits, but strange as it may seem that was just the case. The seniors in their distinctive regalia had set forth to regale themselves with refreshments of all sorts which were offered by the local merchants as a token of their high-minded regard for the graduates' patronage during the gleeful years that they wasted here.

Few Co-eds Take Part

So deep has the germ of equality with men bitten that two co-eds on the campus have even taken to wearing "beer" suits. It is to be presumed that the innate modesty of the greater number of the co-eds restrained them from also parading in the "milkmen's uniforms."

To one who has not observed the never to be forgotten sight of a senior attired in his "beer" suit the following episode may perhaps give a slight idea of the admiration excited in the breasts of the remainder of the student body: A lowly freshman after carefully and seriously gazing at a senior of his acquaintance slowly breathed in an admiring tone, "Gee, you look swell; it fits you like a tent."

Dunn To Make Radio Talk This Afternoon

Clyde Dunn, editor of the Yackety Yack and chairman of the senior week committee, will make the weekly radio talk sponsored by the student council over station WPTF this afternoon from 3:30 to 3:45. His subject will be "The History and Tradition of Senior Week at the University."

Socialists To Meet

There will be an informal discussion on socialism at 9:00 o'clock tonight in the county club room in the Y. M. C. A. The purpose of this meeting is to discuss the platform and organization of the Socialist party. Norman Lyon, of the psychology department, will be present, and will answer any questions that may be asked concerning the party. All students interested in socialism are urged to be present.

Infirmary List

Those confined to the infirmary yesterday were: Stanley T. Peace, Noah Goodridge, William T. Davis, Jr., and Benjamin C. Prince.

Meyer To Teach This Summer In Seattle

Harold D. Meyer, professor of sociology and supervisor of field work at the University, will leave May 31 for Seattle, Washington, where he will teach during the summer session at the University of Washington.

Professor Meyer will spend the first session of the summer quarter teaching sociology, and the second half visiting six universities in Oregon and California.

Phi Mu Alpha Initiates

Phi Mu Alpha, national music fraternity, met Sunday night for their initiation ceremony which took place on the stage in the music building.

The eight men who were admitted into full membership of the society are. Francis Gillon Jacocks, Jr., Elizabeth City; Benjamin Gerald Winig, Waterbury, Connecticut; Joseph Morris Shachtman, Greensboro; Harry Lee Knox, Statesville; Thomas Walter Teer, Durham; Archie Royal Davis, Winston-Salem; Alden Joseph Stahr, South Orange, New Jersey; and Henry Gartzman, Waterbury, Connecticut.

Seniors To Be Guests Of Four Shops Today

Seniors continue their week of getting something for nothing today by being served free drinks at Pritchard-Lloyd's. No excuse can be offered if all the members of the class of '31 do not have shined shoes, since the University Shoe Shop is furnishing the necessary "blacking" and a boy to apply it, with no charge. Ice cream for those who are hot, and coffee for those who find it hard to stay awake are being served at the Paragon Ice Cream company and Waffle Shop—gratis.

YACKETY YACK TO APPEAR JUNE 20

Complications Arising in Printing Establishment Will Necessitate Mailing of Books.

The 1931 Yackety Yack will be placed in the hands of the students, June 20, Editor Clyde Dunn stated to a representative of the Daily Tar Heel yesterday. Due to complications arising in the printing establishment in Lynchburg, Virginia, where the annual is being published, the 1931 edition will not be off the press in time to be distributed before the conclusion of the spring quarter, but copies will be mailed to students from Lynchburg.

New Features

The new annual, said to be more inclusive than any heretofore published, will contain a large number of new features. The cover will be composed of red and white leather with the official gold seal of the University superimposed in the lower right hand corner.

Paramount among the revolutionary features of the new annual will be the exclusion of all color within the covers with the exception of grey used in ten etchings and the deletion of backgrounds from all pictures.

Some features will include a history of the University by R. D. W. Connor, head of the department of history; a section on William R. Davie, father of the University and the pictures of the past presidents; an alumni section containing pictures of the officers; a write-up of the association; a list of recent benefactors; and pictures of twelve prominent alumni selected from varied fields of endeavor.

University Administration

The administration will be given a special section with pictures of the president, the deans of the various schools, buildings of each school, departments, and pictures of various campus buildings such as Bynum gymnasium, and the library. The senior class poem, last will and testament, prophecy, statistics, commencement program, and write-up of the part played by the senior class in the recent Human Relations Institute will be in a special section.

Group pictures, pictures of the houses, and seals of the respective fraternities will be included this year in the fraternity section.

Steene Etchings

Totally different in appearance, the annual will be nine by twelve inches in size with uniform type. No borders will be found in the book. Ten etchings by William Steene will lend distinction to the volume.

W. T. Couch, of the University press, has aided the staff in

(Continued on last page)

UNIVERSITY WILL NOT DISCONTINUE SUMMER SCHOOL

Education Dean Denies Rumor of Abolition of Summer Session.

In direct contradiction to a rumor circulating to the effect that there will be no summer school at the University this summer, Dean Nathan W. Walker, of the school of education, announced that approximately four thousand summer school catalogues had been distributed upon request. One thousand of these have gone to students and instructors now at Chapel Hill and the others have been mailed out in response to letters.

Catalogues may still be secured by calling at 127 Peabody building. In yesterday morning's mail, requests for catalogues were received from residents of South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee, Virginia, Kentucky, Michigan, Mississippi, Iowa, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, and North Carolina. From all appearances, therefore, the summer school will have as large if not a larger enrollment than last year when 3014 students attended.

Rooms Being Reserved

Practically all rooms in New Dorms, the men's dormitory during summer school, have already been reserved, and in some of the women's dormitories: Steele, Old East, Old West, Grimes, and Manly, the condition is the same. It would be best, therefore, for students in Chapel Hill, who are intending at present to come to summer school and room on the campus, to make their room reservations now.

State superintendent Cawthorne, the Florida public school system, wrote Dean Walker a letter in which he stated that he was recommending the University summer school to teachers throughout the state. In educational meetings next year in Florida teachers will be given curriculum instruction and the summer school here is offering excellent courses in this line during the summer sessions.

MUSIC GRADUATE TO GIVE RECITAL

The first student to receive the degree of A.B. in music with organ as major is Brandel F. James, Jr., of Winterville. James expects to complete his work at the University before the close of the first summer session. For the past four years he has been an organ student with Professor Nelson O. Kennedy.

The senior recital to take place tonight is the first graduating recital to be given on the new organ in Music hall. Opening with the Sonata No. 5 of Mendelssohn, James' program reflects an interesting and varied experience in the literature for the organ. The famous Toccata and Fugue in D Minor of Bach is matched by Cesar Franck's prelude Fugue and Variation.

The rest of the program will be composed of novelty numbers from a variety of sources. The public is invited to attend this recital, which begins at 8:15 tonight.

Other presentations of the organist will be Spring Song, by Hollins; Berceuse by Dickinson; Will 'o the Wisp by G. B. Nevin; Canyon Walls by Clokey; Song of the Basket Weaver by Russell; and Toccata by G. B. Nevin.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays. Entered as Second Class matter at the post office at Chapel Hill, N. C., under Act of March 3, 1879.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $4.00 for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

Jack Dungan ..... Editor
H. N. Patterson ..... Bus. Mgr.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Ed French ..... Mng. Ed.

Editorial Board

Charles G. Rose ..... Chairman
J. M. Little — Frank J. Manheim
W. M. Bryson — Will Yarborough
Alden Stahr — Bob Barnett
Wex Malone — K. C. Ramsay

Assignment Editors
Otto S. Steinreich
Dan Kelly, Assistant

Sunday Editor
Charles G. Rose

City Editors
Bill McKee — George Wilson
Peter Hairston — Jack Riley

Desk Men
W. R. Woerner — Don Shoemaker
Frank Hawley — T. W. Blackwell
Vass Shepherd

Sports Staff
Jack Bessen ..... Sports Editor

Assistants
T. H. Broughton — P. Alston

News Men
E. M. Spruill — F. W. Ashley
W. E. Davis — Claiborn Carr
Charles Poe

Reporters
Saul Gordon — Bob Reynolds
Woodward Glenn — M. V. Barnhill, Jr.
William Blount — W. F. Lee
U. B. Phillips — M. H. Long
Tom Walker — W. L. Gray
Ronald Kochendorfer — Walker Stamps
Phil Sasser

BUSINESS STAFF

Hal Worth ..... Circulation Mgr.
Harlan Jameson ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.
John Manning ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.

Advertising Department

Al L. Olmstead ..... Advertising Mgr.
Pendleton Gray ..... Advertising Mgr.
Bernard Solomon ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
R. D. McMillan, Jr. ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
James N. Nowell — H. A. Clark

Collection Department

Jack Hammer ..... Collection Mgr.
John Barrow — Frank S. Dale
Stokes Adderton — Jack Stokes

Correspondence Department

Ed Michaels, Jr. ..... Correspondence Mgr.
Wynn Hamm ..... Ass't. Cor. Mgr.

Wednesday, May 20, 1931

Out of the Ruck of Battle

Any symposium or collaborative article in which many persons are involved runs the risk of being illogical in its entirety and many times incoherent and in some phases even unauthoritative. The late-much-discussed Sunday opus on the alleged liberalism at the University may have been all of these.

In the first place, situated as we are, the printing and proof-reading are not the best that is to be desired. We groan and groan but apparently to no avail. Changing the phrase "all had some basis of fact in them.", to "all had sane basis of fact in them," the entire meaning of that phrase was warped. Then we had such weird creations as: lampered for lampooned, together with advisor for advisors, and was exceeding bad taste, instead of was in exceeding bad taste.

Regardless of whether parts were inaccurate or grossly misrepresented, it still remains that the University once very liberal has with a phenomenal growth in attendance attained a position like a village which has been visited by a boom and which puts in too many stop lights. In all fairness The Daily Tar Heel wants to report that upon thorough investigation of all things touched upon in the article it finds that the Student Entertainment Committee is composed of four students and four faculty members and is most desirous at all times of obtaining student opinion, and as one student member has said, "the faculty men make no move until student opinion is ascertained."

In speaking of the Athletic Association as having authority over athletics, reference should have been made by the writer of that specific paragraph to the Athletic Council.

When the article said that the Book Exchange many times charged prices beyond the retail price of the publishers, it was in error. The statement should have read, if the facts were to have been stated correctly, that the prices are now in many instances more proportionately than what they have been in the past, and that there is no profit-sharing as there was in the earlier years.

The Daily Tar Heel officially decries paternalism in any form: compulsory measures to enforce attendance, or mechanical methods which take no cognizance of human values and individuals (a paternalistic device which admits of no difference in individuals or cases). We seek the unhampered development of high class leadership for the state and the nation, and the preservation of the individual in society. We desire at the present not only departmental control of attendance, but further the control of this matter by individual professors to handle each student case as the integrity, the scholarship, and the dependability of each student warrant without the necessity of conforming to iron-clad rules. Of course, there must be rules. But why not general rules which admit of worthy exceptions? No official attempt has ever been made by the Daily Tar Heel to do other than preserve the separate integrity of both students and faculty.

Faust

The story of Faust is based upon two underlying theses, first the quest of knowledge, and second, the question: What is man's mission on earth?

Most of us have some conception as to what man's mission is on earth, but it might be well to quote Goethe's answer to this question, namely, that "man should accomplish some great good for humanity."

In a few weeks the university will graduate a great many seniors, who, for the most part, have not as yet done anything remarkable. They will be harrangued at length on the subjects of business and making a living and enjoying life, but it is doubtful if anyone will mention Goethe's answer to the question in Faust.

Of course, it is impossible for everyone to do some great good for humanity, because most people do not have the capacity for greatness. They can, however, make some contribution to humanity by helping "to make this a better world for others to live in." No matter how trivial the contribution, it will be better to make a small one than to live completely egocentric lives.

Thousands of new college graduates will shortly go out into the world, and the majority of them will never see beyond their own selfish interests. If, however, there will be just a few real humanitarians among them, it will be sufficient excuse for the education of the whole lot. —A. J. S.

Turn Backward O Time

It seems that the legislature has enough mess on its hands without taking up the proposed legislation of the Sons of the American Revolution, whatever that is, that teachers in all educational institutions supported by state funds be required to take an oath of allegiance to the constitution.

In its national convention held at Charlotte earlier in the week Howard C. Rowley of California, chairman of the patriotic education committee, reported that nine states had already passed laws requiring teachers to take oath, and that like legislation was pending in eight other states. An effort will be made to by the S. A. R. to have all states pass such laws.

The cause of this proposal was given as communism. "Children in our schools are being proselyted by Communists," was the assertion of Harry R. Brewer of New Jersey in the report of the Americanization of aliens committee.

In spite of the terrible effects that communism may have on the average American school boy, if it can have any effect, it seems that this is going a little bit too far. We try to put over insignificant laws such as these while the bigger things slip by unnoticed. The North Carolina legislature has been in session in Raleigh for 133 days now, and up to date nothing of any great importance has been accomplished. Such trivial matters as this has been one of the reasons that the North Carolina law makers have been unable to accomplish anything. As long as we take up the time of the law making bodies with such trivial things as requiring school teachers to take oaths of allegiance to the constitution they will not be able to do anything of any great importance.

Then again in addition to the legislature we should consider the ones affected by the measure. The teachers of North Carolina, or any other state, are for the most part well educated men and women and Communism and other such so called evils will not have any affect on them. Why then is it necessary to take up the time of the legislature by such minor things as this when it could well use the time, taken up in discussion of this, for much more important things.—T. H. B.

A Political Panacea

June first is almost here and the state of North Carolina must collect its license taxes. The deadlock over at Raleigh, however, continues and there seems to be little hope of a settlement of the taxation problem in the near future. The several institutions dependent upon the state government are anxiously awaiting the results of this legislature. What will happen? The case seems to be hopeless in view of the fact that the house won't have an ad valorem tax and the senate won't have a sales tax.

We believe that this deadlock in the 1931 legislature very clearly presents to the people of North Carolina the fact that the government of the state needs constitutional reform, namely: a unicameral legislature and the veto power for the governor.

We are fully aware of the fact that such a fundamental change in the structure of our government cannot be made easily. It may never be made. Present governmental needs make it necessary for us to act more speedily. We cannot afford to have such delays as now face us in our government.

The method of representation in the house of Representatives is not fundamentally different from that in the Senate. Both are chosen on a basis of population. The old days of one group representing population and the other property have long since passed into history.

Since there is no fundamental difference, why should we elect two separate bodies to continually be deadlocked with one another. The principal objection given to the unicameral body is that it may be inclined to act too hastily. To have a check on the unicameral body, we would suggest veto power for the governor (a power granted to every governor of the forty-eight states, excepting the Governor of North Carolina). This, together with the power of the legislature to override the Governor's veto with a two-thirds vote, would give us a system that would have a sufficient number of checks and balances without the unbreakable deadlock that our legislators now face.

It may take ten years, or even fifty years. Archibald D. Murphey and his associates spent a whole lifetime fighting for the convention of 1835. (Murphey died before his dream was realized.) It may take the state that long again to get constitutional reform, but it would be worth it to make the state safe from another legislative entanglement such as that which our faithful legislators are not trying to solve at Raleigh.—K. C. R.

Speaking The Campus Mind

Another Reader

I see by Saturday's Tar Heel that one of the editorial staff is of the opinion that the Human Relations Institute could not be successful as a yearly event . . . To the contrary, it seems to me that, if the Institute were made an annual affair, it would be looked forward to much more than is now the case. . .

The author said, "If the Institute continued to bring speakers in the lines of Inter-racial, Inter-national, and Politics and Government, the time would soon come when the student body would have heard all about these subjects it desires." From this statement it seems to me that the author is both flattering the speakers' ability to impart information and our own ability to receive it. . .

The author finally says, "Unless some definite arrangement could be made for sufficient financial support each year and unless a different set of speakers could be secured each year, it is our contention that the Human Relations Institute will not be successful as a yearly event." Why does the author object to hearing the same man lecture on two consecutive years? Does he not hear the same man lecture every day on class? . . . As to the financial question, this is a problem which we will always respect. But whatever the cost, it seems generally believed that the value of this Institute has far exceeded its expense.

Fred C. Wardlaw

Student Government

On "King Barleycorn"

The student council wishes to make clear its position on the problem of drinking at the University. There is, of course, no fixed law on the subject, since there is no written constitution by which the council is governed. This governing body is not in sympathy with student governing systems which declare in their constitutions and by-laws that any student who takes a drink of intoxicating liquor must be dismissed from the school. Such laws are obviously insane and impracticable, and have a tendency to disrupt the entire system by making it a sham. Under our process of self-government each case is judged on its own peculiar circumstances.

Last year five men were suspended from the University for drunkenness (two indefinitely and three for one year) and sixteen were put on strict drinking probation The usual procedure of the council has been as follows: first offenses of drunkenness, if not of too serious a nature, are subject to strict probation, which is a corrective measure and a form of suspended sentence. If a student is guilty of violating his probation he is automatically suspended from the University. Serious cases of first offenses—cases of drunk and disorderly conduct—are usually subject to suspension for a definite period, varying from one quarter to two years.

In reference to the recent expose in the Daily Tar Heel, the council expects the cooperation of the student body in discouraging drinking and in eliminating, as far as possible, the agencies through which liquor is distributed. The council is especially anxious to rid the campus of any student who may be engaged in bootlegging in any way. If the members of the staff of the Daily Tar Heel, or any other students, have any definite facts in support of the charges made, they should feel it their duty to report such facts to the student council so that the proper investigations may be made, and such conditions remedied.

MAYNE ALBRIGHT,
President Student Union.

Action of the Council at its Monday night meeting: Case No. 32: Mr. X, a Junior, was indefinitely suspended from the University for second violation of bad check probation.

HAYWOOD WEEKS,
Secretary Student Council.

THE THEATRE

By James Dawson

Experimental productions, invitational performances, these three plays are not to be answered for by the Carolina Playmakers, it is clearly stated and as clearly understood. They are produced by the authors, which is the way the Playmakers have of trying them out on the dog. But it is inhuman to put even a dog out on a night like that. The general tone of the first two plays was, by some trick of the players, something like the burlesques of a Playmaker revel. Hence the hesitancy one has at even thinking twice about them. They are things you enjoy for a space and then forget, happily.

A Village Tragedy, by Dr. Charlotte Hammond, might have begun as a tragedy, but empathy worked backward and made it a comedy. It was remembered for: John Sehon's spike beard . . . his eternal whittling . . . John Edwards' sanctimonious expression . . . Malcolm Seawell's nicely greyed hair . . . Everett Jess' piercing a man's heart by shooting at his feet . . . Alfredo Nazareno's badge . . . Dr. Hammond's dance . . .

Lonely Hearts, Phillip Milhous' comedy, made the odd coincidences department by its unfortunate, and possibly unconscious, parallel of Mrs. Coffin's famed Magnolia's Man. In spots it was funny. It made the most of such things as: Charles Elledge's bullish roar . . . Marion Tatum's rubbing Elledge's back with red liniment . . . Marion Tatum's stuffing Elledge's shirt into his overalls . . . Eve Brickman's Brooklabama accent . . . Phillip Milhous' drinking lemon extract, looking madly for a chaser, coughing suspiciously . . . all the players' trying to keep from laughing at their own lines . . .

That much you can forget easily. The last play on the bill The House of Grief, has a way of sticking in your mind. What to say about it is something else.

To get the obvious out of the way with one statement, it was a pleasing production, technically. We bow to Mary Dirnberger, and to the stage crew, who mounted the piece effectively on a black cyclorama with silver sections behind the openings. The lighting was well handled. The light men probably worked harder than anyone else concerned, with the exception of Mary Dirnberger, whose hand was evident in the easy and natural way the players moved about, grouped, and wore their very good costumes—no, drapes.

The play itself was a poetic fantasy. (Try to pin one of those things down! Just try it.) It had no real setting, of course, no definite characters, no time. It made use of symbols, in the forms of doors, bandages, crutches, etc. And it was centered about the dormant material instinct in every woman, even one who never had a child.

That is, doubtless, a very poetic idea. But if the author has thought very clearly about it she has not completely succeeded in conveying her conception with its symbolism, to her audience. The thing as a whole left a disastrously confused impression in the mind, possibly because of the playwright's fondness for the intrinsic beauty of words. As a rhythmed dance, the idea might conceivably have gone into something that would have approached a unified whole, but as an audible play, it was almost obscured by the lines the author had given her type characters. Realising this tendency toward the dance, the director obviously moulded the grouping of the figures with it in mind, to the end that some of her tableaux suggested the poses of a dramatic dance form. So she aided the understanding of the theme as much as she possibly could have. But it was still muddled.

(Continued on last page)

The Seeman Printery
Incorporated

For more than 46 years this company has been serving an ever-increasing number of customers.
Are you among them?
If not, try us—

110-112 Cocoran Street
Durham, N. C.

IT COULD ONLY HAPPEN IN PARIS!

Imagine being the world's greatest lover. Imagine a doctor telling you one more kiss means your finish. Imagine your falling in love with The One girl . . . . Imagine! . . . .

with FRANK FAY

LAURA LAPLANTE
JOAN BLONDELL
LOUISE BROOKS
and seven of Hollywood's most gorgeous girls!

Now Playing
CAROLINA

TONIGHT — 11 P. M.
Maurice Chevalier in "Le Comedien (Playboy) De Paris"

Tar Heels Meet State To Close 1931 Season

Victory Over Wolfpack Will Give Heels Undisputed Possession of Tri-State Title and .800 Record for Season.

Fresh from a 6-2 victory over Duke's Blue Devils, the Tar Heel baseball team will close a successful season today, meeting N. C. State on Riddick Field, Raleigh.

The Doakmen have already carried off a 7-4 decision over the Tar Heels, but no information about the State team could be obtained, since it was one of the weirdest contests witnessed on the Hill. Tar Heel errors counted heavily in that game, three misplays in the third inning accounting for the same number of runs.

John Lanning will face the Tar Heels again, having already earned one victory for the Wolfpack, while Shields will probably be on the slab for Carolina.

Although Carolina has no chance of taking the Big Five crown, more sectional importance will be displayed because a victory over State will give the Tar Heels undisputed possession of the Tri-State League flag, which corresponds to the upper half championship of the Southern Conference.

There is a similar league in the lower half of the Conference, the Dixie League, which at the latest report it being led by Auburn.

The Raleigh institution has had an unusually poor season, winning but six games and chalking eight on the wrong side of the ledger. The Doakmen have victories over Maryland (2), Davidson (2), and single wins over Carolina and V. M. I. A game with V. P. I. ended in a deadlock.

With the ineligibility of Bill Averette, State has depended almost entirely on a sophomore hurler, John Lanning, and he has come through in fine style. He has pitched several brilliant games but lack of support on the part of his mates deprived him of victory. Last week, he hurled a three hit game against the Wake Forest club, yet lost, 1-0. If he is right today, the Tar Heels will have plenty of trouble in getting their hits.

The line-up for Carolina will probably be: Croom, rf; Ferebee, ss; House, lf; Dunlap, 1b; Potter, c; Peacock, cf; Powell, 3b; Wyrick, 2b; Shields, p.

FIVE TEAMS TOP CAMPUS LEAGUE

A.T.O.'s Win Fraternity League Title; Four Teams Deadlocked for Top in Dormitory League.

The intramural baseball season was brought to a close last Friday with the A. T. O.'s topping the fraternity league and four teams tied for top honors in the Dormitory league.

New Dorms, Steele, Best House, and Everett boast perfect records for the season. Of these Steele has the best record for the season with six victories. The play-offs for the Dormitory title got under way yesterday afternoon with New Dorms meeting the Best House and Steele playing Everett. The winners of these games will meet for the dormitory championship tomorrow afternoon at four o'clock, probably on Emerson field.

Monday will see the A. T. O.'s meeting the dormitory champion for the campus title.

The Sigma Zeta's and the Chi Phi's were the last teams to be eliminated, the Deke's topping the Chi Phi's last Thursday afternoon, 6-3, while the Sigma Zeta's were defeated by the championship A. T. O.'s, 5-1, earlier in the week.

Athletic Equipment

All athletic equipment must be turned in to Emerson field this afternoon between the hours of 9:00 a. m. and 6:00 p. m.

COLLEGIANA

By THOMAS H. BROUGHTON

More than 670 individuals, representing thirty-seven colleges and universities, have entered in the fity-fifth annual Intercollegiate Track and Field Championships, scheduled to take place on Franklin field in Philadelphia on May 29 and 30. The number entered this year is greater than ever before. Southern California, California, and Stanford are among those entered. A Western entry has won the annual meet every year since 1921 except in 1924 when Yale broke through with the winning points.

The Auburn Tigers will be inspired by the stirring rhythm of a new victory song when they make their debut before the 1931 football public against Birmingham-Southern at Montgomery, Alabama.

The Auburn "A" club sponsored a song contest, which closed April 30, and selected "Fight Em Tiger" from the fifty submitted from all over the South. William Sykes and Joseph Marino of Birmingham were the composers of the winning selection.

Marty Brill, former Notre Dame backfield star, has signed a contract to assist Lou Little, Columbia head football coach, next year. Brill will specialize in interference next year, the ex-Notre Dame ace having been noted as the best interfering back in the country last year. This is in keeping with the announcement of Little that Columbia would be able to block and interfere next year.

Culminating his brilliant career as a Minnesota swimmer, a career which in addition to the captaincy of his team, the conference and National Intercollegiate back-stroke titles, Lowell Marsh received the ultimate honor bestowed by his alma mater in the Conference Medal, it was announced recently.

The medal awarded to the man graduating in the senior class of each conference university, who through a course of four scholastic years' residence in the same university, has the highest degree of achievement in his athletic as well as in his scholastic work, is the only award given to a member of the graduating class.

"Hard Luck" Hank Bruder, captain and star halfback of Northwestern's championship Big Ten football team last fall, showed his ware before Wisconsin fans again when he appeared last night in a wrestling match with Kogut, a yeteran matman.

Since taking up the pro wrestling game, Bruder has been finding considerable success and his recent matches through the Mid-West, has brought considerable praise for his abilities on the mat.

Southern California entries in the annual West Coast Relays, May 9, listed three record holders. Lee Barnes, entry in the pole vault, holds the world's record in that event, while Wykoff holds the world's record in the 100 yard dash, and Ken Churchill holds the National Intercollegiate record for the javelin.

FRESHMAN STAR TO STRENGTHEN 1932 TRACKMEN

Floyd Higby Holds University Record for Broad Jump; Performs Well in Dashes.

The Carolina track squad will be greatly strengthened next spring by the addition of Floyd Higby to the list of those eligible for varsity competition. Higby is probably the most promising member of this year's undefeated freshman squad, and with another year of work under Coaches Fetzer and Ransom, should develop into one of the leading track stars of the South.

In the exhibition meet here last Saturday, Higby, performing in the broad jump, bettered the school record held by Dave Neiman for this event by jumping 23 feet 2 3-4 inches. This was exactly seven inches further than Neiman's record making leap and only one inch shy of the distance which was necessary to take first place in the Southern Conference meet. Higby has been jumping consistently around twenty-one feet this season with his best previous mark being made against the N. C. State Wolflets when he took first place with a leap of 21 feet 8 1-4 inches.

In addition to his work in the broad jump, Higby has been a consistent performer in the 100 and 220 yard dashes, where he has been responsible for a large share of the Tar Baby points.

In the matter of points scored, Higby has a big lead over his teammates, having piled up a total of fifty-nine points in five regular dual meets to forty-six for Goodwin, his nearest rival in this line. Only once this season has Higby failed to score at least ten points in a meet, that being in the opening contest of the year when he scored nine against Charlotte High School with a first, second, and third place. On three occasions he has led the team scoring with thirteen points in a single afternoon.

Next year Higby will be competing with Charley Farmer, Rip Slusser, Bob Drane, and Ken Marland, holdovers from this year's squad, and Ashkenas, Weisker, and Nicholson, of this year's freshmen squad, in the dashes, but in the broad jump, his field of competition will not be quite so fast. Both Theron Brown and Bill Howard, Carolina's jumpers this season, will be back, but neither of these men have approached Higby's best mark during the past season.

With Higby in the line up next year, it looks as if the Tar Heels will be strong again in an event which saw Carolina take first place only twice this season, Bagby winning against N. C. State and Georgia Tech.

Falling in line with the recent action instituted at Penn State, Boston university has revised its athletic policy to make all coaches members of the faculty. The reorganization of athletic activities at the Boston institution is the result of a prolonged investigation by the president of the university and indirectly because of the Carnegie Foundation report.

At last someone has taken the Foundation's report seriously.

Engaging forty-nine colleges in thirteen states, the football team of the University of Pittsburgh had won 185 games, lost sixty-nine, and tied sixteen in the past forty years. The Panthers have played more games with Penn State than with any other institution, the two teams meeting thirty-three times on the gridiron.

1931 TAR HEEL NET TEAM MAKES SPLENDID RECORD

Presents Strong Claim to National Title; Makes Sweep of 7-Match Northern Tour.

By Morrie Long

That officials will have a comparatively easy time in selecting the National Intercollegiate Tennis champions for this year is the common concensus of southern tennis fans who have followed the brilliant play of the University of North Carolina's netmen through a season which netted them wins over some of the best southern and eastern teams in the United States.

Exceeding the hopes of even the most optimistic court followers, Carolina's splendid racketeers have swept through a most successful year, not dropping a single match, although encountering what are conceded to be the best teams in the collegiate net world. The Tar Heels' strongest claim for the National title rests on the fact that they vanquished Harvard, who has been recognized as the unofficial Intercollegiate champion for the last two years.

The greatest array of tennis talent ever to grace a Carolina court opened the season impressively with a 6 to 0 whitewash of Clemson. Wake Forest college next was subdued with a 9 to 0 shutout, and playing with the same consistent effectiveness Carolina vanquished her old rivals, Duke, by the score of 9 to 0. A similar victory was repeated over Wake Forest, which was followed by a bowling over of Davidson with a 8 to 0 count.

In order to give his proteges more tournament experience, Coach Kenfield entered his Tar Heel coterie in the North-South tournament held at Pinehurst. Bryan Grant, ace of the Carolinans, went to the semi-finals, only to lose to Cliff Sutter, last year's intercollegiate champ and now a Davis Cup player. In previous engagements with Sutter, Grant always managed to win more than his share of victories. Paired with Wilmer Hines, number two of the Kenfield netmen, Grant once again reached the semi-finals only to lose to the Van Ryn-Shield combination in the doubles play. The latter two men are both on the Davis Cup team and are recognized as two of the outstanding men in the tennis world today.

Encouraged by the creditable performances exhibited at Pinehurst, the Tar Heel squad swept through the North Carolina state tournament, placing their entire squad in the quarter finals. Grant beat Yeomans, number three, while Hines licked Wright, number seven, in the semi-finals. Unquestionable, one of the most outstanding matches ever seen in Chapel Hill was when Grant broke the ancient sport axiom that a good big man always licks a good little man by taking the state title from Hines by scores of 6-2, 6-4, 8-10, 6-4. Wright and Yeomans met Grant and Hines in the doubles finals, but lacked the power of these champions, the Hines-Grant pair collecting another title.

Sewanee was the last Southern team encountered, and she, too, suffered the same fate that had overtaken the other teams, losing a 6-0 match. Grant took the measure of Teddie Burwell, 32nd ranking player of the country easily.

Led by Captain Sonny Graham, the Carolina tennis squad left on a northern invasion against the east's best court teams. This trip was one of the hardest ever to be undertaken by a Carolina team, and the re-

(Continued on last page)

Baseball Results

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Philadelphia 5	Detroit 0
New York 8	Cleveland 5
(6th inning)
Washington	Chicago
(Rain)
Boston	St. Louis
(Rain)

NATIONAL LEAGUE

St. Louis 6	Brooklyn 2
New York 9	Cincinnati 3
Boston 9	Chicago 5
Philadelphia 3	Pittsburgh 2

INTRAMURAL RESULTS

New Dorms Wins 7-6

New Dorms defeated Best House 7-6 in the first game in the play-offs for the dormitory championship. Hampton, New Dorms' first sacker, won the game in the last of the fifth by slamming out a long homer with two on.

Scarboro, losing pitcher, allowed five hits and struck out three, while Scott, New Dorms, was touched for six hits. He fanned four batters.

Hampton's homer came with the score 6-4 in favor of Best House. With one down, Martin and Choate hit safely, and Hampton cleared the bags with his long four-bagger.

Allison led Best House at bat with two hits for two attempts. In addition he scored two runs. Hampton and Choate for New Dorms got two out of three tries.

The score:

Best House	012 21—6
New Dorms	202 03—7

Batteries: Scarboro and Smith; Scott and Choate.

Graham 10, Steele 4

Graham gained the right to meet New Dorms for the dormitory championship by subduing Steele, 10-4. The game was full of errors, and coupled with bases on balls, they accounted for most of the winner's runs.

LeGore, Graham pitcher, held in the pinches, and yielded only four hits, striking out seven men.

Ashe started on the mound for Steele, but he was removed after 2 and 1-3 innings in favor of McBride, who finished. Each pitcher was found for only two safeties, but together they handed out ten free passes to first. Ashe put the third strike by three batsmen, and McBride accounted for two the same way.

Johnson, Graham, led his team with two hits for four, and he scored two runs. Cox, Steele catcher, got a homer in

(Continued on last page)

HOUSE FOR RENT

Five room furnished cottage for rent; summer months; shower bath and all conveniences. Phone 6381 before June 1st.

TRIO UNDEFEATED STARS LEAD TAR HEEL NET TEAM

Hines, Graham, Abels Have Perfect Record; Abels Averages 3 Games Lost Per Match.

The Carolina tennis team, with its A-1 claim to national championship honors, closed its season with a 9-0 win over Duke on Tuesday, and no sooner had the last point been won than the statisticians started figuring. The results are quite interesting.

Carolina won every Southern match by shut-out figures. In the North Yale was the only team to give the Tar Heels a close run, Old Eli holding them to 5-4, but Harvard was given its first licking in 38 starts by a score of 7-2, and Georgetown, Princeton, N. Y. U., Army, and Brown were all turned back by margins as great or greater.

In tournaments competition Tar Heel met Tar Heel in both singles and doubles finals of the State tourney, Bryan Grant winning the singles, and teaming with Wilmer Hines to take the doubles. In the Southern Conference tourney, Ed Yeomans and Hinkey Hendlin, number three and four men, won the doubles, Yeomans placing second in the singles, with Sophs Grant and Hines left home to catch classes.

Wilmer Hines, Number two man; Captain Sonny Graham, Number five; and Lucas Abels, alternate, went through the season undefeated.

One of Carolina's 14 matches, a 9-0 victory on a foreign field, was unreported to the press, but figures readily available tell an interesting story of individual performances in the other 13 victories.

Wilmer Hines, the national junior champ, led the pack in victories with 13 for 13, while

(Continued on last page)

An Edward Summer Ensemble—attractive in more ways than one.

EDWARD CLOTHES
MADE FOR YOU

$28.75 — $32.75 — $38.75

Randolph-McDonald
Incorporated

THE SMOKE SHOP
EAT WITH US DRINK WITH US

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Beta Theta Pi Fraternity House will be open for roomers for the Summer School. All applications may be made at once to H. L. Anderson at the Beta House or Phone 6071.

THE BETA DINING ROOM

Will also be open for the summer. Excellent food will be served at the regular price of $30 Per Month

STATE EDUCATORS WRITE IN JOURNAL

The last issue of The High School Journal, monthly magazine published by the school of education, has just been distributed. The circulation of the journal reaches over one half the high school teachers in this state and many other high school teachers in forty-two other states.

The material contained is for the use of teachers and consists of both contributed matter and the writings of the regular staff of which Dean N. W. Walker is the head. Mr. I. C. Griffin, of the department of education, is the business manager of the magazine.

The last issue contains an article by C. O. Arndt, principal of Morrisville high school, Morrisville, Indiana on, "A Program of Self Improvement for the Supervisor," also "Profession Economy" by A. B. Culbertson, superintendent of Wayne county high schools, and "The Purpose and Program of Vocational Agriculture in Conway High School" by C. E. Morrison. Other articles are columns by various members of the staff on individual departments.

Recorder's Court

The following cases were tried in the Chapel Hill court Saturday morning by Judge C. P. Hinshaw.

S. D. Broadwell, white, received three months on the road for being found guilty of possessing liquor.

D. H. Waters, white, received the same sentence for disposing of mortgaged property. The case was appealed.

Arthur Blackwood, colored, was found innocent of a charge of transporting liquor.

B. J. Strowd, colored, paid costs and was put on good behavior for a year when found guilty of being intoxicated and causing a disturbance.

Clyde Council, colored, paid costs for having liquor in his possession for the purpose of sale.

Roosevelt Guthrie, colored, paid costs for driving on the streets of Chapel Hill in a careless and reckless manner.

DASHIELL AND KOCH PLAN LECTURE TOUR

Dr. J. F. Dashiell, of the psychology department, and Professor Frederick H. Koch, of the English department, are going to Los Angeles this summer to teach at the University of Southern California. The summer session there has been expanded to ten weeks, for the first time.

Dr. Dashiell will read a paper before the Western Psychological association meeting at the University of Oregon. He is to attend the meeting of section "I", of the American association for the advancement of science at Pasadena, California, and will visit the psychological laboratories at the Universities of Washington and Minnesota.

Professor Koch plans to stop at the New Mexico normal university, where he will lecture on folk drama, as the guest of Professor Lester Raines. The subjects which Koch will teach at Southern California are playwriting, play production, and comparative drama.

Auto Smashup

While turning off the highway near the Tin Can on its way to the field house Saturday night, the bus belonging to the Riverside Military academy was struck by an auto driven by Jack Sparrow. Neither the occupants of the bus or car were injured. Considerable damage was done to Mr. Sparrow's automobile and the fender and running board of the bus was demolished.

The Campus Calendar

Senior O. K.

All seniors who have not obtained the O. K. for their major and minor do so immediately and report to Dean A. W. Hobbs' office.

Diploma Fee

The diploma fee of $5.00 for all seniors that expect to graduate in June is payable any time now at the business office in South.

Nine To Receive High Degrees In Chemistry

Nine persons in the chemistry department of the University will receive higher degrees this spring. Five of these will receive Ph.D. degrees and four will receive master's.

Those receiving Ph.D. degrees are:

Mr. G. G. Albritton of Farmerville, Louisiana, received his B. S. from Louisiana state university in 1921, and his M.S. from the same in 1926. Mr. Albritton is majoring in inorganic chemistry.

Mr. R. M. Byrd received his B.S. from Citadel in 1921, and his M.S. here in 1925. He is majoring in analytical chemistry. He is from Edgefield, S. C.

Mr. A. E. Hughes received his B.S. from Carson Newman, 1927, and his M.S. here, 1929. He is majoring in physical chemistry.

Mr. H. A. Ljung received his B. S. here, 1927, and his M. S. in 1929. He is from Greensboro, and is majoring in analytical chemistry.

Mr. J. P. Sanders received his B.S. from the University of Georgia, in 1923, and his M.S. from Iowa State, 1924. He is from Stonewall, Georgia, is majoring in analytical chemistry.

Those to receive master's degrees are:

R. H. Baker, Matthew; Mrs. E. M. Stevens, Demorest, Georgia; R. H. Belcher, Cairo, Georgia; T. W. Richmond, Rocky Mount.

"Messiah" Planned At N. C. C. W. Sunday

Approximately 100 voices in the North Carolina college chorus, a supporting orchestra of thirty pieces, and four soloists from High Point, Guilford, and North Carolina colleges, will be featured in the presentation of Handel's "Messiah" Sunday afternoon at 3:30 at Aycock auditorium, N. C. C. W.

Solo work in tenor and bass will be done by E. B. Stimson, a member of the faculty of High Point college and Max Noah, of the department of music at Guilford college. Mrs. E. C. Caldwell and Miss Edythe Schneider, of North Carolina college school of music are to do the contralto and soprano work.

PLAYERS ARE SELECTED FOR FINAL PRODUCTION

The Perfect Alibi, a detective story in three acts, will be presented one night only in Memorial hall, Saturday, May 23.

The cast for this production was chosen from comparatively new players due to the policy of the Playmakers, of seeking new material. The cast includes John Sehon, Elizabeth Perrow, Whitner Bissell, Arthur Marpet, Robert Novins, Marion Tatum, Susan Creech, William Chandler, William Allsbrook, Charles Elledge, and Thomas Loy.

The setting was designed by Mary Dirnberger and executed by her, Messrs. Robert Proctor, Leonard Fox, and students in the University course in Theatre Arts, English 36.

Negro Glee Club To Give Performance

Twenty-five talented Negro singers, composing the Glee club of the Palmer Memorial institute of Sedalia, will give a concert in the Pickwick theatre at 8:30 tomorrow evening. The use of the building is contributed by E. Carrington Smith. Seats are reserved for white people.

The Negro Mehtodist church of Chapel Hill, through a committee headed by Nathaniel Sellars, has arranged the entertainment. The admission price will be 35 cents and the net proceeds will be devoted to the work of the church.

The program will include the singing of spirituals by a mixed quartet.

This Palmer Memorial Glee club sang in Boston last year and was greeted there by a large audience. Its performance was highly praised by the music reviewers.

PSYCHOLOGY FRATERNITY INDUCTS NEW MEMBERS

At the monthly meeting of the Alpha Psi Delta, honorary psychological fraternity, last week the following new members were inducted: Mrs. Vance, Miss Sybille Berwanger, and Miss Charlotte Hayes.

The meeting was addressed by Dr. O. H. Lundholm, of the Duke university psychology department. He was introduced by Dr. K. E. Zener, also a member of the Duke faculty and a member of the University chapter of Alpha Psi Delta. Dr. Lundholm talked on his new interpretation of functional amnesia. Following this L. E. Rackley, instructor in the University psychology department spoke on his recent experiments concerning the effect of loss of sleep and effect of noise upon work. The latter experiments have been performed recently upon some students in the University.

KOCH TO LECTURE FOR IOWA CLUB FEDERATION

Frederick H. Koch, professor of English, left yesterday for Marshaltown, Iowa, where he will deliver a lecture before the Biennial Convention of the Iowa Federation of Women's clubs.

The title of Professor Koch's lecture will be "Making an American Folk Theatre," a subject in which he has been interested for some time. While on his trip Mr. Koch will pay a short visit to Norman Foerster who last year transferred from the Carolina English department to the University of Iowa school of letters.

TRIO UNDEFEATED STARS LEAD TAR HEEL NET TEAM

(Continued from preceding page)

Bryan Grant, National Clay-court Champ, won 11 and dropped 2 to such stars as Mangin of Georgetown and Ryan of Yale. Captain Graham won 11 for 11, Abels 4 for 4, Yeomans 9 for 10, Hendlin 10 for 11, and Lenoir Wright 10 for 11.

Abels led the field by big margin in fewest games lost, letting four opponents have but three games between them, an average of 3-4 a game match. Abels, of course, didn't meet the competition the Number one and two men met, but the record is remarkable withal.

Captain Graham had the next best record in this respect, the average number of games a match he dropped being 4.27. Corresponding figures for the other Tar Heels in games lost a match were Grant 6.77; Hines 5.38; Yeomans 7.2; Hendlin 4.64; Wright 6.09.

Coach John Kenfield led the team through its fine season.

1931 TAR HEEL NET TEAM MAKE SPLENDID RECORD

(Continued from preceding page)

sults accomplished were most gratifying. Georgetown University was defeated 7 to 2 in the initial contest, Grant dropping a match to Gregory Mangin, a Davis Cup player ranked number six, while the Hines-Grant doubles team lost their match. An 8 to 1 setback was administered the strong Princeton team. Still adhering to the winning policy, Carolina swamped the strong New York University contingent 8 to 1, and the following day easily defeated the weak Army team 9 to 0. However, Yale made up for Army's lack of competition by forcing the Tar Heels to the last game before the match was decided. The final count was 5 to 4 for Carolina. Brown was on the short end of a 5 to 0 score when rain terminated the affair. Because of the enviable record made by the Harvard team which included thirty-eight successive victories, the touring Carolina troupe was not expected to win that match, but despite adverse predictions, went ahead to overcome the Crimson 7 to 2, although the score does not indicate the closeness of the match.

The personnel of the squad included a number of champions. Bryan Grant, who ranks as tenth best in the United States, is the national clay court champion and also number one of the Tar Heel squad. Wilmer Hines, national junior champion, is number two, while Ed Yeomans, 1929 state champion of North Carolina, takes the third position of the national honor claimers.

Hendlin, state champion of North Carolina 1930, and Lenoir Wright, South Atlantic interscholastic winner, have been alternating as number four and five men respectively throughout the season. Captain Sonny Graham played in sixth position, and Lucas Abels in eighth. Grant, Hines, Wright, and Abels are sophomores, while Hendlin, Liskin, and Graham are juniors. Ed Yeomans is the only man lost to the squad for the next year, so prospects for another winning team are extremely bright.

FIVE BILLS CITED AS CHIEF WORK OF LEGISLATURE

(Continued from first page)

new banking department, more directly responsible to the Governor, and reorganization of the departments of health and of labor.

Highway Bill Praised

"It is entirely probable that $50,000,000 of the present public debt would have been saved the counties and other local subdivisions of governments in North Carolina if the present local government commission act had been placed on the statute books ten years ago," said the former State official. "North Carolina is the first state in the Union to provide for the State maintenance of all highways, $2,000,000 in economics annually should result from this act, with maintenance of the roads will probably be of a higher order, at considerable reduction in property taxes in every county in the State."

Intramural Results

(Continued from preceding page)

the third frame with one on.

Errors were frequent and costly for both teams, Steele making five miscues, and Graham getting four.

Graham and New Dorms will clash Thursday afternoon for the Dormitory League championship, with New Dorms probably having a better chance of grabbing off the title.

YACKETY YACK TO APPEAR JUNE 20

(Continued from first page)

the selection of cover and type as well as the minor details connected with the printing of the 1931 issue.

Students anticipating a change of address during the summer are urged to mail the new address to Travis Brown, business manager of the Yackety Yack, box 969, Chapel Hill.

The Theatre

(Continued from page two)

The exact symbolic significance of the house of Grief was not clear. Although we realise that a fantasy is not to be taken for realism, we are not asking too much when we want to know whether it was a symbol for Oblivion, Self-Pity, or merely Grief. The bandages on the eyes of the mothers were surely symbols, but of what? Say Blindness, which is the first thing that comes to mind on seeing blindfolded eyes. But was it Blindness to Joy, to Grief, to Reality, to Humility, to what? When The-Man-Whose-Mother-Hated-Him threw away the spur into the night, it flamed like a meteor. Why? The-Woman-Who-Never-Had-A-Child suggested that his mother was out there, watching. What mystic power did she have that made the spur flame, and of what was its flaming symbolic? Of her forgiveness, her repentance, of her sign to him that she really loved him after all? And finally, the childless woman led off the hated son, saying: "Come!" which seems perfectly simple until you reflect that it was not her simple action of adoption that was portrayed, but a transcendentally symbolic bit that closed the fantasy with a moral. What that was, we confess, we did not understand.

It cannot be said that the players acted, for they were types, and characterizations was out of the question, save in the case of Marion Tatum, who really did an Irish mother. Her accent was good. All of the mothers were fair to look upon, and with unimportant exceptions they handled their speeches well. Kent Creuser, as the hated son, was effective, but had a tendency toward over-acting and melodramatic flourishes in his longer speeches, flowery as they were.

Mention The Daily Tar Heel when buying.

WANTED FOR RENT

Cottage, three bedrooms, furnished, centrally located. Communicate U. P. G., 206 Spencer.

LOST

White Gold Bulova wrist watch. G. W. D. monogram on back. Return 407 E. Franklin. Liberal reward.

Philosophy Degree Abolished at Yale

After a controversy of ten years on undergraduate policy the president and fellows of Yale corporation have voted to abolish the bachelor of philosophy degree in Yale college.

The abolition of the degree, according to Professor Charles Seymour, provost of Yale college, falls naturally into the general trend of the college toward simplification of curriculum. It has been found that students are able to do better work when the arbitrary restrictions directing the studies into channels in which he has no interest are removed.

Edwin Svinhufvud has been chosen president of Finland. Imagine shouting, "Hurrah for Svinhufvud."—Wichita Eagle.

From California to New Haven . . . the FAVORITE pipe tobacco of college men is—

WHEREVER college men pause to load their pipes you'll see the familiar blue tin of Edgeworth!

At California, at Yale, at Williams and Cornell . . . in America's leading colleges and universities you will find Edgeworth the favorite smoking tobacco of the college man.

College men everywhere respond to the appeal of pipes—packed with cool, slow-burning Edgeworth. Be guided by their choice. Try Edgeworth yourself. Taste its rich natural savor that is enhanced immeasurably by Edgeworth's distinctive eleventh process.

You will find Edgeworth at your nearest tobacco shop—15¢ the tin. Or, for generous free sample, address Larus & Bro. Co., 105 S. 22d St., Richmond, Va.

EDGEWORTH
SMOKING TOBACCO

Edgeworth is a blend of fine old burleys, with its natural savor enhanced by Edgeworth's distinctive eleventh process. Buy Edgeworth anywhere in two forms—"Ready-Rubbed" and "Plug Slice." All sizes, 15¢ pocket package to pound humidor tin.

1 Colgate Tooth Brush 50c
1 Tube Colgate Tooth Paste 25c
75c
All for 39c

BERMAN'S DEPARTMENT STORE, Inc

Get Your Kodak Out!

TAKE-A-PICTURE WEEK has unusual significance this year! It comes just as Kodak's $100,000 Picture Competition hits its stride. Heed Take-a-Picture Week's reminder to get the snapshots you've been missing. Get your Kodak out. Then enter some of your prints in the competition. Everybody has a chance to win a big cash prize in this exciting contest. Details and all picture-making supplies here.

"Headquarters for All Photographic Supplies"
Students' Supply Store

SENIOR WEEK TALK
JUSTIN MILLER
DAVIE POPLAR — 7:00

The Daily Tar Heel

McNAIR LECTURES
DR. H. E. KIRK
GERRARD HALL — 8:30

VOLUME XXXIX | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., THURSDAY, MAY 21, 1931 | NUMBER 176

STUDENT FEE IS NECESSARY FOR UPKEEP OF UNION

Vote To Be Taken on Dollar Per Quarter Assessment for Graham Memorial.

At a recent meeting of the committee in charge of Graham Memorial, it was decided that in order for the building to be adequately equipped for the year it would be necessary for a small assessment of one dollar per quarter to be laid on each student. This question is to be voted upon by the members of the student body sometime during the coming week. Before this charge can be made, it will be necessary that a majority of the students favor it.

Fund Necessary

It has been figured out that it will require a large fund to open and continue the union building according to the plans which have been mapped out by the committee. This expense of upkeep of the hall has been cut to a minimum, and with the usual number of students registered in the University, the dollar fee per quarter will offer an amount sufficient for the upkeep of Graham Memorial each year.

According to the present arrangements the new hall is to be supplied with a dining-room or cafeteria, a soda fountain, several modernly equipped lounge rooms, probably a bowling alley, and numerous other attractions. It is the plan of the group that the major publications on the campus also have rooms in the new building, and

(Continued on last page)

HOBGOOD CHOSEN SPEAKER OF PHI

Di Senate Favors Student Assessment for Graham Memorial Upkeep.

At the regular meetings of the Phi and Di societies Tuesday night, the Phi assembly elected its officers for next year while the Di senate considered three bills.

The Phi assembly chose Hamilton H. Hobgood of Bunn speaker for the fall quarter of next year by a unanimous vote. The other officers elected at this time are as follows: Dan A. Kelly, speaker pro-tem; Vernon Brown, sergeant-at-arms; Cecil K. Carmichael, reading clerk; Dan C. McDuffie, treasurer; and Marvin Johnson, assistant treasurer. A. D. Kornegay, R. M. McMillan, and M. A. Simons were chosen on the ways and means committee, with A. D. Kornegay as chairman.

Campus Problems

Speaker Haywood, after turning the assembly over to the new officers, asked the assembly in the future to discuss campus problems. He said that in this way the assembly could be of more use to the University and the student body as a whole. He also congratulated Representative Lanier for his work in revising the constitution.

The bill, Resolved: That the Federal Farm Board's policy of selling surplus wheat in Europe below the market price is not for the best interests of America, was passed in the Di senate by a vote of twelve to one after being upheld by Senator Howell. Another bill reading, resolved: That the United

(Continued on last page)

Kennedy Named Dean Of State Organists

At the annual meeting of the North Carolina chapter of the American Guild of Organists in Winston-Salem last Friday, Professor Nelson O. Kennedy of the University music department was elected dean of organists of the North Carolina chapter. This office is a distinct tribute to the ability of Mr. Kennedy in the field of his activity. A feature of the meeting was an organ contest in which students of organ in the state under twenty-five years of age took part. Professor Kennedy acted as judge of this contest.

The North Carolina chapter is scheduled to hold its next meeting in Chapel Hill, May, 1932. Last night the first student to receive the degree of A.B. in music with organ as major, Mr. Brandel F. James of Winterville, gave his senior recital in Music hall. Mr. James made his study of organ under Professor Kennedy.

AWARDS NIGHT IS TO CLOSE EVENTS OF COLLEGE YEAR

Outstanding Students to Receive Recognition of Services to University Next Monday Night

Awards Night, one of the most interesting and important student events of the year has been set for Monday evening at 8:00 in Memorial hall. At this meeting of the student body those students who during the year have been of service to the University will receive recognition for their work. This meeting serves as a climax to the student activities of the year.

This year's Awards Night program will consist of speeches by President Graham, Coach Bob Fetzer, Mayne Albright, faculty members, and several prominent student leaders on the campus. Charms and monograms will be given to those students who have by their work in the fields of literature, music, and athletics merited this distinction. Cheers and music by the University band will add spirit to the occasion.

Grail Award

At the conclusion of the program the Grail award will be presented. This cup is presented to the best freshman scholar-athlete. This organization also awards a trophy to the best all-around intramural athlete. The intramural cup which is awarded on a basis of points scored in the various intramural sports will be presented to the victorious dormitory or fraternity at this time.

The annual Awards Night meetings were begun during the campaign for raising funds with which to build Graham Memorial. The meeting Monday night will be the last mass meeting of the student body this year.

Negro Legion Posts To Hold Ceremonies

The Chapel Hill and the Pittsboro Negro Posts of the American Legion will receive their charters at a meeting next Sunday at 2:30 in the Pickwich theatre.

The principal address of the occasion will be delivered by President Frank P. Graham. Music for the program will be furnished by the Charlotte drum and bugle corps, which is one of the only organizations of its kind in the state.

GERMAN CLUB TO DEFEND POSITION

Dance Organization Will Have Hearing Before Di and Phi Tonight.

At a joint meeting of the Phi and Di societies at 7:45 o'clock tonight in the Phi assembly hall the powers of the German club will be discussed. Egbert Haywood, speaker of the Phi, will preside at the meeting.

The two societies in joint session some time ago, after they had voted to strip the German club of its powers at house parties and dances at the Hill, decided to give this organization the opportunity to defend itself before the two bodies in session.

Will Defend Position

Interest in the question of the German club's activities was started when Senator Rector of the Di senate appeared before the joint session of the Di and Phi and proposed that the German club should no longer exercise the powers which it now has over dances and house parties. The exact wording of the bill is: "Resolved: That the German Club be stripped of its powers at dances and house parties on the campus."

The passage of the bill introduced by Senator Rector has caused a great amount of interest on the campus. Many supporters of the German club will defend its powers. Various campus leaders have announced their intention of being present at this meeting and it is expected that much discussion will ensue when the leaders of both factions meet tonight.

At the previous meeting of the two assemblies, Senator Rector, Representative Spradlin, and others upheld the bill while Senator Ramsay and Representative McDuffie opposed it.

HENDERSON GIVES SENIORS WARNING

Second Senior Week Speaker Sees Trouble Looming for 1931 Graduates.

Addressing a group meeting of the senior class at the University Tuesday night as a part of the annual Senior Week program, Dr. Archibald Henderson sounded an emphatic warning against over-optimism on the part of the seniors in their initial attempts at conquering the world.

Dr. Henderson was the second speaker to address the senior group, United States Senator Josiah W. Bailey having spoken at the meeting Monday night.

"The troubles you have had here," Dr. Henderson asserted, "will be increased a thousandfold in real life. We are now facing a difficult and dangerous era of doubt and uncertainty. We have not yet adjusted ourselves to a new religion. Philosophy is declining. Governments are very unstable, and democracy is under fire today as it has not been for centuries. We are unable to enforce our laws. We deride and scorn the men we choose to represent us."

The One Fixed Point

Dr. Henderson declared that the one fixed point in all this uncertainty lies in the realm of science.

"We must plead for a spirit of revolt against mechanism". he stated. "We must develop more and more intensive thinkers and more experts. It is also essential that we develop a higher intellectual plane. It is generally the case that when a man leaves college he ceases to be an educated man. If we are to move forward we must continue to pursue our attempts toward culture."

LARGE GROUP OF OUTSTANDING MEN TO BE AT BLUE RIDGE CONFERENCE

Student Division of Y. M. C. A. Conference Will Start June Fifteenth and Continue Through the Twenty-Fifth.

The annual Southern Student Conference conducted under the auspices of the Southern Field Council Young Men's Christian Association Student Division will take place June 15 through 25 at Blue Ridge near Black Mountain.

For many years students from colleges and universities of the South have been going to Blue Ridge for ten days of inspiration, recreation, fellowship, and training. So great has been the influence of these conferences that Blue Ridge is reckoned by our colleges as much more than a tradition, it is an invaluable asset.

There will be, as in the past, speakers of note from all over the country who will lead the conference groups and will aid in carrying on the work of the conference.

Prominent Counsellors

Dean E. L. Cloyd, who will lead the group of counsellors, is exceptionally well qualified, having been active in this phase of the conference since the establishment of counselling as a part of the program. Among the other speakers at the personal adjustment hour are to be found such men as Dr. W. W. Alexander, Reverend F. R. Barry, Mr. R. B. House, executive secretary of the University, and Mr. Roy Dickerson, national executive secretary of the order of Demolay.

There will also be provision in the program for group discussion of specific questions and problems. In this group the cabinet and campus leaders will study how to tackle the questions that are raised on the campus everyday. Dr. W. D. Weatherford will introduce these group discussions by an address to the conference on the student Young Men's Christian Association. A few of the subjects to be discussed are: athletics, church relations, fraternities, missions, and social activities. The leaders in this group include: Dean Floyd Field of Georgia school of technology, Harry F. Comer, secretary of the local "Y", and A. J. "Dad" Elliott, a national secretary of the student Y. M. C. A.

Bible Study Group

The Bible study group has leaders who are well fitted for this discussion. An opportunity to share with students having many varieties of religious background, in a common worship experience under the leadership of Reverend A. C. Zabriskie, of Alexandria Seminary, will be one of the most helpful parts of the conference program. A few of the leaders in this group follow: Reverend E. McNeil Poteat, formerly of Kaifeng and Shanghai, now pastor of Pullen Memorial church in Raleigh, Dr. J. R.

(Continued on next page)

Seniors To Receive Free Show Tonight

As the principal event of the fourth day of Senior Week, Dean Justin Miller, of the Duke university law school, will address the class of 1931 under Davie poplar tonight at 7:00.

In addition to the talk by the Duke law dean, which will take place in Gerrard hall in case of rain, members of the class are invited to a special movie at the Carolina theatre at 11:00 p. m. The seniors will also be given free peanuts at the Campus Confectionery today.

The theatre plans to show, besides the main attraction a number of old-time pictures of the University, scenes of athletic contests, class reunions, and social events.

To climax the week, there will be a senior smoker at Swain hall Friday night. At this time Kemp Lewis, president of the General Alumni association, and President Frank P. Graham will speak.

DUNN DESCRIBES ANNUAL CUSTOM OF SENIOR WEEK

Committee Chairman Speaks Over WPTF in University's Weekly Radio Talk.

As the regular weekly radio talk sponsored by the student council of the University, William Clyde Dunn, chairman of the senior week committee, gave the present program of senior week and the past history of this annual observance in the University, when he spoke over WPTF from 3:30 to 3:45 yesterday afternoon.

Introducing the speaker was the president of the student union, Mayne Albright. Dunn began his talk with an explanation of senior week, stating that the name itself was explanatory and that it was being put on by the graduating class for the purpose of gaining certain ends for themselves and for the love of their alma mater.

Years of Tradition

In giving the features of this year's senior week program, the speaker pointed out that the present one is a result of years of tradition. He stated that the class of '31, as those who have gone before them, have a special costume to be worn during senior week in which he mentioned the beer suits now being donned by this year's senior class. Yesterday's speaker called attention to the fact that the University owed this annual observance to Princeton students, who more than a decade ago instituted a senior week at their university which aroused much curiosity.

The chairman of this year's senior week committee, in continuing his account of the present program announced that the class of '31 was being especially feted by the merchants of Chapel Hill this week through free drinks and free movies. Pointing out as the most important feature of the senior week program, Dunn mentioned the meeting each night of the class under Davie poplar at which time the body hears noted speakers. "This year's class has departed from tradition, slightly," continued Dunn, in that instead of having only members of the University faculty address them they have called upon prominent leaders of the state. He then briefly

(Continued on next page)

KIRK DISCUSSES MAN'S RELATION IN ATOMIC WORLD

Modern Approach to Science and Religion Cited by McNair Lecturer.

As the first of the series of McNair lectures sponsored annually by the University, Dr. Harris E. Kirk, D.D., pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Baltimore, spoke Tuesday night in Gerrard hall on the subject "From Stars to Atoms."

Dr. Horace Williams, professor of philosophy in the University, introduced the speaker with President Graham presiding. Dr. Williams expressed the gratitude in behalf of the faculty on securing Dr. Kirk for this year's lecture series.

Natural and Human Life

"Nature alone cannot give us adequate knowledge of human life," began Dr. Kirk. "Personal religion is the most private and personal element in a man's life." The speaker developed these ideas further. He stated that since the time of the ancient Hebrew man has resorted to a god.

A definition for the term "science" was a special feature of his speech. Three elements composing science according to the speaker are: Accurate observation in nature, organization of knowledge, and coordination of a special science into a philosophical code. Continuing, he emphasized that the development of a special science is the most vital of present day actions. "The trend of science

(Continued on last page)

MOORE EXPLAINS LIBERAL POLICIES

Human Relations Chairman Gives Six Points on Merits Of Institute.

Beverly C. Moore, chairman of the 1931 Human Relations Institute, in an interview with a Daily Tar Heel reporter, cited the following points which tend to show that the University is heading into a broader liberalism, rather than the state of conservatism as was pointed out in a recent article in this paper.

Six Points

"1. When we who live in the University of North Carolina, a state institution which is supported by agricultural and industrial interests, and which is constantly under pressure of these interests, are able to conduct an Institute such as that just held, with the rankest radicals and the strictest conservatives appearing on the same program, then I think we may safely say that we have 'the freest campus in the United States.' A high tide of freedom, we hope, has just been achieved through the Institute.

"2. Both sides of issues were presented by men prominent in their positions. Capital and labor, collectivism and individualism, force and liberty, all had a voice. We strove for a clear picture of wholes rather than of parts.

"3. Student initiative played the greatest part in carrying out the program. The entire management was theirs, and the student members of the committee had made definite plans long before the faculty members were called into conference.

"4. The entire seminar pro-

(Continued on last page)

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays. Entered as Second Class matter at the post office at Chapel Hill, N. C., under Act of March 3, 1879.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $4.00 for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

Jack Dungan ..... Editor
H. N. Patterson ..... Bus. Mgr.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Ed French ..... Mng. Ed.

Editorial Board

Charles G. Rose ..... Chairman
J. M. Little — Frank J. Manheim
W. M. Bryson — Will Yarborough
Alden Stahr — Bob Barnett
Wex Malone — K. C. Ramsay

Assignment Editors
Otto S. Steinreich
Dan Kelly, Assistant

Sunday Editor
Charles G. Rose

City Editors

Bill McKee — George Wilson
Peter Hairston — Jack Riley

Desk Men

W. R. Woerner — Don Shoemaker
Frank Hawley — T. W. Blackwell
Vass Shepherd

Sports Staff

Jack Bessen ..... Sports Editor

Assistants

T. H. Broughton — P. Alston

News Men

E. M. Spruill — F. W. Ashley
W. E. Davis — Claiborn Carr
Charles Poe

Reporters

Saul Gordon — Bob Reynolds
Woodward Glenn — M. V. Barnhill, Jr.
William Blount — W. F. Lee
U. B. Phillips — M. H. Long
Tom Walker — W. L. Gray
Ronald Kochendorfer — Walker Stamps
Phil Sasser

BUSINESS STAFF

Hal Worth ..... Circulation Mgr.
Harlan Jameson ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.
John Manning ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.

Advertising Department

Al L. Olmstead ..... Advertising Mgr.
Pendleton Gray ..... Advertising Mgr.
Bernard Solomon ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
R. D. McMillan, Jr. ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
James N. Nowell — H. A. Clark

Collection Department

Jack Hammer ..... Collection Mgr.
John Barrow — Frank S. Dale
Stokes Adderton — Jack Stokes

Correspondence Department

Ed Michaels, Jr. ..... Correspondence Mgr.
Wynn Hamm ..... Ass't. Cor. Mgr.

Thursday, May 21, 1931

A Needless Discussion

Tonight the question will come up for discussion as to whether the German club executive committee should be stripped of its powers over social functions here on the campus. The promoters of this drive against the committee will use as their argument the fact that it is not democratic to have "taxation without representation." In other words they contend that it is not right to be ruled by a body in which they have no voice.

Judging the case absolutely on the grounds of democracy, the power of the committee may be wrong, but there is a question whether this should be the basis of the discussion. When a group has served so long and so efficiently as have the members of the executive committee, and has handled so many cases in a just fashion as this one has, it is not only useless but unjustifiable to place this power in the hands of a body which has had no experience whatsoever in dealing with discipline of dances at the University.

Were the members of the German club executive committee not performing their duty in an efficient manner, it would be necessary to make this change. But when the question of vesting this power in another body is brought by a member of one of the literary societies merely because there is nothing else discussable, it ought not be taken in any serious attitude by members of the student body.

One of our editorials appeared several weeks ago upholding this change on the grounds that it was democratic. This point is not deniable, but as has been already said, when this is the only argument that can be offered in favor of a change it is needless to take the chance of placing such an important power in the hands of an inexperienced group.

If this point is borne in mind by the members of the two literary societies tonight in their voting, there is no danger of the German club executive committee losing its present control over social functions on this campus.—C. G. R.

Socialism In Our Midst

In yesterday morning's Tar Heel was the announcement of the formation of a group who are interested in Socialism, and some mention was made of an attempt that will be made to form a small, active group which shall be affiliated with the Socialist party. Let us hope that these few seeds sown by Mr. Norman Thomas in his recent lectures here will be carefully nurtured by an aggressive but restrained group, who will show that in the heart of what Mr. Mencken calls the "Bible belt," a militant group of socially minded people can not only exist and flourish, but expand and grow to be an important factor in the political life of the community.

The ill-fated Liberal club of several years past, and similar institutions all fell prone to the languishing decay that grips so many of the clubs that have arisen and expired on the campus. But if liberalism as a credo is on the wane, as various writers have asserted, it can be said that the blind, intense hatred of words or people smacking of "socialism" or "communism" has noticeably decreased within comparatively recent times. The immense publicity that has been given to the sovietized Russians, and the constant appearance in print and on the lecture platform of people who insist that socialism is the panacea of the ills now besetting this country, as all others, have made it possible for a group which publicly styles itself "socialist" to thrive without fear of any objection on part of the press or authorities, or institutions which feel "threatened" by socialism.

But the danger that faces any socialist forum or club on this campus, and a danger that we earnestly hope the present socialist club will avoid, or combat, is that of disinterestedness. If those who attended the meeting last night will realize that of the qualities necessary to the successful culmination of their plans, insistence and perseverance are the most important, then there is a good chance that they will serve some useful purpose in the life of the University.—F. J. M.

Speaking The Campus Mind

An Appreciation

To the Editor of
The Daily Tar Heel:

I submit this article with the purpose of expressing appreciation of the splendid co-operation of the many persons, students and faculty members, who participated in the management of the Human Relations Institute.

It must be said in the outset that the Human Relations Institute is primarily a student activity. It is an institution of the students, by the students, and for the students. Profiitting by the experience of the first Institute, the present management decided that faculty advice and co-operation were indispensible to a successful program; hence, certain faculty members were added to the personnel of the committee. The committee in its entirety functioned admirably with the closest harmony between student members and professors.

The most striking thing about the institute as a whole was the willingness of the faculty to cooperate with the students in this activity. I take this opportunity of expressing our gratitude for the services of the many faculty members, the several departments, and the University administration. The identity of the Weil Lectures with the institute is greatly appreciated.

Aside from the donation of the Senior Class, without which the program would not have been possible, and from the participation of the student members of the committee, students assumed the leading roles in the management. I wish here to think the numerous students and student organizations which made possible our success.

The sophomore cabinet of the Y. M. C. A., under the chairmanship of Robert Barnett, deserves special mention for its valuable work in collecting materials for the bibliography. K. C. Ramsay and his group of students who had charge of the exhibit also consummated an excellent project. There are many other individuals who served faithfully throughout.

Great praise is due the work of Harry F. Comer, executive secretary of the Institute, who not only was our most efficient piece of machinery before and during the actual program week, but who is now, with others, laying plans for the conservation of the influences of the week's program.

BEVERLY C. MOORE,
Chrm. 1931 Institute Com.

Someone Read An Editorial

To the Editor
The Daily Tar Heel:

I deplore the editorial entitled "No Annual Institute" appearing in the May 16 issue of your publication. The suggestion that the Institute's primary attraction is its novelty and should come only once in a student's college life is similar to saying that one should read books only at great intervals.

Nor has it been demonstrated that funds cannot be secured, and the statement "nor is the Weil Lecture fund willing to contribute its speaker for each time" is inconsistent with President Graham's statement the closing evening of the Institute to the effect that manifestly it was the desire of the donors of the fund that it be used in the larger purpose of the Institute.

John Haywood.

With Contemporaries

Go Ahead and Dance!

"Dance, dance, dance! My God, will they ever get enough of it!"

No!———Never.

Young folks will dance, they crave dancing, and they MUST dance. Millions of years ago the Piltdown man, a primitive human, leaped rhythmically about venting his emotions by the patter of his feet or the beat of stone upon stone. Uncivilized men throughout the ages have danced symbolically of their thoughts. Our forefathers squared themselves about for the schottische or the quadrille just as the folk of today settle down to the good old fox-trot or tango.

Dancing is a custom without an end. Fads in method pop up here and there, but fundamentally the emotions derived from true rhythm are the same.

'Twould have been shocking, no doubt, to see grandmother rest her head against her partner's cheek in the presence of strangers. We can neither imagine grandmother exposing her dainty knee, nor earnestly puffing on a cigarette. Let us merely mark that down as a few of society's many changes.

The style of dancing has so changed that it would be a tough job to persuade young Joe College to remain the required six inches from his partner. As a matter of fact, he wouldn't do it. And this leads us to the reason why dancing has become so popular that this week on the campus of the University of Oregon there was an election rally dance Wednesday night, another last night, and will be a public dance for students tonight, a Junior all-campus dance Saturday night, and another dance given especially for the students Sunday evening.

Might we be too cross by saying that the student likes so much dancing because it provides a splendid opportunity for him to embrace his girl, any girl, his roommate's girl in public? Let us leave that out, for at most it is only a petty reason.

The real reason students or any young people dance, and perhaps overdo it, is because it is one of the very few things they care to do that does not place them in disgrace with their elders.—Oregon Emerald.

Reno And Education

One of the misfortunes of attending the Nevada State University is that it is located at Reno. The school's enrollment, however, still remains around one thousand, and more than half of that figure represents men students.

Reno, a challenge to all that is decent in the American social order, is wide-open with gambling, drinking, and legalized vice. Organized work of Christian institutions such as the Y. M. C. A. seems paralyzed. The weakness of the latter organization is sad to exist because it derives its present support from the contribution of "big bosses" in Reno.

Government intervention in the affairs of Reno should be forthcoming. People of the United States are yet to be convinced that Reno's iniquitous pursuits can endure.—Daily Kansan.

DUNN DESCRIBES ANNUAL CUSTOM OF SENIOR WEEK

(Continued from first page)

summarized the speeches of Senator Josiah Josiah W. Bailey and Archibald Henderson.

Senior Week History

Next, the speaker gave a brief history of the observance of senior week in which he pointed out that the first observance of this idea at Carolina was by the class of 1913, who instituted a senior week in place of junior week which had already been carried out annually by the successive junior classes of the University during Easter week.

"Two of our prominent University men of many years ago, William Richardson Davie, and Joseph Caldwell were graduates of Princeton and largely through their influence the idea was begun in the University. A curious activity during the first observance at Carolina, according to the speaker, was the planting of ivy around the various college buildings. He said that the ivy that used to clothe South building was planted by a past senior class of the University and that it was very similar to that which covered an old building on the Princeton university campus.

Revived in 1920

Continuing with the history of senior week, Dunn stated that in 1916 the idea died out due to the natural depression of things during that time, but that in 1920 that class revived the idea to a small degree, and with the class of 1921 rests the complete revival of the idea of senior week in the University of North Carolina. "Thus," continued the speaker, "the class of 1931 represents a decade of the observance of the idea."

For the purpose of senior week, the chairman of the committee said that the individual would be strengthened by closer bonds of friendship with the men with whom they have been in school for four years. A concluding message was that it is generally accepted that a University is measured by five major elements. These are: the content of its curriculum; personality of its faculty; association of its students; and the traditions of the school. As the most vital of these elements Dunn estimated the latter two as outstanding, and that through the annual observance of senior week, these two phases are accomplished to a greater degree.

In conclusion, Dunn said, that the idea had attained a prominent place among University activities; that proof of its worth lay in the student's desire to make North Carolina more proud of its University.

Large Group of Men To Be at Conference

(Continued from first page)

Cunningham, president Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary, and Reverend J. Marvin Culbreth, director of the Wesley Foundation.

Other Christian Leaders

Many other illustrious men will be present, who will either speak to the conference as a whole or in one of the groups. Included in this list are: Dean Francis W. Shepardson, secretary of the alumni of Denison university and national president of Beta Theta Pi, Dr. Paul Harrison, medical missionary to Arabia, Dr. English Bagby, of the University, who will deal with the psychology of personality and emotional adjustments, and Dr. Sherwood Eddy, traveler and author, who will share his convictions as to what it means to be a Christian today. Several of the men who are to attend the conference have written books which have great influence in the world of thought today, and it will be possible to obtain most of these at the conference.

Recreational Facilities

This conference is not taken up wholly with study and discussions, much time is spent in recreation. There are many recreational facilities: baseball, tennis, swimming, hiking, motoring, and golf. As Asheville is only sixteen miles from Blue Ridge many delegates motor over to Asheville and visit the Biltmore estates, Lake Lure, Chimney Rock, and Grove Park. Athletics are to be under the direction of Bart Peak of the University of Kentucky, and P. B. Holtzendorf, of Clemson college.

Anyone who desires to attend is requested to get in his application by June 1 if possible, in order that arrangements can be made to accomodate him in the comfortable buildings on the conference grounds.

Mention The Daily Tar Heel when buying.

UNIVERSITY PRESS ISSUES BOOK ON NEEDS OF FAMILY

Another book of enduring value, "The Family in the Present Social Order," has been published by the University press. The book was written by Ruth Lindquist of the Pennsylvania School of Social and Health Work with the cooperation of the American Home Economics association.

The primary purpose of the work is to describe the types of homes and of family life in our present civilization and the pressing needs. It sets forth curricula for college training for married life, a program for community agencies for aiding families, and a program for further research in the scientific study of the family.

"It is designed primarily for teachers and administrators in the field of education for marriage and parenthood, though it may have additional usefulness for students of social science and for those whose work and interests are directly related to present-day family life." It is the first book written in this special field.

N.C.C.W. Will Confer 275 Degrees June 15

N. C. C. W. will celebrate its thirty-ninth commencement at 10:00 o'clock Monday, June 15, when Deets Pickett, of Washington, D. C., will address the graduates in Aycock auditorium before they receive their diplomas from President Foust. Approximately 275 members of the class of 1931 will receive degrees at this time.

The program will begin officially Saturday with alumnae day although annual Park day will be celebrated Friday night at 9:00 o'clock in Peabody park. Class reunions will gather at a general meeting of all former members of the institution at 10:45, and this meeting will be followed by luncheon for the classes. Several special events will mark the general gathering in the morning.

Saturday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock senior class exercises will be run off, and class reunions supper follows. Sunday's events include the baccalaureate exercises at 11:00 o'clock; an organ recital by George M. Thompson at 4:00; and at 5:00 o'clock there will be an informal meeting of the faculty, alumnae, seniors, and others on the lawn in front of the president's residence.

Dr. Henderson To Speak At Georgia University

Dr. Archibald Henderson, head of the mathematics department, has accepted an invitation to deliver the annual Phi Beta Kappa address before the Alpha chapter of the University of Georgia June 15.

University Students And Teachers

wishing attractive summer employment with good pay and training for Real Silk Hosiery Co., see Mr. Dickson at—

DUKE UNIVERSITY UNION
Thursday, Friday, Saturday
9 a. m. to 6 p. m.

The Carolina Playmakers

present

"THE PERFECT ALIBI"

By A. A. Milne

One Night Only — Saturday, May 23, at 8:30

Memorial Hall

Exchange Season Booklet for Reserved Seats at Student Supply Store

Intramural Decathlon Gets Underway Today; Strong Field Entered

Both Regular and Novice Divisions Start This Afternoon; Brown and House Last Year's Victors.

The annual intramural decathlon, with a large entry list, will start today and extend through Monday in a four day program. Each day's event will start promptly at three o'clock.

There will be two divisions; the regular and the novice. The regular decathlon is open to all students in the University. However, as a rule, this division is only entered by members of the track team. For the beginners, there is a novice decathlon, those men winning numerals or monograms in track being barred.

A man must participate in five events each day, but he has an option of these five on either Thursday or Friday, thus making Friday the last possible day for entrance. On either of these two days, the entrant must take the following events in the order named:

(1) shot put; (2) 100 yard dash; (3) discus; (4) high jump; (5) 440 yard run.

On either Saturday or Monday, the entrant must take these events in the order named:

(1) javelin; (2) 120 low hurdles; (3) broad jump; (4) pole vault; (5) 3-4 mile run.

Theron Brown, varsity field man, won the regular division last year, totaling 8724 points out of a possible 10,000. This total was the highest score ever made at the University. Brown was closely followed by Ray Ruble, Archie Davis, and Brodie Arnold.

The novice division was taken by Henry House, football and baseball star, who rolled up a grand total of 7802.8 points. J. Harper was second.

The only man to win the event two years in a row was Jeff Fordham, holder of the University javelin throw record. Fordham took the event in 1928 and 1929.

For scoring purposes, an arbitrary set of records has been made up with the scoring figured on the basis of 1000 points for equalling a University record, with deductions for performances under the records. Performances better than the records will be credited points. Therefore, the highest possible number of points attainable is 10,000.

Below is the scoring schedule:

100 yard dash (9.8 seconds) 20 points off for each 1-5 sec.

High jump (5 ft. 11 3-4 in.) 14 points off for each inch.

Discus (136 ft. 3 in.) 7.4 points off for each foot.

Shot put (42 ft. 6 in.) 24 points off for each foot.

440 yards (50.2) 20 points off for each second.

Broad jump (22 ft. 5 1-4 in.) 4 points off for each inch.

Javelin (181 ft. 11 in.) 6 points off for each foot.

Pole vault (12 ft. 6 in.) 6 points off for each inch.

120 low hurdles (13.6) 15 for each 1-5 second.

3-4 mile (3.10 sec.) 3.23 points off for each second.

Games Postponed

The intramural tennis matches, the play-off game between A.T.O. and Phi Delta Theta were postponed on account of rain. They will be replayed today.

The corporation of a midland city makes 60,000 pounds a year from rubbish. It's enough to make most of our best sellers green with envy.—Passing Show.

COLLEGIANA

By THOMAS H. BROUGHTON

Frank Wykoff, University of Southern California sprint star, again equalled Eddie Tolan's hundred yard dash world record when he ran the century in 9.5 seconds last Saturday. The race was the second event of the California intercollegiate championship.

Seven state records toppled before the assault of 154 Hoosier athletes in the Ross-Ade stadium at Lafayette, Inidana, home of the Purdue Boilermakers, last Saturday as Notre Dame piled up a total of 49 3-5 points to retain the Indiana intercollegiate track and field championship. Indiana ran a close second with 44 3-5 points, while Butler, regarded as one of the favorites, took third place. Brown of Notre Dame set a new record for the pole vault, clearing the bar at 13 feet, 5 3-8 inches. Other new records were made in the 120 high hurdles, 220 yard dash, two mile run, 220 yard low hurdles, mile relay, and broad jump.

The Eastern Intercollegiate baseball league boasts one of the strangest rules in organized baseball, and as fate would have it, this rule will have to be applied to at least two different situations during this summer. The new rule adopted for this season requires that all scheduled games must go to a finish, and it is surprising how misunderstood this dictum really is. Even members of the Dartmouth baseball team, as they streamed off Memorial field a downpour recently, were not sure just what would be the ruling on a game which had to be called in the third inning.

According to the ruling the game will have to be played over from the third inning with Marten, Penn catcher, at bat with two strikes already called on him on June 13.

Coach Stephenson Smith, Oregon tennis mentor, is one of the few professorial coaches in existence. Coach Smith directs the tennis team without any salary bonus.

The voice of Knute Rockne, late athletic director and football coach of Notre Dame, will be preserved at the institution in the form of a sound movie reel to be presented to the university by the Paramount Sound News Reel company. Four phases of Rockne's career will be contained in the film—a movie interview, his last football practice, scenes of the airplane crash in Kansas, and scenes of the funeral from Sacred Heart church.

Did you know:

That Joe Pickett, Duquesne university tackle, will open a beauty parlor this summer in Pittsburgh?

That Frank Luce, captain of the Yale hockey team, is the only Blue player who has been a starting regular for three seasons and has never played in a series lost to either Harvard or Princeton?

That because of the extensive travels to be taken next fall by West Virginia's eleven, a "blanket" insurance policy, paying a liberal amount in case of serious accident to the men in travel, has been taken out by the school athletic association?

That in 1887 eleven men composed the Notre Dame football squad? That was because they had only eleven uniforms?

(Continued on last page)

Last Year's Decathlon Winners

Theron Brown, star weight man and second highest scorer on the track team this spring, set a record in winning the 1930 intramural decathlon, rolling up a grand total of 8,724 points out of a possible 10,000. Henry House, star fullback on last year's eleven, took the novice decathlon with a total of 7,802.8 points. Brown will defend his title today, while House is doubtful. At any rate there will be stiff competition for these two crowns.

Baseball Results

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Chicago	7	Boston	5
New York	4	Cincinnati	0
Brooklyn	5	St. Louis	4
Philadelphia	11	Pittsburg	7

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Philadelphia	3	Detroit	0
Washington	2	Chicago	0
St. Louis	7	Boston	3

(Eighth inning)

New York		Cleveland

(Rain)

Carolina 19, State 8

The Carolina baseball team defeated State college yesterday afternoon by the score of 19 to 8 in a freak game played between showers. The winning team had one big inning in the fourth when they scored eleven runs. Paul Dunlap, first baseman for the Tar Heels tripled in this inning with the bases loaded. Ferebee and Potter of

(Continued on last page)

LOTT, VAN RYN WIN MATCHES ABROAD

Davis Cup Pair Have Easy Time In French Hard Court Title Play.

Rain again disrupted the French hard court tennis championship Tuesday, but not until George Lott and John Van Ryan, American favorites in the doubles play, had opened their quest with an easy victory.

Lott and Van Ryan dropped only three games to the French team of Louis Leven and Jean Augustin, winning 6-2, 6-0, 6-1. It was scarcely a good practice for the Davis cup pair and gave no indication as to how they will fare in the semi-final against Jean Borotra and Christian Boussus, provided the two favored teams progress that far. Today the Americans engage Antoine Gentien and Georges Glasser.

The biggest upset of the tournament so far is the illness of Henri Cochet, ace of the world's singles stars. There is considerable speculation as to who will take over his title if he is unable to defend it next week.

Al Howard Chosen To Succeed Enright

It has been announced by the graduate manager's office that Allan Howard will succeed Rex Enright as coach of freshman football.

Howard will graduate from Notre Dame this spring, after having played full back on the Irish team for three years.

The new coach will report for duty in the fall, but will probably attend the University of North Carolina summer coaching school.

Knute Rockne, late coach of the Irish football team, recommended Howard highly to the officials here, and it was largely on that recommendation that Howard was chosen.

It's getting almost as bad for kings to sit on thrones as it is for the Prince of Wales to sit on a horse.—B'nai B'rith Messenger.

If ever we get ambitious and start out to break a record it will be the one our neighbor plays about 11 p. m.—Punch (London)

NET CUP PLAYERS READY FOR MEET

American Players Favored To Beat Canadians in Zone Finals; Shields, Wood Almost Sure Starters.

Aided by perfect tennis weather, the Davis Cup teams of the United States and Canada continued their practice sessions yesterday in preparation for their meeting in the North American zone final matches today, Friday and Saturday at Montreal, Canada. A large crowd visited the En-Tout-Cas courts at the Mount Royal Club to watch the practice.

Only one real match was played today. Cliff Sutter, the New Orleans youngster, took a stiff tussle from Gregory Mangin, of Newark, N. J., 7-5, 9-7. Previously the New York members, Frank Shields and Sidney B. Wood, Jr., worked out together, impressing the spectators with their speed and the finish of their strokes.

The Canadian players kept no scores in their practice, playing two singles matches and one doubles. Dr. Jack Wright faced Marcel Rainville and Gilbert Nunns opposed Charlie Leslie. The singles rivals were paired together in the doubles encounter.

For Canada, Wright and Rainville are expected to form a two-man team. Neither of the non-playing team captains, Bernon S. Prentice for the United States, or A. C. Dunlop, for Canada, would disclose his plans last night.

Although the all-around excellence of the United States players has made a deep impression on the spectators, Captain Dunlop is not disappointed with the showing of the Canadians, expressing himself as well pleased with the progress they have made.

The general impression today was that Shields and Wood would form the United States doubles team and might carry the entire burden of the play.

If our congressional insurgents have nothing in particular to do this spring, they might go over and show Spain how to start a republic right.—Newark News.

INTERCOLLEGIATE TENNIS PLAY TO START JUNE 22

Carolina to Send Team to Haverford, Pennsylvania; Grant Or Hines Has Good Chance of Winning.

By Morrie Long

Because of the brilliant record made by Tar Heel netmen this year, a coterie of University of North Carolina tennis players will be entered in the Intercollegiate Lawn Tennis Championship play which is to be held June 22nd to 27th at the Merion Cricket Club of Haverford, Pa., was the announcement made by Coach Kenfield yesterday.

Under the auspices of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, this tournament has proved a mecca attracting the best racket wielders of the nation, and the winners of this meet are recognized as the best in college circles.

Some 103 entries from 45 leading colleges and universities in the United States were entered last year, and a still larger representation is expected this coming June. Among the most powerful teams were, Harvard, California, Stanford, Georgetown, Cornell, Texas, Tulane, Yale, Princeton, N. Y. U., Oregon, Chicago, Rutgers, and Southern California. Tulane's entry, Cliff Sutter carried off first honors last year in the singles, licking Julius Seligson of Lehigh, while Muelheisen and Muench of the University of California took the doubles crown from Lockwood and Almquist, of Oregon. None of these men are expected back this year.

Gregory Mangin, Georgetown's ace, was expected to capture the coveted title this June, but as he is now participating on the Davis Cup team he will not be entered. Leading among the college players of the country who are to be reckoned with are Ryan of Yale, Rexinger of Chicago, Big Ten champ, Ed Jacobs of Pittsburg, Burwell of Sewanee, Grant, Hines, and Yeomans from Carolina, with the west coast sending its usual dark horse delegation who always rank high in intercollegiate play. Vines from that section is a ranking player among the first ten of the country, and will surely extend any player in the meet.

Bryan Grant, Carolina's stalwart midget performer, is not at his best on grass courts, clay courts being his best stamping ground. Because of this, and the fact that the best netmen of the country will be at the meet Grant will have a most difficult

(Continued on last page)

LOST

Lost—In library, black check book folder of Greensboro National Bank. Also $15 in cash. Grace Frazier, 215 Pittsboro St.

COLDEX

Brings Quick Relief to Thousands

You too, can stop colds and coughs with this remarkable liquid medicine that so safely gives such quick and lasting results. Just say Coldex to your druggist. Only 50c. Recommended and guaranteed by

Sutton's Drug Store

WARREN KAYOED IN FIRST ROUND BY R. FICUCELLO

Bout Is Add's First Appearance In Ring Since Regaining North Carolina Heavyweight Crown.

Ralph Ficucello, 197 pounds, hard hitting Italian heavyweight from Brooklyn, knocked out Add Warren, 188 pounds, North Carolina heavyweight champion, in the first round of the scheduled ten round bout in Madison Square Garden, New York, Tuesday night. The fight was the main event on the first of the "new talent" cards which the Garden corporation plans to run in the future. These "new talent" bouts are to present the promising youngsters in each class, and all veterans are excluded.

Ficucello came out fast and dropped Warren for the count of eight before the fight was hardly under way. Warren regained his feet, but another flurry of blows sent him down twice more for eight counts, and the referee stopped the fight after one minute and seventeen seconds of milling in the first round.

In the semi-final bout, another Brooklyn battler defeated his Southern rival when Allie Wolff, 166, was awarded the decision over Gordan Fortenberry of Cocoa, Florida, after eight rounds of fast fighting. The decision was unpopular, ringside experts being of the opinion that Fortenberry had won by a wide margin.

The Warren-Ficucello battle marked Add's first appearance in the ring since regaining his crown from Dewey Kimrey in Charlotte about a month ago. Ficucello had previously scored a one round knockout over George Hoffman, former A. A. U. heavyweight champion, with whom Warren has broken even in two bouts. Hoffman knocked Warren out in the ninth round of a scheduled ten round battle in New York some time ago after Warren had piled up a big lead in points during the early part of the fight.

CAROLINA

NOW PLAYING

"Misbehaving Ladies"

with

Lila Lee

Ben Lyon

THE SMOKE SHOP

EAT WITH US DRINK WITH US

FOR RENT — SUMMER SCHOOL

Two cottages with two rooms and a bath in each, located at the rear of the Beta Theta Pi house, 114 S. Columbia street. Reasonable rates. Apply to H. I. Anderson at the Beta house. Phone 6071.

FOR SENIORS

Free Shampoo with Each Haircut

Thursday, Friday, and Saturday

TAR HEEL BARBER SHOP

Under Johnson-Prevost's

CITIES IN ITALY OFFER UNUSUAL SUMMER COURSES

Italian Tourist Bureau Announces Reduced Rates on Sessions For American Teachers.

"Come to Italy to study" is the invitation which the Hon. Fulvio Suvich, newly appointed minister for tourism in Italy, is issuing as a summer vacation suggestion to American teachers and students. To make the invitation especially attractive Italy is offering this year a number of summer courses in six different cities, with tuition fees about $6.00 a month and living expenses ranging from $8.00 to $17.50 a week.

In an announcement recently received by the Italian Tourist Information office, 745 Fifth Avenue, Mr. Suvich says that Italy is particularly desirous of interesting teachers and students to visit Italy and therefore has made special concessions in their favor. All those enrolling in any of the courses for foreigners in Italy are entitled to a reduction of thirty percent on railroad fares, and special rates have been obtained for them in the hotels and pensions of the various cities in which the courses are being given. In addition many excursions and visits with professional guides are provided, without charges, for those enrolled in the courses.

The cities in Italy offering summer courses for foreigners are Firenze, Rome, Siena, Varese, Perugia, and Venezia. The courses include archaeology; topography; Roman history, and religion; history of mediaeval and modern art, architecture and music; history of Italian literature, politics, and scientific thought; Etruscology; history of religion, and a special course at Varese on "Modern Therapeutic Tendencies."

A booklet giving in detail the subjects, names of professors, excursions, fees, special facilities for students, and enrollment blanks has been prepared by the Italian government and may be had free by applying to the Italian Tourist Information Office, 745 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

INTERCOLLEGIATE TENNIS PLAY TO START JUNE 22

(Continued from preceding page)

time in copping the singles.

"Possibly Carolina will enter four men" Coach Kenfield stated. In case a quartet goes, which is the limit allowed each college, a great battle for the third and fourth place is expected between Wright, Yeomans, Hendlin, and Graham.

To win permanent possession of the Intercollegiate Trophy, the school must win 18 points. The points are counted as follows: 3 points for the school whose representative wins the singles, 3 points for the school whose representative wins the doubles, 2 points for each singles and doubles runner-up, 1 point for the school whose representative or team reaches the semi-finals.

The Tar Heel squad has an excellent opportunity to make a good showing against such a formidable array of stars, and with a team largely composed of sophomores and juniors, it has a splendid chance to bring the intercollegiate trophy to Carolina within the next three years.

Oral Examination

There will be an oral examination on Willoughby's Principles of Judicial Administration Thursday afternoon, June 4, at 2:00 o'clock in the third year room of the Law building. The entire faculty will give the examination.

The Campus Calendar

Lunar Observations

Dr. Karl Fussler, of the physics department, announces a public observation of the moon through the telescope from the roof of Phillips hall, Friday and Saturday evenings of this week commencing at 8:00 o'clock.

Service League Social

The Young People's Service League of the Episcopal church will give a social tonight at the residence of Reverend A. S. Lawrence, 501 East Rosemary street, at 8:00 o'clock.

Weiner Roast

The Methodist students of the University are invited to meet at the church tonight at 7:00 o'clock for the purpose of attending a weiner roast.

MOORE EXPLAINS LIBERAL POLICIES

(Continued from first page)

gram, which was one of the best parts of the program, was set up and managed by students under the leadership of Noah Goodridge, Joe Eagles, and Mayne Albright.

Faculty Co-operation

"5. Co-operation of the faculty was notable. Faculty members were indispensible to us in sound advice, in the arrangement of seminars and classroom discussions, in compiling the bibliography, in entertaining speakers, and in introducing speakers many of whom having divergent points of view from their own. In all fairness it must be said here that the rumor to the effect that the committee had difficulty in securing a faculty member to introduce Mr. Gorman was without foundation.

"6. The co-operation of the University administration was all that it could have been. President Graham and Mr. House were of the greatest service to us in both securing and entertaining speakers. Their co-operation was splendid, and they placed no restraints upon us in the matter of selecting program material. The University's co-operation was in every way typical of a free and liberal institution. Furthermore, the administration has assumed full responsibility for what was said and done during the week of the Institute. The critics of the University must thereby know that the University is still the free and open-minded institution that it always has been."

Carolina 19, State 8

(Continued from preceding page)

the visitors each hit home runs.

Lanning, starting State pitcher was knocked out of the box. He was relieved by McLawhorn, who was also driven off the mound by the heavy hitting. Edwards, Carolina pitcher, got along well until the eighth inning when the State team made seven of their total eight runs. Longest finished the game, hurling fine relief ball.

Carolina gathered a total of twenty-one hits, with Potter, Croom, and Ferebee making four hits each. State made a total of twelve safeties. The star fielder of the game was Peacock, Tar Heel outfielder.

Y Cabinets To Meet

The annual hillside meeting of the Y. M. C. A. cabinets will take place Sunday afternoon at 5:30 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Comer. All those who are planning to attend are asked to notify Mr. Comer today before 2:00 so arrangements can be made to accomodate everyone.

STUDENT FEE IS NECESSARY FOR UPKEEP OF UNION

(Continued from first page)

rooms are also being set aside for several organizations.

First Real Union

"Graham Memorial is the first real union building which the University has owned since its existence, and in case that the one dollar fee is not favored by the student body in the vote next week, it will mean that the building will remain vacant for another ten years probably," stated one of the committee yesterday. The committee member went on to say that unless the entire dollar fee was passed that it would mean that the union could not be furnished sufficiently to be of any value to the students.

Thus far several organizations including the Order of the Grail, student council, Daily Tar Heel, Di senate, and all campus officers have gone on record as being in favor of this assessment, and President Frank Graham as well as President Mayne Albright expressed their desire that the students turn out and vote in the affirmative when the question is put up for student vote.

WHITE TALKS TO CHEMICAL GROUP

The local student chapter of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers held its last meeting of the current school year Tuesday evening, May 19, in Venable hall. The officers for the coming year were inaugurated at this meeting.

The retiring officers are: president, R. J. Ruble, Chapel Hill; vice-president, E. F. Thomas, Bainbridge, Gorgia; secretary, T. R. Taylor, Jr., Asheville; and treasurer, Adam Fisher, Jr., Charlotte.

Those taking office are: president, T. R. Taylor, Jr.; vice-president, J. A. Preston, Lewisburg, West Virginia; secretary, L. C. Surprenant, Springfield, Massachusetts; and treasurer, E. O. Bryant, Clinton.

The speaker of the evening was Dr. A. M. White, head of the department of chemical engineering, who delivered an interesting talk on the events of the past year, schedule changes, the chemical engineering industry, and the situation facing the graduating seniors.

The University of North Carolina student chapter of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers was formed in February, 1930. This chapter was the first student unit to be chartered by the national institute in this state and possibly in the South. At present, however, North Carolina State college has a similar chapter.

This chapter is also the youngest of the four student engineering societies existing on the campus, the others being the local chapters of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. Indications now point to a rapid growth of this latest addition to the engineering societies at Carolina in the future.

HOBGOOD CHOSEN SPEAKER OF PHI

(Continued from first page)

States should not take official action to retard the spread of communistic doctrine, was defeated by a vote of twelve to one by the senators. Senators Malone, Medford, and Deitz favored the bill on the floor, while Senator Feldman opposed it.

A resolution that the Di senate go on record as favoring a one dollar fee per student for the upkeep of the new sudent union building was passed unanimously.

KIRK DISCUSSES MAN'S RELATION IN ATOMIC WORLD

(Continued on last page)

is moving toward new ways of scientific truth," said Dr. Kirk. Expanding further on this topic, the Presbyterian pastor stated that it pushes mysteries of life further away from the necessities of life. "It also banishes mystery from our universe," and Dr. Kirk stated that since the revival of learning in the sixteenth cenutry science has been rapidly advancing until today it has brought back mystery founded upon fossil knowledge.

Indifference of Nature

Pursuing further his topic, the McNair lecture speaker brought the fact that the most difficult thing for man to contend with is the indifference of nature to his scientific efforts. He began then to speak on some aspects of astronomy. He showed that the heavenly bodies were the height of mystery for man, and that but for the progress of the telescope, man would be more in the dark in regard to this matter.

"Man is a very minute creature in this powerful universe," continued Dr. Kirk, "but the ultimate power to think gives him a clue to the significance of the world about him." He made it clear that the knowledge of the solar system has put a limit to the idea of the insignificance of man. Concluding, the speaker expressed that the universe is tottering and that it is up to man to understand its full meaning.

Second Talk

"Scientific conclusions can no longer be accepted as certainties or as finalities. They must be explored by philosophy in order that the conception of reality may sustain them," Dr. Kirk declared last night in the second of the series of McNair lectures on science and religion.

"Physics thus becomes as abstract as metaphysics and the ancient strife between science and philosophy disappears," Dr. Kirk explained. His topic last night was "From Atom to Mind." He will deliver his third lecture tonight in Gerrard hall at 8:30 o'clock on the topic "From Mind to God."

"Every advance of science has been away from the concrete towards the abstract," Dr. Kirk said in his lecture last night. "The engineer yields to the mathematician, the model to the symbol. Probability takes the place of certainties and complete proofs; each advance as science plumbs the deeps of nature opens up another region deeper still.

Science and Mind

"If there be such a thing as reality, if there be such a thing as reconciliation between determinism and indeterminism, these solutions cannot come from science, but must come from the mind. Henceforth the scientist must either become a philosopher himself or hand over the problem to the philosopher in order to use with confidence his own tools of investigation."

Pointing out that the final meanings of the universe cannot be obtained from the study of nature in the large, as explained in his first lecture Tuesday night, Dr. Kirk went on to show that "we are then sent to the atom for answer. The atom now confesses itself incapable of giving the desired answer, and brings us to the mind. All of which illustrates the great movement of science which thus may be expressed: How the universe around us is becoming the universe within us."

Dr. Kirk then sketched in a general way the development of modern physical science through six phases. He said the "new quantum physics", the result of the work of some of the most brilliant of the younger physicists, shows that after all protons and electrons are not things at all but simply convenient means of describing radiations in certain localities.

Natural Laws

Thus the supposedy foundation particles of matter, the conception of substance, disappear from science; and matter takes on the aspect of a ghost. Furthermore the introduction of the quantum idea has broken the connection with rigid causation; has demonstrated that this law is not universally applicable to nature, and so any objection from the direction of physics to free will, spontaneity or human responsibility is withdrawn.

The underlying truth, Dr. Kirk asserted, "is that physics has no definite set of laws that will apply to the ultimate of matter under all the states of excitement that prevail. And this profund confusion in fundamental aspects of science is leading to a revision of other controlling ideas.

Individual Electrons

"Orderliness, tidiness, continuity appear in nature in large masses; but disappear from nature when acting in atomic and electronic units. Science can predict with reasonable assurance the behaviour of nature in the large, just as a life insurance company can tell the percentage of people that will die within a given year, but science cannot tell what an individual electron will do, any more than the actuary can tell what particular individual will die in the year chosen for the series.

"When nature is looked at in the large, under statistical aspects, it obeys the law of averages and is so far governed by continuity; but continuity does not control the behaviour of individual atoms. Thus the stars follow their courses, but the atom has the last word. In so far as this is true, it means that rigid determinism is banished from nature and that objections to free will or individual responsibility cannot be sustained from the point of view of exact science."

COLLEGIANA

(Continued from preceding page)

That Georgia and Auburn have contributed more players to the major baseball leagues than any other two schools in the country?

That the first Yale-Harvard regatta is said to have been instigated for the purpose of getting advertising and more traffic for an Eastern railroad?

That Wallace Wade, former coach at Alabama and now grid mentor at Duke, does not believe that winning football teams do make for increases in college enrollment?

That the Hosei university nine of Japan, now on a barnstorming tour of the United States, had a team batting average of .198?

Infirmary List

Those confined to the infirmary yesterday were Stanley T. Peace, Noah Goodridge, Peter Hairston, Ruth Ellen Williams, Walton W. Angel, and William T. Davis, Jr.

A&P — "WHERE ECONOMY RULES" — ESTABLISHED 1859

Grandmother's PAN LOAF BREAD — FULL POUND — Wrapped 5c

WHOLE WHEAT — 16-oz. Loaf 7c

BUTTER — Cut Fresh From the Tub — lb. 30c

PRESERVES — Ann Page Pure Fruit — lb. Jar 25c

NUTLEY — Nut Margarine — 2 lbs. 25c

White House Evaporated MILK — 7 Small Cans 25c

BOKAR COFFEE SUPREME — lb. Flavor-tight Tin 27c

Scratch Feed — 2 lbs. 5c

CHEESE — Fine Flavor Aged — lb. 19c

SUMTER SPINACH — 3 No. 2 Cans 25c

OCTAGON SOAP Large Size 5c-3 Small Cakes 10c | OCTAGON SUPERSUDS 3 pkgs. 23c

Choice Beef Pot Roast 17½c
Stewing Beef 10c
Pork Roast 15c
Home Killed Hens 25c
Fat Back, 3 lbs. for 25c
Croakers 05c

The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co.

SENIOR PICTURE
LAW BUILDING
CHAPEL PERIOD

The Daily Tar Heel

SENIOR CLASS
FAREWELL SMOKER
SWAIN HALL — 9:00

VOLUME XXXIX — CHAPEL HILL, N. C., FRIDAY, MAY 22, 1931 — NUMBER 177

SCIENCE AND GOD CLOSELY LINKED ASSERTS DR. KIRK

Minister Declares Scientific Knowledge Based on Spiritual Interpretation of Universe.

"The present organization of knowledge as a whole makes it necessary that we believe in a personal God," Dr. Harris E. Kirk, one of the nation's foremost theologians, declared here last night in the last of the annual series of McNair lectures.

"What impels me to believe in a personal God as the fundamental reality behind our finite schemes is simply this: The necessity of such a belief in view of the consequences to our entire scheme of knowledge if it should turn out to be false," said Dr. Kirk, who has been pastor of the Franklin avenue Presbyterian church of Baltimore for the last thirty years, and who is widely known as a writer on religion and allied subjects. His topic last night was "From Mind to God."

God and Nature

The object of the McNair lectures, which were made available in 1906 by the will of John Calvin McNair, an alumnus, is to show the "mutual bearing of science and religion upon each other and to prove the existence of attributes (as far as may be) of God from nature."

Discussing the different judgments that have been set forth as the basis for belief in a personal God, including the common sense judgment, the scientific, the historical, the esthetic and the spiritual, Dr. Kirk pointed out that all of these lead to one conclusion that there must be a personal God.

"The value of this position," he said, "is that it opens the way for a consistent and adequate philosophy of the universe, doing justice to all the conditions that prevail."

Progress of Science

The progress of science in the

(Continued on last page)

PRESS RELEASES LANGUAGE BOOK

The latest volume from the University press, The Psychology of Foreign Language Study by H. R. Huse, associate professor of romance languages here, treats a question of primary importance to educational psychologists and schools of education and to the many students and teachers of foreign languages.

There has been much confusion and disagreement as to the methods and aims of language study. This book is an attempt to clear up the subject, by offering detailed and critical analysis of all the experimental evidence. It attempts to summarize the present knowledge concerning economical language learning.

"This study is a plea for no method or procedure; it reveals mainly how little has been established experimentally, and the enormous confusion due to ambiguity of terms. It endeavors to find a foundation of fact upon which, not new theories, but new experimental investigation may be based. It is recommended for those interested in facts, not for ardent partisans of a cause."

This book will help teachers keep abreast of the changes that are occurring in the objectives, attitudes, of methods in textbooks in this field.

Perry Seagle To Be Chief Alumni Marshal

Announcement has come from Kemp Lewis, president of the Alumni association of the appointment of Perry E. Seagle, '06, of Raleigh, as the chief alumni marshal for the Alumni Day exercises. Mr. Seagle will have several assistant marshals to be announced later whose chief duties will be the Alumni Ball to be given on the night of June 8, culminating the day's features.

While here at Carolina twenty-five years ago, Seagle was a star football player and at the same time earned the honor of being a Phi Beta Kappa student. He also held the same position then that he is going to reassume here on the eighth of June, that of chief marshal. For the past twenty years Seagle has been connected with Ginn and Company, as their representative for North Carolina.

M'INTOSH FEARS PROPOSED CUT IN INSTRUCTOR'S PAY

Education Dean Says Reduction Would Radically Affect University of Future.

Asserting that North Carolina ranks sixteenth in her ability to provide for her children's education and only forty-seventh in actually providing for them, Professor C. E. McIntosh of the University school of education predicts that dire results are bound to follow if the proposed twenty to twenty-five per cent cut of teachers' salaries is adopted by the legislature.

Professor McIntosh expressed this view Wednesday night in an address before the Chapel Hill Rotary club. He said that if such a salary cut is adopted, it would also affect radically the University of the future.

"The teachers of the state simply can't stand this proposed salary cut," Professor McIntosh said.

Conditions in Rural Schools

He spoke especially of the conditions in the rural schools, asserting the teachers in these schools already carry a teaching load entirely too heavy and that they are already underpaid. The students coming to college from these schools show a larger percentage of failures in their studies than those from the city schools, he said.

The percentage on increase in enrollment in 1928-29 was nearly nine times as great for the special charter schools (city schools) as for the rural schools, Professor McIntosh said.

"The special charter schools have an average of 16.4 days per year more than do the rural schools," he said.

"Both the number of pupils

(Continued on last page)

COMMERCE FRATERNITY PLEDGES TEN STUDENTS

At the spring pledging of Alpha Kappa Psi, national commerce fraternity, the following men were pledged: John A. Kliemeier, Greensboro; Christopher C. Hamlet, Pittsboro; Ashby L. Baker, Raleigh; John T. O'Neil, Henderson; Williams Cooper, Oxford; Wm. Thaddeus Hussey, III, Tarboro; B. Perry Collins, Washington, D. C.; Casper M. Austin, Winston-Salem; James S. Morrison, Baltimore, Maryland; and John R. Holmes, Chapel Hill.

HOUSE STRESSES CONTINUED STUDY

Executive Secretary Talks to Seniors Wednesday in Place Of R. M. Hanes.

One of the principal essentials of after-college life today is the continuation of an intellectual interest in education, Robert B. House, executive secretary of the University, told the Carolina seniors in an address Wednesday night.

Mr. House spoke in Place of R. M. Hanes, of Winston-Salem, who was originally scheduled for an address on the senior week program.

"One of the regrettable features about the alumni of almost every institution is the fact that when they finish college they drop practically all interest in the progress of education and culture—just at the time when they are really in a position to begin learning," Mr. House said.

Keep in Touch

Mr. House also advocated keeping in touch with civic and other organizations which play a part in the life of the state and community.

"Individually we may do much," he asserted, "but we can do a great deal more by co-operating with those phases of civilization which comprise our daily life. And one of the greatest assets in this work is a thorough knowledge of our mother tongue; either in speech or in writing it is a powerful weapon. In connection with this I would advise every college graduate to preserve all the text books he has used in college, for as he grows older and more mature those things which once

(Continued on last page)

SOCIALIST GROUP TO MEET MONDAY

Object of Meetings Is To Work Towards Transforming Social Order.

A meeting took place Wednesday evening under the direction of Norman Lyon of the psychology department, for members of the faculty and the student body interested in working toward a transformation of the social order after the ideals of socialism. It will be proposed at the next meeting, which will take place in the county club room of the Y.M.C.A. at 9:00 next Monday evening, that the organization be termed the Fabian society after the society of that name which started the Labor party in England.

Purpose of Meeting

These meetings are for the purpose of levening society through small groups who are willing to work year after year in a quiet way. Mr. Lyons says that the issue in education between paternalism and socialism is identical with the issue between paternalism and socialism in our economic life. For that reason this organization intends to provoke discussion towards reforming the curriculum in this University such as has been done in other leading universities like Harvard.

The meeting next Monday evening will be mainly for the organization of this society which is newly founded in this University, but which has already had its principles spread a good deal. Only those who are confirmed and constructive liberals and who are willing to work for the furtherances of these issues are invited to the coming meeting.

Evolution Of Senior Beer Suits Traced By Two Faculty Members

J. P. Harland and English Bagby Were at Princeton When Spring Regalia Was First Introduced By the "Drinking Team" of Nassau Inn.

The origin of the quaint old custom of the beer suit, which has become so familiar on the campus during the last few days, is not so very quaint nor so very old, according to Drs. J. P. Harland and English Bagby. It originated at Princeton university during their undergraduate days, and Dr. Harland denies very strenuously that it is an "age old custom," as the Daily Tar Heel once quoted it.

Began in Tap Room

In 1913, presiding over the tap room in the basement of the Nassau inn, was an old negro waiter, Connie, who always wore a white canvas suit with various and sundry names and symbols on its back. "The drinking team" began to wear these suits for their daily practice, and as their main exercise was beer drinking, the uniforms soon became known as "beer suits."

The students always painted numerals of their respective classes on the backs of their suits, but it was not until 1920 that the seniors adopted them as their official regalia. Since then each graduating class has had some symbol by which it is known. Last year a statue of Venus de Milo was painted on the back of the suits upside down; this year the seniors have a picture of the Christian Statues overthrown and a Phi Beta Kappa key, since they are expecting to graduate nearly fifty out of their 460 members.

'Disgraceful' Origin

This is the "disgraceful" way that the beer suits which all of our sober seniors are wearing now originated. Dr. Harland and Dr. Bagby want it made clear, however, that neither of them were captain of the "drinking team"—not even manager.

Senior Picture

A picture of the senior class will be taken on the steps of the law building today at Chapel period. This picture will be printed in the Alumni Review and in the state papers. All members of the class are urged to appear.

Infirmary List

Those confined to the infirmary yesterday were Noah Goodridge, Walton W. Angel, and Ruth Ellen Williams.

Lutheran Students

Services will be conducted by Mr. Frank Cauble in Gerrard hall at 11:00 a. m. Sunday instead of 5:00 p. m. as usual. All Lutheran students are especially urged to be present for the purpose of making plans for next year.

Alpha Psi Delta Pledges

Daniel Pachman and William Treverton have been pledged to Alpha Psi Delta, honorary psychological fraternity.

Seniors To Meet In Swain Hall Tonight

As the seniors round into the last day of the strenuous senior week program, many of them are beginning to show signs of wear, resulting from their too frequent sipping of dopes and nibbling of cakes.

Today the D&G cafeteria will serve iced tea and cakes to the members of the graduating class, and Harry's Grill will distribute either apples or cigars. The University Shoe Shop will continue to shine individual and collective shoes of the senior class all during the day.

This evening at 9:00 the members of the class of '31 will meet together as a body in Swain hall for the last time before commencement. Permanent officers of the class will be elected at this time. Kemp Lewis, president of the General Alumni association, President Graham, J. Maryon Saunders, editor of the Alumni Review, and Pat Patterson, president of the class will speak.

PLAYMAKERS TO PRODUCE MILNE'S PLAY TOMORROW

"The Perfect Alibi," Mystery Play, To Be Given in Memorial Hall.

The Perfect Alibi, the only mystery play of the year, which is to be given tomorrow night, will be the first play presented by the Playmakers on the new stage in Memorial hall. The Playmakers' annual caper is the only other presentation to be given this year.

Mr. Samuel Selden directed the production, and selected the cast which follows: Mrs. Fulverton-Fane, Susan Creech; Jimmy Ludgrove, John Sehon; Susan Cunningham, Elizabeth Perrow; Edward Laverick, Whitner Bissell; Edward P. Carter, Arthur Marpet; Major Fothergill, Robert Novins; Jane West, Marion Tatum; Arthur Ludgrove, William Chandler; Adams, William Allsbrook; P. C. Mallet, Charles Elledge; and "Sergeant" Mallet, Thomas Loy.

New York Production

In the New York production of this play presented in the Charles Hopkins Theatre, Vivian Tobin played the part of Susan Cunningham, the heroine, and Alan Bunce played the part of Jimmy Ludgrove. This production was also produced in the Haymaker Theatre in London under the title, The Fourth Wall.

A. A. Milne, the author of this drama, has written many well-known and popular plays, among which are: The Artist, a dialogue; Belinda, a comedy in three acts; The Man in the Bowler Hat; The Step-Mother, a drama in one act; and Make-Believe, a play for children, which is especially well known. Milne specializes in comedies.

A musical program will be offered during the production by the faculty chamber orchestra under the direction of Lamar Stringfield.

JOHNSON WILL ADVISE SENIORS SEEKING JOBS

Jobs are scarce but information is plentiful at the bureau of vocational information. Seniors who do not know "what they're going to do" or "where they're going to do it" are cordially invited to come by and discuss their plans with Henry Johnston, Jr., at 204 South building.

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL REVIEWS INITIATION RULING

Registrar Explains Why Fraternities May Not Initiate During Commencement.

For the information of fraternities that are planning to initiate men between now and next fall, Dr. T. J. Wilson, Jr., registrar, wishes to make it clear that no other initiations will be permitted before the fourth day after school begins next fall for men who were not eligible at the end of the winter quarter.

The first reason for such an announcement is that grades of the prospective members must be checked before they are initiated. Pledges who were not eligible at the end of the winter quarter are not eligible now, and the registrar has not the time between now and the end of school to check the many applicants he receives. This will not be possible before the fourth day after the men come back next fall.

No Initiation in Summer

A second reason for prohibiting such initiations is the ruling of the interfraternity council which holds that no fraternity can initiate when the University is not in session during the academic year. In other words, during the two summer sessions no men will be eligible for initiation.

It has been rumored that several fraternities on the campus were planning to take in members sometime during the summer. For this reason John Phil Cooper, president of the interfraternity council, in collaboration with Dean F. F. Bradshaw and Registrar T. J. Wilson, Jr., wish to publish this statement for the benefit of the thirty-five fraternities on the Hill.

Local High School To Have Field Day

The local high school will observe field day this afternoon on the school grounds when several features pertaining to spring athletics will be participated in by both the boys and girls.

The grammar school will be featured in several outdoor events from 2:00 to 3:30 and from 3.40 to 5:00 o'clock the high school girls will take part in the events. Included in the program are: a fifty and seventy-five yard dash; baseball throw distance contest; basketball throw contest; run and broad jump, and horshoes contest. Culminating the day will be a baseball game between teams within the school.

Metzenthin Plans Travel Discussion

In response to many inquiries concerning travelling and studying in central Europe Dr. E. C. Metzenthin, of the German department, has planned a meeting of all those interested in the above topic next Sunday afternoon at 4:30 at his home at 404 Hillsboro street.

After an introductory talk on the basis of maps and travellers guide-books, questions will be answered, and pictures of interesting places and buildings in Germany and Switzerland will be shown.

Dr. Metzenthin will again spend the summer in Europe, leaving New York, June 6.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays. Entered as Second Class matter at the post office at Chapel Hill, N. C., under Act of March 3, 1879.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $4.00 for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

Jack Dungan ..... Editor
H. N. Patterson ..... Bus. Mgr.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Ed French ..... Mng. Ed.

Editorial Board

Charles G. Rose ..... Chairman
J. M. Little — Frank J. Manheim
W. M. Bryson — Will Yarborough
Alden Stahr — Bob Barnett
Wex Malone — K. C. Ramsay

Assignment Editors
Otto S. Steinreich
Dan Kelly, Assistant

Sunday Editor
Charles G. Rose

City Editors
Bill McKee — George Wilson
Peter Hairston — Jack Riley

Desk Men
W. R. Woerner — Don Shoemaker
Frank Hawley — T. W. Blackwell
Vass Shepherd

Sports Staff
Jack Bessen ..... Sports Editor

Assistants
T. H. Broughton — P. Alston

News Men
E. M. Spruill — F. W. Ashley
W. E. Davis — Claiborn Carr
Charles Poe

Reporters
Saul Gordon — Bob Reynolds
Woodward Glenn — M. V. Barnhill, Jr.
William Blount — W. F. Lee
U. B. Phillips — M. H. Long
Tom Walker — W. L. Gray
Ronald Kochendorfer — Walker Stamps
Phil Sasser

BUSINESS STAFF

Hal Worth ..... Circulation Mgr.
Harlan Jameson ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.
John Manning ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.

Advertising Department
Al L. Olmstead ..... Advertising Mgr.
Pendleton Gray ..... Advertising Mgr.
Bernard Solomon ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
R. D. McMillan, Jr. ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
James N. Nowell — H. A. Clark

Collection Department
Jack Hammer ..... Collection Mgr.
John Barrow — Frank S. Dale
Stokes Adderton — Jack Stokes

Correspondence Department
Ed Michaels, Jr. ..... Correspondence Mgr.
Wynn Hamm ..... Ass't. Cor. Mgr.

Friday, May 22, 1931

Unwanted: A "College Graduate"

Only a few more days now and the college career of many a senior will be complete. After four years of study they will be given their "sheepskins" as a trade-mark to show that they have graduated from some college or university. But let it not be forgotten when they go into the business world that they will not be retained or promoted because they are graduates, but on the merit of their work.

The diploma will serve them in good stead when it comes to securing a job, but if they cannot apply what they have learned during these four years of study and contact with other minds, they will soon join the long list of unemployed.

Many students seem to have a false impression that because they are graduates from some college or university that their road to success will be flowery. They have heard somewhere that a large percent of the men in "Who's Who" are college graduates, that graduates have nine chances out of ten of making good, or that only a small percent of the nation's unemployed today are former college students. But it must be recalled that these successful graduates are not the ones who went out looking for a job with the "I'm a college graduate" attitude.

It will be hard for some, who think a diploma a ticket to wealth, to have to begin on a small salary of eighty dollars per month, or be given some menial task, or be made to do some odd job. It will run against the grain of many not to be offered the best places in the firm, or better salaries than some men who did not finish college.

But as soon as they learn that their job was not given to them on their diploma, but rather on the work that a college student should be capable of doing, just that soon will they begin to see their job in the correct light, and will start on the right road to the top.—C.G.R.

Philosophy—Its Value

Many people contend that the study of philosophy is harmful to the religion and ideals of its students, or at best it is just a waste of time, for "it has no practical application."

As for the first contention, if a student has a real religion it should be strong enough to weather any possible harmful influence that the study of philosophy might have. If it cannot stand up under the fire of logic, it is time to discard it, and substitute one which has some reasonable basis. Philosophy does not attack religion; it merely leads people to think about it in a more objective light.

If the second criticism were valid, then the value of all non-material culture would be nil, and we should be obliged to stop thinking altogether on abstract subjects. Philosophy does have its practical applications, for it includes all the sciences and forms our laws and moral codes.

The value of philosophy in a college curriculum lies in its thought provoking quality and in its all-inclusive range of subject matter. The student has the advantage of the wisdom of the greatest minds of the past and present and can draw from a discussion of these subjects his own humble conclusions.

It is generally agreed among those who have gone "through the mill" of college and further experience that no man should be graduated from a college without having had at least some philosophy to broaden his "experience by proxy" and to give him a more objective perspective of life as a whole.—A.J.S.

For Perturbed Politicians

The 1931 convention of the Progressive party was held within the last two weeks. Senators Norris, Borah, and LaFollette were there. Speeches were made and crowds applauded but when all was said and done everyone was conscious of the fact that the meeting might as well not have been held. Borah will support Hoover when the voting begins, he will be tugging with all fours for the elephantine G.O.P. The sincerity of Senators Norris and LaFollette is not to be questioned but their program is yet only a nebulous and passive verbiage.

Although their party ideals agree rather closely with those of Norman Thomas, he was not invited, nor were a number of the other avowed Socialists. Perhaps the stigma of Socialism as a party label is an insurmountable barrier to the existence of an influential Progressive faction in American politics. If that is so why not recognize it, adopt a suitable name, and go about forming a party whose platform contains issues, who has the courage to present facts, and has the vision of crusaders for a new era in the life of the world.

There is need of a third party in this country. It is clear that a party whose platform is open to criticism and evolutionary development and who shows it to the country with earnest and intelligent enthusiasm cannot help but command the respect if not the support of our American nation. Call it the Progressive, Labor, Liberal or even the Socialist party, the name is unimportant, but let it have ideals, issues, and dynamic organization. There is an enormous need for this party. Perhaps by 1932 something will be whipped into shape that can command the respect of forward thinking and forward voting men. The nation is waiting for it.—R.W.B.

CHIPS OFF THE OLD BLOCK

MOORE BRYSON

Well, sir, it won't be long now. Despite the fact that I am not wearing a beer suit, my college career is almost at an end. In this, the last of the Chips off the old Block, I wish to acknowledge a few of the many people who have helped to make my stay at Carolina so enjoyable. I am grateful to—

Jack Brown for being a Freshman with me . . . Pete Glidewell for his speech to the jury at St. Anthony's Hall . . . Watts Farthing and Charlie Wilson for being the other two members of "The Unholy Three" . . . Bobby Wilkins for some much needed advice during my freshman year . . . Shep Strudwick for his "Prospero" . . . English Bagby for our little scene in Psychology II . . . Ann Melick for just being "Rooney" and the best social secretary any one has ever had . . . The Slades for waffles and chicken a la king . . . M. P. for several things . . . Harry Russell for his "Sample Switchel" . . . The old Playmaker gang for many enjoyable evenings spent telling yarns and drinking black coffee.

The Barrister's Bar for being the most infamous group ever to invade the law school . . . Marilee Shaw for being the original "Bar Maid" . . . "The Rubaiyat" for the number of times it has been quoted, especially after exams . . . Sigma Upsilon for The Yellow Journal . . . Charlie Price for his speech at the law school banquet two years ago . . . Caroline and Crowell for farewell parties . . . Professor Dobie for his course in "Federal Procedure" . . . Lib Nunn for the cabin episode . . . Howard Mumford Jones for his recital of "A Face on the Bar-room Floor" as it would have been given by a child of eight . . . Pete Gilchrist for his atrocious puns . . . Loretta Carroll Bailey for Job's Kinfolks and her interpretation of "Kizzy" . . .

John Booker for giving me a more sincere appreciation of poetry . . . Lil Jackson for "King for a Day" . . . Russell Williams for being able to completely hawk me . . . James Dawson for his "Trivia" . . . "Mike" Martin for the most unbelievable lies ever told . . . Nancy Howard for being a perfect girl to play around with during summer school . . . The Betas for taking some pretty bad rides in this column and still being hospitable to its author . . . Wex Malone for being a true friend . . . Kat Kinard for innumerable laughs . . . Sam Selden for being a patient director . . . Louis Graves for The Chapel Hill Weekly and for a favor . . . Virginia Turner for being herself . . . Al Kahn for his "Trinculo" . . . Ann Lawrence for a garden party . . . Peggy Lintner for getting mad and then getting over it . . .

Virginia and Florence for being "Camp Fire Girls" . . . John Scott for "Gunga Din" . . . Liz Zeigler for a practical joke . . . Mary Margaret Russell for her part in "Cocaine" . . . Tom and Ellen for being perfect hosts under the most trying circumstances . . . President Chase for his warm dignity . . . President Graham for his friendliness . . . Neona Sturgon for many a happy hour . . . Chalmers and Mac for a midnight trip . . . Dean Carroll for kicking me out of his Commerce school . . . G. L. P. for being a perfect example of a prep school pedagogue . . . Tom Riddick for a Sunday morning spent in the old Southern manner . . . Patterson's (Pritchard-Lloyd's) for many enjoyable hours spent on the window seat . . . Alice Carr for a Sunday afternoon . . . Brother Story for being a day laborer with me at night . . .

"Bootie" Uzzell for lots of things . . . Henry Roane for his story about the hangover . . . A certain young instructor for "The Green Eyed Monster" . . . The Japalapians for being a constant menace to Mrs. Jones . . . Dean McCormick for his suavity . . . Liz Green for almost being a cynic . . . "Prof" Koch for his enthusiasm . . . Jim Magner and Johnny Branch for thrills on the gridiron . . . Professor Breckenridge for his stimulating classes . . . Archie Cannon for being so fine . . . Adelaide McAnally for a banner date . . . The Grail, the German Club Executive Committee, the faculty committee, and the student council for being so indulgent . . . Carolina for six glorious years.

Student Government

May 21, 1931.

The cases reported below which are the result of a recent special meeting of the student council have nothing whatsoever to do with the King Barleycorn article in Sunday's Daily Tar Heel. In spite of the serious charges made by the writers of that much talked-of article, none of them have responded to the request of the council that they reveal whatever definite facts they might have in support of their statements. If the members of the Daily Tar Heel staff, or any other members of the student body, are in possession of the facts of any condition which is detrimental to the University, they should as a matter of mutual concern report to the council, as the council always stands ready to deal with such reports.

The student council is essentially a cooperative agency. It exists to maintain the character of the University student body. The student council has never been in any way hampered by faculty or trustee control. Its jurisdiction over the affairs of student discipline is not questioned, and appeals from its decisions may be made only to the student body.

The twenty-odd cases of drunkenness with which the council dealt during the school year 1930-1931, as mentioned in the last student government report are indicative of the council's present policy.

MAYNE ALBRIGHT,
President Student Union.

The student council wishes to make the following report of action taken at a special meeting held Wednesday night:

Case No. 33: Mr. X, a freshman, was indefinitely suspended from the University for forgery and theft.

Case No. 34: Mr. X, a freshman, was indefinitely suspended from the University for having in his possession whiskey for the purpose of sale.

HAYWOOD WEEKS,
Sec. Student Council.

A judge remarked last week that a wise husband never forgets his wife's birthday. He merely forgets which one it is. —The Humorist.

Plenty of Democrats are trying to take away Mr. Raskob's leadership, but still no one threatens to relieve him of the party debt.—Washington Post.

With Contemporaries

Student Spotlights

In a survey of activity and thought on our own campus and on those of numerous other institutions one is impressed by the way in which students are probing beneath surface questions of organizations, systems, and attitudes. There is undeniable evidence of a searching analysis of education, religion, the economic order, politics, science, morals, social problems, and personality values.

Out of the Detroit Student Conference came the recognition of the direct relationship between education and the development of Chirtsian character. Fearlessly and frankly in every institution students are facing problems of athletics, fraternity hell weeks, extra-curricular activities, honor systems, chapel programs, honorary societies, military drill, comprehensive examinations, freshman hazing and lower class orientation and adjustment. Faculty as well as undergraduate attention seems to move in the direction of progressive scientific solution of problems and in a decided tolerance for the existing facts.

At a nearby University students are striking because of faculty interference. Of interest is the editorial note in the Boston University News:

"Much unfortunate publicity has been gained by college students in the past few weeks. Harvard had its Vallee run in, Michigan University had its liquor scandal and N. Y. U. had its subway raid. From all sides condemnation has been hurled at the malefactors and college students in general.

"The matters have been published far out of proportion with their importance, solely because they concerned college students.

"As a result, the idea is once more being impressed upon the public mind that college students are wastrels, vandals, and law breakers. That these cases of iniquity are the exception rather than the rule is obvious. The unfortunate part of the matter is that little or nothing can be done about it. A college man is evidently 'news' and as such is not excused for infractions of the law which the average citizen could commit with impunity."

The Intercollegian has this to offer: "Heli Week's benefits are insignificant when compared to its costs. Scores of collegiate editorials preached on this text indicate that fraternity initiation week left in its wake: the usual acrid atmosphere, black-and-blue spots, meals eaten in standing position, some sheer fun, sullen submission, fear, the memory of barbaric and inexcusable mistakes."

Debunking the honorary societies is now in vogue. The Purdue Exponent prophesies that, unless they snap to and serve some useful function "they will soon be as extinct as the dinosaur." The Daily Californian which comes to our desk calls these societies "superfluous units." They have outdone themselves in doing nothing—if they are not intended to serve California, we doubt the advisability of perpetuating them. The worst thing about honoraries is their false front. From the outside they seem pinnacles of heaven; from the inside, nothing but hollow emptiness and sham." We can, however, conceive of honorary societies, election to which would represent a real honor through achievement. The Clarkson Integrator states editorially:

"The custom of freshman and sophomore rules comes down to us from the days when it was found necessary to have them. This does not mean that age has made these rules time-honored and makes their enforcement an honorable duty . . . The enforcement of rules is passe in many of the institutions in this country. Throughout the nation the old tradition of rules is fast fading. McGill, Amherst, Wesleyan, Vermont, are some of the colleges now without or abolishing rules. The doing away with rules at Clarkson will be a forward step."

The University of Vermont in its recent decision on freshman customs has placed itself voluntarily in the ranks among the leading progressive collegiate institutions.—Vermont Cynic.

Advice From A Dean

Dean Clarence W. Mendell of Yale did a very wicked thing indeed a few days ago—the misguided man actually lent the support of his undoubted position and talents to the subversive organization known as the Crusaders. This group, possessed of the avowed intention of revising the prohibition laws, has recently formed a Yale chapter, and the Dean's remarks took the form of hearty recommendation for the Crusaders, and straightforward advice that Yale men join the campaign.

The Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition, and Public Morals must have lathered and frothed excessively a few days ago, and the Anti-Saloon League must have felt nervous chills creeping up the communal spine, for youth was being corrupted in no uncertain fashion by the very pedagogical force which, in a better state, would stand as firm bulwarks against the encroaching evils of strong drink and personal liberty.

An incident of this kind may have little effect on the immediate state of affairs. The ranks of the godly, self-confessed, are still well filled, and their power is still felt throughout the land wherever legislators listen to reason. True temperance yet seems far off, and much valiant crusading will have to be done before the harm of attempted moral reform by ill-timed legislation is repaired.

Yet Dean Mendell's action can hardly fail to exert some effect upon people who think, or who at least read. The incident may serve to emphasize the fact that opposition to the Eighteenth Amendment is hardly confined to the least desirable elements of society. When Deans of great universities lend their aid and prestige to a cause, that cause must eventually be placed out of the class of things pernicious and un-American, even by so conservative a commentator as the Good Gray Columnist of Northampton, Massachusetts.

When Dean Mendell advised

(Continued on last page)

Carolina Inn

Open Throughout the Summer

Special Rates
to
Summer School Students

Cafeteria Always Open

Dining Room Open Saturday and Sunday

Annex Also Open

Brown Tops Regulars In Opening Round Of Annual Intramural Decathlon

Goodwin Does 440 in 56.2; McIver and Morisey Top Field In Novice Division.

The opening events of the spring intramural decathlon were run off yesterday afternoon on Emerson field as some twenty odd aspirants for the championship went through their paces in the 100, 440, high jump, discus, and shot put. After today the entrance lists will be closed and several more men are expected to join the competition this afternoon.

Bunny Goodwin, freshman hurdle star, jumped into the lead along with Theron Brown and Settle Dockery, stars on the varsity and freshman teams respectively. In the novice division, Morrisey and McIver took a slight lead over Patrick and Dinstman.

Theron Brown had the best distance in the shot put with a heave of 38 feet 6 1-4 inches. Bunny Goodwin turned in the next best performance in this event with a heave of 37 feet ten inches. Stud Henry was third among the regulars with a mark of 32 feet 3 inches. Among the novices Stutts led the way with thirty feet five and one quarter inches, but he was closely followed by Liberstein and McIver with thirty feet one inch each.

In the discus Brown again went to the fore with a throw of 129 feet nine inches, while the second best mark was made by Stud Henry with 105 feet seven inches. In the novice division Bill Liberstein placed first with 100 feet six inches, and Spencer was next with 96 feet nine inches.

Goodwin led the way in the 100 yard dash with a time of 10.7 seconds, but was followed closely by Brown who finished his event in 10.8. Jack Morrisey turned in the best time in this event among the novices when he broke the tape in eleven and one-tenth seconds. McIver did 11.3 and Fysal 11.4 to make the next best marks of the day in this class.

The best performance of the afternoon in the 440 was turned in by Bunny Goodwin who finished the race in 56.2 seconds. Dockery was just behind him with a time of fifty-seven seconds flat, and Henry turned in the third best mark with a time of 58.2 . In the novice division, Patrick turned in the best time by breaking the tape in 60.7 seconds, but he was followed by McIver with 61.2 and Morrisey with 61.9.

The high jump showed some exceptionally fine work when Settle Dockery, Frank Owens, and Bunny Goodwin, all tied at five feet nine inches. Bill Bullock cleared five feet eight inches to follow the leaders in this event. In clearing the bar at 5' 9", Dockery, Owens, and Goodwin made the nearest approach of the day to breaking a record, their mark being less than three inches under the existing school record.

Morrisey and Stutts topped the novices in the high jump with a height of five feet two inches, but McIver and Dinstman followed closely at five one to make scoring for the event the closest of the afternoon.

This afternoon's events are scheduled to begin promptly at 3:00 o'clock, and any men wishing to enter must report by that time. The finals in the ten events will be run off Saturday and Monday, and it is expected that a large field of competitors will see action.

Former Austrian Archduke Claims Right to Throne.—Headline. One of the Perhapsburgs.

Games Postponed

The A.T.O.-Phi Delta Theta and New Dorms - Graham games in the intramural baseball league scheduled to be played yesterday were both postponed on account of wet grounds. They will be played tomorrow afternoon if the weather permits.

Sidelights

By Phil Alston

Now that the spring sport schedules have been brought to a close, the sports minded have little left to amuse them except the age old game of rehashing the various schedules with the purpose of deciding who was good and who wasn't good, or of discussing what was the matter with this, that, or the other team. It's always fun because everybody is right, and because nobody ever agrees on anything.

In swamping the Wolfpack batters Wednesday, Coach Ashmore's boys not only improved their batting averages, but they brought to a close one of the most successful baseball campaigns any Carolina team has had in several years. First place in the Tri-State League, second place in the Big Five and a percentage of .800 would sound pretty good for any team, but when you stop to think that at the first of the season Carolina had almost entirely a rookie team and that they were doped to place last in the Big Five, you begin to wonder just how Coach Ashmore managed to do it. At any rate, the campus seems to be pretty thoroughly pleased with the outcome of the season, and little things like sweeping the Virginia series and handing Duke the first thumping in some three years haven't tended to lessen our pleasure any.

Carolina should be able to look forward to another good season next year with every man eligible again except Captain Potter, House, Wyrick, and Edwards. Wyrick has two more years of play left, but will hardly return to school. Then, too, the 1931 Tar Baby squad should send up several promising men who should strengthen the squad in some of the weaker spots.

* * *

The track squad, also, should find itself strengthened when some of this year's Tar Baby stars don varsity uniforms. Higby, Weisker, Ashkenas, LeGore, Mullis, Goodwin, and Horney will give the 1932 squad added power in the broad jump, dashes, weight events, and hurdles. Higby stands out as the brightest prospect with his jump of twenty-three feet 2 3-4 inches here last Saturday. This mark was seven inches better than the University record set by Dave Neiman last spring, and should rank him among the leading performers in the South in this event. A jump of 23 feet 2 3-4 inches is a good day's work on any man's athletic field.

* * *

The fight situation among our leading heavyweights seems to become more comical every day, and bids fair to win the Pulitzer award for the greatest farce of the year. As soon as Stribling and Schmeling were signed to fight in Cleveland, everybody that knew how to write came running up with an injunction, and the same thing has happened in the case of the Sharkey-Carnera tiff in Brooklyn. As usual, prospects point for a great battle in the courts, but the same old flop in the ring—

(Continued on last page)

1931 TAR HEEL LINKSMEN MAKE SPLENDID RECORD

Golfers Complete Most Successful Record in History; Unbeaten in Dual Meets.

Following the precedent being established by other athletic squads at the University this spring, the Tar Heel varsity golf team recently completed its most successful season in history, compiling a record which includes an unbeaten record in dual meets, and second and fourth places in the state and southern conference meets respectively.

Coach Kenfield, a former Morgan Park Academy man, which is one of the elite of Chicago prep schools, has made an enviable showing with his golf and tennis teams this year, having tutored the golfers to their successful season and brought the Tar Heel tennis team national honors by virtue of its impressive string of unbroken wins.

Against Georgetown in its initial appearance, the Heel golfers won over their eastern rivals, who have raised much havoc in the eastern golfing world this year, 10 1-2 to 7 1-2. An overwhelming 25 1-2 to 1 1-2 defeat was administered to Boston college, which was followed with another pleasing and impressive victory over Washington and Lee, 17 to 1.

Duke university played a 9 to 9 deadlock with the Tar Heels in their first meeting, but some weeks later on their own course Carolina drubbed the Durham contingent 14 1-2 to 3 1-2, avenging their previous tie count. Georgia Tech journeying up in hopes of a victory over Carolina was sent home disappointed on the short end of a stringing 10 1-2 to 7 1-2 setback.

Entering the state tournament at Greensboro as favorites, Carolina was defeated by Davidson, a dark horse in the play, and had to be content with second place in final standing, with Duke finishing third. However, Joe Adams, Kenfield protege, shot a fine 155 to cop individual state collegiate honors.

Davidson suffered a 13 1-2 to 4 1-2 loss at the hands of the Carolinas in a dual meet, the Tar Heels displaying excellent form at Greensboro against the state champions.

At the Southern Conference meet held at Athens, Georgia, the Tar Heels were unable to hit their usual stride and as a consequence saw first honors go to Tulane with Vanderbilt second and Duke third. Carolina finished behind the team which they tied and later beat. Joe Adams qualified in the first flight in the Southern meet but was eliminated, while Beverly Mason won the second flight honors.

The University of Virginia was met at Charlottesville on the last trip of the season, and the Tar Heels chalked up another victory with a 15 to 3 count. Encountering William and Mary at Williamsburg, Virginia, the Carolinas played a 3 to 3 deadlock to end the season.

Beverly Mason held the number one ranking, shooting consistently good golf all season. Joe Adams performed brilliantly in the number two position while Ben Goodes and Al Brown held down the three and four places on the team giving all their formidable competition hard fights. Alternates were Laxton, Paul Carter, and Aubrey Brookes.

With Mason, Adams, Laxton, and Goodes back the outlook for a Carolina victory in the tournament next year is anything but pessimistic.

HEEL NINE TOPS TRI-STATE LOOP WITH EIGHT WINS

Carolina Nine Has .727 Average For Best Mark in Northern End of Conference.

The University of North Carolina's 19-8 rout of N. C. State in its season finale gave the Ashmore-coached Tar Heels top honors in the Tri-State Loop of the Southern Conference and the best claim of any team in the Northern division to the Conference crown.

The Tar Heels, who also won the Tri State flag in 1929, finished with a record of 8 victories, 3 losses and 1 tie for the remarkably good percentage of .727. Of 16 games played in the Conference the Tar Heels won 10, lost 4, and tied 2 for a percentage of .714. Of 22 games played in all, the Tar Heels won 16, lost 4 and tied 2 for a percentage of .800.

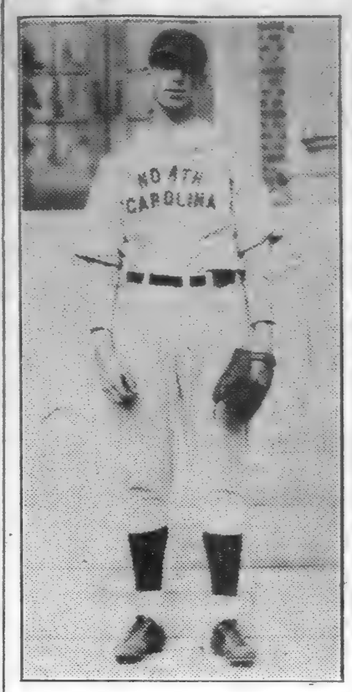
Auburn held similar honors in the Southern division of the Conference. The Tigers had a slightly better average in the Dixie League, corresponding with the Northern division's Tri-State Loop, finishing with 15 wins and 4 losses for a .789 percentage as compared with Carolina's .727 in the Tri-State. They also did silghtly better in the Conference, winning 11 and losing 3 for a .786 percentage as compared with Carolina's .714 mark, but in total games Carolina had the better mark. Auburn won 18 and lost 5 for a .783 percentage, while Carolina turned in an .800 mark.

The difference came from the fact that Carolina won every game with its non-Conference foes, although such intersectional leaders as Cornell, Pennsylvania, and Princeton augmented such state teams as Davidson and Wake Forest in making up this part of the Tar Heels' schedule.

The season record, all the more impressive since Coach Jim Ashmore started the year with an entirely new and green infield, was the best a Carolina nine has had since 1922, when the Tar Heels, with their famous pitching trio of Captain Llewellyn, Bryson, and Wilson, won 19 games and lost but 2.

Dean Gildersleeve Warns Girl Students Against Quick Jobs

Virginia C. Gildersleeve, dean of Barnard college, and one of the foremost woman educators in the country, says that girls graduating from college in this year of depression should not seek jobs unless they are forced to earn their living.



"If the girl graduating this June has a family that can possibly support her for a while longer, or a kind aunt to help her, or a little money in the bank, then she should not try to get a position in times like these," Dean Gildersleeve declares in Physical Culture magazine.

Instead of attempting to compete for jobs that are none too numerous, the graduate should get technical or professional training that will enable her in the long run to do high grade work, the dean says. She is especially opposed to the entrance of wealthy college graduates into such activities as ordinary office work.

"A few years ago," she says, "a silly coustom grew up among girls of the rich set, of studying stenography and taking posts as clerks in offices, even though they had no special taste for the jobs. At the present moment this would be even more foolish for such affluent workers."

We still have a few necessities we can get along without before parting with any of our luxuries.

Elected Captain

Cecil Longest, veteran pitcher, was elected captain of the 1932 Tar Heel baseball nine. For the past two years he has been one of the mainstays of the Heel pitching staff and culminated his most successful season with a 6-2 victory over Duke, to break the four year jinx the Devils have held over Carolina. Longest, a righthander, boasts a season record of five wins and one loss. He is a native of Beaufort.

Fanning and Panning

By Billy Arthur

Congratulations "Stumpy" for your being elected captain of the 1932 baseball team. Break away from that tempermental attitude, and your success will be even greater than your past.

* * *

Do you agree that—

Billy Powell surely could whip 'em to first base?

Paul Dunlap was the hardest worker on the ball club?

Pete Wyrick, in placing hits, was either good or lucky?

The person who yelled, "Don't argue Virginia, how'd ja do us at the Boxing Tournament?", hit the spot?

Cecil Longest is almost a martyr for checking Duke after their four years of successive wins?

* * *

Southern newspapers please note:

One of the foremost tennis teams to ever assemble is right here in the South and right here

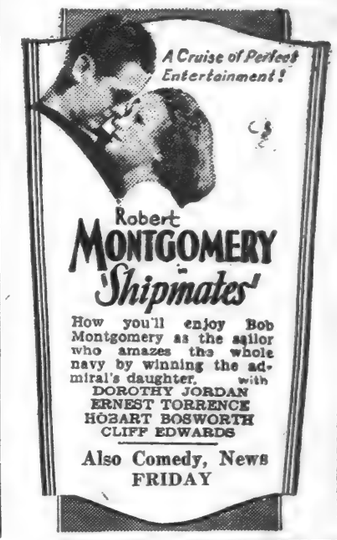
(Continued on last page)

RALEIGH HIGH TO MEET CHARLOTTE IN TITLE CLASH

Veteran Raleigh Team to Meet Queen City Nine for Class A Crown Here Saturday.

History will repeat itself here Saturday afternoon, for the 1931 finals of the race for the Class A high school baseball title of the State will once more bring Charlotte against Raleigh. The game will be called at 3 o'clock.

The same teams met last year, and Charlotte won, when Pitcher Allen Bailey and the Raleigh infield had one bad inning. The same high schools clashed here in the fall for the football title, and in the winter for the basketball title, Charlotte winning both times. It is beginning to seem traditional for Charlotte and Raleigh to fight it out for titles.



Both teams were undefeated in their respective conferences this year, and prospects are for another epic closing chapter to the high school race.

Raleigh has a veteran team in the main, but certain new blood makes Charlotte look a bit stronger even than last year.

In a practice game only this week the Charlotte team beat

(Continued on last page)

CAROLINA
NOW PLAYING
"Misbehaving Ladies"
with
Lila Lee
Ben Lyon

THE SMOKE SHOP
EAT WITH US DRINK WITH US

FOR RENT — SUMMER SCHOOL
Two cottages with two rooms and a bath in each, located at the rear of the Beta Theta Pi house, 114 S. Columbia street. Reasonable rates. Apply to H. I.. Anderson at the Beta house. Phone 6071.

a late date

WHAT better treat is there late in the evening than a heaping bowl of the peppy cereal—Kellogg's PEP Bran Flakes!

They do not interfere with sleep, for they are light and easily digested. Yet you get the nourishment of whole wheat, just a healthful amount of bran, and the famous flavor of PEP.

Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. In the red-and-green package.

The most popular ready-to-eat cereals served in American colleges are made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. They include ALL-BRAN, Corn Flakes, Rice Krispies, Wheat Krumbles and Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuit. Also Kaffee Hag Coffee—the coffee that lets you sleep.

Kellogg's PEP BRAN FLAKES

Bruce Barton Says Advertising Is The Voice Of Business Today

Financial Rewards of Advertising are as Great as Those of Other Businesses, and This Field Affords an Opening for Intelligent Workers.

Bruce Barton, chairman of the board of Battan, Barton, Durstine and Osborn, advertising firm, and probably the most famous advertising man in the world, said, in a recent interview with the Princetonian, that if he had to choose his life work again he would certainly remain in the advertising business.

Barton said further, that as each age has its outstanding characterization, so the one of this age is business. "Advertising is the voice of business. Without public opinion, nothing can be done in a world of democracies. We advertising people work with the tools by which public opinion is formed and directed."

Financial Rewards

"The financial rewards which advertising gives are fully as great as those who are in the business deserve. This is because of the law of supply and demand." There are few really good advertising men, and yet there are many other fields of enterprise that evidently do not have such stringent requirements. "Take banking for instance, there are at least 4,000 national banks alone, and each of these has a president. But I doubt if there are 4,000 first-class advertising copy writers in the whole United States.

"Advertising is like golf. No one is good all the time, yet at frequent intervals one is supremely good. This maintains a pleasant balance between the ecstatic pain of egotism and the cleansing influence of humility. Advertising is the epitome of all that is brave, adventurous, and interesting in business. It offers the thrills of pioneering and gold hunting. It affords the fun of running a locomotive."

Exploits Public

"The most distasteful thing about advertising today is the tendency to exploit the public as gullible rather than to regard its confidence as too sacred to be abused. People believe advertising, not merely because of their faith in American business, but because, since early childhood, those things which they have seen printed have been true.

"Advertising seems to have been accepted by the American people, voted for and elected as the medium through which they choose to learn of new things to eat, to wear, to protect themselves, and to add to their pleasure. This fact alone would indicate that advertising has justified itself from the standpoint of the reader, even more than from the standpoint of the advertiser."

Barton holds that all advertising should be strictly true, and all attempts to fool and exploit the public should be abolished. Advertising, at the present time, is in great demand, but this demand should lessen in the next thirty years. There will, at that time, be less general and more actual newsy and informatory advertising.

"The great need of advertising, as of all other businesses, is the need for better people." says Barton. "Give any business more intelligent people, more generous people, and the other needs will melt away."

Students Stage Riot In Annual Celebration

The University of Chicago, with a newly developed flare for celebrating yearly events, and gaining publicity, reincarnated last year's May 13 riot by having a parade and a bonfire. No definite cause, other than this, has been advanced by the harassed officials of the university.

The university, it seems, knew in advance that a riot had been planned, and had carefully warned the police and the local fire companies to stay away until things got out of the hands of the campus cops.

The participants in the affair numbered some 500, and it was practically useless to attempt to curb their evident desire to celebrate something which was not exactly apparent. A gigantic fire was kindled in the middle of the driveway where last year's celebration took place. Fuel was rushed from the nearby tennis bleachers by willing hands. Eggs and whitewash were the main missiles of the rioters. Eggs were the most prominent at the beginning of the fray, and it was not until later that the whitewash was introduced to chastise two particularly obnoxious plain clothes men.

Reserves brought up more eggs when the cops threatened to curtail the fun. A radio call sent out by the police brought immediate results, and six Cadillac squads, four Flivver squads, four motorcycle policemen, and a LaSalle contaning an excited lieutenant.

The affair ended quietly enough when, at 2:00 A. M. the mob dispersed, from no ulterior motive but sheer lack of anything further to do. The Daily Maroon, the campus paper, caught wind of the uprising of the masses and was well represented on the field of battle by six staunch followers of the elusive news.

Colgate's Student Attitude Criticized

In a recent address at Colgate university, Dr. George B. Cutten, president of that institution, pointed out many severe criticisms of the modern student's attitude toward the vital matter of an education. He said that although parents frequently sacrifice everything but the bare necessities of life to educate their children, the children themselves are satisfied with a minimum of education.

The most puzzling enigma of present-day education, in the opinion of Dr. Cutten, is that the four years to be devoted supposedly to acquiring a college education are regarded as a vacation to be interrupted by serious study only at rare intervals.

"Indeed, they seem determined to get the least possible return for the money and time they are spending," stated Cutten. "The modern student is not disturbed about getting his money's worth out of his instructors. Formerly professors attracted students from all parts of the country and were forced by the students to render the best of their services for their salary, dollar for dollar."

HOUSE STRESSES CONTINUED STUDY

(Continued from first page)

may have seemed relatively insignificant prove to be of immense value.

"It is very often the case that after graduation a student will look back over his career and think how differently he would plan it were it to go through again. But don't look backward; begin now to do the things you would have done before."

Mr. R. B. House went to Wilson last night to deliver the graduation address to the class of 1931 of the Charles S. Coon high school of that city.

The Campus Calendar

Commerce Freshmen

All commerce freshmen are requested to meet Dean D. D. Carroll today at chapel period in 103 Bingham hall.

Spanish Club

The Spanish club will meet tonight in the Episcopal parish house at 7:30 for the last time this year.

Cornell Faculty Asks Abolition of Drills

The Cornell university faculty made a liberal move in its May meeting when it voted for the abolition of compulsory military training as a prerequisite to graduation by a ballot of eighty-one in favor against thirty-eight opposed.

The recommendation to abolish military training as a requisite and to make it optional will go before the board of trustees of that university, when it meets on June 15, for final action.

A movement in the direction of abolition began four years ago when a petition signed by 1796 members of the student body asked that compulsory drill be done away with. It gained further impetus last fall when a committee was organized to investigate the situation. This committee reported at the April faculty meeting, and the faculty's action came last Thursday.

RALEIGH HIGH TO MEET CHARLOTTE IN TITLE CLASH

(Continued from preceding page)

the Charlotte Observer nine and Pitcher John Trippe, who two years ago turned in a no-hit game in the Sally Loop.

Bebe Daniels and Dallas Morris contributed homeruns, and Morris and Funderburke added triples, to keep up the hard hitting the Charlotte team has been doing all year.

The Queen City team can call on at least three good hurlers, Red Farrell, Bub Mulligan, and Reeves King, and it is an open question who will start against Raleigh, which will probably rely on its versatile Allen Bailey again.

With Contemporaries

(Continued from page two)

Yale men to join the Crusaders he merely added a bit of valuable testimony to the premise that the interests which maintained the old time saloon are not the sole enemies of liquor control as it is now practiced in the United States. How does it happen that Cornell's organizers and joiners have overlooked the Crusader movement? Perhaps that sort of club would be too sound and sensible to attract the coveters of the sacrosanct key and tie-pin, but at any rate, some campus progressive should be found who would undertake the formation of the Cornell chapter. The ground here certainly must be ripe for cultivation if the results of last year's wet and dry poll can be trusted.—Cornell Daily Sun.

Senior Smoker

The senior smoker will take place tonight at 9:00 in Swain hall. This will be the last meeting of the entire class before graduation and all members of the class, including co-eds are earnestly urged to attend.

Kemp Lewis, president of the General Alumni Association, President Frank Graham, Pat Patterson, and J. Maryon Saunders, editor of the Alumni Review, will be the speakers of the evening. Permanent officers of the class will be elected at this time.

SCIENCE AND GOD CLOSELY LINKED ASSERTS DR. KIRK

(Continued from first page)

later decades of the nineteenth century was so great that it seemed to many as though it would succeed in disposing of all mysteries and leave nothing capable of arousing awe and wonder, Dr. Kirk said. He pointed out that a mystery based on ignorance had really been banished, but that science had brought back a mystery of a very different kind, a mystery based on partial knowledge.

"The most impressive general aspect of science at present, that aspect most interesting to the philosopher," Dr. Kirk said, "is that at a time when the organization of natural knowledge has reached a state of varied and marvelous perfection, science has come upon a state of varied and marvelous perfection, science has come upon essential mysteries at the heart of nature which it cannot explain away."

Mystery of Universe

The universe again has become mysterious, but as based upon a profound intelligence; and it happens that this aspect of mystery is precisely the one that appeals to religious awe. But scientific progress has done other great services to a spiritual philosophy.

"The mature researches of science have failed to fine bedrock meanings, or what is popularly called reality, at the heart of the material universe. And it has developed the conviction that science is looking for reality in the wrong place."

Dr. Kirk said that "if we accept the authority of the highest scientific minds at the present moment, they seem to imply that, if there be such a thing as reality at all—bed-rock meanings which may be taken as foundations for spiritual philosophy—we may look for them in the mind.

Ultimate Reality

"If we are to find ultimate reality at the heart of the universe, that ultimate reality must be something like ourselves; a creative personal mind in which all things subsist, and if there be such a mind, then the way to it lies through certain clues furnished by the most representative aspects of our own finite intelligences. Such arguments have long been familiar to the philosopher; but it seems to me that this is the first time profound reasons for this type of thinking have been suggested by the most mature and trustworthy positions of pure science. This is the new thing in the present situation, and we ought not lightly to dismiss it as merely speculative.

"Clearly the progress of science has come to the place where one may no longer be content to rest in the conclusions of a particular science. Just as modern medical practice can no longer treat any disease as local, so no devotee of a special science can afford to ignore the increasing necessity of a unification of scientific knowledge in terms of a philosophy of wholes. The direction it seems to me that science suggests for this principle of unity lies in a spiritual interpretation of the universe in definite terms of a Governing Personality, something like our own finite selves, to which we are akin, and in whose supreme will we find the justification of our being and the interpretation our earthly experience."

AMERICAN LEAGUE

New York 6		Cleveland	6
(Sixth inning)
Washington 4		Chicago	2
Philadelphia 7		Detroit	5
(Seventh inning)
Boston 5		St. Louis	0
(Fifth inning)

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Rain

Fanning and Panning

(Continued from preceding page)

in the University of North Carolina. It has not been defeated. It will be a claimant to the national collegiate championship. And only one Southern newspaper, The Greensboro Daily News, has given the team any meritous publicity or commendation. When the team went East, Northern papers were chock full of write-ups, pictures, comments, and the like. Yet Bill Cox, of said newspaper, was the only sports writer in this vicinity with nerve or "get up" enough to give our team any deserved mention.

* * *

It has been rumored that "Rat" Whitehead, former Carolina baseball star who is now the property of the St. Louis Cardinals, might be sent to Greensboro to bolster the Pats.

* * *

Piggy Potter, it is also rumored, will join the Greensboro club June 11, if not before.

* * *

Asked a friend the other day, "With only Yeomans graduating this year which leaves only one vacancy to be filled next year, what is Coach Kenfield going to do with all the good freshmen material?"

Personally I don't know or haven't the slightest idea. However, I would suggest that Coach Kenfield make two separate and distinct teams. One team to go East and play that opposition, and the other team to enter the Pinehurst tourney and the S. I. A. C. tourney at New Orleans. This arrangement would eliminate all conflicts with the faculty over missing classes.

* * *

Marshall (Teeny) Snyder brought his wife into town this past week end to settle down forever and ever and ever. Teeny, this department congratulates and wishes you many happy years.

* * *

Saturday when Charlotte High meets Raleigh High for the State baseball championship, it will be the third time this year and the fifth time in two years that the two teams have met to decide the state champion in the major sports. Each time that they have met, the Eastern Champs have gone down in defeat, which will have no bearing at all on their chances to take or lose Saturday's tussle. Both teams are well balanced ball clubs, well coached, with good hitters, and good pitching. I pick Charlotte to win. Why? Because I am an Alma Mater of that old Alumnus, Charlotte High School.

* * *

Stories have it "Tubby" McDade told Mr. Crittendon that the reason fishing companies of New England combined was not for more capital but for MORE FISH.

Mother's figure may not be getting slender, but father's figures are.

M'INTOSH FEARS PROPOSED CUT IN INSTRUCTOR'S PAY

(Continued from first page)

and the number of teachers in the white rural high schools was greater in 1928-29 than for the previous year, but there was $3.55 per child less money with which to educate these children.

Salary Differences

"The teacher for the white special charter high school draws on an average $328.7 more for a school year than does the teacher in the white rural high schools. Calculating this salary on a twelve month basis the special charter white high schools pays its teachers on an average $122.84, while the rural white high school pays its teachers on an average $95.44. This is an average of $27.40 in favor of the special charter school for each teacher in the high school for each month of the calendar year."

SIDELIGHTS

(Continued from preceding page)

but, maybe the boys won't have to get in the ring at all. Maybe they'll decide to cut high cards for the championship. But even if they do get in the ring and punch each other's noses a bit, the situation is still going to be pretty complex. Both winners (and both losers too probably) will claim the championship, and we'll be right back where we started. But, with all the lawyers and injunctions in the way, it doesn't look as though anything will happen. In Cleveland, somebody discovered that Herr Schmelling is signed to meet Mr. Stribbling's son Willie in a prize fight, and also, that prize fights are illegal—boxing matches are all right, but this is being called a prize fight, and that's not allowed.

Carnera (who is really the outstanding statesman of the age) uses the same method of escape in his efforts to not meet the temperamental sailor from Boston, Jack Sharkey. Primo said that it was against the law to engage in a fight and that his conscious would not allow him to break the law, which is a very noble attitude to be taken by a man who has been barred from states for participating in fights that did not look quite as honorable as they might have.

The independent class is the one that doesn't have any breakfast if the dependent class doesn't show up to cook it.—Medford Mail-Tribune.

LOST

White Gold Bulova wrist watch. G. W. D. monogram on back. Return 407 E. Franklin. Liberal reward.

R. R. Clark
Dentist
Over Bank of Chapel Hill
PHONE 6251

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Beta Theta Pi Fraternity House will be open for roomers for the Summer School. All applications may be made at once to H. L. Anderson at the Beta House or Phone 6071.

THE BETA DINING ROOM

Will also be open for the summer. Excellent food will be served at the regular price of $30 Per Month

PLAYMAKER PRODUCTION
"THE PERFECT ALIBI"
MEMORIAL HALL — 8:30

The Daily Tar Heel

PLAYMAKER PRODUCTION
"THE PERFECT ALIBI"
MEMORIAL HALL — 8:30

VOLUME XXXIX — CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SATURDAY, MAY 23, 1931 — NUMBER 178

DI AND PHI PAN AUTOCRATIC RULE OF GERMAN CLUB

Campus Solons Rise and Blast Right of Organization to Control Dances.

Thursday night at 7:45 o'clock in the Phi hall at a stormy session characterized by verbal fire and interrogatory interruptions, the Phi and Di societies heard the defense of the German club's position in controlling dances and social functions on the campus. The two societies again passed Senator Rector's bill asking that the German club be stripped of its powers at such functions after the members of the German club had upheld their position. The vote was twenty-two to eight in favor of the bill.

Amendments to Bill

Several amendments were added to the original bill. Representative Ferguson proposed the first, Resolved: That the joint session of the Phi and Di commend the German club for its efficient management of social events, which was passed after Representative Uzzell amended this amendment to read, Resolved: That the joint session of the Phi and Di commend the German club for its efficient conquest of social events, and we in joint session feel that this power has gone on long enough and that the Di and Phi shall sponsor a campus wide vote to decide wherein this power shall lie. Representative Spradlin offered the third amendment that received passage. It provided that on the ballot used in the campus vote let it be included that a new organization be formed, made up of two members of the faculty, two members from each of the three upper classes, two members of the student council, and one member each from the Di and Phi which will be empowered to govern the dances and social functions on the campus.

Fight Against Club

The arguments brought out by the proponents of the bill to take the power away from the German club was that the organization was undemocratic in the fact that only members of the club could determine the time of dances, and how they should be given. The arguments were also brought out that the German club's powers were assumed and not real and that the power was not delegated to them by the student body as a whole.

The arguments in favor of the German club's position were that the organization had done good work in giving dances and that all the dances conducted under the club's supervision were carried on in an orderly fashion which was above reproach, and for this reason that the German club should be allowed to retain its present position.

Thirteen Speakers

The following spoke in favor

(Continued on last page)

THEATRE ARTS CLASS TO STAGE EXHIBITION

An exhibition of stage models and costumes will be open to the public from 4:30 to 6:00, next Tuesday afternoon, in Person hall. The models were made by students in Professor Sam Selden's class in theatre arts. The costumes of the colonial and other American periods were collected by Mrs. J. M. Valentine, mistress of the wardrobe of the Carolina Playmakers.

Orchestra Will Play For School Children

The University Symphony Orchestra will give a concert for the children of the city schools at 3:00 p. m. next Wednesday afternoon. For several weeks Miss Kathryn Brown has been preparing the children for this concert by illustrative lessons.

The program to be played for the children is demonstrative of the various families of instruments. Short illustrative passages will be played by each of the more unusual instruments, such as the oboe, bassoon, French horn, tympani, and viola. Various combinations of these instruments will be used to aid the children in developing their powers in recognizing tonal effect. Professor Nelson O. Kennedy will play a short number on the organ at the request of the children.

NEW TUNE TO BE CONSIDERED FOR UNIVERSITY SONG

Original Melody by Salisbury Native Awaits Reception by Student Union.

For years past, the University has sung as its school hymn a poem written by Mrs. C. P. Spencer set to the tune of "America"; and although there have been agitations for a new tune, this spring brings forth the first contribution along this line, a composition by Bob Roy Perry.

The composer, a native of Salisbury, began work last summer on a tune for the University hymn, which hitherto had been sung to "America." He went through the library and selected these words from among the various poems in Battle's History of the University.

The tune has not as yet been definitely accepted, although it is recommended from the music department by Dr. H. S. Dyer, the director, and also by President Frank Graham. Its acceptance will depend on its reception by the student body.

Wins National Honors

Mr. Perry is the composer of several other college songs, among which are the Dartmouth college song and the Midland song. He has also composed many longer pieces.

In 1923, 1925, and again in 1926, he won various nation-wide contests in composition.

This hymn is not a part of the song contest which was sponsored by the alumni last fall. None of the contributions were suitable for the use that was to have been made of the winning piece, and so no award was made by the judges.

Dey Sailing Today

Dr. and Mrs. William M. Dey will sail from New York today for France to attend the 400th anniversary of the College de France. Dey, head of the University romance language department, will represent the University at the anniversary ceremonies which will take place June 18, 19, and 20.

Staff Meeting

All reporters, city editors, and desk men are asked to meet tomorrow night in room 104, Alumni building at 7:00 o'clock. Several changes will be made in the general policy of the Daily Tar Heel.

Words and Music of University Hymn

Above is a facsimile of the Carolina Hymn with words written by Mrs. C. P. Spencer and the tune contributed by Bob Roy Perry. Perry's tune will be substituted for "America," the one now used, if there is sufficient interest among the student body for such a change.

SIGMA XI SOCIETY ELECTS NEW MEN

Dr. J. N. Couch Succeeds Dr. Otto Stuhlman as President Of Research Group.

Eighteen members were elected to the Sigma Xi society at a meeting Monday afternoon in Phillips hall.

The following were elected to associate membership: botany department, Budd Elmon Smith; chemistry department, Homer Reid Baker, Ethel May Chapin, Thomas Wilmer Richmond, and James Otto Turner; geology department, Alexandre Emil Alexander, Charles Stewart Maurice, Martha Elizabeth Norburn, William Holland Thompson, and William Alexander White; mathematics department, Harry Leslie Dillin; physics department, Harry Butler Mulkey.

Those chosen for active membership were, department of chemistry, Ralph Milledge Byrd, Miller Wade Conn, and Jeptha P. Sanders; department of psychology, Abram G. Bayroff, Ruth Hamill, and James R. Patrick. All elected to active membership were promoted from associate membership except James R. Patrick.

Stuhlman to Speak

The Sigma Xi will give a dinner on Tuesday at 6:30 for the newly elected members at the Carolina Inn. All other members who expect to attend should notify Dr. H. D. Crockford. Dr. Otto Stuhlman, the retiring president of the society, will deliver his closing address on "What Lies Beyond the Axioms of Rational Sciences." The new president, Dr. J. N. Couch of the botany department, will then take office.

The society was originally founded for the promotion of scientific research by a group of engineers. Now the society embraces scientific research by men of all departments. The motto of the organization is, "Companions in Zealous Research."

BAND TO APPEAR IN FINAL CONCERT

Two Programs to Be Rendered in Sunday Afternoon Entertainment at Carolina Theatre.

Through the courtesy of the Carolina theatre, the University band will appear for the last time this term Sunday afternoon at 2:30 and 4:15 at the theatre. At the same time, the management of the theatre will present a picture for the audience.

The band has been fairly successful. It appeared in two concerts in Greensboro last month, one before the high school, and one at Greensboro college, performing exceedingly well and winning favorable comments in the papers.

Outstanding Band

The work this year is an enlargement of the same type that caused North Carolina's band to be picked as one of the ten outstanding bands of the United States colleges. The program, as presented, includes selections of great composers of the classical period, Norwegian, Spanish, Modern American, and others.

Their programs have been augmented considerably by the addition of three soloists, James Pfohl, Thor Johnson, and Walter Prescott. The brilliant trumpet solo of Mr. Pfohl was the outstanding part of the entire program in Greensboro. Walter Prescott is recognized as being one of the best bassoon players ever to attend the National Music camp in Michigan. The bassoon is an instrument not commonly used for solo work, and Mr. Prescott's excellent execution of a difficult selection was received enthusiastically at all appearances. By way of variety from a strictly band program, Thor Johnson effectively rendered a beautiful violin solo.

The program for Sunday has not been announced, but will appear in the Daily Tar Heel Sunday. At the same time the title of the picture will be announced.

Play Tonight Final Production of Year

The Carolina Playmakers will present their last play of the year tonight at 8:30 o'clock in Memorial hall. This play, The Perfect Alibi, was one of the most popular productions in New York City last year, running the entire season.

Mary Dirnberger, who attended school here in 1929 and took part in the Playmaker productions, designed and executed the settings assisted by Robert Proctor, Leonard Fox, and students in the University courses in theatre arts.

This mystery play is very unusual as the actual murder takes place before the audiences' eyes. The entire action unfolds in Arthur Ludgrove's apartment. This play is on the sixtieth bill since the organization of the Playmakers and it is the fifty-fifth of the year.

MILLER EXPLAINS LEGAL PROBLEMS OF PRESENT DAY

Duke Law Dean Shows Defects Of Judicial System in Senior Talk.

Addressing the senior students at the University Thursday night on the subject of the relation of jurisprudence to the individual, Dean Justin Miller, of the Duke university law school, declared that there is now a distinct trend towards a highly specialized individual application of law procedure, particularly of the criminal phase.

Dean Miller's address was one of a number arranged on the senior week program at the University. Other speakers who have addressed the seniors durthe week were United States Senator Josiah W. Bailey, Dr. Archibald Henderson, and Executive Secretary Robert B. House.

Dean Miller pointed out that laws first grew up as a substitute for the old form of trial, in which the verdict depended upon the ability of the accused to champion his cause. From that stage they became crystallized into a comparatively few general principles, made to apply to all cases with little regard for the individual aspects.

Same Situation

"We are now in the midst of practically the same situation," Dean Miller said. "Our courts are mill-like affairs, interested for the greater part in the interpretation and treatment of the principles of the law by the attorneys than in the case itself."

The workmen's compensation act was cited by Dean Miller as being indicative of the new movement towards individualization.

"This act," he said, "makes it possible to treat each case upon its own merits but which at the same time is designed to fit the purposes of society as a whole. It is such legislation as this which will replace our cut-and-dried system and work toward upbuilding our standards of society."

Liquor 'Survey'

Rumors that local police would conduct a liquor investigation in dormitories and fraternity houses tonight or early next week gained considerable impetus on the campus yesterday.

SENIORS ATTEND LAST SMOKER OF UNIVERSITY LIFE

Lewis and Graham Talk to Class Of 1931 on Work of Alumni Association.

The class of '31 turned out in large numbers last night for their farewell meeting before graduation when they assembled in Swain hall at 9:00 o'clock.

Presiding for the occasion was Pat Patterson who acted as toastmaster. Speakers were Kemp P. Lewis of Durham, president of the University alumni association, and President Frank Graham of the University. J. Maryon Saunders, alumni secretary introduced the speakers.

Lewis Speaks

In addressing the senior class, the president of the Alumni association reminded the outgoing class of the traditions they must keep and mentioned the value of the Alumni association, urging them to become members. He then called attention to the numerous graduates of the University who have attained prominence throughout the state and nation.

"Since 1776 there have been fifty governors of North Carolina. The first alumnus to be a governor was William Miller who was in office in 1814. Including Governor Miller twenty-four of North Carolina's governors have been alumni," said Mr. Lewis. Continuing he stated that one president of the United States, James K. Polk, and one vice president, William Rufus King, were graduates of the University. He included two presidents of the United States Senate, one speaker of the House of Representatives, twelve cabinet officers, five secretaries of the navy, and sixteen United States senators, in mentioning graduates of Carolina who have attained national fame in the past.

Nationally Known Men

In speaking of those who are at present in a worthy national position he said that of the ten congressmen, seven are alumni of this state University; two prominent ministers, John H. Morehead, minister to Sweden, and G. B. Stockton, minister to Austria. The five members of the North Carolina Supreme Court are alumni, and four received undergraduate degrees here. In the state superior court fifteen out of twenty-six are former Carolina men, according to Lewis. The alumni president also stated that thirteen out of twenty state solicitors are members of the alumni association.

(Continued on next page)

MAY FROLIC COMMITTEE ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

Recently the seven fraternities who have sponsored the May Frolic for the past two years, met to elect officers for next year's frolic.

John Park, Sigma Nu, succeeds Art Sickles, Sigma Chi, as president; Fred Laxton, Zeta Psi, follows Willis Henderson, Sigma Nu, as vice-president. For secretary-treasurer Beta Theta Pi will be represented by Henry Anderson who succeeds Buck Snow, a Zeta Psi.

The seven fraternities making up the May Frolic are: Beta Theta Pi, Delta Kappa Epsilon, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sigma Nu, Zeta Psi, Kappa Sigma, and Sigma Chi.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays. Entered as Second Class matter at the post office at Chapel Hill, N. C., under Act of March 3, 1879.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $4.00 for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

Jack Dungan ..... Editor
H. N. Patterson ..... Bus. Mgr.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Ed French ..... Mng. Ed.

Editorial Board

Charles G. Rose ..... Chairman
J. M. Little — Frank J. Manheim
W. M. Bryson — Will Yarborough
Alden Stahr — Bob Barnett
Wex Malone — K. C. Ramsay

Assignment Editors
Otto S. Steinreich
Dan Kelly, Assistant

Sunday Editor
Charles G. Rose

City Editors
Bill McKee — George Wilson
Peter Hairston — Jack Riley

Desk Men
W. R. Woerner — Don Shoemaker
Frank Hawley — T. W. Blackwell
Vass Shepherd

Sports Staff
Jack Bessen ..... Sports Editor

Assistants
T. H. Broughton — P. Alston

News Men
E. M. Spruill — F. W. Ashley
W. E. Davis — Claiborn Carr
Charles Poe

Reporters
Saul Gordon — Bob Reynolds
Woodward Glenn — M. V. Barnhill, Jr.
William Blount — W. F. Lee
U. B. Phillips — M. H. Long
Tom Walker — W. L. Gray
Ronald Kochendorfer — Walker Stamps
Phil Sasser

BUSINESS STAFF

Hal Worth ..... Circulation Mgr.
Harlan Jameson ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.
John Manning ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.

Advertising Department
Al L. Olmstead ..... Advertising Mgr.
Pendleton Gray ..... Advertising Mgr.
Bernard Solomon ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
R. D. McMillan, Jr. ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
James N. Nowell — H. A. Clark

Collection Department
Jack Hammer ..... Collection Mgr.
John Barrow — Frank S. Dale
Stokes Adderton — Jack Stokes

Correspondence Department
Ed Michaels, Jr. ..... Correspondence Mgr.
Wynn Hamm ..... Ass't. Cor. Mgr.

Saturday, May 23, 1931

Awards Night

Monday night is Awards Night in the University year. At this time all awards for achievement in campus activities are made. It seems unfortunate that an appeal to the students has to be made to get them to attend so important a convocation of the University.

Such meetings as these are the unifying forces which tend to keep the growing University a more unified body. The old institution of chapel for everybody, the "bull sessions" around the well, the going to the post office for mail, etc., are all things of the past.

We, however, have left the pep rallies before leading football games, the student daily newspaper, and such general mass meetings as that which comes Monday night. Besides the advantage of seeing who is honored with awards, and attending a well worked out program which President Albright has promised, we have in such meetings the opportunity to discuss our common problems, and to exchange ideas with each other.

These occasional mass meetings, our almost realized student union, and student publications have a great unifying effect. They are invaluable to the University and should be heartily supported by every Carolina man.—K.C.R.

The First Move

It seems that the Di and Phi are "gunning" for the German club. After the two societies had passed a bill to take away the power of the German club over social affairs of the University, representatives of the club were given a chance to defend themselves before a joint session of the two societies. Although represented by President Albright of the student union, President Ramsay of the Di, "Bim" Ferguson of the student council, and McBride Fleming-Jones of the Publications Union board, the German club again went down before the verbal attacks of the senators and representatives.

Great power has been extended to the German club in the past but it is time that more of the students were represented on the executive committee of the club if we are going to give them absolute power over the social life of the University.

For sometime liberalism has been at a low ebb on this campus. Student controlled activities have been becoming a thing of the past. Publications, athletics, and other student activities have also been rapidly coming under the control of the faculty and individual organizations.

With the taking away of the power of the German club as the first step in the formation of a more liberal University, other student activities will fall in line. The added impetus given by the decline of the power of the German club will foster in the minds of the student members of the Publications Union board, the athletic council, and other controlling bodies of student activities, a mental decision, the outgrowth of which will be a more liberal and a greater University of North Carolina.—T.H.B.

With Contemporaries

The Yale Situation

The decisive editorial stand taken by the Yale News in favor of revising Yale athletic control to conform with the plan introduced at Pennsylvania in February and more recently followed at Columbia is one that will probably be given serious consideration by the administration at New Haven.

The News sees considerable merit in the stand taken at both institutions in regard to unified academic and athletic direction and in the decision to place the director of physical education in a professional capacity while it wisely pays no attention to the endowment plan fostered by President Butler of Columbia.

In advocating the adpotion of a new system at Yale, the News rightly places considerable weight upon the developments along the line of intramural sports which might be expected.

The main difficulty at Yale seems to rest mainly with the diversified control vested in the hands of the 24 members of the Board of Control of Athletics. The unwieldy group has been the subject of attacks before and, in the opinion of the News, should be limited in size while the same balance of power is maintained. The attitude taken infers that too many of the memberships are conferred merely to satisfy individual desires for honor and that not enough attention is paid to the abilities of the personnel.

We derive considerable satisfaction from the attitude of Eastern Colleges towards athletic reorganization in that it bears out our statements made at the time the Gates' plan was first proposed. It is even more apparent now that nearly every institution with a major athletic schedule must inaugurate athletic reforms or else disregard entirely the charges of over-emphasis made against college sports.

Developments in the Yale situation should be forthcoming before the end of the present term if changes are to be inaugurated in time to take effect with the beginning of the fall season. Each college which places its athletic control on a basis which allows for the greatest amount of student participation will aid materially in placing intercollegiate sports upon a stronger and more permanent basis.—Pennsylvania.

Cooperation Will Save The Situation In the South

Agricultural prosperity can be effectively delayed by one state placing a prohibitive tax on the product of another. Retaliation is the next step. The system leads to demoralization and eventual disaster.

South Dakota has placed a 5-cent tax on vegetable shortening. A similar bill is proposed in Wisconsin. Iowa has passed a 3-cent tax bill. One proposed in North Dakota was defeated. Ohio and Illinois propose to prohibit vegetable shortening in state institutions. South Dakota reveals the character of discrimination by exempting corn oil.

These measures are directed against cotton seed oil. It is exclusively a southern product.

The value of the seed crop to the cotton farmer is 250 million. The chief outlet of seed is oil. Eighty per cent of cottonseed oil is sold in the form of shortening. One billion two hundred million pounds were consumed in 1930.

States sponsoring this legislation are interested in protecting their dairy and swine products. Their situation is critical.

The situation in the south is critical, too. Fifty per cent of the value of cotton seed goes into oil.

The plights of the western and southern farmer are identical. Over-production, absence of market, and production cost in excess of price. The problem will not be solved by the states legislating against each other.

If South Dakota, Wisconsin, Ohio, Illinois, Iowa, and other states would lay a prohibitive tariff on the products of other states all would be fine. Provided they were permitted to compete in a free market in other states with the products of those states.

The south is a large consumer of hog lard. Packing house products enjoy a fine market in the south. The same is true of northern dairy products.

The cotton belt is the largest market for northern grain and hay. But the south could not afford the price of northern products if it had no market for its own.

Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Georgia, and Alabama could lay a dollar tax on a bushel of corn and oats. The farmers would be forced to raise their own feed. Cotton production would be curtailed, and that in itself would not be bad. The south could supply its own dairy needs by the same process.

But man cannot live by bread alone, or meat, or butter. A state cannot live by itself alone to the exclusion of others. It is not practical. It is not wise.

The south is a cotton country. It needs the northern market for its by-product. The north has its grain, hogs, and cows. It needs the southern market for its surplus product.

The problem in the north is Russian wheat. No southern lard substitutes.

The problem in the south is Egyptian and Indian and Russian cotton. Not northern grain.

This is a poor time for states to start an economic war. War is not profitable. Co-operation will save the situation. Those who win a war often lost more than they win.—Stormy Petrel.

The New Commission

On the subject of Prohibition political parties have been formed, economic treatises have been written, and sociologic surveys have been compiled. For more than a decade it has been the outstanding dilemma of American life. When it first became apparent that the 18th amendment was not a successful solution to the liquor problem its sponsors asked, quite reasonably, that it be given time. But the years have made clear that time alone will be unable to produce a suitable solution. Recently prohibition has assumed the aspects of a truly dangerous problem both because of its obvious evils and because of the derision of thinking men.

There have been various attempts to arrive at some conclusion as to the relative merits of prohibition, but all for one reason or an other have failed to produce results which could be crystallized in material benefits. Mr. Woodcock, the present Prohibition Director, has recently forwarded a new plan of attack. He has asked various college professors to help him in his attempt to offer an effective answer to the question, with Professor Cabot of the Social Ethics department as chairman of the committee. In attacking prohibition from its sociologic aspects the committee hopes to find its effect upon the American civilization. This is a logical approach, for the amendment was passed primarily as a social benefit. From a layman's view it has not been successful as such, and it has brought in its wake a host of political and economic evils. It will lie within the province of the committee to ascertain the real benefits and the real evils which have accrued from prohibition, and to offer if possible correctives.

How much the committee will and can accomplish is a question. Other committees have sought the true solution and have failed, but each has contributed something, if only to reaffirm the complexity of the problem as it exists today. Some results can be expected from a group of sincere and thinking men, and some relief from the present situation can be hoped for. Their success lies largely with themselves. If they approach with a thesis to prove, they can accomplish nothing, but if they begin with an unbiased desire for correction, they should contribute something of value.—Harvard Crimson.

Mr. Chaplin And War

Charlie Chaplin caustically hopes that all the old men will be sent to the front first in the next war. We believe that such measures would be highly effective in not only stopping the war but decreasing future struggles. We might even go Mr. Chaplin one better and suggest sending only those persons who are above a certain rating in wealth. In other words, send the rich men first.

It would be a bully war. Of course the armies might not be so huge, nor the fighting so prolonged, but it would be a good war just the same, if it ever reached the stage of actual declaration of conflict. Imagine the Fords, Raskobs, and du Ponts going over the top and throwing hand grenades at the Cotys, Stinnes's, and Krupps. Or some of the steel barons and leather magnates using some of their own products, not to mention the wheat kings eating their own trench bread.

Yes, Charlie, your and our plans would solve more international difficulties than a century of disarmament conferences that don't do any disarming—Daily Trojan.

Sinclair Lewis Splits With Yale Officials

The impetuous and temperamental Sinclair Lewis, winner of the Nobel prize medal, has had another one of his frequent tiffs, this time with the officials of the Sterling Memorial library at Yale university.

The dispute centers around whether the noted author conferred the prize medal to the library collection or not. Letters contests that he stopped over in New Haven while motoring through the country with the express purpose of donating the medal to his alma mater, but changed his mind because of the seeming indifference of the librarians.

Charles E. Rush, associate librarian, says that Lewis made no statement to the effect that he wished to present the medal to the collection, but that he flew off in a temperamental rage when the librarian did not seem to understand a question as to whether the library had a collection of permanently loaned coins.

The dispute has caused considerable amusement among the literati; the erratic author causes a turmoil wherever he goes, having recently figured in the head-lines by his fisticuff maneuvers with Theodore Dreiser, author of An American Tragedy.

The whole difficulty seems to be that a drought functions so much more speedily and efficiently than Congress does.—San Diego Union.

New York is conducting a vigorous anti-noise campaign. It is already well equipped with speakeasies.—Arkansas Gazette.

FEEL the difference

HEAR the difference

TASTE THE DIFFERENCE!

Like an oasis in the dusty desert of dried tobacco, the new Camel Humidor Pack brings you the delight of fine quality cigarettes in factory-fresh, mild condition.

Now, wherever you go, you can always be sure of getting a fresh, throat-easy cigarette when you demand Camels.

It's easy to tell the difference. Your sense of touch detects it as you roll a cigarette between your fingers. Dry tobacco is stiff and crumbly. Camels are full bodied and pliant.

Even your ear can tell the difference. For a dried-out cigarette crackles when you roll it.

But the real test is taste and taste is causing a great nation-wide switch of men and women alike to Camels in the scientific new Humidor Pack. As you draw in that fragrant, mild, cool smoke, redolent with the joy of choicest Turkish and mellow Domestic tobacco, only then do you realize the full importance of this new Humidor Pack.

For scorched or dried tobacco is brash and tasteless and its smoke is unkindly hot to the tongue and throat.

If you are already a Camel smoker you have noticed the improvement in this your favorite cigarette.

If you don't smoke Camels, try them for just one day to see how much you're missing. After you've known the mildness and delight of a really fresh cigarette, switch back if you can.

It is the mark of a considerate hostess, by means of the Humidor Pack, to "Serve a fresh cigarette." Buy Camels by the carton—this cigarette will remain fresh in your home and office

CAMELS

©1931, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Intramural Decathlon Lead Taken By Horney; Parsons Leads Novice

Defending Champion Passed by Freshman Track Star; Stafford Breaks Decathlon High Jump Record.

Julius Horney, Tar Baby track star, jumped into the lead in the intramural decathlon yesterday afternoon to score 4,476 points and take a lead of 87.6 points over Theron Brown, winner of last year's carnival. Bunny Goodwin with 4355 points holds third place among the regulars with Bill Howard in fourth place with 4172.

Tom Parsons, with 3995 points scored Thursday afternoon remained in first place among the novices with a lead of thirty-seven points over George Barclay, who tallied 3,958 points yesterday afternoon.

The best performance of the carnival was made yesterday when Crook Stafford, varsity high jumper, cleared the bar at six feet one inch to break the decathlon record. The old record was 5 feet 11 1-2 inches; and his performance gave Stafford a total of 1,050 points for this event, enabling him to go into fifth place among the regulars with a total of 4,150 points. The next best height in this event was turned in by Billy Satterfield, a novice, who cleared the bar at five feet eight inches. Buck Snow and Bill Howard, novice and regular respectively, cleared the bar at five feet seven inches to follow the leaders.

In taking the lead away from Brown, Horney bettered Brown's marks in four events and piled up a heavy margin. Horney ran the 100 yard dash in 11.3 to take 850 points, and cleared five feet six inches in the high jump to garner 912 points there. A time of 57.4 gave him 856 in that event, but it was in the shot put and discus that Horney turned in his best performances. A heave of 41 feet nine inches, more than three feet over Brown's best mark, gave him 982 points, and a toss of 119 feet six inches in the discus gave him 876 points more. Horney's mark in the discus was exactly ten feet less than Brown's, but his marks have bettered Brown's in every other event run off so far.

Smith turned in the best time for the 100 yard dash with a mark of 10.3 seconds to lead the field easily. Bill Howard and Brodie Arnold followed him with times of eleven seconds flat. Among the novices Satterfield lead the way with 11.3 followed by George Barclay who ran the distance in 11.4.

Horney easily had the best distance of the day in the discus, but Stafford was next with 93 feet six inches, and Howard had 91 feet ten inches. Francis had the best mark in the novice division with 104 feet two inches, while Barclay came second with a throw of exactly ninety feet.

Oscar Mullis, freshman shot putter, placed second to Horney in this event with a toss of 40 feet eleven inches, and Bill Howard was third among the regulars with a mark of 35 feet eight inches. Barclay had by far the best mark in the novice class with a throw of thirty-three feet even, while Francis was next with thirty-one feet eight inches.

In the 440 Smith showed the way with a time of 53.0 seconds which earned him 944 points in this event, while Evans was next with 56.0 seconds and Donnell was third with 56.6. Barclay again topped the novices with 60.4, and Satterfield was

(Continued on last page)

By Jack Bessen

Now that the baseball season, and a very successful one at that, is past history, the writer has come to the conclusion that:

Wee Willie Powell makes the ball sing "Sweet and Hot" when he rifles around the bases.

Paul Dunlap can hit the rock for our money.

Petey Wyrick is the spark plug of the club.

All Smokey Ferebee needs to make the picture at short complete is to light a Murad.

Captain Piggy Potter can talk to the opposing batters.

House and Peacock are the money players on the team. They always come through in the pinch.

Bill Croom can carry the mail in any league.

Coach Jim Ashmore's face lighted up slightly when the last Duke batter struck out last Monday.

Manager Art Sickle's favorite expression is, "Get a lacrosse stick, Peacock."

The official scorers (all three of them) hold a conference after every batted ball.

Paul Edwards must have had his "one and only" watching the Virginia game at Greensboro.

In the first game played between Harvard and Princeton in five years, Harvard beat the Tigers . . . the twenty runs that Carolina scored over State was the largest score piled up against a Big Five team this year . . . "Gink" Kendrick got a tough break last week when Uncle Robbie sent him to Cincinnati in a trade . . . If Cleveland keeps on losing ball games the way they're doing now, the officials might just as well hold up the official opening of their new stadium, which is reported to be the largest in these free United States . . . With the Athletics playing the way they are, it wouldn't be such a bad idea if they moved the stadium over to Philly . . . The University of Indiana smashed five state collegiate records in the recent state track meet, yet they lost the title to Notre Dame . . . At the University of Michigan, they have a faculty under the auspices of the intramural department . . . the facutly of the University dropped two close golf matches to Wake Forest. That's the only decision the Deacons hold over the Tar Heels . . .

The Sigma Chi chapter at the University of Indiana won a close intramural baseball game from Kappa Alpha Psi, winning the game 43-19. The winners scored twenty-four runs in the third inning . . . Auburn, winner of the Dixie League flag, is claiming the Southern conference title. The Tar Heels could give the Tigers a little argument about that point . . . Columbia is our choice to take the Poughkeepsie Regatta in June. So far we are batting 1000, calling the turn on Twenty Grand last Saturday.

An injury cut short Lauri Myllykangas' brilliant athletic career at Dartmouth. The Green star was hit by a pitched ball and had his nose broken, thus putting him out for the season.

Alfonso XIII may still retain the X.—Virginian-Pilot.

TRI-STATE LEAGUE BASEBALL CHAMPIONS

Reading left to right. Top row: Manager Art Sickles, Obie Davis, J. D. Shields, Bill Croom, Red Merritt, Smokey Ferebee, and Coach Jim Ashmore.

Second row: John Peacock, Henry House, Paul Edwards, Cecil Longest, Captain Piggy Potter, George Hinton, and Jim Griffith.

First row: Hornaday, Pat Patisall, Dutch Leonard, Peter Wyrick, Tom Blythe, and Willie Powell.

SPORTS WRITER PICKS ALL-STATE BASEBALL TEAM

Duke and Carolina Place Four Men Each on First Team Selection.

By Jack Bessen

ALL-STATE TEAMS

First Team	Second Team
Rochelle (D) rf	Croom (C) rf
Peacock (C) cf	Harrington (D) cf
Bost (D) lf	Brake (S) lf
Dunlap (C) 1b	Joyner (WF) 1b
Goodson (Dav) 2b	Kersey (D) 2b
Robertshaw (D) ss	Ferebee (C) ss
Duke (S) 3b	Powell (C) 3b
Longest (C) p	Edwards (C) p
Coombs (D) p	McKeithan (D) p
Lanning (S) p	Meador (WF) p
Potter (C) c	Hicks (WF) c

Now that the 1931 baseball season is all over, it's fashionable to start picking all-state teams.

After seeing all the Big Five teams in action, the writer has picked four Tar Heels, four Blue Devils, two from State, and one from Davidson on his first team selection.

Rochelle, the flashy right fielder from Duke, is by far the best man suited for that position. Besides being a ball hawk, the Duke player is a dangerous batsman, who works the opposing hurlers for many walks, and knows how to run bases. Bill Croom runs Rochelle a good second, but Bill hasn't quite the finesse of Rochelle, nor is he as experienced.

After a long argument, it was decided to give Peacock preference over Harrington for the center field position. John, a rejuvenated catcher, has developed into one of the smartest outfielders in the state, being a sure fielder and a dangerous slugger.

Bost, because of his hitting prowess is given the left field job, although Brake of State can present many supporters for that position.

There is little doubt that Paul Dunlap is the man for first base. Dunlap is the leading hitter on the Tar Heel nine, Tri-State League champions, and is in addition a good fielder. Joyner and Colley put up a hard fight for the runner-up post, but it was awarded to the Wake Forest lad, mainly because of his hitting.

At the keystone post, Goodson of Davidson is the class of the state, hitting and fielding over par. In addition, Goodson is one of the brainiest ball players in this section of the country.

Duke and Powell staged a battle for the hot corner guardianship with the State entry finishing ahead. Powell can hit harder than Duke, but the Tar Heel doesn't approach the Technician's class as a fielder.

Potter, captain of the Carolina nine, is the unanimous choice for catcher. This year there has been a dearth in catchers, but of the lot, Potter is outstanding.

Longest, captain-elect of the Tar Heels, Coombs, Duke's sophomore sensation, and Lanning, also a soph, round out a well balanced mound corps.

One blessing conferred by the radio is that some speeches have been limited to 15 minutes.—Florence (Ala.) Herald.

INTRAMURAL RESULTS

Graham pulled an upset by defeating New Dorms yesterday, 8-7, for the championship of the dormitory league.

The winners scored all their runs in the first and third innings, piling up a lead which New Dorms was unable to overcome. In the fourth frame New Dorms pushed across three runs, pulling up to within one run of Graham, but the spree was stopped when the next three batters were put down. The losers started another rally in the last stanza with two down, when they filled the bags on two walks and the pitcher hit one batter. However, Hampton, next up, flied out to right field to end the game.

Hampton, New Dorms, was the hitting star of the game, getting three hits for four attempts. New Dorms got a total of five hits off LeGore and Strauss. Graham connected for six safeties, with LeGore getting two for four to lead the way.

Score:	R
Graham	107 00—8
New Dorms	040 30—7

Batteries: LeGore, Strauss, and Johnson; Manney, Scott, and Williamson.

A. T. O. 4, Phi Delt's 2

A. T. O. clinched the fraternity title by downing Phi Delta Theta in a fast game yesterday by a score of 4-2. The winners sewed up the game in the third inning, getting all their runs at that time.

Phi Delta Theta got off to a two run lead in the second, but they were unable to check the A. T. O. attack in the next frame.

Moore, of the Phi Delt's, allowed only three hits, but these, combined with the miscues of his teammates lost the game for him. McLaughlin, A. T. O., was touched for five safeties, striking out five hitters. Moore accounted for three batters by the same method.

Shore, Phi Delt third sacker, led both teams at bat with two hits for three tries. The winners' three hits went to three different batters.

A. T. O. and Graham will play for the campus title Monday afternoon at 4:00 on Emerson field.

Score:	R
Phi Delta Theta	020 00—2
A. T. O.	004 0x—4

Batteries: Moore and Griffin; McLaughlin and Brooker.

CHARLOTTE HIGH FAVORED TO WIN BASEBALL TITLE

Queen City Jinx Over Raleigh Expected to Hold True Today; Game Called at Three.

LINE-UP

Raleigh	Charlotte
Austin, rf	Morris, 2b
Page, c	Black, cf
Womble, 3b	Bell, ss
Rand, 2b	Gadd, 3b
Reaves, 1b	Daniels, 1b
Scales, lf	Beam, c
Bishop, ss	Shoupe, rf
Hanna, cf	Funderburke, lf

The stage was set for today's battle to decide the Class A high school championship as the teams from Charlotte and Raleigh arrived late last night. The game will be called this afternoon on Emerson field at 3 o'clock.

Skidmore-coached teams from Charlotte High have almost made a clean sweep of state titular contests at the University this year. They beat Raleigh in finals in football and basketball, and they took top honors in tennis and track. Only in boxing, in which Raleigh won, and in wrestling, in which Durham won, has the Queen City team failed to hang up the championship.

The fine record of Coach Skidmore's team was a subject of much discussion here last night, and everywhere the big question was "Can Charlotte do it again?"

Charlotte did it last year, Tom Gadd hurling steady ball, and his mates beating out a win when Pitcher Allen Bailey and the Raleigh infield had one bad inning. Both teams emerged undefeated at the top of their respective conference this year, and it looks like a tough dogfight of a game is in store, with Charlotte a slight favorite if there be a favorite.

Skidmore wouldn't announce a probable pitcher last night, but the Charlotte coach can call on at least three good men in Bub Mulligan, who seems the most likely choice, and Red Farrell, and Reeves King. Likewise Hal Vandergrift, Willis Thompson, and Bennett Straughn have all been pitching fine ball for Raleigh this year, but Vandergrift looks like the man who will oppose Mulligan.

SANDY DAMERON ELECTED CAPTAIN 1931 TRACK TEAM

Veteran Weight Man Topped Season With New State Record and First Place in Southern Meet.

Sandy Dameron, one of the most consistent five point getters on the varsity track squad this season, was elected captain of the 1931 track team at a banquet for varsity and freshmen tracksters held in Swain hall Thursday evening. The blonde captain has been a member of the track team for three years, specializing in the discus. Dameron topped off his season's performance with a new state record at 136 feet 6 inches and first place honors in the Southern meet, the only first place taken by Carolina.

Speeches were given by Coach Fetzer, Dr. J. P. Harlan, and Dr. A. S. Lawrence. Fetzer traced the track situation from 1923 to the present season. In 1923 the Tar Heels with nine entries registered five points, while in the Northern divisional tournament in 1924 the Carolina contingent captured second place, the University of Virginia winning first honors. At the southern conference in 1925 held at Sewanee, the Fetzer coached men took third place, and in 1926 the Tar Heels copped the Southern Conference meet with 22 points, Taking fourth in 1928, the Carolinians improved in 1929, amassing enough markers to rest in second place. The 1930 squad continued its predecessors' excellent showings in Southern Conference meets by taking first place.

This year the Tar Heels were only able to take fourth place, but only some six points separated them from first place. It must be remembered that Charlie Farmer, Carolina sprinting ace and a sure ten point winner was absent from the meet due to an injury.

Besides Dameron's discus record, Ruble and Baucom set new marks in the state meet in the pole vault and two mile run respectively, while other very creditable work was turned in by Slusser, Bagby, Arnold, J. K. Smith, Brown, Davis, Marland, and Jones.

Fetzer lauded his track squad for its conduct and hard work exhibited throughout the season, stating in conclusion, "The track team is the real criterion for what the student body of a school is composed of. It is a sport that offers possibilities with the sky the limit. With a little harder work, the Tar Heel track squad can build up a wonderful record for the University of North Carolina."

CAROLINA
TODAY
EL BRENDEL and FIFI DORSAY
Mr. Lemon of Orange
FOX PICTURE
also
Comedy — Novelty

THE SMOKE SHOP
EAT WITH US DRINK WITH US

FANCY ICES SHERBETS
DURHAM ICE CREAM CO., Inc.
"Blue Ribbon"
Ice Cream
DURHAM, N. C.
"Won Its Favor By Its Flavor"
BLOCKS PUNCH

Rioting Is Adopted In Colleges As Newest Of Outdoor Sports

University of Chicago and Massachusetts Institute of Technology Are Scenes of Violence as Students Destroy Property and Insult Policemen and Firemen.

By Otto Steinreich

The fertile minds of the country's collegians have evolved a new and thrilling game—rioting. Recently about 500 supposedly sane and normal men at the University of Chicago staged a riot which resulted in the destruction of tennis bleachers and the marring of a quantity of apparel. According to authorities there was no cause for the outbreak.

Following almost immediately upon the heels of the disturbance at the institution of higher learning in the Windy City, the engineers at Massachusetts Institute of Technology went on a spree and became "rambling wreckers." It is usually assumed that engineering students are more staid and responsible than flighty liberal arts students, but it is a rare, if not unheard of, occasion when the pursuants of culture bombard officers of the law and firefighters with bags of water, laboratory bombs, etc.

Engineers Superior

A comparison of the methods employed in the two demonstrations clearly shows the preponderance of diabolic efficiency of the techmen over their less scientific-minded contemporaries. While the Chicagoans contented themselves with merely pelting bystanders and minions of the law with eggs and whitewash, the more virile disciples of Archimedes, in spare moments snatched from their laboratory work, manufactured evil smelling bombs with which they laid down a barrage to keep away the doughty forces of the law.

When firemen arrived on the scene to extinguish the blazing bonfire which lent warmth to the festivities, a regiment of engineers was organized which went over the top, snatched the hose from the firemen, and promptly turned it upon those who attempted to dampen their spirits. The hose was later chopped into sections and taken into the dormitories. Firemen who attempted to recover their lost property were locked into storerooms and were forced to batter their way out. Several fire helmets were appropriated by the victors in the tug of war, and thus engineers metamorphosed to firemen.

No Persecution Intended

School and civil authorities agreed that the affair was merely a 'boyish prank' and no action would be taken against those students who were involved in the disturbance. The firemen expect that their headgear and other accessories which were lost in the melee will be returned in the near future. There still are some optimists left in the world after all.

And so at any time in the immediate future we may expect the college men of the world's universities to take up the standard and venture forth with the battle cry, "Let's riot."

Scientists Explore Blue Ridge Terrain

A party of scientists explored old sea beaches and examined the Blue Ridge mountain escarpment two weeks ago. The examination required two weeks, and the sections explored were in the extreme ends of North Carolina. Several of these gentlemen visited Dr. Collier Cobb, head of the geology department, who accompanied them on the trip.

The group was composed of the following men: Professor Douglas Wilson Johnson, geologist, geographer, fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, Chevalier of the the Legion of Honor, and the man who rearranged the map of Europe for the League of Nations; Frank Leverett, lecturer on glacial geology at the University of Michigan, and student of water resources, shore lines, and early man; Dr. C. Wythe Cooke, of the U. S. Geological survey, and authority on the stratigraphy and paleontology of the United States, Mexico, and the West Indies; R. H. Merrill, of Grand Rapids, Michigan, who spent several years as an engineer engaged in the rehabilation of the Grand Canal of China; Professor Frank J. Wright of Dennison university, Granville, Ohio, an authority on the physiography of the James River basin and the southern Appalachian Mountains.

The regions explored were mapped fairly accurately by Dr. Cobb in the third edition of his school map of North Carolina, in January, 1881. The standard account of the Blue Ridge escarpment was published by Dr. Cobb in 1874, and an account of the old shore lines was published by him in Goldthwaite's Geographical Magazine in January, 1893.

"Monks all over the world are noted for being fond of fish," says a writer. Out of the frying-pan into the friar.—The Humorist (London).

Radio Contest Again Open for Amateurs

For the fifth time, singers between the ages of eighteen and twenty-five have open to them the opportunity of winning awards, the highest of which is $5,000 in gold and a two year scholarship, either at home or abroad. Mr. Atwater Kent, whose announcement of awards totaling $25,000 for candidates winning the national contest for radio honors five years ago created what became a stampede among student musicians of the country, is not affected in his plan by the so-called financial depression.

Professor Harold S. Dyer asks that all young men and women interested in competing in the local contest which will take place here next week to fill out a contestants' application. All singers are eligible to enter the contest whether students in music or not, with the exception of those professionally engaged in radio broadcasting at this time.

Mr. Dyer judged in Raleigh on Tuesday at the contest broadcasted over station WPTF, in which twenty-seven young singers competed. The contest here will be sung from the stage of the Music hall, but in order to carry out the policy adopted by Mr. Kent, judges will be unable to see the singers. Full information may be obtained by application to Professor Dyer's office in the music building.

Infirmary List

Those confined to the infirmary yesterday were Ruth Ellen Williams, Noah Goodridge, Walton W. Angel, and Herbert Feldman.

"Morning-coats," says a tailoring expert, "are to be worn longer." We had already decided to wear ours as long as possible.—Punch.

Alfonso might come to America. Any old Bourbon gets a royal welcome here.—Milwaukee Leader.

SENIORS ATTEND LAST SMOKER OF UNIVERSITY LIFE

(Continued from first page)

The speaker told the class that the University has contributed the president of the North Carolina bar association, C. G. Rose; president of the state bankers association, R. M. Hanes; and president of the state merchant's association, Arnold Schiffman.

College Presidents Listed

"Of the present college presidents," continued Lewis, "our University has contributed the present president of the University, Graham; President Foust, of N. C. C. W.; President Alderman, late president of the University of Virginia; President Howard E. Rondthaler, of Salem college; President R. H. Wright of Eastern Carolina Teachers college; W. A. Jenkins president of Davenport; Dr. R. P. Pell president of Converse college, and a number of others.

Concluding the alumni president's speech the class voted unanimously to join the University Alumni association under the membership fee of one dollar for the first year which will be increased to three dollars the second year of their membership.

Graham Speaks

Following this talk on the University Alumni association President Frank P. Graham was called upon to speak. Mr. Graham spoke of the fact that the seniors had had during the present week the several professions and vocations presented by representatives from commercial and political life. He, in a summarized way, emphasized the need of a continuation of their liberal education in all fields.

He expressed the hope that their University courses, that the recent Human Relations Institute and that such a synthesis as suggested by Dr. H. E. Kirk in his recent lectures would stimulate their continued interest along the entire intellectual front of the natural sciences, the social sciences, literature, religion, and philosophy. Mr. Graham cited the careers of leaders in the life of the state who were more useful citizens and happier human beings because of their generous intellectual zest for a manifold but integrated life.

ALMANAC LISTS RICHEST COLLEGES OF COUNTRY

The 1931 edition of the World Almanac gives a list of the richest colleges and universities in the United States. Harvard is the richest with an endowment of 108 million dollars, Yale is second with eighty-seven million, and Columbia is third with seventy-seven million. Chicago follows with fifty-nine million. M. I. T. is next with thirty-one million, followed by Texas with twenty-seven million, Johns Hopkins with twenty-six million, and Princeton with twenty-five million.

Steele Leaves

Wilbur Daniel Steele, noted story writer and a resident of Chapel Hill for a year, left with his family recently for Nantucket where Steele's sons, Thurston and Peter, will spend the summer at the home of a relative. Mr. Steele will spend the summer in Chapel Hill and in and around New York city.

Scholarship Renewals

Students desiring to renew scholarships which they now hold must secure renewal blanks from the president's office at once.

A man can't get too much credit for his achievements, but he can for his income.—Louisville Times.

PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS

Gaily Decorated "Lizzies" Give Way To More Dignified Vehicles

University Growing More Sophisticated and Has Acquired Liking For Speedier and Better Looking Cars, Writer Avers.

"Where has the collegiate Ford of a few years ago gone?" is the query that is constantly being put by the observant onlooker of college life. No more do the streets of Chapel Hill shine with "lizzies" painted in all colors of the rainbow and in all designs that the imagination can conjure.

Since these things are so (we find the memorable words of Cicero still good enough for ordinary purposes), it has become the task of the Daily Tar Heel to discover as best it can the causes for this mysterious disappearance.

New Car Different

Our first venture to decipher this problem is the remark that "Henry" made a lady out of "Lizzie." The new car, for it is a creation entirely different in every respect from the old model, does not lend itself so easily to the mutilating hands of the amateur. There is a distinct grace about it which tells the world that it is made of better stuff, and is not to be changed to fit the will of every passing whippersnapper.

He who would see the old styles must now betake himself to the back entrances of the "west Durham" group of dormitories, where these decrepit creatures of a past age huddle together in a last rally against the onslaughts of the finer lines and greater horsepowers.

Only one of them bravely carries on and still shows its face in the neighborhood of the Old West dormitory; but even it is not a Ford but a Chevrolet converted, so to speak, into the appearance of one. It is the last stronghold of antiquity on the Western border, for beyond it come the fraternity houses and there is hardly a "brother" who would deign be seen in anything less than a model "A" at the least.

More Sophisticated

It is here, up and down the lengths of Columbia and Cameron, that the birds of fine feather parade. There is no description that could do them all justice, and to omit any would be preposterous. Of course, it is admitted by all that the fraternity near the Baptist church easily carries off the palm, both for originality and design, but for the succeeding places, the contests are hot and close.

In originality of transportation, the motorcycles of the Delta Psi's probably take the cake; but a certain lengthy and sporty phaeton belonging to a member of S.A.E. certainly runs its stock above the average.

The fact remains, however difficult it may be to face, that the University is growing more sophisticated, and along with its latest trait it has acquired a liking for cars, bigger, better, more beautiful, and speedier.

DI AND PHI PAN AUTOCRATIC RULE OF GERMAN CLUB

(Continued from first page)

of the Rector bill to abolish the power of the German club and vest that power in some other group: Senators Rector and Little of the Di senate, and Representatives Speight, Brown, Spradlin, Uzzell, and Douglas of the Phi assembly. Those defending the German club's position were as follows: Representatives Albright and Ferguson of the Phi assembly, and Senators Rose, Ramsay, and Fleming-Jones of the Di senate.

When a woman says she is temperamental, it may be more temper than mental.—American Lumberman.

Intramural Decathlon Lead Taken By Horney Parsons Leads Novice

(Continued from preceding page)

second in 61.4.

Leading scorers for the first five events covering two days of competition follow:

Regular:

Horney 4476, Brown 4388.4, Goodwin 4355, Howard 4172, Stafford 4150.

Novice:

Parsons 3995, Barclay 3958, Satterfield 3956, Francis 3854, and McIver 3686.

Gigantic Petrified Elephant Discovered. — Headline. They must have found him in Chicago after the Democratic landslide.—B'nai B'rith Messenger.

Morley Gives Tips On Interviewing To Princeton Reporter

In an interview with a Princetonian reporter that evolved into a more or less impromptu lesson in reporting, Christopher admonished embryo interviewers not to interview a man "as you would hug an animal."

"Let me give you a big tip on interviewing people," Morley suggested. "Don't bother to write things down and make the man nervous by jotting words down under his nose, and don't prepare any set questions before hand. Rather, watch him, look him in the eye and scrutinize him. Then judge his mood and draw him out."

Morley's "What Every Young Reporter Should Know," as his assertions might be classed, emphasizes the necessity in treating the man to be interviewed as a human being. "Size him up and find out what kind of a 'guy' he is," Morley urged. "Decide whether he is trying to get out of it and avoid the issue or whether he is really saying something. The best possible way to observe him is while he is talking to someone else."

Thomas Will Act As Conference Chairman

Norman Thomas, recent speaker at the Institute of Human Relations, will act as chairman for the conference of college students, graduates, and faculty members in the interest of "Banking, Credit, and Social Planning," to take place under the direction of the League of Industrial Democracy, from Thursday, June 25, through Sunday, June 28, at Camp Tamiment, Forest Park, Pennsylvania.

There amid the beauties of nature the fundamentals of the money problem will be discussed by experts on the subject. Among these are: Benjamin H. Beckhart of Columbia, E. E. Agger of Rutgers, Willard L. Torp and Colston Warne of Amherst, Lionel D. Edie, Harold G. Moulton of Brooking Institute, and Nicholas Kelley, former assistant secretary of the United States treasury.

The newspapers recently have been airing the troubles of European royalty from A to Z—Alfonso to Zog.—Arkansas Gazette.

Daily Tar Heel Advertisers

For The Week Ending May 23, 1931

Beta Theta Pi Fraternity House
Dr. R. R. Clark
Kellogg Cereal Co.
Carolina Theatre
Smoke Shop
Carolina Inn
A. & P. Tea Company
Coldex
Tar Heel Barber Shop
Duke University Union
Carolina Playmakers
Larus Tobacco Company
Berman's Department Store
Students' Supply Store
Edwards Tailoring Co.
Seeman Printing Company
R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.
Lacock's Shoe Shop
International Merchants Marine Co.
Durham Dairy Products
Chapel Hill Movie Guild
Dr. H. P. Ross
W. B. Sorrell
Durham Ice Cream Company

FACULTY, STUDENTS, AND ALUMNI!

The Daily Tar Heel

Heartily Endorses the Above Firms and Asks You To Patronize Them.

AWARDS NIGHT
MEMORIAL HALL
MONDAY — 8:00

The Daily Tar Heel

TAR HEEL MEETING
REPORTORIAL STAFF
104 ALUMNI — 7:00

VOLUME XXXIX — CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SUNDAY, MAY 24, 1931 — NUMBER 179

M'CORMICK WILL TALK ON SCIENCE AS PART OF LAW

Final Address of Pre-Law Series Is Scheduled for Tuesday Night.

The final lecture of the pre-law series given by the faculty members of the law school will be delivered by Dean C. T. McCormick, Tuesday night, May 26, at 7:30 p. m. in the first year room of Manning hall.

The topic of the lecture will be "Science in the Court Room," a subject which should carry an especial appeal to scientifically-minded students as well as all the students who intend to enter the law school. The lecture will deal with the latest methods employed in crime detection, such as psychological deception tests, scientific detection of forgeries, identification of weapons and bullets, and the use of microscopes and microphotographs.

Other Lectures

Other addresses of this series have been "Crime and Punishment," by Professor Albert Coates, and "The Chief Justiceship of William Howard Taft," by Professor M. T. Van Hecke. These lectures have proved beneficial to law and pre-law students.

This series will probably be continued in future years to interest pre-law students in matters pertaining to their future training, and to demonstrate to the students that their academic work forms a good foundation for the work that they will undertake when they enter the law school.

ORAL TESTS SET FOR THIS WEEK

Oral examinations for doctor's degrees will be given by the various graduate departments during this week.

The first of these examinations will be given to Arthur Franklin Raper for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in the department of sociology, Monday night at 7:00, in room 104 Alumni building. All members of the graduate faculty in the division of philosophy and political and social sciences are invited to attend.

On Wednesday an examination of the same type will be given to Philip Macon Cheek for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in the department of classical languages at 7:30 in Murphey 102. The faculty members of this department are invited to be present.

The date of the Monday examination was changed from Thursday, May 28, as it was first scheduled. Two other examinations are set for this week.

Spanish Club Hears Six Short Readings

Combining a number of short talks and refreshments, the Spanish club met for the last time of the year Friday evening in the Episcopal parish house.

At this meeting Mr. Bennett, of Barcelona, Spain, gave "Algunas dificultades en Espana." Other events on the program were H. J. Umana's presentation of "Unas Palabras," A. K. Shields's "Buen Espanol," E. Jaffe's "Un discurso," C. H. Cantrell's "Asuntos," and Vernon Brown's "Un papel."

Following this program, refreshments were served to the members of the club.

Class Secretary

Ed Hamer of McColl, South Carolina, who was chosen permanent class secretary at Friday night's senior smoker.

TALK WEDNESDAY TO FINISH SERIES

Henry Johnston Will Make Final Broadcast Over Raleigh Radio Station.

Henry Johnston, Jr., assistant dean of students will give the last radio talk sponsored each week by the student council when he speaks over WPTF, Raleigh, next Wednesday on "Freshmen Week at the University."

Including the one by Johnston, the total number of radio talks made this spring is seven. The first of these was made by Bill Speight, president of the debate council, who spoke on "High School Week at the University." The next week Ed Hazelwood, chief cheerleader, spoke on "The History of Cheerleading at the University." Following this, K. C. Ramsay, retired president of the Publications Union board, in the ensuing week delivered an address on "The History of Politics at the University.'"

Explained Institute

The Human Relations Institute being near at hand, the next talk consisted of an explanation and purpose of that quadrennial occurrence. This was given by Beverly Moore, student chairman of the institute. A few days preceding the annual congress of the North Carolina Federation of Students, at Duke university, John A. Lang, at that time president of the federation, made the fifth address when he spoke on "The Work of the State Student Federation." Last week W. Clyde Dunn, editor of the Yackety Yack and chairman of the senior week committee, described the present senior week program with a brief history of its observation.

Beginning with the fall quarter these speeches will again be resumed.

Diploma Notice

It is a fixed University regulation that persons who expect to receive degrees at a University commencement must be present in person to receive their diplomas. It is only in rare and exceptional cases that permission for absence from commencement is granted. Occasionally, in exceptional cases, excuse or permission for absence must be granted by the President and formal notice given to the Registrar.

This notice is given for the information of students who may be under the impression that there is no fixed regulation regarding degrees in absentia.

R. B. HOUSE,
Executive Secretary.

Carolina Cotton Paper

One half dozen sheets of Carolina Cotton paper will be given free to all members of the senior class calling at Strowd Motor company this week for such.

Fate Of New Graham Memorial Will Rests On Vote Of Students

Election to Take Place Sometime This Week to Decide Whether Student Body Is Willing to Pay Three Dollars a Year As Maintenance Fee.

As the last of the scaffolding was torn down from the front of the Graham Memorial building last Friday, the completion of a project which has been in progress for nearly twelve years nears its goal. There is one last step before the building may be used, and this will be made during this week when the student body will go to the polls to decide whether they are willing to pay a dollar a quarter for the use of this student union.

The movement for a student activities building was started in 1919 when it was suggested that a fitting memorial to the late President Edward Kidder Graham, who had died in the fall of 1918 during the flu epidemic, be erected for his splendid service to the University and state.

History of Building

During the year 1919 $123,000 was subscribed from alumni, students, faculty, and friends, but the campaign was suspended during the following year on account of the business depression. Renewed efforts were made in 1923 and the goal was increased from $123,000 to $400,000. An employed secretary was appointed to take charge of the drive, and under the direction of W. Jay Ward, a group of students canvassed the state during the summer of 1923 in an effort to reach this quota. Enough money was pledged to warrant starting work on the structure late that year. At that time an article appearing in The Tar Heel stated that the "campus is now definitely assured of the proposed Graham Memorial building," but as was soon found the students have had to wait several more years before this statement could come true.

As some of the pledges were never collected, work was suspended until this past fall when a gift of $80,000 by an anonymous New York alumnus assured the completion of the center portion of the memorial. It is hoped that some time in the future money may be raised to complete a wing on each end of the present structure.

The Social Center

Graham Memorial was planned from the start to be a student center and general get together place for all students. Unless a student is a member of a fraternity there is almost no place in which he may entertain visitors. The graduate students, a relatively small group, have exclusive use of their quarters for this purpose. The present Y.M.C.A. building is altogether inadequate for social usuage, lack of rest rooms being very noticeable, and yet this building is the only place at present for students to spend their leisure time. The new memorial equipped with lounge and reception rooms will act as a sort of lobby for the campus.

The work of the committee of students, faculty, and alumni, who will decide what use will be made of the various rooms, has postponed its decision until the vote of the student body on a maintenance fee is taken. If the campus is not in favor of taxing itself to the extent of $3 a year for the building, it will have to be closed again, and used for a storehouse as has been the case for the past five years. Although money has been secured to build the memorial there has been no fund allotted to maintaining and furnishing it.

Well-Equipped Club

The building is planned to provide a home for the various campus clubs, councils, and publications, on the second floor. According to present plans the basement will be used mainly as a recreational center, with a bowling alley and other features. With the main floor containing reading and rest rooms, the memorial will be nothing more or less than a well-equipped student hotel or club for the use of all. If the Carolina student wants to have the use of this building during the coming year, he can do his part by voting to tax himself a $3 a year union dues.

Class Of 1881 Will Convene Here To Celebrate Golden Anniversary

Thirty-Three Living Members of Class, Including Many of State's Prominent Men, Will Recall Old Times at This Year's Commencement.

By Glenn Holder

One of the most colorful classes ever graduated from the University of North Carolina, the class of 1881, will celebrate its Golden Anniversary at Chapel Hill during this year's Commencement exercises. It will hold its reunion on Alumni Day, June 8, along with eleven other classes.

Practically all of the thirty-three living members of the class of 1881 have achieved distinction far above the average since they left the University campus fifty years ago. Charles Duncan McIver, president and founder of North Carolina College for Women at Greensboro, and one of the greatest champions of the cause of education in the history of the state, was one of the most popular members of the class.

Eminent Members

Three eminent members of the class, Judge Charles Randolph Thomas, member of the House of Representatives for eleven years and until recently a special judge, Colonel Leroy Springs, one of the foremost capitalists of the Carolinas, and John Henry Dillard, Jr., state legislator and prominent in the state's political life for many years, have died within the past three months.

The class was graduated at the close of one of the University's most eventful years. Just five years previously, the institution had been reopened after a seven-year suspension following the Civil War. North Carolina had only partially recovered from the effects of the conflict, and the evils of Reconstruction were at their height. President Kemp Plummer Battle reported to the General Assembly that the University's annual income of

(Continued on last page)

Class President

Joe Eagles of Wilson, who was unanimously elected permanent president of the senior class at their smoker Friday night.

COBB TO ATTEND PARIS CONVENTION

University Geologist Will Sail For France in August for Scientific Conference.

Professor Collier Cobb, head of the University geological department, will sail for Havre, France, in August to attend the International Geological conference in Paris, August 14-21.

This trip will be afforded him by the discontinuance of the annual University transcontinental motor tour of the geological department during the summer. Due to the inadequacy of funds, the department has seen fit to cut down expenses along this line.

Professor Cobb's speech at the conference will be on the subject of "Dune Sands and Eolian Soils in Relation to Present and Past Climatic Conditions on the Continent of North America."

Despite the ancient epigram that a rolling stone gathers no moss, this noted geologist is gathering fame, "Beating about this old world of ours," as he terms it. His most recent success has been the acceptance of his work in connection with the Loess deposits in China by the standard textbooks. Tar and Von Engen's New Physical Geography, contains many of his maps and writings.

Di Will Hear Yearly Reports On Tuesday

Members of the Di Senate will convene in their final meeting of the year Tuesday night to elect officers for fall quarter, 1931. All new members will also be initiated at this time.

According to the usual custom, yearly reports of the several committees are to be made at this Tuesday meeting. The finance constitution and ways and means committees, together with the clerk and sergeant-at-arms, are expected to make a yearly summary of the work of each of these groups.

The three senators who have served as president during the past year have been, W. C. Medford, fall quarter; J. M. Little, winter quarter; and K. C. Ramsay, spring quarter.

Yackety Yack Notice

Only those students who have paid their fees for three quarters will receive their Yackety Yacks when they are distributed in June. If you have not been in school during the entire year or if you have not paid your fees, please call at the Yackety Yack office Monday, Tuesday, or Wednesday between 2:00 and 4:00 o'clock, to settle for your publication fees.

Those students who wish to have their annuals sent to addresses other than the one given on their registration slips, are also requested to call at the office on the above dates.

CAMPUS AWARDS TO BE PESENTED TOMORROW NIGHT

Prizes and Trophies for Merit in Various Activities Will Be Given in Memorial Hall.

Tomorrow night at 8:00 o'clock in Memorial hall the annual awards for students will be presented. At this time Mayne Albright, president of the student union will preside at the occasion, and Ed Hazelwood, chief cheerleader, will have charge of the cheering.

Graham to Speak

The University band will open the program with "Hark the Sound," after which President Frank Graham will make an address. Immediately following his speech the scholarship awards will be presented by Joe C. Eagles, president of Phi Beta Kappa. The literary trophies will be awarded by K. C. Ramsay, this year's president of the Publications Union board. Theron Brown, president of the athletic association will then introduce Coach Bob Fetzer who will give the athletic prizes to the winners.

To break the monotony at this interval a number of specialty acts will be rendered, and after this change in the program the activities awards will be given. Included under this heading is debating, Carolina Playmakers, the University band, and the Glee club.

Grail Trophies

Trophies offered each year by the Order of the Grail will be presented tomorrow night by Haywood Weeks, president of the order. These trophies include the intramural cup, freshmen prize, football award, basketball trophy, baseball and track trophies. Of these the two highest are the intramural cup and the freshman trophy. Winners of the latter prize in the past are: Archie Davis, "Sonny" Graham, Burgess Whitehead, and Bob Zealy.

Scoring above all other awards offered by the University is the Patterson Memorial trophy presented each year on the merits of athletic ability along with other activities. Last year it was won by Ray Farris.

MYSTERY GIVEN BY PLAYMAKERS

Attended by an audience of between seven and eight hundred persons, the Playmakers' presentation of A. A. Milne's The Perfect Alibi took place in new Memorial hall last night. This was the Playmakers' last public performance of the year and the only mystery play presented by the group.

The Perfect Alibi, originally a New York production, was directed by Samuel Selden, while under his direction, Mary Dirnberger designed and executed the settings. A musical program was offered during the production by the faculty chamber orchestra under the leadership of Lamar Stringfield.

Included in the cast were Susan Creech as Mrs. Fulverton-Fane, John Sehon as Jimmy Ludgrove, Betsy Perrow as Susan Cunningham, Whitner Bissell as Edward Laverick, Arthur Marpet as Edward P. Carter, Robert Novins as Major Fothergill, Marion Tatum as Jane West, William Chandler as Arthur Ludgrove, William Allsbrook as Adams, Charles Elledge as P. C. Mallet, and Tom Loy as Sergeant Mallet.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays. Entered as Second Class matter at the post office at Chapel Hill, N. C., under Act of March 3, 1879.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $4.00 for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

Jack Dungan ..... Editor
H. N. Patterson ..... Bus. Mgr.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Ed French ..... Mng. Ed.

Editorial Board

Charles G. Rose ..... Chairman
J. M. Little — Frank J. Manheim
W. M. Bryson — Will Yarborough
Alden Stahr — Bob Barnett
Wex Malone — K. C. Ramsay

Assignment Editors
Otto S. Steinreich
Dan Kelly, Assistant

Sunday Editor
Charles G. Rose

City Editors

Bill McKee — George Wilson
Peter Hairston — Jack Riley

Desk Men

W. R. Woerner — Don Shoemaker
Frank Hawley — T. W. Blackwell
Vass Shepherd

Sports Staff

Jack Bessen ..... Sports Editor

Assistants

T. H. Broughton — P. Alston

News Men

E. M. Spruill — F. W. Ashley
W. E. Davis — Claiborn Carr
Charles Poe

Reporters

Saul Gordon — Bob Reynolds
Woodward Glenn — M. V. Barnhill, Jr.
William Blount — W. F. Lee
U. B. Phillips — M. H. Long
Tom Walker — W. L. Gray
Ronald Kochendorfer — Walker Stamps
Phil Sasser

BUSINESS STAFF

Hal Worth ..... Circulation Mgr.
Harlan Jameson ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.
John Manning ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.

Advertising Department

Al L. Olmstead ..... Advertising Mgr.
Pendleton Gray ..... Advertising Mgr.
Bernard Solomon ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
R. D. McMillan, Jr. ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
James N. Nowell — H. A. Clark

Collection Department

Jack Hammer ..... Collection Mgr.
John Barrow — Frank S. Dale
Stokes Adderton — Jack Stokes

Correspondence Department

Ed Michaels, Jr. ..... Correspondence Mgr.
Wynn Hamm ..... Ass't. Cor. Mgr.

Sunday, May 24, 1931

A Dollar or No Building

Sometime this week the members of the student body will be given a chance to decide whether they wish to have a union building or not. If they fail to favor the small quarterly assessment of one dollar, it will mean that an approximately $2,500,000 building (when entirely completed) will remain vacant until students see their need for such a meeting place.

The fate of Graham Memorial now is in the hands of the students. Never before have they had such a reasonable offer; never before have they had a chance to possess such a modernly equipped get-together-hall for such a small fee.

For the past decade or more the campus has been using the present Y. M. C. A. building, but now with the steady increase in the number of students, it has become necessary that a larger building be used. The new hall is an ideal place for student activities meetings, as well as for general campus "bull sessions." It will serve as the campus "hang-out" where students can congregate and exchange their ideas, and meet their fellows. It will mean a long step in the direction of a more cooperative student-body, which has been in great demand on this campus for sometime.

A "yes" vote of a majority of the students is now all that is necessary.—C.G.R.

The Arm Of The Law

Last week one of the local minions of the law extended an invitation to court to an erring student who had violated the local law. He had committed the heinous crime of parking his car with one wheel exactly four inches over the white line of demarkation, thereby causing said officer to bestir himself in the pursuance of his duties to the extent of hanging one ticket on said vehicle.

We, of the student body, do most heartily appreciate the meticulous care taken by the local department for law enforcement in causing the local statutes to be carried out to the letter. The self-abnegation and sacrifice to duty of this officer have been notable on several other similar occasions.

August Vollmer, after his success in cleaning up crime in Los Angeles, was requested to head the newly-created department of police administration at the University of Chicago. In this school, policemen are trained in the scientific enforcement and prevention of crime, and, in short, are taught to use their common sense in the pursuance of their duties. More young criminals are started on their respective ways by blundering officers than the trusting public would care to believe.

Fortunately the local police force does not need any such training as described above, for it has frequently demonstrated its efficiency by causing the law to be observed to the minutes detail. We, the members of the student body, are both grateful and happy that the local law-enforcing agency is so completely free of any taint of provincialism. Hooraw for the cops!—A.J.S.

A Man's Noblest Friend

Philander is dead; he died last night while dreamily dozing in his quiet home. His death was like his life, silent, unassuming, and without pain or annoyance to anyone. To most readers, Philander's passing means nothing, but a small group who had lived with Philander during their college years, and who knew him,, know that in his death, Philander has taken with him the shining example of the Golden life that was his; that he has taken with him a light of virtue and kindness that his friends always followed.

That Philander was an aged gold-fish makes the tragedy so much more heart-rending. In spite of the gloss and sheen in which he was emeshed, Philander came as close as possible to knowing the true values of life. He was graceful and dainty, even in the ungraceful business of procuring breakfast and supper. His abstemiousness was a wonderful thing to see, especially on the campus. Nothing but water would satisfy him, and he had little sympathy with gourmands or gourmets, eating little, and that little being simple, plain food. His life was a moral lesson in itself—he never spoke unnecessarily; always quietly going about his work without intruding in the affairs of others; always sparklingly clad; always patient and never making demands upon his neighbors; never censoring or upbraiding us when we made errors in his diet; he was always ready to drop a tear for the grief of a friend, and many the time was it that people noticed that his eyes were rather watery. In fact, it was quite a trait with Philander, for he was decidedly not of a merry temperament but bore the mien of one who realizes the sadness and tragedy that is so prevalent in this world of ours.

Philander was a fine companion, and when his master would sit down beside a roaring fire, and a good pipe with tobacco glowing brightly, and a book in one hand, and Philander near him, the late Philander would have water in his eyes as though his happiness were too much for a gentle soul such as he was.

There are many who would scorn to stop and pay a tribute to a creature not quite human in external form, but there are a few who cannot see Philander, a fine gold-fish, pass away without making some gesture towards him.—F.J.M.

The Sunday Hangover

By
By Seamus McQueen

"Parting is such sweet sorrow," as another great writer has said before me, and farewell columns are especially sad; therefore I am delegated to write this, the last of the Hangovers, in place of Malone. Wex refused to pull a Bryson and list all his pleasant memories, and he only ran a column, not a magazine, so he couldn't include his picture and a laudatory caption—something like "most illustrious college dater of a campus generation"—and as a result he decided not write one at all. But his public must be served, so here you are . . .

* * *

Speaking of farewell columns, Bryson told me he intended to make his last one doleful. That expressed intent marks the great distinction between his last column and the others.

* * *

James Dawson has taken to wearing bullet-proof vests and lurking in dark alleys since he started writing Playmaker reviews. It's a tough note when you can't call a lousy play lousy without drawing down hurt looks or wrath from the enraged author. I saw the Norwegian-obstetrical-Keeley play, the Yellow Peril piece, and the brief interlude in the dear old kitchen at Glenhurst, and it seemed to me that James was much too lenient. The Playmaker people should have heard his private remarks between plays.

* * *

If you're startled from your scholarly meditation while crossing the street by a series of blasts from a siren, leap, don't look. That dread sound means that Rosinante, with Barney Oldfield Ruskin at the wheel and Rowboat Sal at the throttle, is bearing down on you. Rosinante looks like a simple green Chevvy, but acts like a malicious Jaggernaut, and when she appears strong men tremble and women and children seek the cyclone cellars. Rumor has it that the Valleyview mob are going to buy Rosinante and sell their machine guns. Then God help the McDades!

* * *

Two lads who are glad that this is the last column of the year are the Cannon boys, Big Milkie, the racketeer, and Little Coffee, the Durham Express. It was getting so they couldn't eat in peace any more without some columnist coming in to take notes.

* * *

Charlie, guardian of the portal down at Spencer,—I happened to drop in there one night last week because I wanted to see George Moody—tells me that business is as brisk as usual, without the expected depression due to rainy weather and exams. Thank God for the indomitable spirit of our Carolina co-eds!

* * *

Speaking of Spencer, a delivery boy recently walked up to Macon Cheek and asked to be directed to the "Co-incident House." Well, worse-fitting names could be applied, at that.

* * *

Well, that's that. For Wex, let me say, "So long, everybody!"

It might be worse. Suppose Russia should dump her surplus consonants over here.—Woodstock (Ont.) Sentinel-Review.

With Contemporaries

The University Of Utopia

President Robert Maynard Hutchins of the University of Chicago discusses "The University of Utopia" in the current issue of the Yale Review. Dr. Hutchins considers the relation of higher education and practical social problems. One of the questions he raises, in connection with the larger and larger tax expenditure for education, is whether it would not be better "to buy food with this money than to continue the expansion of a process that seems powerless to help us in time of need."

His own answer to this question is "that the remedy of our present ills and the only hope we have of preventing their recurrence is not less education but more." Dr. Hutchins presents four needs of contemporary education. First, for any radical improvement more money is necessary. Second, academic freedom must be extended through wider integration of fields of knowledge. Third, a more intensive and thorough study of human problems must be based on this liberal foundation of scholarship. And the results of scholarship and study must be disseminated to a greater advantage by means of extension education of adults.

To the Daily Princetonian, the program is a good one, but the editor of that paper wonders whether mass education through extension institutes is "the best and most effective means of disseminating the results of investigations into human problems."

The Daily believes that mass education is not the work of universities. Mass education is important, highly important, but it belongs to other agencies. Too many individuals are now wasting resources of time, money, and energy in colleges and universities of this country. Higher education cannot be mass production.

"Educational institutions will prove their value to mankind in time of need, not when they have succeeded in scattering a few crumbs of wisdom on everyone's doorstep, but when they have sent out, from their own walls, intelligent leaders who are prepared to cope with the practical problems of society and who are ready to lead others to the solution."—Stanford Daily.

Alexander Pays Visit

E. J. Alexander, graduate of the University with the class of '23 and former assistant in the department of geology, spent Saturday on the campus while en route from New Orleans to New York.

Mr. Alexander is now assistant curator of the New York botanical gardens in Bronx Park, New York City. In this capacity, and accompanying Dr. J. K. Small, curator, he has been on a botanical expedition to New Orleans in search for iris plants.

He is also editor of the Addisonian, a geological paper, writing many articles—both popular and technical—about plant life in the southeast. He and Dr. Small recently lunched with Thomas Edison.

Mention The Daily Tar Heel when buying.

DR. W. B. SORRELL
Optometrist

At The Carolina

John Barrymore stars in the highly exotic and novel "Svengali" for Monday, with Marian Marsh as "Trilby," artists model and victim of Svengali's evil hypnotic power. The production is handled with all the trappings and atmosphere of the original novel, laid in the Latin quarter of Paris and dealing with the career of a singer who rises to brilliant heights under the nefarious tutelage of Svengali, who has conceived a strange passion for his protege.

Tuesday's attraction is taken from an original story by Edward Dean Sullivan and deals with gangland, that much featured phase of modern city life. "Hell Bound" is the title of the production which was directed by James Cruze.

Clara Bow returns to the screen in Wednesday's feature, "Kick In," in which she stars with Regis Toomey. The story concerns an ex-convict who tries to go straight, with the aid of his sweetheart, and is constantly tempted to slip back into his old ways. The play was long a favorite on Broadway.

Mention The Daily Tar Heel when buying.

DR. H. P. ROSS
Optometrist
Specialist in Anomalies of the Eyes
For Appointment Dial N-2361
102½ West Main Street
Durham, N. C.

AT LAST! HIS GREATEST!
The Whole World Applauds - - - -

The most amazing character ever portrayed . . . as only Barrymore can . . . playing the mad pianist with the terrible eyes of the hypnotist . . . who looked at women and transformed them . . . or destroyed them . . . as he willed, the great Svengali.

Master of a thousand emotions in a dramatic triumph that will never be equalled!

JOHN BARRYMORE IN SVENGALI
MARIAN MARSH AS TRILBY

New screen discovery hailed as most sensational "find" in years.

with Donald Crisp, Carmel Myers

——MONDAY——

also Paramount News Educational Comedy

TUESDAY
They're Saying - - -
It's The Year's Most Thrilling Film!
All over town the word's gone round—that "Hell Bound" is a gang picture that overshadows the movie field like a newborn giant!
TIFFANY presents HELL BOUND
FRIDAY
JOAN CRAWFORD
in
"Laughing Sinners"
Her Greatest Picture

WEDNESDAY
More thrilling than ever as a dramatic star!
CLARA BOW
in
"Kick In"
In LOVE it's the future . . . . . In LAW it's the past . . . . . But the LAW demands "her man's" future, too! Has LOVE any rights?
Wednesday 11 P. M.
"El Acusador de si Mismo"
All Spanish Talking Picture
CAROLINA
COMING
"Women of All Nations"

THURSDAY
Lewis Stone
Elissa Landi
in
"Always Goodbye"

SATURDAY
Carol Lombard
Skeets Gallagher
in
"Up Pops the Devil"

ELEVENTH STATE CROWN WON BY HEEL TRACKMEN

Tar Heels End Eleventh Straight Year Undefeated in Dual Meets in South.

By Phil Alston

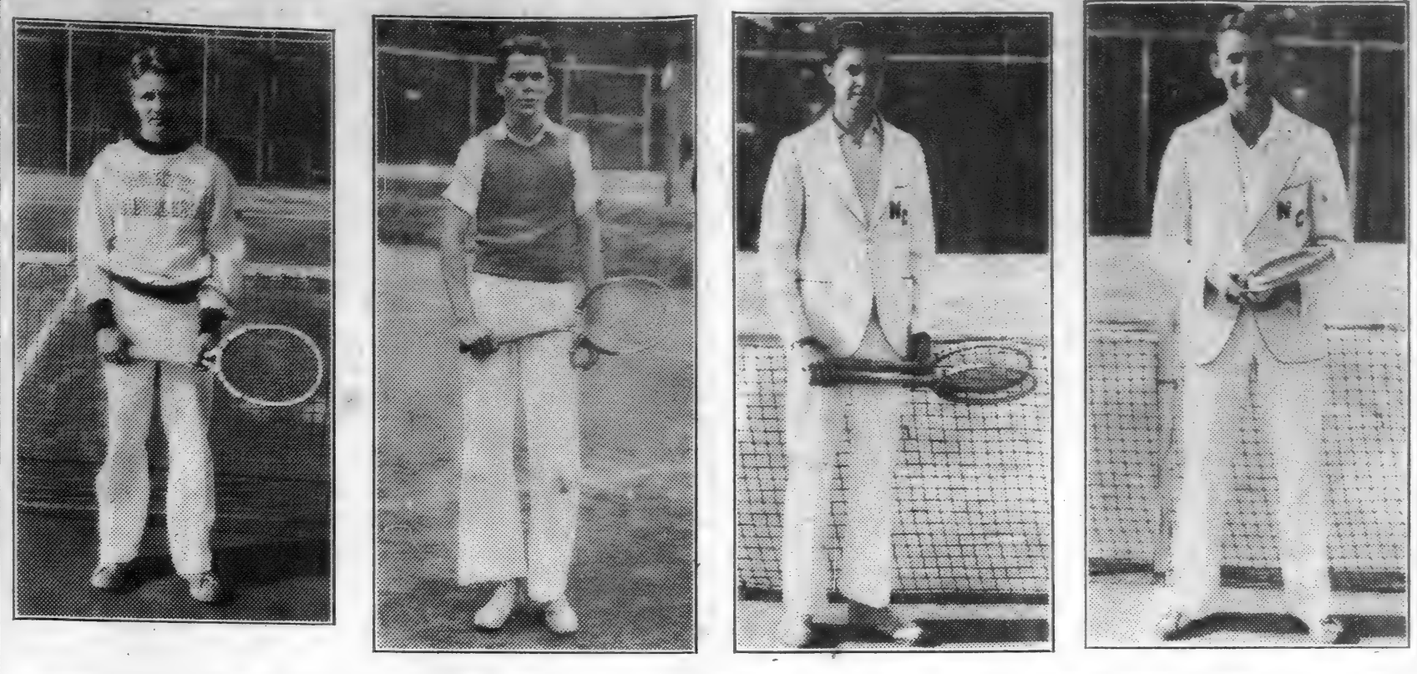
Although performing with less brilliance than some of its predecessors, Carolina's 1931 track team brought another successful season to a close last Saturday by placing fourth in the Southern Conference meet at Birmingham, Alabama, after one of the closest finishes in the history of the Conference. Carolina, in fourth place was only five and one-half points behind Tulane who took first place with thirty-one points.

Carolina opened the season under a handicap. However, with Farmer and Jensen out of the line-up, and several stars from the 1930 squad on the list of ineligibles, the team won easily over early season opposition and came through to win by narrow margins over the stronger teams that were met during the latter part of the season. The only duel meet loss of the season (Carolina's second in eleven years) came at the hands of the strong Nittany Lion team from Penn State. The Lions won after a stiff battle by a score of 74 2-5 to 51 3-5.

Among Southern teams the Tar Heels were undefeated for the eleventh consecutive year, winning over Presbyterian college, N. C. State, Georgia Tech, V. P. I., Duke, and Washington and Lee.

The Tar Heels opened their season at home March 28 with a win over Presbyterian college, S. I. A. A. champions, by a score of 88-38. Theron Brown led the scoring in this meet with first places in the discus and javelin, second in the shot put, and third in the broad jump. Carolina took nine first places with Ruble and Arnold tying for first in the pole vault at a height of twelve feet six inches.

N. C. State was the next victim, going down, 99-27, as Slusser and Bagby led the scoring with ten points each. Slusser won the 100 yard dash in ten seconds flat and placed first in the low hurdles, while Bagby took the broad jump and high jump. Georgia Tech was the next to go down, Carolina winning at Atlanta, 89-37, with Slusser and Marland starring. Marland scored ten points with firsts in the 100 and 440 and Slusser took first in the low hurdles and second in the 100 for eight points. Ruble again won the pole vault at twelve feet six inches.



The following Saturday Carolina scored its most smashing victory of the year with a 91 2-3 to 34 1-3 win over V. P. I. Slusser ran away with the low hurdle race to win in 24.6 seconds and took the 100 yard dash in ten seconds flat. Mark Jones, Carolina distance runner, won the mile run easily in 4:33.4.

Then came the first close call of the year as Carolina defeated the Blue Devils from Duke 68-58 when Tom Watkins and Dick Garrett placed first and second in the half mile to clinch the victory for the Tar Heels. Slusser, with a ten second flat performance in the 100 yard dash and a 24.8 mark in the low hurdles, tallied ten points to top the scoring again.

Carolina sent only two men to the Penn relays, Brodie Arnold and Ray Ruble. Ruble tied for second place in the pole vault at 12 feet six inches. Bill Howard and Theron Brown, Carolina broad jumpers, came through in the final event of the day against the Washington and Lee Generals to give the Tar Heels a 64 2-3 to 61 1-3 victory. Caro-

(Continued on next page)

To Represent Carolina in National Intercollegiates

Bryan Grant, national claycourts champion; Wilmer Hines, national junior singles champion; Ed Yeomans, former state champion and runner-up to Billy Burwell of Sewanee in the recent Southern intercollegiate tennis matches at New Orleans; and Hinkey Hendlin, 1930 state champion, will represent Carolina in the National Intercollegiates to be held at Haverford, Pennsylvania, June 22 through the 27. In addition, Coach Kenfield announced that the Tar Heel entries might enter the Eastern Intercollegiates, which will be held a week or so before the Nationals, to get the benefit of experience in playing on grass courts.

HEELS TO ENTER FOUR IN ANNUAL NET TOURNAMENT

Grant, Hines, Yeomans, and Hendlin to Enter National Intercollegiates.

The University of North Carolina tennis team, hailed as strongest claimants to national team championship honor since its un-halted march over the East's strongest teams, has been invited and will send a team to the National Intercollegiates at the Merion Cricket Club at Haverford, Pa., June 22-27.

Bryan Grant, National Claycourt Champion, and Wilmer Hines, National Junior Champion, are Carolina's most probably entries. If Coach John Kenfield gets permission to enter a complete team of four men, the other most logical Tar Heels would be Ed Yeomans and Hinkey Hendlin. These two boys won the Southern Conference doubles title, and Yeomans was singles runner-up, when sophs Grant and Hines had to stay home to catch classes.

In addition, Coach John Kenfield said today, it is just possible that the Tar Heels might compete in the Eastern Intercollegiates, which will be held a week or so before the Nationals, to get the benefit of experience in playing on grass courts.

Forty-five colleges and universities competed in the intercollegiates last year. Muelheiser and Muench, of the Berkeley division of the University of California, won the doubles crown, and Cliff Sutter, of Tulane, now playing with the Davis Cup team, won the singles.

Grant has had the better of Sutter the great majority of times they have met, although Sutter gained heavy revenge when he dispatched Grant 6-1, 6-0, 6-1 in the North-South at Pinehurst this year. Hines was undefeated playing number two on the Tar Heels' undefeated team this year, but Grant lost to Mangin of Georgetown, also playing with the Davis Cup team, and to Ryan of Yale.

Philander Is Dead

Philander Manheim died Friday night in his home on Hillsboro street. Philander was for many years a favorite pet of Frank J. Manheim, a student at the University, and everyone who knew Philander was greatly attached to this smart gold-fish.

Infirmary List

The infirmary reported only two students on its list yesterday: Noah Goodridge and W. W. Angel.

A. T. O.'S-GRAHAM MEET FOR TITLE

Fraternity and Dormitory League Winners to Meet for Baseball Crown Monday.

The A. T. O.'s, winners of the fraternity championship, will meet Graham, winners of the dormitory title, for the campus baseball championship, Monday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock on Emerson field.

The A. T. O.'s defeated the Phi Delt's, 4-2, Friday afternoon to clinch the championship, after eliminating the Sigma Zeta's the previous week, while the Deke's eliminated the Chi Phi's on the last day of the season.

Graham had a much harder path to run before copping the dormitory championship. Four teams, New Dorms, Graham, Steele, and Best House ended the season with perfect records, necessitating a play-off series before Graham was declared the winner.

In the play-offs New Dorms defeated Best House, 7-6, when Hampton, New Dorms first sacker, hit a long home run with two on. Graham won the right to meet New Dorms for the dormitory championship by defeating Steele, 10-4.

In the final game for the dormitory title New Dorms dropped a close 8-7 decision to Graham. New Dorms scored all their runs in the second inning to lead, 7-1, but Graham came in the final innings to win the title.

The final standings of the Fraternity and Dormitory leagues, as released by the intramural department, are as follows:

DORMITORY LEAGUE

Team	W.	L.	Pct.
Graham	7	0	1.000
Steele	6	1	.857
New Dorms	5	1	.833
Best House	5	1	.833
Old East	4	1	.800
Lewis	2	1	.667
Aycock	2	2	.500
Mangum	1	2	.333
Grimes	2	5	.288
Law School	1	3	.250
Question Marks	1	3	.250
Manly	1	4	.200
Old West	1	4	.200
Independents	0	2	.000
Ruffin	0	3	.000
Everett	0	4	.000

FRATERNITY LEAGUE

Team	W.	L.	Pct.
A. T. O.	3	0	1.000
D. K. E.	4	1	.800
Phi Gam's	4	1	.800
Kappa Alpha	4	1	.800
Sigma Zeta	3	1	.750
S. A. E.	3	1	.750
Chi Phi	2	1	.667
L. C. A.	2	1	.667
Phi Sig's	2	2	.500
T. E. P.'s	2	2	.500

(Continued on last page)

AMERICANS WIN OVER CANADIANS

Shields and Wright Get Straight Set Victory Over Wright and Rainville in Doubles.

The United States took a commanding lead in the Davis Cup series with Canada yesterday as Frank X. Shields and Sidney B. Wood, Jr., of New York swept to a straight set victory over Dr. Jack Wright and Marcel Rainville in the doubles competition. The score was 8-6, 6-4, 6-2.

The victory gave the United States a lead of two matches to one with only a victory in one of the two singles matches tomorrow needed to clinch the contest and earn for the Americans the right to meet Argentina at Washington, D. C., June 28-29 and 30. Shields will play Rainville in the opening match while Wood will clash with Wright.

The youthful United States combination was never threatenen as it put the Canadian veterans to rout. Shields and Wood were pressed only in the first set, but breaks through the service of Wright and Rainville gave the United States youngsters the decision in the 14th game.

Rainville and Wright carried the fight to the invaders again in the second set, taking a three-game lead, only to see Shields and Wood sweep from behind and forge ahead, once more. Playing with increasing speed, clever placements and more confidence, the New Yorkers ran out the set and then rushed onto a quick third set victory.

Sutter Mangin

In an exhibition doubles match following the main event, Cliff Sutter and Gregory Mangin of the United States team defeated Walter Martin and Gilbert Nunns of Canada, 6-3, 6-4.

It has been said that, if you do good work, it will grow after you are gone. Thus Rubens left only some 2,000 pictures, but there are 10,000 of his pictures in circulation now.—Punch.

Timber-cutters in Russia are not compelled to work. They are taken out into the Artic forest and offered a choice between cutting wood and playing the piano. —New York Times.

Scientists say that radio waves which reach the moon are thrown back to earth. We consider this positive proof of the existence of intelligence on the moon.—Thomaston (Ga.) Times

Chicago's beer industry has certainly boosted that city's bier industry.—Louisville Times.

RALEIGH DEFEATS CHARLOTTE 3-2 TO WIN STATE TITLE

Reeves Allows Queen City Nine Only Three Hits as Raleigh Breaks Charlotte Jinx.

Raleigh broke Charlotte's jinx to win the Class A high school baseball title by a score of 3-2 yesterday afternoon. Reeves, winning pitcher, held Charlotte to three safe hits.

Both hurlers turned in good performances, Reeves striking out eight men, and Mulligan, Charlotte, putting the third strike by seven batters. Mulligan was found for seven hits, only one going for extra bases.

Raleigh got one run in each of the third, fifth, and eighth frames. The losers got one run in the fourth, and staged a rally in the final inning, but it was cut short with one tally pushed across. With two men down, Beam, Charlotte catcher, got on first on an error. Shoupe got a double, scoring Beam, and took third when Kanetches, Raleigh left fielder, fumbled the ball. Reeves then fanned Funderburke to win the game.

Womble, Raleigh third sacker, led the attack with two hits for four attempts. Charlotte's three hits went to three men, with Mulligan getting a triple and Shoupe connecting for a double.

Both teams made costly errors, Charlotte chalking up two, and Raleigh accounting for four. Raleigh's errors were somewhat offset by its infield play, the infield pulling three fast double plays.

Raleigh (3)	ab	r	h	e
Jacobs, rf	5	0	1	0
Womble, 3b	4	0	2	2
Rand, 2b	5	0	0	0
Page, c	4	0	1	0
Reeves, p	4	1	0	0
Austin, 1b	4	0	1	0
Frazier, cf	4	0	1	1
Kametches, lf	4	1	1	1
Bishop, ss	1	1	0	0
Totals	35	3	7	4

Charlotte (2)	ab	r	h	e
Morris, 2b	1	0	0	0
Black, cf	4	0	1	0
Bell, ss	4	0	0	1
Gadd, 3b	4	0	0	0
Daniels, 1b	2	1	0	0
Mulligan, p	4	0	1	1
Meam, c	3	1	0	0
Shoupe, rf	4	0	1	0
Funderburk, lf	4	0	0	0
Totals	30	2	3	2

Summary:

Three-base hits: Mulligan. Two-base hits: Shoupe. Runs batted in: Shoupe, Mulligan, Womble, Austin. Double plays: Rand to Austin, Rand to Bishop to Austin, Reeves to Rand to Austin. Base on balls: Off Mulligan, 4; off Reeves, 5. Struck out: By Reeves, 8; by Mulligan, 7. Umpires: Magner (NC) and Sapp (NC).

TULANE-CAROLINA LEAD SOUTH IN WINNING TITLES

Greenies and Tar Heels Only Teams in South to Win Two Championships.

With the college sports season virtually completed, a review of the year shows North Carolina and Tulane were the only Southern Conference schools to win more than one championship.

Tulane took top honors in team golf and outdoor track, while North Carolina won the indoor track, the tennis doubles, and the Tri-State championship.

Tulane, however, was runner-up in several sports. The Greenies from New Orleans finished second in the individual golf championship and in boxing and also tied Alabama for first place in football. North Carolina took second honors in the tennis singles.

The other titles were evenly divided between the teams from all sections of the South but none of these were able to win more than one championship. Virginia won the boxing title and placed second to Tulane in the outdoor track meet.

The title winners with runner-ups follow:

Football—Alabama and Tulane tied for first place
Indoor Track—North Carolina, first; W. and L. second Basketball — Maryland, first; Kentucky, second
Outdoor Track—Tulane, first; Virginia, second
Golf (team)—Tulane, first; Vanderbilt, second
Golf (individual)—Vanderbilt, first; Tulane, second
Swimming—Georgia Tech, first; Georgia, second
Tennis (doubles)—North Carolina, first; Georgia, second.
Tennis (singles) — Sewanee, first; North Carolina, second
Boxing—Virginia, first; Tulane, second
Cross Country—V. M. I., first; V. P. I., second
Baseball (southern)—Auburn
Baseball (northern) — North Carolina
Wrestling—No meet held

AMERICAN STARS WIN FIRST ROUND

John Van Ryn and George Lott, America's two youthful contenders for the French hard courts tennis championship, won their opening singles matches yesterday without being seriously extended.

Lott, romped to a straight set victory over Andre Piel of France, 6-1, 6-2, 9-7, while Van Ryn was disposing of another Frenchman, Rene Viellard, 8-6, 6-3, 6-3.

In today's doubles round, Lott and Van Ryn, the favorites are paired against the English combinations of John Olliff and I. G. Collins, in the semi-final round.

The most surprising upset of the tournament so far came today in the quarter finals of the mixed doubles, where Jean Borotra, the French ace, and his American partner, Miss Elizabeth Ryan, fell before Dr. P. D. Spence and Miss Betty Nuthall of England, 7-9, 3-6.

Now that Theodore Dreiser and Sinclair Lewis have staged the first honest fight New York has seen in years, Jack Sharkey and Max Schmeling may take to writing novels.—San Diego Union.

Until Einstein makes up his mind whether the universe is static or dynamic, we are maintaining as best we can the attitude of the mental innocent bystander.—Detroit News.

Now Famous Arboretum Made From Cow Pasture By Coker

Five Acre Plot Contains Over Four Hundred Varieties of Plants Including Medical Garden Voted Sixth Best in Country.

The nationally famed arboretum of the University is a tribute to the work of Dr. William Chambers Coker, who has had charge of it since its beginning. What is now the beauteous arboretum was once a swampy pasture where President Swain's cows grazed.

In 1903 Dr. Coker started his work by draining with sub-tiles the northern section of the land. Year by year the developed area has been extended southward to its present limits on Cameron avenue, while the soil has gradually improved so that at present many varieties of trees and shrubs may be grown there, although it is still unfit for several of the plants of North Carolina. Dr. Coker hopes that before long the arboretum can be extended across the Raleigh road to include part of Battle's grove, where better soil may finally allow the successful cultivation of those species of plants unfitted for the present location.

450 Kinds of Plants

A few yellow willows and black gums constituted the original forest growth of the arboretum. These have been added to year by year until there are now over 450 kinds of ornamental plants there. Although it occupies only five acres, the arboretum is probably the finest exhibit of North Carolina plant life, and is generally considered as being one of the most beautiful spots in this section of the country.

Many factors contribute to the beauty and charm of the arboretum. Its color, its pleasing odors, its cool shade, its soft lawn, its brightly colored and merrily singing birds, and its gentle spirit of rest and contentment—all these combine to make one enjoy the arboretum. It even boasts of a small stream after a rain. Now that spring is here, more and more students are going to the arboretum during the day to study, and at night for extra-curricula activities.

Contains Foreign Shrubs

Many trees and shrubs from foreign countries are to be seen there, as well as numerous plants from other parts of this country. Some of the most interesting of the plants are the magnolia, which is considered the most primitive of flowering plants, the cactus, the deodar cedar, which is from the Himalayan mountains, the ferns and mosses, the ivies (poison and otherwise), arborvitae, hydrangia, cypress, wistaria, and the tall Lombardy poplars.

One of the most artistic features of the arboretum is the pergola or arbor, which is entirely covered by a dense growth of wistaria. The pergola is a gift of Mrs. Margaret Busbee Shipp in honor of her father and her uncle.

Sixth Best Garden

In 1923 the arboretum won national fame by being voted the sixth best garden in the country, producing medicinal plants. This judgment was rendered by the bureau of plants of the United States Department of Agriculture. The drug garden, on the southern boundary of the arboretum, is one of twenty in the country, and contains about 150 species of medicinal herbs.

Greenhouse Useful

Likewise useful to the botanical department are the greenhouse and propagating grounds, situated behind Peabody building. The greenhouse, which measures fifteen by eighty feet, was contributed by Watts Hill in 1926, and is very useful in making plants available at all times for instruction and research. Some of the tropical plants in the greenhouse are camphor, coffee, olive, orange, and rubber. In the propagating grounds are raised, at little cost, most of the ornamental trees and shrubs that are used around the University buildings and campus. It is also used for testing the hardiness and usefulness of species from other countries.

Much of the beauty and charm of the campus is due to the work of Dr. Coker. Not only has he planted shrubs and trees everywhere on the campus, but he has helped the townspeople greatly, and has aided in beautifying schoolhouses, churches, and other buildings in other parts of the state.

The Campus Calendar

Scholarship Renewals

Those students who now hold scholarships in the University will be able to obtain the application blanks for renewal next year from the office of the president any day next week, according to R. B. House, executive secretary.

Freshman Chapel

On Monday and Tuesday at freshman chapel, Professor Wm. S. Jenkins, of the department of government and history, will give a summary of the proceedings of the 1931 state legislature.

University Band To Play Concert Today

At 2:30 and 4:15 this afternoon the University band will present a brief program at the Carolina Theatre. The program will consist of Serenade Rococo, a Spanish number; Eastern World, an oriental overture; Under the Spanish Flag, one movement from Sousa's suite Cubaland; and other numbers not yet announced.

Immediately following each performance by the band the management of the theatre will show a baseball picture entitled "Hot Curves."

A. T. O.'S-GRAHAM MEET FOR TITLE

(Continued from preceding page)

Beta's	1	1	.500
S. P. S.	1	1	.500
Phi Delt's	1	2	.333
Kappa Sigma	1	2	.333
Phi Alpha	1	2	.333
Delta Sig's	1	2	.333
S. P. E.	1	3	.250
Phi Kap's	1	4	.200
Sigma Chi	0	1	.000
Zeta Psi	0	2	.000
Pi Kap's	0	2	.000
D. T. D.	0	4	.000
Theta Chi	0	4	.000

Eagles Elected Permanent President Senior Class

At the senior smoker Friday night, the following men were elected permanent class officers: Joe Eagles of Wilson was unanimously elected president; Pat Patterson, of High Point, vice-president; and Ed Hamer of McColl, South Carolina, secretary-treasurer.

Fish, we glean from a wild-life note, have ears or something very like them, and, good grief, what a vocabulary the ones who got away would have if they could only repeat what they heard!—Boston Herald.

The Prince of Wales states that the king of England has to do a lot of studying. When he reigns he pores.—Nashville Southern Lumberman.

Staff Meeting

Members of the reportorial staff of the Daily Tar Heel are asked to meet tonight in room 104, Alumni building at 7:00 o'clock. City editors and desk men are also expected to attend this meeting.

Hillside Session To Take Place Today

The annual hillside meeting of the Y cabinets will take place at 5:30 this afternoon on the Comers' lot in Westwood, where a council ring in the shape of a horseshow has been built for use in various retreat meetings of Boy Scouts, the student council and cabinet meetings. All members are requested to meet in the Y at 5:15, and from there hike to the Comers' house.

The annual hillside meeting marks the close of the work of the cabinets for the year. Reports of the work will be given by Ed Hamer, retiring president of the Y, Bim Ferguson, retiring president of the sophomore council, and Graham McLeod, retiring president of the freshman friendship council. Parson Moss, chairman of the board of directors, will make his annual address to the cabinets at this time. Dean Herring, of Duke university, will also address the meeting, while Pardner James, new president of the Y, will preside. The devotionals will be led by John Lang.

After the meeting, which will last about forty-five minutes, Mrs. Comer will serve a picnic supper, with six young ladies of the University assisting her. There will also be music for the occasion.

ELEVENTH STATE CROWN WON BY HEEL TRACKMEN

(Continued from preceding page)

lina swept all the places in the discus, Sandy Dameron winning the event with a throw of 132 feet.

Doped to have their string of state championships broken by one of the strongest fields ever to compete at Greensboro, the Tar Heels turned in excellent performances to easily take their eleventh consecutive State title with 61 1-2 points. N. C. State took second place with 33 1-2 points while Davidson was third, Duke fourth, and Wake Forest fifth. Cliff Baucom, veteran distance star set a new State record for the two mile with a time of 9:51.7. Sandy Dameron broke the discus record, formerly held by Puny Harper, when he heaved the plate 136 feet six inches, and Ray Ruble broke the pole vault record by clearing the bar at 12 feet eight inches. The relay team, with Smith, Drane, Watkins, and Weil running, tied the State record with a time of 3:25.2. Mark Jones won over Simons of Duke in the one mile after a thrilling race in 4:32, his best time of the year.

The loss to Penn State followed. Slusser took first place in the 100 yard dash and broke the tape in the low hurdles in 24.4 to lead the scoring. Dameron, Ruble, and Smith won the other first places for the Tar Heels.

Entering the Southern Conference meet as defending champions, Carolina fell before the brilliant work of the Tulane Greenies, but rallied in the final events of the day to threaten the leaders. Sandy Dameron took Carolina's only first place, winning the discus throw over one of the strongest fields ever to enter a Conference meet.

At the end of the season Sandy Dameron, veteran discus star, was elected captain of the team. In addition to setting a new State record for the discus throw, and scoring Carolina's only first place in the Southern Conference meet, Dameron was a consistent performer throughout the season, and ranks as one of the most brilliant performers turned out at Carolina during recent years.

STATE LAUNCHES 'PRESERVE FOOD' RELIEF CAMPAIGN

Another Chapter in "Live-at-Home" Movement Result of Low Crop Prices.

Faced with the fact that crop prices will be lower this fall than ever before, Governor O. Max Gardner, through his council on unemployment and relief, has begun another chapter in the "Live-at-Home" campaign in North Carolina; and this time, the emphasis is placed on the absolute necessity of carrying out the slogan, "Preserve Your Food and Live at Home This Winter."

The campaign, began quietly by the State college extension service, is now cooperated in by every state official and agency, with four separate departments intensely active in the work under the supervision of R. W. Henninger, executive secretary of the relief work. Governor Gardner, the sponsor of the "Live-at-Home" movement for the past several years, is fearful that the farmers of the state, in particular, will not conserve their garden surplus and that this coming winter these people may face worse conditions than during the past one.

Canning Demonstrations

The program will be carried into every county in the state through publicity, canning demonstrations and speaking programs. Specialists are now at work, demonstrating how to can, preserve, dry and pickle fruits and vegetables. The canning demonstration work began several weeks ago in the eastern tier of counties and is being carried westward by Mrs. Cornelia C. Morris, district home agent and acting specialist in food conservation of State College Extension Service, assisted by Mrs. W. G. Stancill, assistant director, and Dean I. O. Schaub, director of the extension service. The work began in Martin county on April 1st, and has been carried westward to the middle of the state. Dates for the demonstrations for the next two weeks are:

May 25, Southport; 26, Whiteville; 27, Elizabethtown; 28, Fayetteville; and 29, Clinton.

June 2, Hillsboro; 3, Albemarle; 4, Salisbury; and 5-6, Statesville.

The demonstrations will run through July and may be extended further.

Fall Prices Low

Economists say that this coming fall prices for all farm commodities will be low, perhaps lower than last year. Estimates on the price of tobacco range from five to ten cents a ponud, average. Cotton is now at its lowest quotation in several years, with no indication of an early and substantial increase in price. Food products, with some exceptions are very cheap. Hence, the only solution of this problem for the farmer—and the wage earner in the city as well—is through the canning, preserving, pickling and drying of such vegetables and fruits. At a time, when money is scarce, when many families have no cash money at all, when many thousands in the state have been kept from starvation by the Red Cross and other agencies, the necessity of saving all possible food supplies is apparent.

We read that a duel between two German students, in which both were slightly wounded, was a matter of only three minutes. And, of course, a couple of seconds.—The Humorist.

E. McNeill Poteat, Jr.

Dr. E. McNeill Poteat, Jr., pastor of the Pullen Memorial Baptist Church of Raleigh, who will deliver the baccalaureate sermon, Sunday, June 7, in Memorial hall.

Class of 1881 Will Convene to Celebrate Golden Anniversary

(Continued from first page)

$7,500 from the original federal land grant funds had become entirely inadequate. He declared that the University must be granted an annual appropriation by the state, if it were to continue its work.

Attack on University

Immediately, an attack intended to bring about the abolition of the University itself was begun in the legislature. Claiming that the denominational colleges provided sufficient facilities for higher education in the state, the University's enemies charged that its students were allowed all sorts of freedom which resulted in "insobriety and odious characteristics of caste." For several weeks, the friends of the University battled for its existence, finally gaining a complete victory, and securing the first annual state appropriation of $5,000.

Another momentous event in the history of the University occurring during the class of 1881's senior year was the construction of "The Chapel Hill Iron Mountain Railroad," later changed to "The State University Railroad." The line gave Chapel Hill rail connections with the outside world for the first time, and assisted materially in the University's development during later years. Most of the costs of construction were borne by the old Richmond and Danville Railroad Company and the famous Iron Mountain Company, which was operating a mine northwest of the campus. The mine itself was a disappointment. The abandoned shafts may still be seen at the original "workings." As President Battle classically phrased it in his address at Commencement, "Egypt has her pyramids, Athens her Parthenon, Rome her Colisseum, but neither Egypt, nor Athens, nor Rome, in all their glory, had a railroad ten and two-fifths miles long."

Combatted Hazing

It was the class of 1881, that first took steps to combat the evil of hazing on the University campus. Through the two literary societies, it was agreed to place a heavy penalty upon any student "entering the room of another against his will, laying hands on him, touching him with any object, throwing at him, or committing any act of indignity or annoyance."

In the baccalaureate sermon, delivered by the then famous Dr. W. P. Harrison, of Washington, D. C., the members of the class were exhorted to turn a deaf ear to the siren wooing them with the song of science, and to deny the "monstrous doctrine of evolution." One of the student speakers was Thomas Malvern Vance, son of Governor Zeb Vance. Born not long after the disastrous struggle at Malvern Hill, in 1862, he was named for the battle. He spoke on "Has the Time Come for Universal Suffrage?" The claims of negroes and women were vehemently denied.

Student Speeches

The subjects of the other student addresses were widely varied, to say the least. They were by William J. Adams, now associate justice of the state supreme court, on "The Character of Lee"; by John M. Avery, retired lawyer, who lives at Plumtree, N. C., on "Nihilism"; by the late Charles R. Thomas on "The Philosophy and Retribution of History"; by James Y. Joyner, former dean of the faculty at N. C. C. W. and state superintendent of public instruction, now living in Raleigh, on "Self-Government"; by Robert P. Pell, now President of Converse college, at Spartanburg, S. C., on "The Influence of the Scientific Movement Upon Literature"; by James D. Murphy, Superior Court judge for nearly twenty years, on "The Laboring Classes of America"; and by Noah J. Rouse, now a prominent financer, former bank president and former mayor of Kinston on "The Reform Needed."

A college president and two other nationally known educators, three judges, three bank presidents and capitalists, two leading income tax experts, five physicians, all of them leaders in their professions, a well known theologian, one of the state's oldest and most influential legislators and chairman of the state highway commission—are numbered among the 33 surviving members of the class of 1881. Without doubt it has been, as a whole, one of the University's most successful classes.

Class Personnel

Besides those already mentioned, there are Rufus A. Doughton, of Sparta, who has probably held high public office for more years than any other man in North Carolina, a member of the legislature for 13 terms and until a few weeks ago chairman of the state highway commission; Dr. John Everett Brady, philologist and professor at Smith college, in Massachusetts, for almost a half-centry; R. O. Holt, in charge of income tax collections in New York state; Dr. L. L. Mial, eye, ear, nose, and throat specialist at Morristown, N. J.; Dr. J. W. Neal, physician at Monroe; Dr. W. D. Pemberton, physician and former alderman at Concord.

Others of the class are: W. E. Phillips, in the insurance business at Durham; J. M. Walker, income tax attorney and expert at Baltimore, Md.; Dr. J. A. Albright, of Somerville, Tennessee, physician and former secretary of the Tennessee state board of health; W. C. Alderman, farmer and stockman at Vernon, Texas; F. K. Borden, bank head and president of the Borden Manufacturing Company at Goldsboro; Egbert Egerton, merchant at Houston, Texas; M. L. Jeffreys, wholesale merchant at Goldsboro; J. P. Joyner, manufacturer, banker and former judge of recorder's court at Lagrange; H. M. Kent, of Lenoir, civil engineer and former sheriff of Caldwell County; Dr. Edward Leigh Pell, minister, lecturer, and author who lives at Nashville, Tennessee; J. M. Powell of Goldsboro, former auditor of Wayne county; and Frank H. Steadman, of Fayetteville, bank president and former sheriff; and Dr. Albert R. Wilson, Greensboro physician and former president of the Guilford County medical society.

Engineers Entertained

The senior members of the American society of civil engineers were entertained Thursday night at a dinner by Dr. and Mrs. John E. Lear at their home, 2 Cobb Terrace.

DI SENATE
ELECTION OF OFFICERS
NEW WEST — 7:15

The Daily Tar Heel

DORMITORY ELECTIONS
BUILDING OFFICERS
TONIGHT — 10:30

VOLUME XXXIX — CHAPEL HILL, N. C., TUESDAY MAY 26, 1931 — NUMBER 180

K. A.'S DECLARED WINNER OF DEKE ATHLETIC AWARD

Trophy Given for High Scholarship and Participation in Varsity and Intramural Sports.

The Kappa Alpha fraternity was declared winner of the annually awarded Deke trophy last evening in Memorial hall, along with the presentation of other honors of Awards Night. Dean F. F. Bradshaw formally presented the trophy in behalf of the members of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

The method of computing the points scored by the various fraternities competing for the award consists mainly in counting the scholastic average of each chapter as one half, and dividing the remaining credits between varsity and intra-mural athletics. Although the Kappa Alpha lodge was winner by a wide margin, there was considerable competition. The next three ranking fraternities were Kappa Sigma, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and Zeta Psi. The latter, winner of the trophy on its inauguration last year, scored approximately the same number of points this year. By dint of their athletic activities, however, the K. A.'s were able to assume first place.

Presented by Bradshaw

Dean Bradshaw, in his presentation speech, reflected credit upon the members of the D. K. E. fraternity for associating themselves with this movement to encourage both scholastic and extra-curricular activitie among the Greek letter fraternities on the campus. The beneficial effect is already observable in the fact that the scores of the leading fraternities are much higher this year than last.

The trophy is a silver piece of mounted statuary about thirty inches high. The figures, classic in design, represent Minerva, goddess of learning, holding aloft a tablet, and Apollo, god of the games and the sun, in a running position at her side.

GEOLOGY GROUPS WILL TOUR WEST

Despite the rumors to the contrary, the western motor trip will be given as usual this year. The trip which begins on June 7 and lasts through August 4, is being run by the Southern Tours, Inc., of Chapel Hill. The extension division of the University has nothing whatever to do with the running of the trip; it is only attending to the educational part of it.

Through the extension division the services of Dr. Gerald MacCarthy, of the geology department, have been acquired. Dr. MacCarthy will teach two courses, one on the introduction to physical geology and the other on the physical and economic geology of the United States. Also there will be advance courses for a few of the students.

Mr. J. B. Whitener, superintendent of the schools of Maiden, is to manage the trip, and the party will travel in small busses and a few private cars. This year the tour will cover about 9000 miles, visiting such places as Pikes Peak, Grand Canyon, Los Angeles, and Yosemite and Yellowstone National Parks.

DORMITORIES TO ELECT OFFICERS

Following the established custom, the undergraduate dormitories will elect their presidents, vice presidents, and athletic managers, to-night at 10:30 o'clock, in first floor halls of each dormitory. The Carolina Dormitory Club has considered that it is better to have all of the dormitory elections the same night at the same time, in order that all of the dormitory residents will have an opportunity to have general notice of the elections, and in order that the residents will make their plans to attend and participate in the elections.

Elections are held this year in order that the dormitory activities of the fall quarter such as freshman receptions, smokers, and intra-mural athletics, may get under way without delay. Also, the dormitory residents are better known to each other at this time of the year, and they will be in a better position to select good leaders for these important offices.

The Dormitory Club has under consideration plans to make the present dormitory organization more effective next year.

JENKINS SPEAKS ON LEGISLATURE

History Professor Reviews Work of Present Session in Monday's Chapel Talk.

Professor William S. Jenkins, of the department of history and government, spoke in freshman chapel yesterday on "The Organization of the State Legislative Body and the Important Issues That Confronted the Present Legislature."

The North Carolina legislative body is called the General Assembly and is composed of a senate, or upper group, and a house, or lower body. The senate is composed of fifty members who are elected from thirty-three districts. The members of the house of representatives number 120, each county being allowed at least one representative. The elections for the legislature are held every even year, and the regular sessions are held the odd years. The pay of a member of either house is $600 for the session, and the length of a session is usually about sixty days, but the present legislature has been in session almost 140 days, breaking all former records. There are prospects of adjournment by tomorrow.

Assembly Criticised

There has been widespread criticism of the present General Assembly, according to Professor Jenkins, but there have been many grave problems confronting the legislators. Tax reform is probably the hardest to solve. The former method of taxation was an ad valorem tax of two dollars and forty cents on every one hundred dollars' worth of property. The budget commission wanted to cut the appropriations for all state institutions. The McLean law provided for the state to take over and operate all six months schools in the state, and schools to be operated by revenue from some other source than land. There were other bills such as the Hinsdale luxury tax, the Day general sales tax, and the corporation recapture tax. All of these bills were rejected.

Other accomplishments of the

(Continued on last page)

Graham Memorial Will Provide Social Center For All Students

New Union Building Should Meet Demands as a Place for Recreation if the Campus Sees Fit to Vote for Its Upkeep.

Costing when finished four times as much as any building now on the campus, including the new library, which is the largest building in the University, the Graham Memorial student union building will by far surpass anything that this campus has. The plans for the building called for a central portion and two large wings on each end. The proposed total cost of the structure, with complete furnishings is two and a half million dollars. As yet money has not been raised to build either of the planned wings, but the central portion is just being completed. This section will alone cost half a million.

Pride in Building

Every student at Carolina now ought to take pride in the fact that such a building is being erected on this campus and that he will be able to have the use and advantages of a union building. Students may also take pride in the fact that former college generations have contributed and helped to raise money and that now the present generation may also be considered to have an important part in the voting of raising money to help furnish it.

Graham Memorial will not be taking the place of any building now on the campus, for there has been no building of the size ever planned for the purposes of this structure. It will truly be a student activities center. Every phase of the student life will be found there, and it will act as a radiating point for the whole campus. Just as South building is the center of the University as far as administration goes, the student body will center activities and meetings in the Graham Memorial.

Appropriate Meeting Place

Not only will activity and business offices be placed in the union, but it will be an appropriate get together place for all students. Boys in fraternities already have many of the advantages that this phase affords. Fraternities have lounge rooms, reading rooms, visiting and meeting places, large enough halls to give dinners and small dances, but the non-fraternity man is at a disadvantage in this sense. They have absolutely no place for spending their leisure time besides in their room, in the present inadequate Y building, down street, or even in the last extremity in Durham.

The new union building then particularly makes an appeal to this group. Here on the ground floor are several large rooms which may be used for welcoming visitors, listening to a radio or phonograph, reading, having general bull sessions, or engaging in some games. There is a large and beautiful ballroom on the same floor where small dances may be conducted, and down stairs is a large dining hall for special dinners, and where they will be able to get something to eat at odd hours. The building resembles and fills the same need as a student hotel, and will provide a second home, and certainly a Chapel Hill home, to non-fraternity men.

Nine Cases Handled By Recorder's Court

The following cases were tried in the Recorder's court Saturday morning:

Robert Nicks, colored, paid costs for speeding.

C. B. Rogers, student, paid costs for speeding.

J. R. Creel, white, found not guilty of charge of public drunkeness and disorderly conduct.

Ira Battle, colored, paid costs for speeding.

J. G. Poole, student, paid costs for speeding.

Edward Jones, colored, paid costs for speeding.

Zilla Farrington, colored, pleading guilty on a charge of possessing liquor and equipment for its manufacture, was sentenced to four months on the road.

Thomas Strowd, colored, paid costs and was put on good behavior probation for six months when found guilty of public drunkeness.

H. S. Canada, colored, paid costs on same charge.

Chemistry Trip

Fifteen chemistry students went to Asheville on an inspection trip last Friday. Dr. F. K. Cameron and Dr. A. M. White were in charge of this trip. From Asheville, the group went to Canton to inspect the Champion Fiber company.

One of the main things inspected was the machinery of the factory. They also inspected the management of the mill and the way in which the finished article was turned out was of general interest to the students.

Dialectic Senate To Elect New Officers

The last meeting of the Dialetic senate for this year will take place tonight in the Di Hall at 7:15. As provided in the constitution the last yearly meeting is given over to the election of officers and is purely business.

A president, president-protem, critic, clerk, and sergeant-at-arms will all be chosen. The office of treasurer was filled at an earlier meeting.

The officers of the Senate for this past quarter have been K. C. Ramsay, president; McB. Fleming-Jones, president protem; J. M. Little, critic; Charles Rose, clerk; and Starlin Whitaker, sergeant-at-arms.

UNIVERSITY IMPROVES SWAIN HALL GROUNDS

During the last few days the grounds around Swain hall have been receiving some attention. Work on the lawn is in progress, and the walks have been built up. They are being laid off and bordered by native rock.

Between the rock walls which border the walks, gravel has been hauled in. This prevents parking near the entrance which has, in the past, caused the yards to become cut up and, during rains, the ground in front of the hall to be very deep in water and mud. The work being done will prevent any further annoyance to the patrons of the dining hall on rainy days. The lawn between the walks is being fertilized, and grass is being planted.

These improvements are under the supervision and control of the University.

CARR DORMITORY TO BE LAW CLUB

The University Administrative Board has set aside Carr building for the exclusive use of law students for the year 1931-32. It is understood that the building must be completely occupied by law students during this coming year, otherwise steps will be taken to determine what group will occupy it after that date.

Carr building was assigned to law students because of the desire manifested by the law group. Both law faculty and students presented a written petition to the committee in charge of the building; and after sixty-two students had consented to occupy the building, an agreement was drawn up enabling them to do so.

There are six suites, each of which will be occupied by three students, and twenty-two rooms arranged for two students each. There is also a large reception room.

The law students are very enthusiastic over the new living quarters, and every possible effort will be made to turn it into a barrister club.

BAR ASSOCIATION TO VISIT CAMPUS

University Law School to Serve As Host to Carolina Lawyers During Summer School.

The University law school announces that the North Carolina Bar Association has accepted the invitation of the University and of the law school to hold its annual meeting for the present year in Chapel Hill. This is scheduled for July 23 to 25, coinciding with the beginning of the second session of summer school.

Arrangements have been made for visitors at the convention to be quartered in the University dormitories.

Van Hecke to Open Meeting

The meeting will be formally opened at 8:15, Thursday evening, July 23. Professor M. T. Van Hecke, of the University law school, will deliver the opening address, welcoming the lawyers to the campus. A response will be made by Professor E. W. Timberlake of the Wake Forest law school. Charles G. Rose, of Fayetteville, will give the president's address. The assistant secretary of the state, James Grafton Rogers, will then make a speech. The evening will end with the reports of the executive committee and the committee on admission to membership.

Friday morning at 10:00 A. M., there will be further reports of the committees, followed by an address by the Hon. P. W. Phillips of Washington, D. C., former member of the board of tax appeals; his subject will be, "Minimizing Federal Taxes." F. G. James, of Greenville, will deliver a brief tribute to deceased members.

Friday afternoon, there will be a visit to the Duke University law school and a reception at the Hope Valley country club by the Durham Bar Association. In the evening at 8:15 P. M., Charles A. Boston, of New York, president of the American Bar Association will talk.

Saturday morning at 9:30 A. M., Professor Roscoe B. Turner, of the Yale law school, will discuss the Administration of Banking Laws. Afterwards, due time will be given to unfinished business and the election of officers.

ANNUAL AWARDS NIGHT CLIMAXES YEAR'S ACTIVITY

President Graham Tells Honor Students They Represent Aristocracy of Ability.

The annual Awards Night, the climax of the past year's activities and efforts on the part of University students, took place last night at 8:00 in Memorial hall. At this time students found recognition of the efforts they had spent throughout the past school year in the various lines of activity: scholarship, athletics, dramatics, music, and literary pursuits.

"Hark the Sound"

The meeting was opened by a cheer led by the chief cheerleader, Ed Hazelwood, and was followed by the singing in unison by the audience of "Hark the Sound," led by Dr. H. S. Dyer. President Frank P. Graham, the principal speaker was introduced by the presiding officer of the occasion, Mayne Albright, president of the the student union.

Graham's Speech

Mr. Graham said that this was the night of recognition and awards. "These men constitute our real aristocracy. They are not an aristocracy of birth or money or position or popularity but an aristocracy of ability, work, and achievement.

"These scholars, writers, athletes, debaters, actors, musicians, and other artists have won through by dint of sheer merit, will, work, and worth. They have the something plus. They held on after others let go and dropped by the wayside.

"Theirs," he continued, "is a preeminence measuring the openness of our student democracy and the height of our University excellence. They would teach us all to call out the best that is in us. They lead us to clear out of our campus, our town, our fraternities, our dormitories, anything that would tear down the excellence within

(Continued on last page)

PLAYMAKERS SET DATE FOR CAPERS

Drama Group Will Give Burlesques and Make Awards Saturday Night.

The annual Playmaker capers are scheduled for next Saturday night in the Carolina Playmakers theatre. At that time all persons connected with the theatre will assemble for the celebration which begins promptly at 8:00.

The program consists of burlesques on the activities of the Playmakers and special selection of dances and songs. This year's celebration will be somewhat different from any previously presented.

Play-book Planned

A book has been made from sketches and suggestions offered by members, and this will represent a visitor's tour of the theatre. Professor F. H. Koch will show the visitors through his playwriting class, the theatre and its activities in a satire composed of short episodes.

In this presentation, all the activities of the past two quarters will be satirized. The sketches will include satires on "East Lynn," "Very Pale Pink Angel," "The Importance of Being Earnest," "The Perfect

(Continued on last page)

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays. Entered as Second Class matter at the post office at Chapel Hill, N. C., under Act of March 3, 1879.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $4.00 for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

Jack Dungan ..... Editor
H. N. Patterson ..... Bus. Mgr.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Ed French ..... Mng. Ed.

Editorial Board

Charles G. Rose ..... Chairman
J. M. Little — Frank J. Manheim
W. M. Bryson — Will Yarborough
Alden Stahr — Bob Barnett
Wex Malone — K. C. Ramsay

Assignment Editors
Otto S. Steinreich
Dan Kelly, Assistant

Sunday Editor
Charles G. Rose

City Editors
Bill McKee — George Wilson
Peter Hairston — Jack Riley

Desk Men
W. R. Woerner — Don Shoemaker
Frank Hawley — T. W. Blackwell
Vass Shepherd

Sports Staff
Jack Bessen ..... Sports Editor

Assistants
T. H. Broughton — P. Alston

News Men
E. M. Spruill — F. W. Ashley
W. E. Davis — Claiborn Carr
Charles Poe

Reporters
Saul Gordon — Bob Reynolds
Woodward Glenn — M. V. Barnhill, Jr.
William Blount — W. F. Lee
U. B. Phillips — M. H. Long
Tom Walker — W. L. Gray
Ronald Kochendorfer — Walker Stamps
Phil Sasser

BUSINESS STAFF

Hal Worth ..... Circulation Mgr.
Harlan Jameson ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.
John Manning ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.

Advertising Department
Al L. Olmstead ..... Advertising Mgr.
Pendleton Gray ..... Advertising Mgr.
Bernard Solomon ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
R. D. McMillan, Jr. ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
James N. Nowell — H. A. Clark

Collection Department
Jack Hammer ..... Collection Mgr.
John Barrow — Frank S. Dale
Stokes Adderton — Jack Stokes

Correspondence Department
Ed Michaels, Jr. ..... Correspondence Mgr.
Wynn Hamm ..... Ass't. Cor. Mgr.

Tuesday, May 26, 1931

A Half Million Dollar Club House

There will be no student union building for the University of North Carolina, unless the student body will vote to inaugurate a fee not more than one dollar a quarter beginning next fall and continuing until such time as the operation of the building becomes self-perpetuating or endowed. The principle of a fee for this particular purpose is the idea in question, not the amount, because that can be adjusted by a student vote at any time, and, further, by agreement this year fees will come up automatically every four years to be revoted upon so that no outworn or useless fee will continue to be collected longer than one student generation.

Many have been the conflicting reports as to how much the cost of operating the building will be, what activities will be housed in it, and what uses will be made of the structure. To all of these we can reply that the board of directors has made no decision, nor does it intend to make any until the student vote has been taken. Any member of the student body and faculty has as much right to suggest and work for any program that he wishes Graham Memorial to undertake or any activity he wishes Graham Memorial to house.

Mr. Woollen of the business department of the University has assured members of the board that for the lighting, janitorial service, heating, water, and insurance of the Graham Memorial plant not less than three thousand dollars should be set aside. A property whose woodwork in the lounge room alone is worth thirty thousand dollars must have a manager to see that it is properly handled, or that marauders, or vandals do not break into the place. It is proposed to pay from five hundred to two thousand dollars a year to a part or full time manager to be official host of the university, to plan free programs for the student-body and to manage the concessions or services of the building, the amount to be paid him depending upon the amount of time required, his ability, and the actual service he would render.

If food of any kind is to be served in the building (there being already constructed kitchens, dumb waiters, and a banquet room for that purpose constructed, then dishes, silverware, and stoves and utensils must be purchased.

The public-spirited contribution of $80,000 from a New York alumnus as well as $30,000 from a Durham alumnus will merely complete the building and furnish sparsely a small part of the first floor. Furnishings amounting to tens of thousands of dollars could be put in the building. Some small pieces of furniture could be paid for out of the student fee, while activities housed in the building will be expected to contribute.

The eventual plant will cost $2,500,000, the present plant being worth about one-seventh or one fifth of the total. Past generations of students while still in college have contributed more than $30,000 to the building of this unit we may soon enjoy, a thing they did not expect to see the building completed while they were in the University. If there is any money left after the program outlined above is accomplished, surplusses could be used for further construction.

Again we say nothing has been decided. The board of Graham Memorial has received to date the following proposals: For the first floor—lounging room, social room, lecture room, reading room, game room, manager's office, hostess' room, woman's retiring room, checking room, information service, and guide service.

For the basement—cafeteria, bowling alley, pool tables, smoking room, barber shop, and refreshment parlor.

For the mezzanine and third floor—space for offices for the following: athletic council, student government, Buccaneer, Magazine, Yackety Yack, Daily Tar Heel, Golden Fleece, Grail, Cosmopolitan club, Amphoterathen, intra-mural department, banquet room, four rooms for committee meetings and bull sessions open at all times, as well as a manager's sleeping room.

As for the use that the building could be put to, in tabloid style we present the following ideas: lounging, "bull" sessions, games, recreation, smokers, movies, banquets, dinners, luncheons, lectures, receptions, place to meet girls and mothers, debating, activity center, meeting rooms for groups and committees, reading rooms, alumni and faculty meeting place, dating parlor with reasonable chaperonage, afternoon teas, small dances, breakfast parties, refreshments all hours of the day, self-help placement, information, checking service, etc.

As can be easily seen this is an incomplete list of the possibilities of Graham Memorial even in its first unit, and at the same time it should be realized that all of these activities will not be carried out the first year.

In the vote which will take place later this week, (the date to be decided at a meeting of the Central Administrative Council tonight) this fee will be proposed. The rising juniors and seniors will have to decide only on the advisability of reducing their present class fees which are now nine and ten dollars respectively and turning the three dollar reduction over to the use of the building.

The only class which will have to seriously consider the proposition is the rising sophomore class whose class fees are but one dollar each. On this account an entirely new fee of three dollars a year will be required. Freshmen and sophomores usually have as much school spirit as the upperclassmen and some times more. If they realize that they are getting a $500,000 club for three dollars they will not fail to vote for the opening of Graham Memorial. Particularly should non-fraternity men be concerned in the opening of the building, since they have no place now which serves as a club house.

If the student body will go to the polls to vote a substantial majority for the operation of the Graham Memorial Student Union building, then and then only will the structure in all its splendid possibilities be thrown open to every Carolina son and daughter, past and present. If they fail to vote for the fee, no amount of proof could be presented to any philanthropic alumni to prove that students really want a student union here.

The Collegiate Nonentity

Statistics are often presented by educators proving that success in an individual's academic career is a fair index to success in its wider interpretation. This is misleading and frequently actually fallacious.

The college campus turns a warm smile of approval upon two general types of individuals. They are the ones who have achieved so called "success" in either the field of literary or athletic activity. In other words it is the man who wields a fluid pen or a winning "Top Flight" who is given every chance to express himself and experience the pleasure of campus prestige. A glib tongue or fifteen inches of brawn above the elbow can get the same approval.

However, there are scores of men, unknown and "unsuccessful," on this college campus who will be happy, influential—successful, when German Club-Di Senate controversies, Yackety Yacks, and optional attendance will be matters of whimsical, historic interest, trivial and amusing. They did not find anything which demanded from them any sense of responsibility, offered any challenges, appealed to their sense of values. College life is life; granted. But it is barren of some of the numberless challenges and opportunities which open to the man of originality, determination, and intelligence when his friends are no longer concerned with mastheads, box scores, all-state choices, Golden Fleece, and master's theses.—R.W.B.

Di And Phi The Latest Racket

The attention of the nation was focused for a while on the proposed return of the Hapsburg dynasty to the throne in Austria with the becoming of age of the Archduke Otto, now in exile in Belgium. The attention was mild, however; everyone knew that the word Hapsburg was a thing of the past and that never again would royal armies march forth to conquest in the name of this once-powerful family.

A parallel may be easily observed in the recently initiated noise in the Di and Phi debating halls. Attention on the campus has been recently focused upon them; but this attention, too, is mild. Everyone knows that these moth-eaten institutions will never return to their former position of prominence and power among campus activities; they are merely echoes of what "used to was."

At one time, these two societies practically dominated every organization on the campus. It is also true that the present leaders in both politics and law throughout the state were leaders of these two societies in their time. However, the attitude of the student body has changed considerably. No longer is the gift of arguing a subject with a gum-drop in one cheek and a citrus fruit in the other considered the supreme ability of a student leader. Student organizations yawned at the prodigious attempts of would-be Ciceroes to impress an impatient audience with how much exercise could be taken with the mouth while the brain enjoyed a perfect peace. Business had to be transacted in these organizations, and they found that the further they separated their transactions from pedagogic methods the more efficient they became.

At present, these two societies have as their sole reason for existence the education of a student to think on his feet and to familiarize him with the principles of parliamentary procedure. This service in itself should be duly recognized, and for this reason the societies are to be commended. But insofar as the decisions handed down through the outcome of debates is concerned, the effect is negligible on the campus.

The recent noise in the ancient halls of these socities was caused by the determination of senators and representatives to make dear old Di and Phi once more names of power on the campus. To begin with, they have decreed that the German club shall be abolished, and that a new organization be set up to regulate dances, which organization shall be controlled by the Di and Phi. The main arguments advanced were some wild mumblings about the German club not being democratic.

As a noise, the motion is probably a mild success; some students read the articles in the Tar Heel and remembered that there was a Di and Phi. But as an argument against the present German club, it is generally acknowledged to be a flop. In the first place, they base their objections on the fact that the German club is not democratic; they cannot put their finger upon any abuse of privilege or inefficiency in administration of the campus social activities. Secondly, they imply that the Di and Phi societies are more democratic than the German club; a brief glance at the number of students in each organization would appeal to common sense in the respect that there are three hundred students in the latter and approximately fifty in the former. Thirdly, they would subject the election of officers to students who never attend any social function and have no interest in the matter at all. If a student wishes to have a voice in controlling social activities on the campus, he can join the German club. Furthermore, there is always the faculty to receive appeals in case the club should commit an injustice.—W.V.S.

HENDERSON GUEST OF SCOTLAND NECK CLUB

Last week, Dr. Archibald Henderson, in an address before the Scotland Neck Kiwanis club, said that better business conditions are to be brought about by the more extensive use of experts and scientfic methods in business.

His address was the feature of the Ladies' Night program. Lamar Stringfield also spoke, discussing the development of folk music.

(The Perfect Alibi, presented by the Carolina Playmakers, Saturday night, May 23, in Memorial hall. Reviewed by James Dawson.)

Given a play that stiff acting could not well ruin, a set that was the nearest approach to a masterpiece that we have ever seen on a Playmaker stage, and a director who knew what to make his characters do, the Carolina Playmakers emerged from the long fog on Saturday night with a production that was pleasing to the eye and often to the ear. The audience was pleased, if that means anything to you. The Playmakers were pleased, they though the play was "swell," and the acting and the audiece all that could have been desired. Anyway, the piece closed the season with something that sounded like the old-time bang of yesterday's seasons, and that is saying something for the present Playmakers.

Mary Dirnberger's set for the play was excellent. There was nothing suggestive of depression about its design or its execution. It simply clicked, which was no more than we expected of her work. The lighting throughout was well handled, especially in the midnight scene, when the table and floor lamps caught an atmosphere that aided the players immeasurably. Even the audience felt most of the tension the actors portrayed. There you have the secret, we think, of the play's success. We believe that no one else on this staff could have created so natural a mounting for the thing.

The costuming might have been a great deal better. It was done with an eye for consistently pleasing effect, but the costumer seemed to have lacked a certain sympathy with the characters. Their clothes were uniform—too decidedly, American standardized, and individuals failed to stand out with the proper clarity, due possibly to a too scanty knowledge and a too hasty consideration of the separate persons concerned in the action. John Sehon, for instance, through no fault of his own, was garbed in things that were too, too, suggestive of Stetson D (not an advt.). It was simply not true to what the young Britisher will wear this afternoon, but it was very close to what the college student will wear every afternoon.

John Sehon was only pleasant in most of his time on the stage. His gestures were easy, and he did nothing that could be called forced, but his eagerness led him into rushing his speech just a bit too much for the clear understanding of them. This almost spoiled the one scene which he delivered a flash of talent that was good to see, the midnight scene with Elizabeth Perrow.

Elizabeth Perrow underwent about the same experience. Her movements were natural and gratifying, thanks to the director, and to her own apparent interest in her role. Her best scene was also the midnight one, with John Sehon, in which both of the players conveyed the only real moment of seeming actuality in the whole play. As we say, the lighting helped greatly, and they caught the spirit of the thing with a manner that has been missing from the Playmaker stage, lo, these many moons.

Whitner Bissell, as the "crool" murderer number two was convincing enough. His obvious ease on a stage gave his character a semblance of reality that atoned for the other two performances in the play. His makeup was excellent, to the extent that he was a walking proof that all is not old that has jitters.

Arthur Marpet, as villian number one, was less convincing. His movements were too jerky for a man of Carter's age and his makeup hardly carried out the illusion of a man past middle age. He simply looked too young.

Robert Novins was wholly unbelievable. His lines were spoken with a conscious breathing and a declamatory manner that sounded like an elocution pupil. We were glad to see him take the train for London, and we lived in fear that the Inspector would call him back in for the investigation.

Marion Tatum, in her first straight role, put across her characterisation of the blase Jane with some degree of success, with the exception of the too-great emphasis she put upon her most obviously sophisticated lines. When she said: "I loathe solicitors," or that tiresomely recurring line: "Shall we tell him?", she seemed to be conscious that they were her best lines, and that the audience was meant to laugh at them. True the audience responded obligingly, and laughed in the proper places, as a well-groomed audience should, but the efforts to

(Continued on last page)

They Made Love Under The Frowning Shadow of Death! - - -

"HELL BOUND"

A Brand-New Sensation for Jaded Movie-Goers!

—with—

LOLA LANE — LLOYD HUGHES

—NOW PLAYING—

CAROLINA THEATRE

—Wednesday—

Andy Clyde Comedy
"DOG DOCTOR"
Sound News

How Will She Stand The Pitiless Glare Of The Emotional Peak?

How? 'Like this: you meet the REAL Clara Bow at last, actress touched by the divine dramatic fire!

CLARA BOW

starred in Paramount's strong stuff drama from Willard Mack's play

"Kick In"

—with—

Regis Toomey
Wynne Gibson
Juliette Compton, James Murray

You'll Admire Clara More Than Ever Before!

Intramural Decathlon Recaptured By Brown

Bunny Goodwin in Runner-up Position; Satterfield Captures Title in Novice Division.

Theron Brown, veteran track star, came through in the final event of the day yesterday afternoon to beat out Bunny Goodwin in a sensational finish, and retain his decathlon title after a stiff battle. Julius Horney, who was in the lead at the end of the first five events, was forced to drop out of competition with a leg injury. In the novice division, Billy Satterfield won by a narrow margin over George Barclay in another close race that saw five men battling their way down the finish.

Brown's final performance, the three-quarter mile run, gave him 828.5 points and the needed margin over Goodwin. His time for this event was 4:03.1. Satterfield and Barclay had a close race from beginning to end, Barclay holding a two point lead at the end of the first day's competition; but Satterfield came through in the final events yesterday afternoon to run his total for the ten events to 7814.8 while Barclay's total was 7793.9. Gus McIver followed Barclay with 7715 and Jack Morisey placed fourth with 7335.8.

Bunny Goodwin set a new record in the 120 yard low hurdles by breaking the tape in 13.4 seconds. This mark earned him 1,045 points and gave him a temporary lead over Brown. Crook Stafford finished the hurdles in 14.0 seconds to turn in the next best time among the regulars, while Gus McIver led the novices with a time of 15.1 seconds.

Stuart Chandler tossed the javelin 170 feet four inches to lead the field in this event while Brown was second with a distance of 161 feet three inches. Among the novices, Stutts placed first with 154 feet 9 1-2 inches with McIver second with a distance of 145 feet three inches.

Brodie Arnold topped the field in the broad jump with a leap of twenty feet three inches but was followed closely by Brown who had a jump of twenty feet one inch to his credit. Satterfield, with a jump of nineteen feet nine and one half inches led the novices in this event followed by Barclay who jumped 19 feet six inches.

Arnold had little trouble in taking the pole vault with a mark of twelve feet for 964 points. Brown cleared the bar at ten feet to take second in this event. McIver was first among the novices with a height of nine feet six inches.

Donnell's 3:36.4 was the best time of the day in the three-quarter mile run, but Evans ran a close second in 3:43.4. Traverton had the best mark in the novice division, running the distance in 3:52.7, but was pushed by Barclay, who broke the tape in 3:59.4.

The final results of the leaders in the regular division were Brown 8,723.9, Goodwin 8,666.2, Howard 8,367.4, Parsons 8,108. Satterfield's total in winning the novice title was 7,814.8, Barclay's 7,793.9, McIver's 7,715, Morisey's 7,335.8, and Stutts' 7,200.6.

KING WINS HIGH SCHOOL MATHEMATICS CONTEST

Walter W. King, Jr., a student in the Greensboro senior high school, was named winner of the annual state-wide mathematics contest conducted under the auspices of the North Carolina High School Academic Contests committee yesterday.

Elmer Johnson, Durham high school, and Francis Hoover, Statesville high school, received honorable mention.

BASEBALL TEAM LED BY DUNLAP

First Baseman Hits .407; Longest and Hinton Top Hurlers With Five Wins.

The Tar Heels, with a record of eight victories, three losses, and one tie, are undisputed champions of the Tri-State league, finishing with a percentage of .727. V. M. I. was second with six wins and four losses.

The new champions are the only repeaters in the league, having won the flag in 1929 as well.

Besides winning the Tri-State crown, the Tar Heels have a very good claim to the Conference title, winning ten games as contrasted against four defeats. Auburn, winner of the Dixie League flag, has amassed a league record of eleven wins and three defeats.

Paul Dunlap, soph first baseman, led the Tar Heel hitters with a .407 mark. Peacock, another sophomore, was second with a mark of .363. Henry House, a veteran, ranked third, hitting the ball at a .362 clip.

Captain-elect Longest and George Hinton led the pitchers, both winning five games while losing one. Based on a percentage basis, J. D. Shields led the hill men with three victories and no defeats.

As a team, the Tar Heels batted .309, and averaged eight runs per game. The complete record and batting averages:

	ab	h	pct.
Dunlap	86	35	.407
Peacock	77	28	.363
House	91	33	.362
Longest	17	6	.352
Potter	67	23	.343
Croom	57	19	.333
Edwards	24	8	.333
Ferebee	96	30	.312
Wyrick	87	25	.288
Blythe	53	15	.283
Powell	76	18	.237
Pattisall	10	2	.200
Hinton	18	3	.166
Shields	13	0	.000
Team	792	245	.309

Pitching Records	W.	L.
Shields	3	0
Longest	5	1
Hinton	5	1
Edwards	3	2

Harvard Men Show Increase In Height

The college generation of men at Harvard university whose fathers and grandfathers were Harvard men are growing taller according to a study made by a graduate student in anthropology. The average increase in height has been one inch for every thirty-two years, over a period of eighty years.

From a detailed measurement of the men, it is apparent that all measurements have increased with the exception of head breadth, breadth of hips, and length of the upper arm. Evidently Harvard men are more slender and taller than their fathers were, and have increased particularly in leg length.

Statistics which were gathered about 501 mothers and their daughters who had attended Wellesley, Vassar, Smith, and Mt. Holyoke, revealed that the daughters average 1 1-10th inch taller, and weighed 7.25 pounds more than their mothers. The daughters surpass their mothers in every dimension except breadth of hips, where there is a superiority, on the part of the mother's, amounting to a little more than an inch.

Their evasion of income tax indicates, we fear, discouraging moral lapses on the part of our big racketeers.—Weston Leader.

Star Centerfielder

John Peacock was a star catcher with last year's frosh nine, but was shifted to centerfield at the beginning of the season with great success, making the Daily Tar Heel's all state team.

Besides fielding with the best of them Johnny was second to Paul Dunlap in batting, hitting the ball at a .363 clip.

A. T. O.'S CAPTURE BASEBALL TITLE BEATING GRAHAM

McLaughlin Holds Dormitory Champions in Check 7-3 While Legore Gets Poor Support.

A. T. O. defeated Graham, dormitory champions, yesterday by a score of 7-3, to win the campus championship. The winners completely outclassed Graham in all departments of the game.

McLaughlin, winning pitcher, was touched for seven singles, fanning five batters. LeGore, Graham pitcher, allowed eight hits, including a home run and a double, and he struck out two men. Each hurler issued three passes to first.

A. T. O.'s big inning came in the sixth, when four runs were tallied. Hodges got to second on an error, and went home when Erickson made second on another miscue. The next man walked, and another error brought in Erickson and put Thompson on first base. Quinn walked, but Pollard, next up, flied out, but Brooker doubled to send in the third and fourth tallies.

All of the losers' runs were counted in the sixth. Three hits, one error, and a walk accounted for the scores. Smith, A. T. O. centerfielder, made a beautiful catch in this frame to steal a hit from Robbins. It was a long fly, Smith turning and running back to take the ball over his shoulder.

Smith, A. T. O., was the batting star of the game, getting three hits for four tries, one a home run. Brooker, A. T. O. catcher, connected for a double to follow Smith. LeGore and Strauss, Graham, got two apiece for four attempts.

Graham's seven errors counted heavily against them, A. T. O. taking advantage of the miscues to get runners on base.

Before the game, Graham supporters had a poster depicting A. T. O.'s burial out on the sidelines, but it was soon pushed back into the background.

Score by innings:

A. T. O.	011 004 001—7
Graham	000 003 000—3

Batteries: McLaughlin and Brooker; LeGore, Strauss, and Johnson.

Enthusiastic reformers in New York, if we sense the situation correctly, are especially eager to give three cheers without the tiger.—Boston Herald.

Boxing Started At Carolina By Bill Cox And Warren In 1924

Fort Bragg Helps Organizers Greatly in "First Hard Days;" K. O. Conway, Fort Bragg Fighter, Detailed By General Bowley as First Boxing Coach at University.

By W. N. Cox

(EDITOR'S NOTE: W. N. Cox, '25, the author of this article, is the sports editor of the Greensboro DAILY NEWS. To Mr. Cox belongs the major portion of the credit for starting boxing as an intercollegiate sport at the University, acting as manager, coach, and captain of the team. For this work, Cox received absolutely no reward from the University, although an effort to get him a manager's monogram has been made.)

When Mr. Bessen asked me to say something about the history of boxing at Carolina I thought it an easy assignment. On second thought, like W. H. Hudson in his lovable "Far Away and Long Ago" I find too much detail coming back to me without half trying. A great deal will be left unsaid, for there is not that much space.

One rainy night in January 1924 I went to Add Warren's room in Mr. Gorrell's house on Rosemary street and asked him if he would be afraid to box a Fort Bragg soldier if we could arrange a team match. Add said he would be willing to box two or three soldiers, if necessary, and since he was the leading boxing spirit in school his enthusiasm prevailed over several others and we began training for an indefinite match with soldiers from Fort Bragg.

No arrangements had been made, mind you, and no permission sought from University officials. That didn't matter much; we began serious training to meet some soldiers from Fort Bragg.

I did the talking in those days and finally gained permission to stage the matchin the Tin Can with the purpose in view of finding out how the student body would take it, how it would "look" anyway, what it was all about and if it would be worthwhile to continue the following year on an extensive scale.

Fort Bragg First Foe

Easter came and I went home and on the way back, stopped at Fort Bragg, saw a Captain Coyne, found him willing and ready to send a team of his men up to Chapel Hill for such a contest and closed the deal. No mention of money was made; we didn't have any to mention and the University was not involved.

Hard training began when I broke the news to the boys, so hard that two weeks before the match, Add Warren hit Marvin Fowler on the head so hard he broke his right thumb. That was a blow to us; but it did not slack preparations. Nobody knew what it was about, and didn't seem to care, so it was left to me to serve as promoter. I asked Mr. P. L. Burch to allow me to paint signs in his shop in the basement of Alumni building and with his aid, turned out a number of posters setting forth the essentials of the coming boxing match. The first announcements ever appearing at Carolina was placed at the intersection of walks at the corner of Battle building across from the post office. It was six feet high and a yard wide. It was a lot of hokum; but served its purpose.

Mr. Alf Pickard and Mr. Burch helped me arrange the Tin Can for the great event. The fellow who had to clean out the stables in olden times had a breeze compared to our task, for we did not know what we were doing.

Lieutenant Duff drove in town that afternoon with his soldiers and interest began picking up. I had two students collect whatever spectators wanted to donate at the doors. About $40 was realized and the soldiers ate almost that much; but did not charge us a penny for gasoline and such.

Warren K. O.'s Speight

Add was determined to box with one hand. He knocked out a man named Speight. A 120 pound youngster from Wilmington named Hall won the first boxing match for Carolina in all history by a knockout in the first round of the first bout of the evening. Hall put the show away to a good start. Gray, of New Bern, won his 135 pound bout and Jones, of Elizabeth City, now a Durham lawyer, fought a fast, clean three rounder with Brunetti, a Fort Bragg star. Quinn, now operating a furniture establishment in Durham, made a good fight and Warren knocked out his man with the use of his left. Kid Numbers, a well known Fort Bragg pug of that day, failed to arrive, so Lieutenant Duff had a flyweight named DeCero put on an exhibition.

As well as I recall, that's the way the first card went. Several members of the faculty got there late. I remember Prof. John Booker appeared in evening clothes, leaving a formal party to watch the boxing bouts.

The student body liked it. Little criticism was heard in the village and the state press was kind. Add and myself decided to push the venture the following year. The University expressed no opinion one way or the other.

Skip the summer and fall of 1924. After Christmas, I wrote Virginia, V. M. I., and Washington and Lee asking for information about their boxing schedules, guarantees and so on. They offered Carolina matches and guarantees. Fort Bragg had promised us another meet, so we were all set with four engagements.

Mr. Charley Woollen called a meeting of a committee, I forget what kind, at his home and I went before them and stated boxing's case. It was decided to let us go ahead under the usual college scholastic regulations; but not under the financial wing of the University, I mean to say, it was up to me to make the thing pay its own way.

The return match with Fort Bragg was one of the historic evenings in Carolina's athletic history. In the first place it was the largest crowd to see an athletic contest indoors at Carolina up to then. In the second place prominent people made speeches. In the third place it was a corking good show.

The University bought us a pair of medicine balls and three sets of boxing gloves prior to the meet, so the boxing team was all fixed for a great season. Add Warren was in his glory, training hard to face an Indian, Chief Malay, Fort Bragg heavyweight who had just returned from a trip to the Olympics at Amsterdam as a member of the United States team.

Villagers Help Cox

I can not tell you how we went about making preparations. There was a vast amount of work involved and again Mr. Burch and Mr. Pickard helped out. Dean Paulsen got busy a day or so before the match and had his trucks carry banners announcing the contest.

Add and myself worked with the men, kept them enthused and coaxed others to get in trim and fill in odd weights. Remember, the men had nothing to urge them to action; they were hybrid athletes of the University of North Carolina with no standing.

(Due to the limited amount of space in the TAR HEEL and the extreme length of Mr. Cox's article, it was found necessary to continue this feature in tomorrow's issue of the paper.)

AMERICAN DAVIS CUP TEAM WINS

Wood and Shields Romp Through Canadian Stars in Zone Finals.

The United States Davis Cup tennis team captured the North American zone title yesterday, eliminating Canada in the final round, four matches to one.

Sidney B. Wood, Jr., of New York, whose unexpected defeat by Marcel Rainville had given Canada its one victory on Thursday, clinched the series in the opening singles match when he upset Dr. Jack Wright, Montreal veteran, in straight sets, 8-6, 6-3, 6-4. With nothing at stake, Frank Shields, New York youngster, then romped through Rainville in the final match of the series, 6-1, 6-4, 6-1.

The United States team now will clash with Argentina, South America zone champions, at Washington Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of this week. The survivor of this series will go to Europe to meet the European zone title-holder and, in the event of victory, to battle France in the challenge round.

Wood and Wright had played one set of their match and were in the midst of the second when rain forced a postponement Saturday. They resumed play at that point with Wood leading by one set and with the score two-all in the second set.

The young New Yorker promptly won two service games and broke through Wright once to lead 5-2. The Canadian veteran rallied long enough to win on his own service but Wood ran through the ninth game in short order to win the set, 6-3.

After Wright had captured the first game of the third set on his own service, Wood ran through four games in a row. Wright won the next two to make the count, 4-3 but games followed service until Wood ran out the set and match at 6-4.

HOUSE WANTED

Wanted: House with seven or more rooms. Conveniently located near campus. Call 4351.

COLDEX

Brings Quick Relief to Thousands

You too, can stop colds and coughs with this remarkable liquid medicine that so safely gives such quick and lasting results. Just say Coldex to your druggist. Only 50c. Recommended and guaranteed by

Sutton's Drug Store

The Seeman Printery
Incorporated

For more than 46 years this company has been serving an ever-increasing number of customers.
Are you among them?
If not, try us—

110-112 Cocoran Street
Durham, N. C.

THE SMOKE SHOP
EAT WITH US DRINK WITH US

THE D. K. E. HOUSE
Will Be Open for
Summer School
Make Reservations Now

The Campus Calendar

Senior Invitations

The senior invitations have arrived and will be on sale in the book exchange at chapel period, and from 2:00 to 5:00 in the afternoon.

Radio Talk

The last radio talk of the year, sponsored each week by the student council, will be made Wednesday afternoon over station WPTF, Raleigh, from 3:30 to 3:45, when Henry Johnston, Jr., assistant dean of students, will speak on "Orientation Week for Freshmen at the University."

Business Staff

There will be an important meeting of the new business staff of the Daily Tar Heel at 2:00 this afternoon in the business office. This will be the last meeting of the staff this year.

Pre-Law Lecture Tonight

Dean C. T. McCormick will lecture on "Science in the Court Room" tonight at 7:30 in the first year room of the law building. All students interested are invited to attend.

Library Books

All library books charged to students must be returned by May 29. After that date they will be issued for forty-eight hours only.

PLAYMAKERS SET DATE FOR CAPERS

(Continued from first page)

Alibi," and various other productions of the past six months.

Dances and Songs

The specialties will include songs and dances. The dancers will be Marion Tatum and Mary Dirnberger. Additional sketches will be given by Philip Milhous, Ellen Stewart, Ann Braddy, Mary Dirnberger, Op Wolfe, Loretta Bailey, Marion Tatum, Ted Herman, and Malcolm Sewall.

The outstanding participants in Playmaker activities for the year will be awarded gold masks Saturday night. Thirty-three of these charms will be given out by Professor Koch at the close of the festival.

The caper committee which has been in charge of the preparations for Saturday night's event is composed of Ted Herman, chairman, Tom Loy, Ann Braddy, Ralph Westerman, Closs Peace, and Marion Tatum. The last rehearsal took place Monday afternoon.

ANNUAL AWARDS NIGHT CLIMAXES YEAR'S ACTIVITY

(Continued from first page)

us all, anything that would keep any student from making the most of his powers and his personality.

"Theirs is a clean excellence of body, mind, and character that has come out of an integrated and victorious personality. In them we have a democracy without vulgarity and an excellence without arrogance.

"The University is proud and glad in the awards to her sons who have won and achieved and excelled in that good life that comes from within."

Phi Beta Kappa Keys

The president of Phi Beta Kappa for the past year, Joe C. Eagles, made the presentations of the scholarship awards, announcing the names of those who had gained the distinction of making Phi Beta Kappa. There were twenty-two students who won this honor, which is awarded for excellence in scholastic attainment.

After the presentation of these awards K. C. Ramsay, president of the Publications Union board, announced the names of the winners of charms given for consistent service on the staffs of the different publications on the campus.

There were twenty-eight members of the Daily Tar Heel staff who won their charms. Eleven members of the Yackety Yack staff received charms while only eight received similar awards for work on the Carolina Magazine. Ten charms were given to members of the Buccaneer staff.

Fetzer Makes Awards

Theron Brown, president of the athletic association, introduced "Coach Bob" Fetzer, director of athletics who made the awards to the men winning distinction in athletics.

Twenty-four of the varsity football players won their letter in that sport, comparing with the twenty-nine freshmen who received their monograms.

Eight varsity cross-country men were given letters with ten members of the freshman team receiving like awards.

Eleven varsity basketball men received their letters and nine of the freshman players received their numerals.

Eight varsity boxers won their monograms and eleven of the freshmen received their letters.

Ten wrestlers on the varsity team won letters and eleven of the freshmen were likewise distinguished.

Thirteen debaters were rewarded for their work on the debating team throughout the year.

Playmaker Masks

The Playmaker mask awards were thirty-eight in number. The awards in this especial line were given for excellence in acting, playwriting, directing, costuming, and all the various duties connected with this activity.

Nine members of the University band were given recognition for their services and ten members of the glee club were similarly distinguished.

Of the varsity baseball team fourteen men won their letters, and twenty-two of the freshmen won their letters.

Fifteen freshmen gained recognition of their outstanding work on the tennis team and nine members of the varsity were rewarded.

Four varsity golfers won their numerals as did six freshmen.

Sixteen varsity track men won letters, and twenty-nine freshman tracksters won letters.

Specialty Acts

As a specialty act put on in the middle of the program in order to somewhat break the monotony of the awarding of the many athletic letters and other distinctions, Brooks Fryer, pianist, rendered several selections. Frank Jacocks, tenor also sang a few numbers. Following this the audience was entertained by a trio, composed of Wofford Humphries, John Miller, and Jack Connelly.

Haywood Weeks, president of the Order of the Grail, officiated at the presentation of the many Grail awards. C. T. Woollen, Jr., won the freshman cup, which is presented annually to the most outstanding freshman scholar-athlete. This is a very much coveted honor. Allan Smith, won the intramural scholar-athlete cup. The winner of the four plaques given by the Grail were as follows: excellence in scholarship and football, Aubrey Parsley; excellence in scholarship and basketball, Paul Edwards; excellence in scholarship and track, Archie Davis; and excellence in scholarship and baseball, Paul Edwards.

Deke Trophy

The Kappa Alpha fraternity was declared winner of the scholarship atheltic award given each year by D. K. E. to the fraternity ranking highest in scholarship and in athletics. This award was won last year by Zeta Psi. There is keen competition among the fraternity groups for this honor.

Dean H. G. Baity made the presentation of the Patterson award. This esteemed honor went to Henry House for athletic ability combined with other noteworthy characteristics.

JENKINS SPEAKS ON LEGISLATURE

(Continued from first page)

legislature were reviewed by Professor Jenkins. Among these are: passage of a highway bill, which provides for the state to take over 45,000 miles of county roads; passage of a compromise bill for the McLean act, which provides for a fifteen per cent tax on land to raise money for the operation of the schools; a bill providing for a constitutional commission to study the state government and recommend changes; a bill to consolidate the University of North Carolina, State college, and North Carolina College for Women; and a bill to hire a state purchasing agent.

THE THEATRE

(Continued from page two)

italicize the lines was too patently laboured.

Susan Creech was perhaps the best character of the play, in spite of her very small part. Her scene with the Sergeant Mallet was beautifully done, from entrance to exit. She was sufficiently coy, fawning, affected, and her character was not a bit overdrawn.

William Chandler was another of the several that were not convincingly old. At best, Arthur Ludgrove had to be sixty, and Chandler moved about with just a little too much ease for such a man. His voice was young, and not even his excellent makeup could hide his youth. William Allsbrook made an adequate butler.

Charles Elledge overplayed the Constable to a degree that was little short of painful. He was apparently ridden with shades of the folk things he has done in the past, and his character was unbelievable. However effective he may be at playing Norwegians (!) and mountaineers, his British policeman was a thing to make you want him back in his old Playmaker mountains.

Tom Loy was quite acceptable as Sergeant Mallet. His best scene, the one in which he eliminated the possibilities of murder and accident for the benefit of his admiring father and the son of the murdered man, was done with a sincere understanding of the mind of the young probationer from Scotland yard. He even looked his part, a thing that is hard to say for the rest of the cast, with the exception of Whit Bissell.

The whole play left the impression that either the author or the players were kidding mystery plays.

Most to be congratulated are Mary Dirnberger, for a set that warmed our heart, Sam Selden, for a direction that smoothed off the worst edges of some bad actors, Bess Winburn, Helen Dortch, Mary Dirnberger (again!), and Pen Harrison, for some adequate makeup, and the several light men. Home paper please copy.

The whole show went across with something like the old manner. It proved several things. Among the most obvious of the conclusions, if the least flattering, were that it takes more than bad actors to ruin a good play. And (to be whispered in awed voices) it was easily evident that even the players are more interested in good plays than in the things they have been trying to lift to the level of entertainment. They went about attacking the meaty lines with a delight that could have been nothing but relief at getting away from those Village Purples, those Blue Forgotten Glenhursts, those Houses of Pale Angels, and those Git up and Be a Bettin' Man.

Playmaker Exhibit

This afternoon from 4:30 to 6:00, in Person hall, there will be an exhibit of stage models and period costumes. The models were made by students in English 36, Professor Selden's class in theatre arts, and the costumes gathered together by Mrs. Ruth Valentine.

AWARDS NIGHT WINNERS

PHI BETA KAPPA

Lankford Joseph Felton
John Andrews
William McRae Bell
John S. Bivens
William Merlin Bliss
Woodward Leavenworth Boynton
William Thomas Braswell, Jr.
Oscar Welborn Holland Dresslar
Mathew Pollock Gilmour
Benjamin Benson Lane, Jr.
David Craig McClure
Jule McMichael
Frank Joseph Manheim
Otto Ralph Drummond Massey
Reeme Moore
Paul Heilig Rhodes
Robert Howard Schnell
Emil Nathaniel Schaffner
Joseph Carlyle Sitterson
Benjamin Hawkins Smith, Jr.
Alden Joseph Stahr
Charles Digby Wardlaw, Jr.

TAR HEEL

Beverly Moore
H. V. Worth
Virginia Douglas
J. C. Sitterson
M. M. Bryson
Ed. French
William McKee
E. C. Daniel
George Wilson
Donald Shoemaker
Jack Bessen
C. G. Rose
Mary Buie
Bob Betts
W. A. Shulenberger
Otto Steinreich
T. H. Broughton
Philip Alston
Claiborn Carr
Peter Hairston

Business Staff

H. N. Patterson
Harlan Jameson
John Manning
Albert Olmstead
R. D. McMillan
Pendleton Gray
Bernard Solomon
Ed. Michaels

YACKETY YACK

Douglas Kincaid
Ed. Kidd
Henry Parsley
Herbert Taylor
Henry Anderson
Holmes Davis
Harold Staton
Billy Walker

Business Staff

Travis Brown
Steve Marsh
Sam Silverstein

BUCCANEER

Walter Mason
William Duflock
Tom Worrall
Kent Creuser
John McCoy
Ned Wheeler
Joe Fox

Business Staff

J. C. Harris
C. P. Sims
William Davis

CAROLINA MAGAZINE

J. C. Williams
H. N. Patterson
D. C. McClure
Joe Jones
Philip Liskin
Vernon Crook
T. B. Rector
C. A. Shreve

VARSITY FOOTBALL

Erwin Walker
George Thompson
Harry Hodges
Robert Blackwood
H. S. McIver
Ned Lipscomb
J. U. Gilbreath
Ellis Fysal
Herbert Newcombe
June Underwood
Roy McDade
R. A. Parsley
T. R. Brown
Pete Wyrick
John Branch
Jim Magner
James Maus
S. M. Chandler
Henry House
F. W. Slusser
C. P. Erickson
Strud Nash
P. B. Ruffin, Mgr.
J. V. Lindley, Mgr.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL

J. C. Adair
R. P. Anacaustas
C. T. Barclay
G. F. Brandt
W. H. Crane
S. S. Eanes
J. C. Frankel
J. A. Gardner
N. A. Hackney
Robert Harrington
G. P. Johnson
C. M. Jones
W. R. Jones
E. B. Kahn
M. J. McGill
E. C. Mullis
J. M. Phipps
P. G. Rankin
B. J. Shore
M. E. Strickland
J. M. Tatum
Alexander Weisker
H. K. Whitener
R. E. Wilson
C. T. Woollen, Jr.

VARSITY CROSS COUNTRY

C. R. Baucom
T. L. Cordle
J. B. Farris
R. B. Hubbard
C. A. Jensen
M. M. Jones
J. H. Pratt
G. F. Newman (Manager)

FRESHMAN CROSS COUNTRY

J. B. Farr
A. J. Gabriel
W. R. Groover
T. A. Henson
D. S. Kimrey
E. E. McRae
H. G. Mead
L. G. Sullivan
H. E. Vitz
J. O. Zimmerman

VARSITY BASKETBALL

E. P. Dameron
A. R. Marpet
T. W. Alexander, Jr.
J. P. Edwards
W. M. Hines
J. E. Moore
W. W. Smith
Page Choate
T. M. Cleland
C. W. Constantine (Mgr.-deceased)
C. L. Royster (Manager)

FRESHMAN BASKETBALL

V. S. Weathers
K. F. Fisher
B. C. Nalle
N. W. Collett
E. A. Minor
J. A. McGlinn
C. M. Jones
D. D. McCachren
W. C. Harris, Jr.

VARSITY BOXING

Martin Levinson
H. D. Holderness
G. O. Davis
Noah Goodridge
P. W. Landis
J. M. Warren
Clarence Weeks, Mgr.
W. N. Cox (Mgr. 1924-1925)

FRESHMAN BOXING

W. A. Allsbrook
P. R. Brown
C. C. Glover
V. C. Guthrie
P. L. Hudson
B. B. Langdon
J. A. Nicholson
L. B. Pace
F. B. Raymer
J. E. Wadsworth
J. L. Williams

VARSITY WRESTLING

P. C. Usher
F. L. Stallings
R. M. Albright
D. R. Conklin
Harry Tsumas
P. C. Idol
M. R. Cowper
F. J. Ferguson
K. L. Hampton
Wallace Case (Manager)

FRESHMAN WRESTLING

W. H. Hussey
T. S. Bennett
Ansley Cope
M. J. Best
C. E. Cahoon
H. S. Thompson
S. L. Efland
R. R. Wells
S. D. Walens
F. W. Blythe
H. W. Beebe
C. P. Jones
M. P. Hiller

DEBATING

J. M. Baley
E. E. Erickson
McBride Fleming-Jones
E. L. Haywood
H. H. Hobgood
D. M. Lacy
R. A. Merritt
C. A. Shreve
J. W. Slaughter
W. W. Speight
C. D. Wardlaw
F. C. Wardlaw
J. C. Williams

PLAYMAKER MASK AWARDS

Brickman, Evelyn	Acting	Milhous, Philip	Experimental production
Buttitta, Anthony	Playwriting	Novins, Robert	Business
Carroll, D. D., Jr.	Acting	Perrow, Elizabeth	Acting
Clark, Heywood	Properties	Proctor, Robert	Stage management
Crum, Charles	Lighting	Queen, James	Acting
Elledge, Charles	Acting	Sehon, John	Acting
Ewart, Aileen	Acting	Stewart, Ellen	Playwriting
Figgat, William	Acting	Stringfield, Lamar	Music
Fussler, Irene	Playwriting	Tatum, Marian	Acting
Good, Marjorie	Acting	Taylor, Charles	Properties
Grotyohann, Walter	Directing	Valentine, Ruth	Costuming
Harris, William	Business	Vaughan, Evan	Acting
Herman, Theodore	Playwriting	Ward, Horace	Acting
Hudson, Arthur Palmer	Playwriting	Westerman, Ralph	Acting
Jess, Everett	Acting	Wilson, George	Business
Koch, Bobby	Acting	Winburn, Bess Jones	Acting
Kluttz, Mrs. A. A.	Stage furnishings	Wood, Donald	Acting
Lankford, Robert	Acting	Wood, Henry	Acting
Loy, Thomas	Playwriting
Meyer, Julien	Technical

UNIVERSITY BAND

William Abernethy
H. A. Brooks
John Clinard, Jr.
Archie R. Davis
S. W. Fleming
F. G. Jacocks, Jr.
J. W. Stallings
A. S. Lawrence
J. E. Wall

GLEE CLUB

Charles Duffy
Alden Stahr
William C. Barfield
J. W. Slaughter
Kenneth Wilson
T. W. Bremer
Earnest L. Midgett
J. Dodd Linker
George J. Trull
George T. Winston

VARSITY BASEBALL

C. E. Blythe
W. D. Croom
J. P. Dunlap
J. P. Edwards
E. C. Ferebee
G. R. Hinton
H. C. House
E. C. Longest
J. G. Peacock
W. H. Potter, Capt.
W. G. Powell
J. D. Shields
C. L. Wyrick
A. deL. Sickles (Mgr.)

FRESHMAN BASEBALL

J. C. Adair
G. F. Brandt
H. L. Colyer
J. H. Coxe
S. D. Cranford
F. P. Crouch
A. J. DeRose
K. F. Fisher
J. C. Frankel
E. G. McIver, Jr.
F. M. Matheson
B. C. Nalle, Jr.
J. A. Parker
H. L. Phipps
J. M. Phipps
M. E. Strickland
J. M. Tatum
D. B. Taylor
V. S. Weathers
T. H. Whitley
C. T. Woollen, Jr.
L. E. Yerton

VARSITY TENNIS

E. K. Graham, Capt.
Bryan Grant
H. H. Hendlin
Wilmer Hines
L. C. Wright
E. D. Yeomans
Philip Liskin
Lucas Abels

FRESHMAN TENNIS

M. H. Bennett
Merl Carson
G. H. Currie
J. H. D'Alemberte, Jr.
J. R. Dillard
G. M. Fieldman
W. C. Harris
E. A. Minor
David Morgan
E. P. Odum
C. A. Poe
Sid Rosen
L. S. Rosenstrauch
H. F. Shuford
Seth Dockery

VARSITY GOLF

Joe Adams
A. M. Brown
Ben Goodes
Beverly Mason

FRESHMAN GOLF

Archie Glenn
W. W. Hamm
Gwyn Harper
E. G. Michaels
Alan Smith
L. P. Tyree

VARSITY TRACK

B. D. Arnold
G. L. Bagby
C. R. Baucom
T. R. Brown
E. P. Dameron
A. K. Davis
R. W. Drane
R. B. Hubbard
M. M. Jones
K. M. Marland
R. J. Ruble
J. K. Smith
F. W. Slusser
T. H. Watkins
L. S. Weil
Wm. Dunn, Jr. (Manager)

FRESHMAN TRACK

S. A. Ashkenas
W. F. Blount
W. W. Bonner
G. F. Brandt
W. H. Bullock
A. S. Dockery
S. L. Efland
J. B. Farr
R. W. Gold
B. C. Goodwin
W. C. Groover
M. W. Glenn
T. A. Hensen
F. D. Higby
J. B. Horney
D. S. Kimrey
F. R. LeGore
Henry McBrair
J. A. McGlinn
E. E. McRae
H. G. Mead
O. L. Mullis
P. A. Nicholson
J. M. Phipps
R. A. Reid
H. S. Sullivan
L. G. Sullivan
H. E. Vitz
Alexander Weisker

RADIO TALK
HENRY JOHNSTON
WPTF — 3:30

The Daily Tar Heel

RADIO TALK
HENRY JOHNSTON
WPTF — 3:30

VOLUME XXXIX | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., WEDNESDAY, MAY 27, 1931 | NUMBER 181

DEAN M'CORMICK RELATES SCIENCE TO MODERN LAW

New Psychological Methods of of Detecting Crime Explained in Last Pre-Law Lecture.

Dean C. T. McCormick of the law school delivered the concluding lecture of the pre-law series before a large group of law students and faculty members last night in the first year room of the law building. In the beginning Mr. McCormick stated that he chose as his subject, "Science in the Court Room" beceause he could speak freely about science, since he was not handicapped by any of the doubts that come from knowledge of the subject. He also stated that at the outset to observe that it is the criminal—the enemy of society—who has done most to make the lawyer learn the lessons of science.

Law and Science

He said, "while scientific data of any conceivable kind may come before a court in innumerable kinds of litigation, and especially in litigation over patents and under the food and drugs acts, yet the scientific facts with which the average lawyer is most likely to have to reckon with in the courtroom, are those which concern the detection of some type of criminal wrong-doing."

Mr. McCormick explained the ones which seemed to him to be the most important, which are: (1) the microscopic examination of dust and fragments found at the scene of a crime; (2) the identification of firearms and bullets; (3) identification of hand-writing and typewritings; (4) finger-print evidence, and (5) the detection of conscious lying or deception by psychological methods. In discussing the last one, he said: "I will mention only briefly a field where the science of psy-

(Continued on last page)

NINETY-NINE TO GRADUATE FROM DAVIDSON JUNE 1

The program for the ninety-fifth commencement in the history of Davidson college will begin Monday, June 1, and will continue through Wednesday. The ceremonies are to be opened with the baccalaureate sermon by one of America's most noted divines, Dr. John Timothy Stone, president of the Presbyterian Theological seminary in Chicago. He will deliver the address to the seniors Sunday week, and in the evening Dr. James L. Fowle, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Chattanooga, Tenn., will preach the final sermon before the Davidson Y. M. C. A.

Monday of commencement week will be featured by the assembly of a distinguished group of Davidson alumni who are returning to Davidson from over twelve states for the initial meeting of a new alumni council, the outgrowth of a reorganization of the alumni association.

In the afternoon of the same day the final official class meeting will take place with speakers selected from the graduates making addresses to the assembled gathering.

The program for the week will be concluded on Wednesday with the awarding of degrees to ninety-nine seniors, the presentation of medals, and the conferring of honorary degrees upon six prominent men.

Architect's Drawing of New Student Center

Pictured above is the architect's drawing of Graham Memorial as it will appear when entirely completed. The center section, which will be finished during the coming summer, will serve as a student center and will possibly house the offices of the Daily Tar Heel. A committee of students and faculty members now have plans under way for dividing space in the building for next year, if it is considered wise to maintain the building at that time.

Definite plans have not been made for the completion of the wings. The estimated cost of the entire structure will be $2,500,000.

EGYPTIAN RELICS GIVEN TO LIBRARY

Rare Archaeological Finds, Gifts of M. P. Gilmour, Are On Display.

A blue faience Egyptian necklace and an Egyptian copper mirror, both presented to the University as a part of a collection of archaeological specimens by Matthew P. Gilmour, '31, are being displayed in the main lobby of the University library.

The mirror is a disc of copper about three and a half inches in diameter which was originally polished to afford a reflection. The use of polished metal for mirrors was common before the employment of mercury for silvering a sheet of glass to provide a reflecting surface. This mirror is no longer polished, the surface being corroded with age. It is affixed in a wooden handle which is probably not original.

Rare Necklace

Faience is a type of pottery, being composed of a terra cotta base with a glass-like glaze. In Egypt it was made in a wide variety of colors, blue and red being the most popular. The necklace on display is blue and probably of a late period. It has suspended from it an amulet representing a scarab, or sacred beetle, which was identified with one of the Egyptian gods. The scarab was a popular type of amulet much used as a good-luck charm among the ancient Egyptians. This one appears to be of relatively late manufacture, no doubt being cast from a terra cotta mold and manufactured in considerable quantity. The necklace is exhibited in a case with colored photographs illustrating other types of Egyptian faience.

ASTRONOMY STUDENTS SEE SATURNALIAN RINGS

A telescopic view of the planet Saturn took place on the roof of Phillips hall from midnight until 1:30 A. M. on Monday night. Although the observation was not announced to the public quite a large number gathered on the roof where Dr. Karl Fussler of the physics department was in charge.

Even with the small telescope that the University possesses the rings around the planet were distinctly discernible. With a larger telescope the results would undoubtedly have been more gratifying, and a clearer view of what is probably the most beautiful heavenly body next to the moon might have been obtained.

SIGMA XI SOCIETY HEARS STUHLMAN

Dr. John Couch Installed as Newly-Elected President at Fraternity Dinner.

The Sigma Xi society gave a dinner Tuesday night at 6:30 at the Carolina Inn. Immediately after the dinner the members taken into the society were initiated, the proceedings being headed by the retiring president, Dr. Otto Stuhlman.

Dr. John Couch and Ralph Bost, the new president and vice-president respectively, were then installed.

Stuhlman Speaks

For the first time in the history of the society here, the retiring president delivered a closing address. The title of Dr. Stuhlman's talk was "What Lies Beyond the Axioms of Rational Sciences."

The discussion that followed raised such questions as to the probable historical sequence of the development of the concepts of dimensional space and time. The question also arose as to whether there is a natural clock other than the one in the form of the atom as proposed by Einstein.

Another problem brought out in the address and discussed was the historical reason for thinking in terms of mechanical models of the physical universe. The reason for such thinking is due to the training that is more or less the same with all of us.

The speech also developed some new ideas in the flow of a gravitational field and showed that the flux of the gravitational field in time is synonomous with the mechanical force concept.

Universities Frown On Compulsory Training

Compulsory military training in the form of R. O. T. C. work recently received a setback in the form of a vote for optional drill by the faculties of Cornell and Ohio State universities. California is also rousing opposition in a petition arranged by the students and having 2,000 signers.

The resolutions are in neither case final, but must go to the boards of trustees of the various schools. Student agitation preceded the faculty resolutions in the two former cases, while in the latter the matter has not been brought to a vote.

The local chapter of the Phi Alpha fraternity announces the pledging of Otto S. Steinreich of Newark, New Jersey.

DUNGAN ELECTED PRESIDENT OF DI

This Year's Treasurer Defeats Clyde Shreve in Election Last Night.

Jack Dungan defeated Clyde Shreve for the presidency of the Dialetic senate for the coming fall quarter at the meeting of the organization last night. The vote was 27 to 12.

Three of the other four offices were filled without opposition. Bill McKee was chosen president pro-tem; George Malone, clerk; and Bob Howell, sergeant-at-arms. McBride Fleming-Jones and B. G. Gentry were nominated for the position of critic with Fleming-Jones winning by the vote of 21-9.

Much Squabbling

Following the vote on the presidential candidates there was a long discusion on the floor between members of the two factions as to who had the right to vote. The squabbling was finally stopped after much needless discussion by the ruling of President Ramsay that all could vote who had paid their yearly dues. Even this ruling was appealed, but the president was upheld by the senate.

As this was the last meeting of the year reports were made by the various standing committees and by the sergeant-at-arms, clerk, and treasurer. This was also the appointed meeting for the formal initiation of new members and Winfield Blackwell and Arthur Valk became full fledged members.

Senators Clyde Shreve and Carlyle Rutledge were chosen as the two representatives of the society in the Bingham medal contest with the Phi assembly during commencement.

TAU KAPPA ALPHA TAKES IN EIGHT NEW INITIATES

Following a long list of speeches on various subjects such as "Girth Control" and "The Woman of Tomorrow" which were delivered with all the eloquence which characterized the ancient Roman orators during the period of Cicero, the Tau Kappa Alpha honorary forensic fraternity took in the following men: C. A. Shreve, T. Beatty Rector, C. D. Wardlaw, F. C. Wardlaw, E. E. Erickson, D. M. Lacy, R. A. Merritt, and J. W. Slaughter.

Following the initiation McBride Fleming-Jones was elected president of the organization, and Clyde A. Shreve was chosen clerk.

Hobgood Announces Executive Committee

Hamilton Hobgood, president of the rising senior class, has announced the members of the executive committee for next year. They are: Sam Breen, chairman; T. W. Alexander, H. G. Bowman, L. P. Brooker, John Phil Cooper, George Dannenbaum, Jack Dungan, Ed French, Wofford Humphries, F. M. James, Harlan Jameson, Walter Mason, Graham Trott, W. E. Uzzell, and Craig Wall.

PLAYMAKER CLASS PUTS ON EXHIBIT IN PERSON HALL

An unusually interesting and novel exhibit of the work done by the students in the course of practical dramatics was on view to the public yesterday in Person hall. This showing, the Playmaker exhibit of abstract models and costumes, was prepared wholly by the members of Professor Samuel Selden's class in English thirty-six, a course in practical play writing and production.

In the array of models in miniature representing abstract ideas many subtel and delicate moods were portrayed by such subjects as: exaltation, mystery, oppression, and speed. Each of these topics was the attempt of the individual student to give his practical interpretation of the subject assigned to him to express.

Beside these abstractions were found many similar models prepared as concrete examples of the stage manager's art. Actual plays were the subjects of each of these miniatures. In making the scenes for these the student endeavored to give his own interpretation of the basic mood underlying the play and to express it in the coloring and arrangement of the stage properties.

The costume division of this exhibit is the result of the recent contributions to the Playmakers on the part of the persons in Chapel Hill and elsewhere of many period costumes and garments. Among these are found dresses of such forgotten date as to arouse reminiscences of the Victorian era. The majority of the costumes in this section have been received only recently.

Graduate Students To Take Examinations

The remaining oral examinations for doctors degrees are scheduled to be given by the various graduate departments on Friday and Saturday of this week and Monday of the following.

The Friday examination will be that of James Ruey Patrick for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in the department of psychology at 7:30 in 207 New West. Members of the graduate faculty in the division of mathematics and the sciences are invited to attend.

On Saturday the oral examination of Miss Mary Watters for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in the department of history and government will be held in Saunders 313 at 9:30 A. M. Monday at 2:30 P. M. Charles B. Cauthen will also be orally examined for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in the department of history and government. All members of the graduate faculty in the division of philosophy and political and social sciences are asked to be present.

VOTE TOMORROW DECIDES FATE OF STUDENT CENTER

Campus to Say Whether or Not They Will Pay Dollar Fee For Union Up-keep.

Tomorrow has been set by Mayne Albright, president of the student union, as the day on which the vote is to be taken to decide whether or not the student body will have the use of Graham Memorial during the coming year.

The election will take place in the Y. M. C. A. and the polls will be open from 9:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m. The question to be decided is whether or not the students are willing to pay a fee of one dollar a quarter for the maintenance and furnishing of the union.

Means of Financing

The student activities committee met several weeks ago, and it was at this meeting that the proposed plan of financing the up-keep of the building was brought up.

There will be no change in the present fee of the junior and senior classes as these fees have already been too large, but three dollars a year will be added to the fees of the two lower classes if the vote tomorrow is favorable. C. T. Woollen, business manager of the University, made out a budget of what he considered would be the necessary amount needed to furnish and maintain the memorial for the first year. It was from Wollen's estimate that the proposed fee of one dollar per quarter was worked out.

FRESHMAN GROUP CLOSES PROGRAM OF SCHOOL YEAR

This year's freshman friendship council met for the last time Monday night in the Y. M. C. A. lobby. Graham McLeod, president of the group, reviewed the council's activities during the past year, and then asked the president of next year's sophomore cabinet, John Acee, to take charge. Acee urged the members to continue their relations to the "Y" through the sophomore cabinet.

"Pardner" James, president of the "Y" was present and invited the group to join heartily into the "Y's" program for next year. James hopes to bring about an increased emphasis on the religious aspect of the program on the campus and is appealing at every opportunity for a larger number of actively participating students in the "Y" work.

After adjournment refreshments were served. "Red" Greene and "Slim" Medford were present for this part of the program. "Pat" Patterson was late. Mr. E. Carrington Smith of the Carolina Theatre was host to the group at the 9:00 o'clock show.

MEYER IN GEORGIA TODAY

Harold D. Meyer, professor of sociology and supervisor of field work in the University of North Carolina, delivered the commencement address today at Georgia State Teachers college in Athens, Georgia.

Professor Meyer is a native of Georgia and was educated at the University of Georgia, where he received his A. B. degree in 1912 and his master's in 1916.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays. Entered as Second Class matter at the post office at Chapel Hill, N. C., under Act of March 3, 1879.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $4.00 for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

Jack Dungan.....Editor
H. N. Patterson.....Bus. Mgr.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Ed French.....Mng. Ed.

Editorial Board

Charles G. Rose.....Chairman
J. M. Little — Frank J. Manheim
W. M. Bryson — Will Yarborough
Alden Stahr — Bob Barnett
Wex Malone — K. C. Ramsay

Assignment Editors
Otto S. Steinreich
Dan Kelly, Assistant

Sunday Editor
Charles G. Rose

City Editors
Bill McKee — George Wilson
Peter Hairston — Jack Riley

Desk Men
W. R. Woerner — Don Shoemaker
Frank Hawley — T. W. Blackwell
Vass Shepherd

Sports Staff
Jack Bessen.....Sports Editor

Assistants
T. H. Broughton — P. Alston

News Men
E. M. Spruill — F. W. Ashley
W. E. Davis — Claiborn Carr
Charles Poe

Reporters
Saul Gordon — Bob Reynolds
Woodward Glenn — M. V. Barnhill, Jr.
William Blount — W. F. Lee
U. B. Phillips — M. H. Long
Tom Walker — W. L. Gray
Ronald Kochendorfer — Walker Stamps
Phil Sasser

BUSINESS STAFF

Hal Worth.....Circulation Mgr.
Harlan Jameson.....Ass't. Bus. Mgr.
John Manning.....Ass't. Bus. Mgr.

Advertising Department

Al L. Olmstead.....Advertising Mgr.
Pendleton Gray.....Advertising Mgr.
Bernard Solomon.....Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
R. D. McMillan, Jr.....Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
James N. Nowell — H. A. Clark

Collection Department

Jack Hammer.....Collection Mgr.
John Barrow — Frank S. Dale
Stokes Adderton — Jack Stokes

Correspondence Department

Ed Michaels, Jr.....Correspondence Mgr.
Wynn Hamm.....Ass't. Cor. Mgr.

Wednesday, May 27, 1931

Sam Barber, Colored

Sam Barber, local colored waiter, was driving to town to buy a pint of kerosene. There were no electric lights in his little unpainted cottage and Sam knew that he would have to sit up all night by his kerosene lamps. His youngest child was dying. It was seven or a little past when he drove up in front of the Model Market. He was driving so slowly that his motor almost stopped. He choked the motor, mashed the accelerator down and speeded up the motor for an instant. Then he coasted slowly into a parking space. The car was a Ford of ancient vintage efficient enough but by no means a luxurious vehicle. Sam climbed down from the running board tired and heartsick. Traffic cop R— accosted him brusquely and demanded, "Sam, get that car fixed! It makes too much noise." Sam, hardly looking up asks what's the matter with it. Cop R— incensed at a reply tells Sam to go to the garage and have it fixed. Sam still wonders what's the matter. Cop R— asks Sam who he's talking to. Sam tells him. R— says he will lock him up. Sam tells him that his child is dying. R— repeats that he will lock Sam up. Sam says go ahead. R— grabs his arm and starts to drag him off. He knows but ignores the fact that Sam ought to be back by the bed of his dying child. Another colored person, a bystander, protests and appeals to R— on account of the child. R— gruffly lets Sam go. Sam buys a dime's worth of kerosene and goes back to his dimly lit room to watch his child pass away.

* * *

It is barely possible that R—'s sympathy and understanding is quite angelic according to current local standards. To our way of thinking though it is typical of the discriminating injustice and harsh, unreasoning pressure placed upon members of a certain category of our local population.

A colored individual pours five gallons of home brew out his back window just in time not to be caught and gets four months on the road nevertheless. Feature this occuring to a Kappa Phi Alpha or a Gamma Nu. A colored waiter has not the money to oil the springs in his '24 Ford, is caught by the arm and dragged along for several yards jail-ward. Picture that happening to a citizen of "I", or Grimes.

Chapel Hill is liberal. Chapel Hill is tolerant. Chapel Hill leads the state. It is all quite true, perhaps, comparatively speaking but often and much too often this enlightenment is so shallow as to be almost farcical.—R. W. B.

Poppies and Tin Soldiers

On May twenty-third the usual swarm of non-combatants "covered" the strategic points on the Chapel Hill sidewalks and succeeded in embarrassing many people into buying their crimson wares. Poppies are pretty flowers, and the cause in which they were sold was good, but the method is fast becoming odious to the pedestrian public.

On the day of the poppy sale a pedestrian could scarcely walk down the sidewalk in peace without being importuned at every step to buy a flower. It became both monotonous and annoying. People enjoy giving to charitable causes when they can do it voluntarily, but they dislike being pestered.

The day following the sale of these beautiful yet grim reminders of a world tragedy, a colored chapter of the American legion paraded through town. Brilliant uniforms, shiny nickeled helmets, and drums and bugles made the men look for all the world like an array of tin soldiers, who "marched down the street and marched back again." This colorful display, too, was meant to be a reminder, but the effect was somehow incongruous.

It was a case of a reminder one day and a prediction the next; a poor policy of advertising a militaristic mistake with a further display of militarism. In a world clamoring for permanent peace, parading tin soldiers are decidedly out of place.

Poppies and tin soldiers, World War and Future War—the American Legion employs a peculiarly unhappy symbolism. —A.J.S.

Testing Time

Within the next week now Carolina's nationally famous honor system will be put to a strenuous test. Since its establishment on the campus years ago, it has successfully weathered several such storms, and through its efficient service has come to be looked upon by members of the student-body as a part of this institution.

The final examinations this year will be merely another testing time for the system. It will afford an opportunity for the honor code to show whether it is still capable of governing student class-work and activities on the campus. It will be no more of a testing time than an ordinary quiz, but if the system does not prove its worth it will no longer be as powerful as it is today.

No matter how many members there are on the student council, or how many of these are in each class-room, unless the pupils themselves support and believe in the system, it will no longer be of any value.

There have been several indications here recently which seem to show wherein some are not entirely satisfied with the manner in which the system is working. Several professors still demand that their students hand in written reports of all parallel reading; students were required to sign their name to the ballots in recent elections; the election ballots and the dance tickets were both stamped to avoid duplication; old-time "honor boxes" were forced to be abandoned; and several other such instances seem to indicate a decline in the system.

But this is no fault of the system itself. It can be no stronger than the support it is given. It can not continue to function in its proper manner unless it is backed by the student body.

The continuation and success of the University of North Carolina honor system is in the hands of the students. Ignore it and it will lose its efficiency; observe it and it will continue to serve as a system of student government here, and as an example for other colleges and universities who now point to this campus as one perfectly governed by the honor system.—C.G.R.

Speaking The Campus Mind

Cobb Pays Own Way

Editor the Daily Tar Heel:

Your cub reporter or your rewrite man had things rather mixed in your Sunday issue; but having been a newspaper man myself I can understand it perfectly. The campus has been suffering from rumortism as well as from measles and other infantile diseases this spring.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Grumman is to offer a transcontinental trip with courses in geology and geography conducted by some member of our department, and the college will give credit for these.

My attendance on the International Congress of Geography in Paris, where I am to read a paper, is wholly at my own expense, as all my trips have been, whether to geological, geographical, or mining meetings. Only once have I ever drawn any money to pay for a trip to our own geological society, and I divided that between two members of the department.

The department of geology has always been inadequately supported, and I have made contributions to it every year, books, apparatus, specimens, assistant's pay, and for a short time for a departmental librarian. My summers used to bring me in a small income from lectures or work as a mining engineer.

COLLIER COBB.

Answer to "Di and Phi Racket"

Editor the Daily Tar Heel:

Yesterday a man signing his name W. V. S. made false and unfounded charges against the Di and Phi. We wish to make answer to these.

W. V. S. states that the recent noise of the societies over the German club was merely to make Di and Phi names of power. May we say that the sole object is to remove the power of an organization of which the students disapprove. There is no reason why things pertaining to the campus life should not be discussed in the societies, or why needed changes should not be started by members of these societies.

Those who were present at the meetings in which the German club was discussed know that the arguments were not "wild mumblings." In fact, it is recognized that the German club is not democratic; when asked if they themselves thought it so, the members evaded the question, and never answered. We defy anyone to show us wherein the German club is democratic.

Contrary to the statement of W. V. S., the movement is not a "flop." Out of about 300 people whose opinions have been asked, there has been no expression of failure. Even a number of the German club members admit that there would be no question about the outcome of a campus vote. The other day a member of the club was approached with the petition; he said, "No, I won't sign it. I'll admit that the German club is a graft; but I'm in on that graft, and would hate to see it go." This is not a fake story; it actually happened.

As to the Di and Phi wishing to get control of social activities, we strongly deny it. The only purpose in having these bodies represented on the proposed new committee was that the societies are representative of the campus. But the members of the Di and Phi state that representation is of no importance, and that they are perfectly willing for the proposed Di and Phi members to be taken off. It has also been thought, if the student body favors it, that the German club should be represented. The Di and Phi are merely starting the movement; it is for the students to make the decision as to their choice.

Signed,
BILL SPRADLIN.
BILL SPEIGHT.
CLYDE SHREVE.
T. B. RECTOR.

Close Graham Memorial For Wealthy Donor

This adding a dollar or so a year to the student fees for this worthwhile reason or that altruistic benefit has become an institution, at the University of North Carolina. Now comes the sudden declaration from the so-called "campus leaders" that students to come should pay three dollars a year to complete Graham Memorial building . . . The passage of this bill to be voted . . . would . . . tap an already drained source; it would hit the self-help group of students—three-fourths of the Carolina student body, according to figures at the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Bradshaw informed many of these people that most of the University loan funds are exhausted. Chiefly from these would the revenue now demanded have to come, and they are in no position to complete a social center.

Besides, the resolution to put over this bill is too sudden, and seems to be rushed through without giving anyone a chance to think it over and change his

(Continued on last page)

Student Government

On Thursday, May 28, 1931, the polls will be open from 9:00 to 5:00 o'clock to allow students to provide themselves with a Student Union. Other student generations have contributed so liberally that the Union Building—so long hoped for—now stands finished, with its spacious halls ready to receive and to enrich student life in the University.

In September the building will stand completed, furnished, and paid for; but unless the student body is willing to operate it, its doors must remain closed. It is a student concern and must be supported by student funds.

A minimum budget of $6,000 for the first year to cover maintenance, management, and operating costs, is the sum agreed upon by the Graham Memorial Committee and endorsed by the Student Activities Committee. An assessment of $1.00 a quarter from each student will provide this amount. It is a trivial sum for the value to be received by the individual student and by the University.

It is unthinkable that the students of this institution will fail to support so worthy a cause.

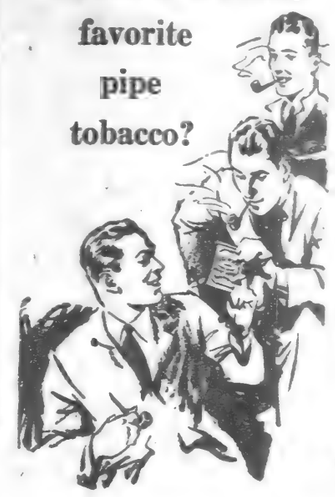
MAYNE ALBRIGHT,
Pres. Student Union.

The student council wishes to report to the student union its action in the following cases:

Cases No. 36, 37, and 38: Three bad check cases were settled satisfactorily without the necessity of disciplinary action

(Continued on last page)

The Seeman Printery
Incorporated



For more than 46 years this company has been serving an ever-increasing number of customers.
Are you among them?
If not, try us—

110-112 Cocoran Street
Durham, N. C.

HOUSE FOR RENT

Five room furnished cottage for rent; summer months; shower bath and all conveniences Phone 6381 before June 1st.

What's YOUR favorite pipe tobacco?

Most* PRINCETON *men smoke—

IF you walk along Prospect Street in Princeton you'll notice how many men load their pipes from the familiar blue Edgeworth tin. At Senior Singing on the steps of Nassau Hall this spring the pipes will glow with Edgeworth.

A pipe and Edgeworth—this is the smoking combination that has won the college man. Yale, Dartmouth, Cornell, Illinois, Stanford . . . all agree with Princeton.

College men everywhere respond to the appeal of pipes—packed with cool, slow-burning Edgeworth. Be guided by their choice: Try Edgeworth yourself. Taste its rich natural savor that is enhanced immeasurably by Edgeworth's distinctive eleventh process.

You will find Edgeworth at your nearest tobacco shop—15¢ the tin. Or, for generous free sample, address Larus & Bro. Co., 105 S. 22d St., Richmond, Va.

EDGEWORTH
SMOKING TOBACCO

Edgeworth is a blend of fine old burleys, with its natural savor enhanced by Edgeworth's distinctive eleventh process. Buy Edgeworth anywhere in two forms—"Ready-Rubbed" and "Plug Slice." All sizes, 15¢ pocket package to pound humidor tin.

FINCHLEY
OF NEW YORK

INVITES YOU TO INSPECT THE NEWEST DEVELOPMENTS IN CLOTHES, HATS, HABERDASHERY, SHOES FOR COLLEGE WEAR. NO OBLIGATION ON YOUR PART.

HERE

Today and Tomorrow
At
Carolina Dry Cleaners
Harry Kuster, Rep.

FUN
ON THE ROLLICKING WAY
to EUROPE

It's a fun factory—the rollicking, frolicking Tourist third cabin on IMM liners. Any kind of merriment made to order on a moment's notice! Peals of laughter a specialty. Not to mention a lively crowd, cosy accommodations and food that's simply grand! In 1930 the record number of 60,522 passengers traveled "IMM Tourist!"

$105 up

Delightful Tourist third cabin accommodations on such famous liners as Majestic, world's largest ship, Olympic, Homeric, Belgenland, Lapland, Britannic, Adriatic and many others. NO CLASS DISTINCTIONS on the Minnekahda nor on the Tourist third cabin liners de luxe, Pennland and Westernland. Their entire former cabin accommodations are devoted exclusively to "Tourist." The only steamers of their kind in the world. Several sailings each week to the principal ports of Europe and the British Isles. Send for fascinating literature describing Tourist third cabin in detail.

111 E. Plume St. Norfolk Va. any authorized steamship agents

WHITE STAR • RED STAR
ATLANTIC TRANSPORT
International Mercantile Marine Lines

CAROLINA THEATRE

NOW PLAYING
Andy Clyde Comedy
"DOG DOCTOR"
Sound News

How Will She Stand The Pitiless Glare Of The Emotional Peak?

How? Like this: you meet the REAL Clara Bow at last. actress touched by the divine dramatic fire!

CLARA BOW

starred in Paramount's strong stuff drama from Willard Mack's play

"Kick In"
—with—
Regis Toomey
Wynne Gibson
Juliette Compton, James Murray
You'll Admire Clara More Than Ever Before!

El Acusador De Si Mismo
TONIGHT

BROWN, SLUSSER LEAD TAR HEEL TRACK SCORERS

Brown Scores Sixty-Five Points to Beat Out Slusser by One Point.

Scoring thirteen points in the last two meets of the season, Rip Slusser made a desperate effort to wrest the scoring lead from Theron Brown, but Brown scored two points against Penn State and in the Southern Conference meet to run his total for the season up to sixty-five and beat Slusser by one point. Brown took the lead in the first meet of the year and held it throughout the season.

J. K. Smith, veteran dash star, placed third among the individual scorers with forty-eight points to lead Ruble and Captain Dameron, tying for fourth place, by seven points. Dameron competed in only one event, the discus, and took first place in seven of the nine meets. He set a new state record at Greensboro with a distance of 136 feet six inches, and scored Carolina's only first place in the Southern Conference meet with a throw of 134 feet three inches. Ruble, too, set a new state record by winning the pole vault at the state meet with a height of twelve feet eight inches, and placed second in the Southern Conference meet. In addition, Ruble scored Carolina's only points in the Penn Relays, tying for second place.

Following Ruble and Dameron comes Brodie Arnold with thirty-seven and one-half points, scored mainly in the pole vault. Cliff Baucom trailed Arnold by a point and a half to gain seventh place over Archie Davis. Baucom ran only in the two mile event except against the Washington and Lee Generals when he competed in the one mile also to score eight points for the day. Baucom also set a new state record when he won the event at the state meet in 9:51.7.

Archie Davis scored twenty-eight points in the high hurdles during the season to take eighth place in the scoring over Mark Jones and Ken Marland, both of whom tallied twenty-seven markers. Jones' points were made in the one mile while Marland's points were scored in the first three meets of the season, but he was handicapped by injuries during the latter meets.

Other varsity track scores were: Watkins 25, Bagby 24.8, Drane 24, Weil 24, Hubbard 21, Hamlet 13 2-3, Stafford 13.3, Howard 13, Chandler 12, Garrett 11, Waugh 10 1-3, Hodges 8, Thompson 7, Strauss 3, Donnell 2, Case 2, Cordle 2, Newland 1 1-3, Gabriel 1, Houston 1, Henry 1.

No Infirmary List

For the first time in a number of months there was no one confined to the infirmary yesterday. Bill McKee, city editor on the Daily Tar Heel tried to spoil this record by jumping through a closed window in the publication's office. His attempt was a failure, however, for he escaped with only a cut finger.

High Scorer

Theron Brown, veteran track and football star, who led the 1931 trackmen, scoring a total of sixty-five points to beat out "Rip" Slusser by the narrow margin of one point. Brown also won the intramural decathlon for the second year in succession with the high total of 8,237.9 points.

Boxing Started Here By Bill Cox And Add Warren In 1924

(Continued from yesterday's issue of this paper.)

(Editor's Notes W. N. Cox, '25, the author of this article, is the sports editor of the GREENSBORO DAILY NEWS. To Mr. Cox belong the major portion of the credit for starting boxing as an intercollegiate sport at the University, acting as manager, coach, and captain of the team. For this work, Cox received absolutely no reward until this year, when at the annual Awards Night, held Monday night, he was awarded a manager's monogram.

This is the second and final part of the article by Mr. Cox on the origin of boxing at the University. The first part was carried in Tuesday's edition of the DAILY TAR HEEL.

President Chase entered the ring that night and expressed his appreciation. General A. J. Bowley came with his soldiers and also made a talk. Albert Cox, prominent Carolina alumnus, drove over from Raleigh and also put in a few words. I did the announcing and picked up odds and ends.

The Fort Bragg team was strong, very strong. It numbered K. O. Conway, Soldier DeMars, Chief Malay, Bill Parrish and others. General Bowley ordered Chief Malay to hold his punches against Warren as they prepared to mix. Malay was a star at the time and you can imagine the excitement. The bout was a draw. I later seconded Warren in a professional bout in which he knocked out Malay in the third round.

I can't recall the men who boxed for Carolina that night. Chick McRae, however, astonished the "hill" by going in at the last minute and giving DeMars a fight. Tom Gallager boxed K. O. Conway and Matthews faced Parrish. Spiers, Gray, Hall, Jarrell, Wilson also appeared as well as I can remember.

Card Nets $70

It was a great evening. We

(Continued on last page)

VARSITY NETMEN TO BE AWARDED MAJOR LETTERS

Carolina Players to Receive First Major Sports Monograms Given in Tennis Here.

Six members of Carolina's national championship tennis team will receive the first major sports letters ever given in tennis here.

The Carolina netters went through an undefeated season, meeting many of the strongest teams in the East, among which were Harvard university, undefeated since 1928, and Georgetown, boasting Gregory Mangin, ranking No. 6 player in the country.

Fourteen teams, in the East and South, fell before the invading Tar Heels. Seven teams were met and defeated by the Heel netmen in eight days on the northern trip.

Returning home the Heels entered Yeomans and Hendlin in the annual Southern Conference tournament at New Orleans, Yeomans losing in the singles finals to Billy Burwell of Sewanee, while in the doubles Yeomans and Hendlin paired to win the Southern doubles crown, defeating Beaver and Napier of Georgia in the finals.

The Tar Heels culuminated the best season ever enjoyed by a Carolina team by defeating Duke on their home courts by a shutout score for the second time this season.

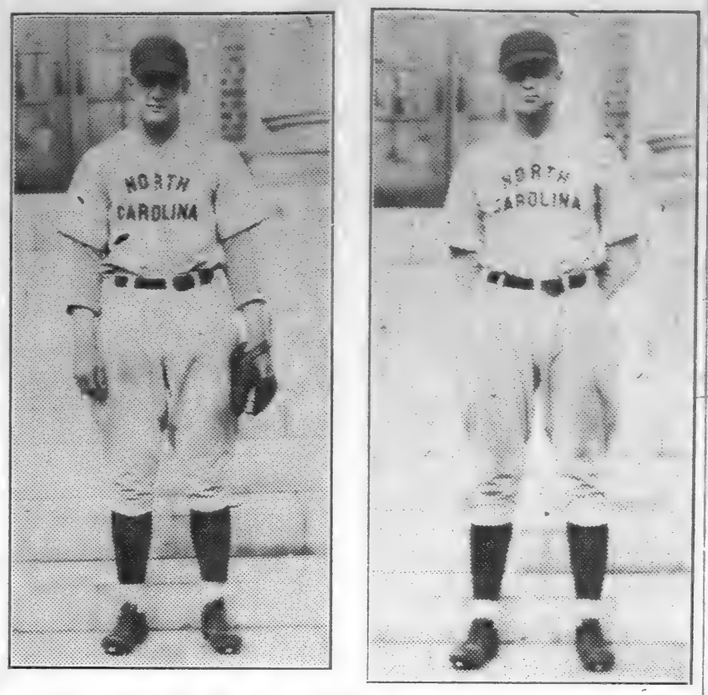
Captain E. K. Graham, Chapel Hill; H. H. Hendlin, New York City; and Ed Yeomans, Washington, D. C., received major letters with one star for two years play. Bryan Grant, Atlanta, Georgia; Wilmer Hines, Columbia, S. C.; and Lenoir Wright, Charlotte, received major letters for one years play.

Phil Liskin, New York City, and Lucas Abels, High Point, received the usual minor sports monogram for consistent play, Liskin getting a letter and star for two years play.

INTRAMURAL RESULTS

The A. T. O. tennis team took a 3-1 decision over Pi Kappa Phi yesterday to enter the finals for the championship. The winners took two singles and one double match, dropping one singles match.

Smith, A. T. O. No. 1, defeated Dixon, Pi Kappa Phi, in the first match. Smith had little trouble in the first set, but Dixon came back to take the second. However, Smith took the next set to win, the scores being 6-3, 6-8, and 7-5.



In the No. 2 singles McLaughlin, A. T. O., took in Slater in straight sets, 6-3, 6-1. Slater had trouble getting either serve over, serving doubles in the pinches many times. McLaughlin displayed a good

(Continued on last page)

FOUND

Pair of white gold-rim glasses between post-office and Presbyterian Church. Call Steve Marsh at Sigma Zeta House.

WINNERS OF AWARDS

Henry House and Paul Edwards who were among those to receive awards for scholarship and athletic ability in the annual awards night ceremonies. House, veteran fullback and star outfielder, was awarded the Patterson Memorial award, which is awarded annually to the scholar-athlete who excels in leadership, scholarship, athletic ability, morale, and general conduct. Edwards, veteran pitcher and star forward, received the award in baseball and basketball, given to the best athlete-scholar in each of the major sports.

AMERICAN STARS WIN COURT TITLE

George Lott and John Van Ryn Take French Hard Court Doubles Crown.

George Lott, Jr., and John Van Ryn, Monday won the French hard court doubles championship for the first American victory in that division of French title play since 1926.

The American youngsters defeated the South African pair, Victor Kirby and Nat Farquharson, in straight sets, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4.

The last time an American doubles team won at Auteuil was five years ago when Vincent Richards and Howard Kinsey, both professionals now, defeated Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon. The same French team won the title last year but did not defend because of Cochet's ill health.

Other Americans Win

The day's play saw no reverses for American players, Miss Dorothy Andrus, of Stamford, Conn., and Miss Virginia Hilleary, of Philadelphia, winning their matches in women's singles. They were the only

(Continued on last page)

Get Your

Laundry Bundles

And Refunds

At The

Y

WEDNESDAY, MAY 27

Laundry Dep't.

U. C. S. P.

ANNOUNCEMENT—

We Wish to Thank All Students for Their Patronage This Year and Wish You a Happy and Successful Vacation.

Our Books Will Be Closed Wednesday, May 27th. All Student Charge Accounts Will Be Discontinued After This Date.

Carolina Dry Cleaners
Phone 5841

Johnson Prevost Dry Cleaners Co.
Phone 7011

O'Kelly Tailoring Co.
Phone 3531

Y. M. C. A. ASSEMBLY HALL AT BLUE RIDGE

Robert E. Lee hall, first building erected on the Blue Ridge grounds (in 1912). The Blue Ridge Association is owned jointly by the Y.M.C.A.'s and Y.W.C.A.'s of the ten southeastern states as permanent assembly grounds for their many conferences and conventions held yearly. There are now some 1400 acres in the association grounds, with over twenty-five buildings, representing a total property value of approximately $1,000,000.

Speaking Campus Mind

(Continued from page two)

mind about it. There are other things to consider: that we are voting money for students to pay who will be able to exclaim a sort of taxation without representation lament. How much good will some $7,000 a year revenue thus drained out of a poor source contribute to a building that needs many times that much for its completion? And, may we ask, why not wait for some wealthy donor since one will always come to care for the needy and complete Graham Memorial the way it should be, instead of rushing its completion by the little sums collected from people who can do without Graham Memorial? Still, if there are those people in the student body who feel flushed, we suggest that they contribute rather to a much needed swimming pool that would even refresh them on these hot spring and summer days.

J. W. REID, 3rd.

ED NOTE:

Discussion as to the completion by students of Graham Memorial as well as the operation of it have been going on for more than three years! There has been no sudden declaration on the part of "student leaders." Only two classes—the rising sophomore class and next year's freshman—would pay any additional money. The juniors and seniors would make up the money from class treasuries. Mr. Reid will pay nothing extra.

Mr. Reid you ignore the fact that this fee and all other student fees will hereafter be voted upon every student generation. There can be no taxation without representation under that fair system.

Wealthy donors do not contribute money for purposes students demonstrate by letters or votes that they do not want. As for a swimming pool, the completed Graham Memorial will most certainly have one.

The self-help members of the sophomore class (the only class concerned with an actual increase) have the word of Bill Speight that they will be getting something real.

Student Government

(Continued from page two)

on the part of the council.

Case No. 39: A University student now out of school under sentence of the council, was indefinitely suspended from the University for drunkeness and appropriating the property of others for his own use.

Case No. 40: A senior was put on strict drinking probation, any violation of which will mean automatic suspension from the University.

Two cases were held over for further consideration.

HAYWOOD WEEKS,
Sec. Student Council.

Commerce Freshmen

Dean D. D. Carroll wishes to see all commerce freshmen today at chapel period in Bingham 103. Attendance is required.

The Campus Calendar

Final Radio Talk

The concluding weekly raido broadcast, sponsored by the student council, will be made this afternoon between 3:30 and 3:45 o'clock over station WPTF, Raleigh, by assistant dean of students, Henry Johnston, Jr., who will speak on "Freshman Week at the University."

Concerning Conditions

All students conditioned in courses must report to the registrar's office before Monday, June 1, to make arrangements for having these conditions removed during final examinations.

Room Reservations

Students wishing to retain their dormitory rooms for the fall quarter must make a five dollar deposit before June 1. Otherwise the room will be given to the first applicant after that date.

Caper Ideas

Any student who has a specialty or an idea he thinks might be interesting for the Playmakers Caper on Saturday night is asked to meet with the committee at the theatre this evening at 7:00 o'clock.

AMERICAN STARS WIN COURT TITLE

(Continued from preceding page)

other Americans to play Monday.

Miss Andrus defeated Mlle. Jean Galley, 10-8, 6-4, and Miss Hilleary disposed of Mme. de Montebello 6-3, 6-1.

With three championships already gone, France looked forward pessimistically Monday in the final two crowns still in dispute, the women's singles and the men's singles.

Van Ryn's path to the singles final was smoothed today by the withdrawal of the English ace, H. W. (Bunny) Austin, who is conserving his energy for the Davis cup series between South Africa and England next week. He hit his ankle with a racquet Sunday and does not want to take further chance of injury.

The day's play saw only one upset, the defeat of Eileen Bennett Whittingstall by Fraulein Anny Peitz, Germany's second ranking woman player, in three hard fought sets, 9-11, 10-8, 6-3.

The other ranking favorites, Cilli Aussem of Germany and Elizabeth Ryan, former Californian, won their first round matches without difficulty.

Yesterday's features were the third round meeting in the men's singles between Lott and Charles H. Kingsley, the Englishman, and the contest between Miss Helen Jacobs, of California, and Mme. Contoslavos Nicolopoulo, the Greek star. Miss Hilleary met Mlle Ida Adamoff, and Ryn played Andre Merlin, and Miss Ryan will oppose the Polish star, Mlle. G. Jedrezejowska.

Intramural Results

(Continued from preceding page)

brand of tennis, however.

Pi Kappa Phi's only victory came when Adams, No. 3, won over Gilbert, A. T. O., by scores of 10-8 and 6-2. Gilbert had several chances to take the first set, having set point on three occasions, but he was overcome by Adams' steadier playing. The strain of the first set showed in Gilbert's tennis in the second, and Adams won handily.

Smith and McLaughlin, playing No. 1 doubles, brought victory to their team by putting down Dixon and Adams in two sets, 6-2 and 7-5. The winners had a rather easy time in the first set, but in the second they had to come from behind to capture the match. Dixon and Adams were leading 5-3 before the A. T. O. players had gotten started well. But they quickly woke up, and won the next four games, the last game being a love game.

Boxing Started Here By Bill Cox And Add Warren in 1924

(Continued from preceding page)

collected about $70. Some folk said I got the money. Fort Bragg and the Carolina boys in a supper at Gooch's after the match ate nearly that much and as I recall I was about $7 short after everything was paid.

General Bowley, greatly impressed, volunteered to detail K. O. Conway to the University for two weeks in order to serve as a coach. Conway was the first boxing coach in Carolina's history. He was with us as we prepared for the Virginia trip, coming to Chapel Hill after we returned from V. M. I. and Washington-Lee. The first trip to face college foes was just another "noble experiment." We did not know our way about; but we didn't care and did the best we could. We lost both matches, the first on a Wednesday night to the Cadets and the final on Saturday evening to the Generals.

Conway arrived and put a depleted team in trim for the trip to Virginia. All that fighting for nothing was not worth the effort. I got a team together eventually and set sail for Charlottesville. Ellis Brown, graduate manager at Virginia in those days, told me it was the largest indoor crowd in his school's history.

Carolina lost before about 4,000 people. The two Gallagher boys, Tom and Pat, won for Carolina. Leftwich, Virginia's Olympic boxer, was given a decision over Warren. Gus McPherson got up out of a sick bed to box his first and last bout for Carolina and he was unusually good. Jarrall fought a four round no-decision. Spiers and Donohue lost decisions. Bullitt may have boxed on that trip, we can't say for sure.

The fact that it was impossible to hold a college meet at Chapel Hill in 1925 may explain the then lack of action. At any rate, we came home, I turned in the cash to Mr. Woollen, filling out the usual managers blank and the team disbanded. Your Daily Tar Heel, then a tri-weekly, failed to say anything of the venture; but Louis Graves gave us a hand in his newspaper, his comment being all the men got for their trouble. The University did take the trouble to say to the men—much obliged.

I wrote Crayton Rowe, a Charlotte boy, to come see me while I was there with the Playmakers in the spring of 1925. He did and I told him while I could not guarantee him anything that there might be a chance for him to coach a boxing team at Carolina, for him to enter in the fall and take a chance. Coach Rowe did enter and that's how your coach came about.

As 1925 was my final year and nothing—not a word—had been said one way or other by the University, when Ellis Brown asked me about a match for next season I told him I was through and to get in touch with Mr. Woollen. He did that and boxing as an intercollegiate sport at Carolina has grown to a place of marked importance.

How did it come about? I can't tell you. It was built on nothing save the enthusiasm of reckless youth without a working motive and without a level head in the whole outfit. Enthusiasm was the driving power that started boxing at Carolina. For my part, if it had to be done over again I would not repeat my share for $10,000.

DEAN M'CORMICK RELATES SCIENCE TO MODERN LAW

(Continued from first page)

chology is rapidly developing a method of testing evidence which will someday certainly furnish a tool for courts to test the truth of evidence, and which eventually may even revolutionize the procedure for the trial of cases at law.

"Founded on a somewhat different principle is the word-association method, one of the earliest psychological procedures for testing guilt. This consists in reading off to the subject a list of say, 100 words. If the happening inquired about is the theft from a bureau of a pocket-book containing a ten dollar bill, the significant words 'bureau', 'steal', 'pocket-book', and 'ten-dollar bill' will be interspersed in the list of indifferent words such as 'German', 'milk', 'cottage', and 'laugh'. When each word is read, the suspect is to respond as quickly as he can with the first word that comes to his mind. If the word he hears arouses fear of detection, he will hesitate longer in replying for fear that his response will give him away. To one who is innocent all the words are equally indifferent.

"The reaction-time, that is the time between each word read and the response, is recorded. If this shows that the reaction times were much longer for the significant words than for the others, this points toward guilt. Using this alone, Professor Crosland of the University of Oregon reports in a recent bulletin that he was able to detect and elicit confessions of guilt in five cases of stealing in dormitories and one case of cheating on examination. The word-association test is sometimes effectively combined with the blood pressure method.

"In conclusion, I am entirely conscious that this Crook's tour through the realms where scientific theory and technique are threatening to displace older methods of legal proof, has given you no real knowledge about these subjects. I can only hope that it may have indicated a few of the many possibilities which science offers to law in the ascertainment of truth, and that it may have aroused in you some curiosity which will cause you some day to make a return trip into the same country under your own guidance."

Watchman Ducked for Spying

Bern Roaf, campus nightwatchman at Carleton college, Northfield, Minnesota, was seriously ill at his home yesterday as the result of a ducking, presumably at the hands of students several nights ago. Officials are seeking the identity of a group that tossed the watchman in a campus lake because he spied on necking parties.

A Job For You

We want a young man, preferably a college sophomore or freshman, to travel with us through New England, from June 4 to September.

In return for his time we will aid him with his expenses next year, in addition to paying his traveling expenses and a liberal salary.

2nd Floor Y. M. C. A.

2 TO 4 THIS AFTERNOON

Smoke a FRESH Cigarette

JUST as the proof of the pudding is the eating, so is the proof of a cigarette in the smoking.

And millions of men and women are now discovering a brand new enjoyment since Camels adopted the new Humidor Pack.

The mildness and the flavor of fine tobacco vanish when scorching or evaporation steals the natural moisture out of a cigarette.

Now, thanks to the new Humidor Pack, which keeps the dust and germs out and keeps the flavor in, Camels, wherever you find them, are always factory-fresh and in perfect mild condition.

Air-sealed in Camel's moisture-proof Cellophane is all the goodness of finest Turkish and mellow Domestic tobacco expertly blended.

No harsh, dried tobacco to burn the throat. No peppery dust to sting delicate membrane* — just the cool mild aroma of fine tobacco, properly conditioned.

Camel smokers have already discovered that their favorite cigarette is better now than ever before.

If you haven't smoked a Camel recently, switch over for just one day, then quit them, if you can.

CAMELS

It is the mark of a considerate hostess, by means of the Humidor Pack, to "Serve a fresh cigarette." Buy Camels by the carton—this cigarette will remain fresh in your home and office

© 1931, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

CAMPUS WIDE VOTE
STUDENT UNION FEE
Y.M.C.A.—9 TO 5

The Daily Tar Heel

CAMPUS WIDE VOTE
STUDENT UNION FEE
Y.M.C.A.—9 TO 5

VOLUME XXXIX | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., THURSDAY, MAY 28, 1931 | NUMBER 182

Students Will Vote Today On Union Fee

CAMPUS OPINIONS ENDORSE FEE FOR UPKEEP OF UNION

Survey of Prominent Faculty And Student Leaders Shows Enthusiastic Reception for Graham Memorial.

In taking a census of opinion from prominent persons connected with the University on the subject of Graham Memorial being used as a student union, the opinions expressed were invariably in favor of the purpose of the memorial and the means by which it is to be financed. Some of the faculty and student leaders' sentiments in regard to the student union follow below:

Faculty Opinion

Thomas J. Wilson, Jr., dean of admissions:

"A very good thing if students will use it. The present plan of having an administrative committee is an excellent one. Great care should be taken in choosing an administrator."

A. W. Hobbs, dean of college of liberal arts:

"Educational problems are common to the students and faculty and even some of the alumni are interested and would be glad of a common meeting ground. I believe that most of the members of the faculty would be glad to join such a club as Graham Memorial, and have the chance to discuss with the students the common problems of the University. The student union would be the University center where all factionalism would be laid aside and where questions of permanent value could be discussed as opposed to the artificial problems raised by more or less childish divisions."

Obie Harmon, manager of Swain hall:

"Graham Memorial will be one of the most beneficial things for the student body if the plans are really worked out for the benefit of the masses of students. It fills an urgent campus need. The success of the student union will depend in a large measure on the personality and interest of the caretaker."

J. Maryon Saunders, alumni secretary:

"The opportunity that offers itself to students of the University in the election today is one which has never been presented to any University student body until now. At several times during the past several years groups of students have come forward with propositions not only to maintain a student union building, but also to complete the unfinished Graham Memorial

(Continued on next page)

Commerce Sophomores

Dean D. D. Carroll wishes to meet all of the sophomores of the school of commerce in 103 Bingham hall today during chapel period. The purpose of the meeting is to discuss and vote on the participation of the commerce students in the student entertainment program, now upheld solely by the students in the school of liberal arts. Such an action would involve a fee of $1.00 per quarter.

Tomorrow the juniors of the same department are requested to meet in the same room for the same purpose.

Student Conference Will Open June 15

The Southern Student conference will be in session at Blue Ridge June 15-25. All those who plan to attend are requested to get in their applications to Mr. H. F. Comer at the Y.M.C.A. before June 1 as all registrations are sent in from the office of the Y. These ten days are taken up with group and mass discussions and there is also plenty of time for recreation. Many men of note attend this conference annually and lead or help lead the various groups.

Anyone who is a member of one of the Y cabinets is eligible to attend.

CHANGES ADOPTED IN RUSHING RULES

Alumni Will Be Considered Agents for Fraternities; Rules To Be Strictly Enforced.

At a meeting of the Interfraternity Council Tuesday night, the rushing rules for the session 1931-32 were drawn up. The system to be employed is much the same as that of the present year.

There will be two periods of silence separated by a rushing period of nineteen days. The first period includes freshman week and also the first week of classes. Then comes a nineteen day time for rushing, followed by a second thirty-six hour period of silence.

Alumni Affected

There has been a change made in the definition of "rushing" to include alumni in those who may be considered rushing. They are added to "members of and agents for fraternities." "Rushing" is defined as "engaging in social conversation, entertaining or communication in any way other than a formal salutation on the part of members or alumni of or agents for fraternities."

The plans for enforcement are much stricter than those of this year. The penalties have also been increased on fraternities who violate the rules. A violation may be punished by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars or suspension of the initiating and pledging privilege of not more than one year. The penalties will be made by the executive committee of the council.

The present system was initiated in the fall of 1929 to prevent some of the evils of the rushing season, both to the freshmen and to the fraternity members.

Junior Committee

Sparks Griffin, president of the rising junior class, yesterday announced the following men as members of the executive committee of the class: Billy McKee, chairman, Ben Campen, Dan Kelly, W. M. Baker, Mark Jones, Charles Gault, Tom Davis, Bill Griffin, John Daniels, Archie Davis, Shady Lane, Jim Kenan, James Kurfees, Norman J. Bonner, Jack Bessen, Jim Hubbard, and Arlindo Cate.

Library Books Due May 29

All library books lent to students are due Friday, May 29. After that date they will be lent for forty-eight hour periods until Monday, June 1, on and after which time they may be used only in the library building.

JOHNSTON TELLS ABOUT VALUE OF FRESHMAN WEEK

Assistant Dean of Students Delivers Last Speech of College Year from WPTF.

The student council sponsored its last radio talk of the year yesterday afternoon between 3:30 and 3:45 o'clock when Henry Johnston, Jr., assistant dean of students, spoke on "Freshman Week at the University," over station WPTF, Raleigh.

Beginning his address with a brief description of the miserable treatment freshmen received during the "nineties," the speaker traced the situation to the present day. He said that the freshman is the most important person present at the opening of each academic term. He went on to say that the president extended a reception in honor of the would-be Carolina men and also mentioned the careful attention given to the men before their entrance by the dean of students, the Y. M. C. A., the minister's council, the president of the sophomore class, and the entire community.

List of Events

Johnston explained in detail the procedure of "Orientation Week" observed each September, telling of the division of the new class into groups each headed by a counsellor and a student advisor. The speaker also mentioned the physical examination, the library tour, student government lecture, the mental alertness test, and placement tests in English and Romance languages, and the meeting with the dean of his school for advice.

"The purpose of this whole

(Continued on last page)

NEWSPAPERS OF STATE SCHOOLS ENTER CONTEST

Thomas Hume Cup Will Be Awarded This Year for Seventh Time.

The eighth annual contests in high school journalism for North Carolina high schools has been announced by the University extension division. State high schools will compete for the Thomas Hume cup and a cup from the University extension division, given respectively for the best high school newspaper and magazine. These contests were begun in 1924 in the hope that through them excellence of attainment in the field of high school journalism might be encouraged in North Carolina high schools. The contest for the Hume cup runs over a period of ten years, the cup becoming the permanent possession of the high school winning the most annual contests during that time. The University extension cup is given annually as a permanent trophy.

Hume Cup

The Thomas Hume newspaper cup is awarded on the basis of news values, editorial values, and the general make up and typographical appearance. The magazine contest is judged on the basis of literary excellence, editorial values, and general make up and typographical appearance.

The Greensboro high school has led in these contests up till now. In 1924 Raleigh high school's magazine was awarded first place and Greensboro won the newspaper contest. The following year Asheville high school had the best magazine

(Continued on next page)

GRAHAM MEMORIAL DATA

1. It will be necessary for students to vote a fee of one dollar per quarter upon themselves to operate the building. No other source can be found, since private funds will be lacking.

2. The only class whose total fees will be increased will be the rising sophomore class. The rising junior and rising sophomore classes will be able to transfer one dollar a quarter from their regular class fees (which the Tar Heel has fought to have decreased).

3. This fee it has been decided is to be used for operation only. There can be no construction with such a small fee.

4. If the student body votes to join in the operation of such a high class club for three dollars a year as Graham Memorial would be, the board of directors will throw open its meeting Friday for suggestions from anyone as to what activities they consider should be housed in the building as well as how it should be operated. Nothing will be decided without consultation with a large number of students.

5. The men to be most vitally concerned in such a building as Graham Memorial should be the non-fraternity men who have no club house in which to lounge, meet friends, or conduct their activities. Fraternity men already have their houses. Drug store and tobacconists' lobbies are inadequate.

6. The fee, if adopted, can be voted on every four years or each year. All fees will come up automatically for justification each student generation.

7. If the student body votes against such a proposal, the likelihood of the building being opened, if the students demonstrate that they are not enough interested in it to pay some small part of the expense, is very low. Genuine business men do not waste their money on white-elephants.

8. All accounts of the operating expenses are to be audited carefully by an auditor chosen by the board on which will sit as official members: President Frank Graham, Dean F. F. Bradshaw, executive-secretary "Bob" House, Maryon Saunders, and the president of the alumni association.

9. In voting for the student operation of the building, you commemorate the memory of one of the Universities greatest presidents—Edward Kidder Graham—in whose honor the building was conceived.

10. The sooner that it can be proven to the alumni that the students will use and enjoy a club such as the Graham Memorial Union Building the sooner the additional $2,000,000 wings will be completed by them—the alumni.

Graham Memorial Would Be Center Of Activities

Alumni Invite Seniors To Attend Luncheon

The seniors will be invited to attend the alumni luncheon at 1:00 o'clock Monday, June 8, free of charge. This is being done in order to further the plan of organizing each class before it leaves the University.

For everyone else, the price will be one dollar. Not only the alumni, but also the faculty and the townsfolk are urged to attend.

CLASS OF '30 TO REUNITE AT 'BABY' MEETING IN JUNE

The class of '30 will hold its "Baby" reunion this June together with the other eleven classes that are coming together again under the "Oaks of Chapel Hill."

Invitations have been sent out to 1,100 alumni of this class, or to those who were in school with the class, by Archie Allen, permanent president. On Alumni day, Monday, June 8, the class will be entertained at a banquet at 6:00 p. m. Accommodations are being arranged in the several dormitories that are to be available during commencement week.

The other officers of the class are: J. Stacy Grant, Brooklyn, New York, vice-president; and Robert L. Zealy, Greensboro, secretary-treasurer.

A reunion committee has also been appointed, the functions of which will include all of the arrangements necesary for the accommodation and entertainment of the class members. Herman Schnell will serve as chairman of this committee. The other members are Ray Farris, John Lang, Ralph Greene, Glenn Holder, Beatty Rector, David Nims, H. E. Bolen, Travis Brown, Bill Speight, and Dave Craig.

Yackety Yack Delivery

The staff of the Yackety Yack announces that it will be impossible to mail the annuals to students unless they send in their names and summer address typed on a postal card to the Yackety Yack office. This change is made necessary because of the large number of errors that have been found in names and addresses as given on registration cards.

Those who do not send this information will be unable to obtain their copies until the opening of school next fall. Those who have not been in school for three quarters and those who have not paid their fees to the business office are urged to call at the office in the basement of the Alumni building any afternoon this week to make adjustment for same.

Groves to Teach In West During June and July

Professor Ernest R. Groves, of the sociology department, will give a course at Utah State Agricultural college, Logan, Utah, June 15 to 26, and at the State Agricultural school, Fort Collins, Colorado, from July 6 to 24.

His An Hour on Sociology, one of the Lippincott "One Hour Series," is now on the press.

USE OF BUILDING WILL DEPEND ON FAVORABLE VOTE

Bill Asks for Assessment of One Dollar a Quarter on Each Student.

Student opinion, as registered today at the polls in the Y. M. C. A. building, will decide whether or not the Graham Memorial building will be used during the next year. The election will take place between the hours of 9:00 in the morning and 5:00 this afternoon. The question which is to be put before the campus is whether or not each student is willing to pay a fee of three dollars a year to maintain and furnish the new union.

Work Begun in 1922

Construction on the Graham Memorial building began nine years ago after money had been pledged by students, faculty, and alumni. Ever since that time the structure has been hanging fire with not enough money to complete it. As it is now, only the center section of the proposed two and a half million dollar union will be accessible this fall. As no money has been appropriated or raised for furnishings and maintenance the Student Activities Committee proposed the one dollar a quarter fee which is to be voted upon today. If the vote is favorable the use of Graham Memorial as a student union beginning next fall will be assured.

Much has been written during the past few months, since the announcement of the gift of the New York alumnus who gave the money which made possible the finishing of the present building, on what uses may be made of the union. True, it makes its greatest appeal to the non-fraternity men as a club or fraternity, but the activity and committee rooms, proposed cafeteria, theatre, dance floor, banqueting hall, swimming pool, bowling alleys, etc. will make their appeal to all groups of the student body.

One Dollar Upkeep Fee

The proposed fee of one dollar per quarter is smaller, for instance, than the fee at the University of Oklahoma which is $2.50 per semester. In 1923 at this University when the money pledged for the building was not forthcoming, there was a movement on foot on the campus to levy a fee of five dollars per quarter upon each student and thus attempt to complete the edifice. The idea failed, however.

Most of the student unions in the colleges of this country have been financed by contributions from alumni, students, and faculty. At Purdue each graduating class was accustomed to pay $5 per year in order to raise the necessary money. Several campaigns have been waged on this campus and throughout the state for Graham Memorial money. Unfortunately all the pledges could not be collected, necessitating the suspension of the building program until last winter.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays. Entered as Second Class matter at the post office at Chapel Hill, N. C., under Act of March 3, 1879.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $4.00 for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

Jack Dungan ..... Editor
H. N. Patterson ..... Bus. Mgr.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Ed French ..... Mng. Ed.

Editorial Board

Charles G. Rose ..... Chairman
J. M. Little — Frank J. Manheim
W. M. Bryson — Will Yarborough
Alden Stahr — Bob Barnett
Wex Malone — K. C. Ramsay

Assignment Editors
Otto S. Steinreich
Dan Kelly, Assistant

Sunday Editor
Charles G. Rose

City Editors
Bill McKee — George Wilson
Peter Hairston — Jack Riley

Desk Men
W. R. Woerner — Don Shoemaker
Frank Hawley — T. W. Blackwell
Vass Shepherd

Sports Staff
Jack Bessen ..... Sports Editor

Assistants
T. H. Broughton — P. Alston

News Men
E. M. Spruill — F. W. Ashley
W. E. Davis — Claiborn Carr
Charles Poe

Reporters
Saul Gordon — Bob Reynolds
Woodward Glenn — M. V. Barnhill, Jr.
William Blount — W. F. Lee
U. B. Phillips — M. H. Long
Tom Walker — W. L. Gray
Ronald Kochendorfer — Walker Stamps
Phil Sasser

BUSINESS STAFF

Hal Worth ..... Circulation Mgr.
Harlan Jameson ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.
John Manning ..... Ass't. Bus. Mgr.

Advertising Department

Al L. Olmstead ..... Advertising Mgr.
Pendleton Gray ..... Advertising Mgr.
Bernard Solomon ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
R. D. McMillan, Jr. ..... Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
James N. Nowell — H. A. Clark

Collection Department

Jack Hammer ..... Collection Mgr.
John Barrow — Frank S. Dale
Stokes Adderton — Jack Stokes

Correspondence Department

Ed Michaels, Jr. ..... Correspondence Mgr.
Wynn Hamm ..... Ass't. Cor. Mgr.

Thursday, May 28, 1931

One Stands Alone

When Mr. Frank Graham threw the strength of his influence in favor of higher budgets for State and N. C. C. W. as well as the entire public school system of the commonwealth there were those in both camps who assailed him for his action. But this is generally true of whatever action Mr. Graham has the fortitude to undertake.

With a legislature grown aged and hoary in its farmer-capitalist battle, and one which finds itself without enough courage to tax its real sources of wealth, the schools of the state would most certainly suffer without this champion. The University of North Carolina presented such a champion in Frank Graham who strode from Chapel Hill to Raleigh like David out to slay a Goliath.

What if through his having to spread his efforts the University will get a little less in appropriations. If the public school system is wrecked from lack of appropriations, the University will suffer. While not the head of the mythical Greater University of North Carolina, the University proper is a member, and any injury to the other "branches" would be an injury to it since the degrees are to be issued under the same name.

The educational system of the state is now in theory one body; any injury to any of its members impairs the efficiency of the whole. In Frank Porter Graham, the Daily Tar Heel sees another Aycock.

A Cent Per Day

Today the future of Graham Memorial lies in the hands of the students. If they fail to favor the dollar per quarter fee, the new building will remain useless until they see their error. If they vote for the small assessment, it will mean that the building will go into immediate use next fall.

Despite the fact that several editorials have been written lately showing the students what invaluable service such a union will render to the University, five or ten times this amount could still be written and yet the actual values of the building would not even so much as be enumerated. The uses to which Graham Memorial can be placed are more than can be calculated in one sitting. Each time the building is discussed more possibilities are found for making it serviceable. Never before has the University had such a structure, and for this reason it is hard for students to see what it will really mean to the campus.

Those few thoughtless persons who have criticized the dollar fee on the grounds that it is more than some students can pay at this time have failed to see the fact that by paying this assessment it is really more economical to the students than if the fee were not paid. These critics apparently overlooked the fact that one dollar per quarter would mean thirty-three and one third cents per month, or a little over one cent per day.

In other words the students will be given the use of a $2,500,000 building (when entirely completed) for one whole day for only one cent. On the other hand if they do not pass this fee, it will mean that the building will remain idle at a "negative" expense of fifty cents per student for each day that the building remains vacant, assuming that it will require ten years for the building to pay for itself in actual benefit and that 2000 students are registered in the University each year.

Therefore, according to these figures it will not only save the students forty-nine cents per day to pass this dollar per quarter fee, but will offer a place where the entire campus can meet and exchange ideas and make personal contacts. If the assessment is passed, no longer will students be calling for a swimming pool; no longer will expensive rates be paid for banquet halls; no longer will students have to entertain their visitors in the library; no longer will the campus go to Durham to bowl. The building will solve all these problems.

A two and one-half million dollar bargain for one cent per day!—C.G.R.

Student Government

To prevent any confusion in the election today, the funds to be raised from this assessment are not to be used to complete the Graham Memorial Building. The revenue is necessary to maintain, operate, and manage the completed building. It is no unexpected move; the plans for a Union have been underway for some years, and the actual completion has but recently been made possible by the contribution of a single alumnus.

The building will be ready for use in September. It will not be opened and operated as a Student Union unless the necessary amount of revenue is raised by this student vote. The amount stipulated on the ballot has been considered a minimum budget for the first year's program by the University administration, the Graham Memorial Committee, and the temporary Board of Directors for the proposed Student Union. No plans for the specific use of any of the rooms have been finally adopted, but the building will serve as a center for the social life and the activities of the campus. A new student social and activity center will mean a new day in student life.

MAYNE ALBRIGHT,
Pres. Student Union.

With Contemporaries

Honor Among Honoraries

Now that we are in the midst of spring initiation among honorary societies, we are once again reminded of the brutal and barbaric practices indulged in by active members to impress their pledges with the importance and so-called dignity of their particular organization. Although the past few years have seen a great reduction in the amount of paddling and horse play in both social and honorary fraternities on the campus, there still exists too much, and steps should be taken to lessen it, eventually to abolish it entirely.

Nothing is more inconsistent than to honor a student body by asking him to become affiliated with any organization and then proceed to beat him up for the mere sake of "fostering brotherhood," as the active members are wont to call it. When a person has attained high enough grades or a position of sufficient prominence on the campus to warrant his being pledged to an honor organization, he should be treated by the active members with the respect and dignity he merits.

Fraternalism certainly is not fostered by beating a potential brother until he is fairly groggy and then, after he has been initiated, shaking his hand and telling him how glad one is to be his brother. The practice only tends to breed contempt and to widen any existing breach between actives and pledges. It does not instill harmony and singleness of purpose into the organization, nor does it promote increased power and unity of action among the individual members working as a group.

If revenge is the primary motive of horse play in certain honorary initiations, some group will have to play the martyr in order to make initiations civilized and sane. The mere fact that one gets revenge for the beating he had at the time of his initiation does in no way lessen the torment endured at that time. Revenge is only an excuse for the uncurbed expression of barbaric instinct in the individual who does the paddling. When active members and officers of honorary fraternities and clubs move to abolish paddling and rough play at their initiations they will have taken a long step toward instilling honor in honoraries.—Purdue Exponent.

Co-Education Is Best

From time to time we hear serious condemnation of co-education from religious leaders, and from various kinds of reformers and blue-law advocates. It is also one of those perennially popular subjects of debates.

The principal arguments of the opposition are that conditions in the co-ed schools are conducive to immorality and wasted time. These arguments fall before the consideration that better moral conditions actually prevail when the men and women casually meet every day than when they are separated and permitted to see each other only on isolated week-ends or very special occasions. The community consisting of men alone or of women alone is unnatural and doesn't train for wholesome participation in community and family life.

The low marriage rate among college graduates continues to be a cause of alarm to sociologists. One of the recommended cures is the extension of co-education and gradual elimination of men's and women's colleges. Some of the graduates of eastern girls' schools see the fallacy of keeping the sexes apart while they are young—when they should be getting used to each other's little peculiarities and learning to get along pleasantly with them. And if a little time is spent at this instead of gleaning textbook facts, surely it cannot, in the long run, be called time wasted.—Washington State Evergreen.

At The Carolina

Thursday's attraction brings Hollywood's newest and publicized star Elissa Landi, star of "Body and Soul," who appears in "Always Goodbye" with Lewis Stone.

Joan Crawford's latest release is the production for Friday, "Laughing Sinners," in which the brunette star offers a wide departure from the type of roles that have characterized her work recently.

The week closes with the feature Saturday, "Up Pops the Devil," starring Carole Lombard and Skeets Gallagher.

CAMPUS OPINIONS ENDORSE FEE FOR UPKEEP OF UNION

(Continued from first page)

building as well. Now the generosity of an alumnus makes the completed building a reality. This generation of students is the first therefore to face only the task of maintaining the completed building. Too, past generations of students have actually paid in money toward the completion of the building without looking forward to the use of the union themselves. This generation can actually receive benefits from the money that they expend."

Francis F. Bradshaw, dean of students:

"If the students decide by their vote today to organize, finance, and administer the Graham Memorial building, I am quite sure that a new level of achievement and unity will be attained by student life and activity in 1931-32. Ever since the expanding life and expanded campus of the University began their journey out and away from the old well, each student generation has felt a deep-rooted desire for some physical center in and around which the currents of campus life and thought might revolve into greater unity and community of thought and purpose. At last such a dream can be made actual. To finance it, to work out its problems of organization, such to enjoy its fruits would seem to be the greatest single privilege of this student generation in the realm of extra-curricular activity."

Student Opinion

Pat Patterson, president of the senior class:

"As senior class president I can clearly see how a student union, such as Graham Memorial will afford us, will aid in promoting a finer closer spirit, more progressive standards, and a greater working efficiency—all of which make for a united student body."

Ed Hamer, former president of the Y.M.C.A.

"The germ of disintegration which I have felt has been gradually creeping into our large student body can be given a severe anti-toxin by the operation by the student body of our fine Graham Memorial student union building."

Bill Speight, president of the debate council:

"I believe that the new Graham Memorial building will provide a real social center for non-fraternity men, who have not previously had the opportunities afforded the members of fraternities."

W. Clyde Dunn, editor of the Yackety Yack:

"Provision for the maintenance of Graham Memorial is logically a student responsibility. Just as alumni loyalty initiates University expansion, just so should student loyalty—expressed through an annual fee—sustain the products of this growth."

Beverly Moore, student chairman of the Human Relations Institute:

"Graham Memorial, being a student center, must be controlled by the students. This control may best be effected through students financing the operation of the building in this time of depression. It is therefore the responsibility of every student to vote in favor of the student fee."

Sam Silverstein, business manager of the Yackety Yack:

"The completion of Graham Memorial brings to realization the long felt need for a gathering place for both fraternity and non-fraternity men. It is but just that the students pay their share in maintaining this student union from which will derive the benefits."

K. C. Ramsay, president of the Publications Union board:

"One dollar per quarter is the lowest club dues that I have ever heard of especially when the club has a half million dollar house. Besides, Carolina needs such a club as an added integrating force for the ever growing student body."

C. G. Rose, Jr., vice-president of the State Student Federation:

"The new Graham Memorial building will serve as a means of bringing the campus closer together, and thus make for a more cooperative student body."

NEWSPAPERS OF STATE SCHOOLS ENTER CONTEST

(Continued from first page)

and Durham high school the best newspaper.

Since that time Greensboro has won both contests each year. June 1 has been set as the date before which all publications should submit their files for this year's contest.

Infirmary List

There was only one student confined to the infirmary yesterday. He is William C. Wallin.

The Graduate in New York

THE PARKSIDE provides a residence where young men and women of refinement and good taste see about them others of their own kind and only their own kind. Rooms have the inviting air of a charming guest suite in a private home. Excellent food. Pent House, reception rooms, and solarium for use of guests. A socially correct address. Opposite Gramercy Park. References required. Write for folder C.

Rooms $15 to $22.50 Weekly

The Parkside
Eighteen Gramercy Park SOUTH
Corner East 20th Street and Irving Place
NEW YORK CITY

Pennsylvania firm desires three men, preferably college freshmen or sophomores, for summer tour of Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, and Pennsylvania.

Regular Salary — Excellent Trip

2nd Floor Y. M. C. A.

TODAY ONLY FROM 2 TO 4 O'CLOCK

Yackety Yack Notice

Due to the large number of mistakes and changes in addresses as recorded on matriculation cards, it will be impossible to send annuals to any student unless he sends in his address (typed or printed) on a postal card to the YACKETY YACK, Box 969.

Those Who Do Not Send This Information Cannot Receive Their Year Book until Next Fall.

If you have not been in school three quarters, or if you have not paid your fees at the business office, you will not receive a copy of the book unless you call at the office any afternoon this week to make payments due.

DURHAM HERALD STATES ASHMORE MAY NOT RETURN

Student Pressure Sought to Stop Council from Releasing Veteran Athletic Coach.

The Durham Morning Herald, in a special story, yesterday announced that it had received authentic information that Coach Jim Ashmore, basketball and baseball mentor at the University for the last five years, would not return to coaching duties next fall. The Herald also claimed that student pressure in the form of petitions were being brought to bear to keep the veteran mentor.

The writer knows nothing of these petitions, but the Daily Tar Heel is behind any action that will retain Ashmore.

Coach Ashmore has had great success with the University teams under his direction, his basketball team having won two state titles and tied for another, and the baseball club has been the only one to take two Tri-State titles.

The following is the complete story which appeared in the Herald:

"Unless pressure brought to bear by student body leaders takes effect, Jim Ashmore, head coach in basketball and baseball at the University of North Carolina for the past five years, will not return for the 1932 season, according to authentic information obtained by the Herald last night.

"Rumors that the university athletic council was considering a change in its basketball and baseball program, with the possibility of a part-time coach being retained, had been current in Durham recently, but in view of Coach Ashmore's record over a five-year period, had been generally discredited by alumni here."

Petition Circulated

"It was learned last night, however, that Ellis Fysal, football star, had circulated among the university students a petition calling on the athletic council to make some effort to retain Ashmore's services. The petition has been presented to President Frank Graham.

"While no official announcement has been made it appears to be taken for granted at the Hill that his contract will not be renewed. One report was that the athletic council planned to dispense with the services of a full time coach as an economy measure. There was no intimation that his record of games won and lost had been found unsatisfactory."

Surprise to Alumni

"Durham alumni who were informed last night of the reports expressed surprise. It was pointed out that as late as Monday night, on the occasion of the awards night exercises, Director of Athletics R. A. Fetzer, commenting on the all-round success enjoyed by Carolina teams during the year just ending, had laid particular emphasis on the baseball record.

"He said the 1931 diamond season had been the most successful since 1920.

Coach Ashmore's baseball team this year won the championship of the Tri-State league, comprising conference teams in North Carolina, Virginia and Maryland, for the second time in three years and finished the season with a team percentage of .800. On that basis the Tar Heels, with 16 games won, four lost and one tied, laid claim to the championship of the northern half of the conference."

Team Handicapped

This record was compiled despite the handicap of poor material. The team was built around an infield that was en-

(Continued on last page)

Baseball Results

AMERICAN LEAGUE

New York 3	Philadelphia 6
Detroit 4-1	Chicago 5-7
St. Louis 4	Cleveland 5
Wash. 11-4	Boston 3-3

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Boston 4	New York 7
Pittsburgh 0	St. Louis 0
(Fifth inning)
Chicago 8	Cincinnati 4

A. T. O. TO MEET PHI SIG IN FINAL TENNIS MATCHES

Fraternity Championship Will Be Played Off This Afternoon at 4:00 O'clock.

A. T. O. and Phi Sigma Kappa gained the right to play for the fraternity tennis title by defeating Pi Kappa Phi and Sigma Chi, respectively, in the play-offs held this week. At the end of the season these four teams were tied for top honors, making the play-off necessary.

Phi Sigma Kappa easily defeated Sigma Chi in the first match, 4-0. The winners took all three singles matches, and won the doubles match, only one being played.

In the No. 1 singles, Andrews, Phi Sig, won over Jacocks, Sigma Chi, by taking the second and third sets after dropping the first by a love score. The scores were 0-6, 6-3, and 6-1.

Curlee, Phi Sig No. 2, defeated Harlee in two sets by scores of 6-4 and 6-2. The winner encountered a little trouble in the first set, but took the next one easily.

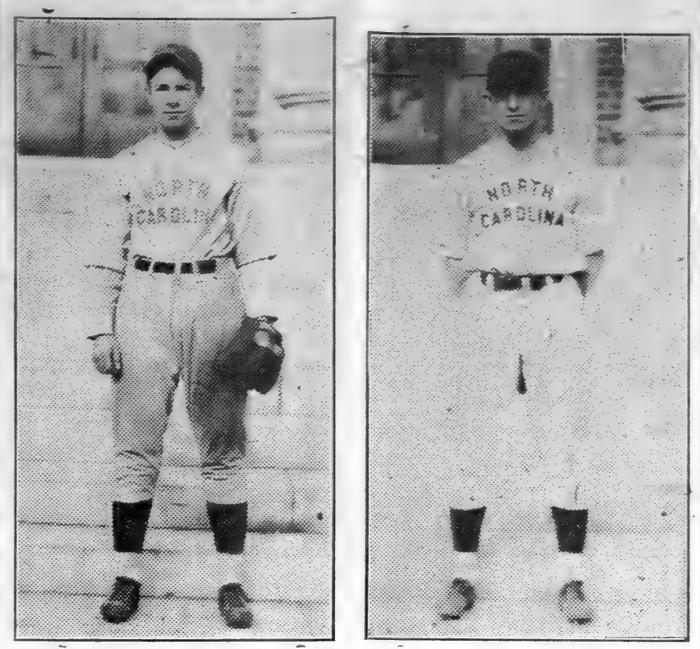
The match was clinched for the Phi Sig's when Whittington, playing No. 3 singles, beat Wood, Sigma Chi. Whittington took the match by a large margin, the score in the first set being 6-2, and that in the second 6-1.

The doubles match which was played had no bearing on the outcome of the matches. Whittington and Viek, of the Phi Sig's, paired to win from Jacocks and Harlee. The Phi Sig's had very little difficulty in the first set, taking it 6-1, but their opponents put up a good fight in the second. However, the winners took it by a count of 6-4.

The A. T. O.'s defeated Pi Kappa Phi 3-1 Tuesday in the second play-off. They will meet the Phi Sig's this afternoon at 4:00 to decide the fraternity championship.

COLLEGIANA

By THOMAS H. BROUGHTON



Penn State teams have probably entered in more athletic contests with Syracuse representatives than those of any other college this year. On one day the varsity and freshman football teams and the soccer players battled to scoreless ties, while the Nittany harriers downed the Hillmen. Defeating the Lions twice in basketball, the Orangemen lost in both boxing and wrestling. Spring sports have been a complete sweep for Penn State, the batsmen, stickmen, and trackmen defeating the Hill athletes this year. A tennis match, scheduled with Syracuse, was rained out.

Douglas, Penn State sophomore high jumper, who tied with four others for first place in that event in the meet with Carolina, was forced to drop from varsity competition recently as a result of an attack of appendicitis.

A $50,000 endowment was recently voted by the Alumni fund of Columbia university in an effort to solve the problems of

(Continued on last page)

Carolina's Big Blue Wall

Carolina's success this year can be largely laid to these two "rookies" who came through in grand style. Wee Willie Powell, third baseman, emerged from a long hitting slump to drive in many valuable runs. Besides being a good hitter, Willie is a fast, hard throwing fielder. "Smokey" Ferebee has been a tower of strength all year around the short field, finishing the year with a .312 batting average. Both of these rookies made the Tar Heel's all-state second team.

W. SHELTON PICKS BASEBALL TEAMS

Best House, Graham Have Four Men on Dormitory Selection; McNeil, Kappa Alpha, Hurls Three Perfect Games.

It has been announced by the intramural department yesterday that the all-fraternity and the all-dormitory baseball teams have been picked for this year. The A. T. O.'s, campus champions, the K. A.'s, and the Kappa Sig's each placed three men on the fraternity team. One Sigma Zeta and one T. E. P. finished out the selection. The complete pick is as follows: catcher, Brooker, A. T. O.; first base, Brooks, Sigma Zeta; second base, Bethune, K. A.; shortstop, Eagles, Kappa Sigma; third base, Satterfield, Kappa Sigma; outfielders, White, Kappa Sigma; Daniels, K. A.; and Smith, A. T. O.; pitchers, McNeill, K. A.; McLaughlin, A. T. O.; and Fine, T. E. P.

The all-dormitory team was picked from only three of the teams in the league. Four men each were picked from Graham and Best House, and the remainder came from New Dorms. The team was made up as follows: catcher, Smith, Best House; first base, Stewart, Best House; second base, Crouch, Best House; shortstop, J. C. Johnson, Graham; third base, J. S. Johnson, Graham; outfielders, Cox, New Dorms; Barham, Graham; and Hampton, New Dorms; pitchers, Scarboro, Best House, LeGore, Graham; and Scott, New Dorms.

(Continued on last page)

Correction

After checking up on the official batting averages of the baseball team, it was found that Peter Wyrick, second baseman, batted .317 instead of .288 as announced in Tuesday's Daily Tar Heel.

House Speaks Tonight

R. B. House, executive secretary of the University, will make the commencement address at the Fremont high school, Fremont, North Carolina, tonight at 8:15.

PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS

American Bus Lines
Incorporated
NEW SCHEDULES
between
Lynchburg - Danville
Chapel Hill
Connecting Schedules at DANVILLE
for the
NORTH and SOUTH
Leave Chapel Hill at 9:00 A. M. and 3:00 P. M. for—Danville and Lynchburg
Leave Chapel Hill at 9:00 A. M. for Roanoke
Natural Bridge
Sweetbriar
and Charlottesville

DARTMOUTH STAR KILLED IN CRASH

Tommy Longnecker, Three Year Grid Star, Killed in Auto Accident Near Toledo, Ohio.

The football world was shocked this week to learn of the death of Tommy Longnecker, formerly a star half back on Dartmouth's football team.

Longnecker was financial reporter on the Toledo Times, and was returning from Toledo to his home in Delta, Ohio, when the car in which he was driving, skidded and overturned in a ditch, crushing the football star.

Coroner Frank Kreft said death was probably instantaneous, resulting from internal injuries, and that the accident occurred shortly after midnight, Saturday.

There were no witnesses to the crash, but it is believed that Longnecker applied the brakes suddenly and skidded into the ditch.

The former football star was a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity, Spinx, Green Key, and the Arts.

Longnecker is remembered as the player who relieved Al Marsters when Al was hurt two seasons ago. He played three years on one of the East's best football teams, and was picked on many selections for All-Eastern halfback.

FRESHMAN TRACK STARS SHATTER SEVEN RECORDS

Undefeated Tar Babies Have Banner Season; Mullis Sets Marks in Discus and Shot.

Breaking eight freshman records and tying one, the 1931 Tar Baby track team ranks as one of the best in recent years. The freshmen went through their season without a defeat, hanging up victories over Charlotte and Greensboro high schools, Duke twice, and N. C. State.

Judging by this year's performances, the Tar Babies should supply the needed strength to give Carolina another fine track squad next spring. However, in order to be of any value next year, the stars of this year's team will have to win over their constant jinx—scholarship—and past experiences indicate that scholastic difficulties have robbed Carolina of some of its most promising track material.

Oscar Mullis set two new freshman records this year to lead the Tar Babies in this respect. In the first meet of the year, against Charlotte high school, Mullis broke the discus record with a throw of 119 feet 4½ inches, and in an exhibition meet at the end of the season,

(Continued on last page)

BOOKS
Spring Sale
Half Price and Less
BULL'S HEAD BOOK SHOP
214 MURPHEY

Get Your Laundry Bundles
And Refunds
At The
Y
TODAY AND THE REST OF WEEK
Laundry Dep't.
U. C. S. P.

The Campus Calendar

Address on Bank Failures

Mr. Charles H. Peple, deputy governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, will discuss "Bank Failures, their Causes and Prevention" before Mr. J. B. Woosley's class in commercial banking. This meeting of the class will come at 12:00 o'clock today in the auditorium of Bingham hall and is open to any other interested students.

FRESHMAN TRACK STARS SHATTER SEVEN RECORDS

(Continued from preceding page)

Mullis tossed the sixteen pound shot forty-two feet four inches to set another record. This mark betters the University record set by Pot Adkins in 1929 by almost three and one half inches. Adkins' record is 42 feet 5-8 inches.

Julius Horney set a new record against Greensboro high school by heaving the twelve pound shot 47 feet 8 3-4 inches. He also bettered the old record against Charlotte high with a toss of 44 feet 5 3-4 inches.

Bob Gold set another new freshman record in a dual meet with the N. C. State freshmen by clearing the bar in the pole vault at 11 feet 8 1-4 inches.

Floyd Higby is another of this year's stars to hold a record better than the varsity mark. In the exhibition meet held at the end of the season Higby set a new mark in the broad jump with a leap of 22 feet 2 3-4 inches, seven inches better than the best varsity mark made by Dave Neiman in 1930.

LeGore, with a throw of 178 feet 8 inches against the Duke frosh, set a new high mark in the javelin, and Settle Dockery and John Phipps tied for a new record in the high jump at five feet eight inches against Charlotte.

Two men ran the 100 yard dash in ten seconds flat to tie the record for that event. Weisker turned in his best time against N. C. State and Ashkenas won the event in ten seconds against Charlotte in the season opener.

A new record was also set in the sprint medley when Ashkenas, Higby, Goodwin, and Mead broke the state record for this event with a time of 3:40.9.

Charley Farmer leads the field of all-time record holders, however. In 1929 Farmer tied the record for the 100 yard dash, set by Smith in 1927, and then set new records in the 220 and 440. Charley ran the 220 in 21.4 seconds in a dual meet with Wilmington and Greensboro high schools, and then repeated this performance in setting a new state record at Greensboro in the same time.

On the same day that he set a state record in the 220, Farmer stepped out in the 440 to hang up a new mark for Carolina freshmen to shoot at by breaking the tape in 51.2 seconds.

New Library Hours For Summer School

The University library will be open at special hours every day from the close of examinations to the beginning of summer school. During the summer school sessions, it will be open every day from 8:00 a. m. to 10 p. m. during the week, and from 2 to 5 p. m. on Sundays.

The schedule between the close of examinations and the opening of summer school is as follows: Thursday, June 4, 8:30-5; Friday, June 5, 9-5; Saturday, June 6, 9-5; Sunday, June 7, 2-5; Monday, June 8, 9:30 a. m.-9:30 p. m.; Tuesday, June 9, 9-5; Wednesday, June 10, 9-5; Thursday, June 11, 9-5; Friday, June 12, 8 a. m.-10 p. m.

Princeton Seniors Indicate Interests

Each year a questionnaire is given to the Princeton seniors in regard to their preferences in various fields. The exam touches on acting, poetry, novels, sports, courses, and even professors.

Included also in this question sheet are queries regarding courses in the curriculum. From these comes the interesting disclosure that the dullest courses are Elements of Economics and Introduction to Philosophy and Evolution; that artillery is the easiest course and Modern European History the most difficult. It is also discovered that beer is the preferred beverage and that nearly four-fifths of the seniors have visited a New York night club and that only 40 out of 363 are in favor of prohibition.

The class also voted 266 to 98 in favor of honors in scholarship as compared with fame on the athletic field, which shows a slight gain for serious studies over the record of last year. Less than a majority of the class considered education the most important product of a university experience.

Books Relative To Kirk Lectures Now Available

Of probable interest to those who attended the McNair lectures, recently delivered by Dr. H. E. Kirk, is the following list of books relevant to the topics discussed: The Atom, by G. P. Thomson; The Stars in Their Courses, James Jeans; The Universe Around Us, James Jeans; The Mysterious Universe, James Jeans; Stars and Atoms, Eddington; The Nature of the Physical World, Eddington; Space, Time, and Gravitation, Eddington; The Domain of Physical Science, Hobson; The Metaphisical Foundations of Physics, Burtt; Science, Religion and Reality, edited by Dean Inge; History of Science, Dampier-Whetbane; and Science and the Modern World, Whithead.

COLLEGIANA

(Continued from preceding page)

commercialism and professionalism of college athletes.

Wesley Fesler, Ohio State football and baseball star, came out of a hitting slump with a bang in the recent Ohio State-Illinois game, hitting three home runs and two doubles in five trips to the plate, and batting in nine of Ohio State's ten runs. Not bad for one day's work.

Three men, holding four captaincies, represent Michigan on the diamond this year. Daniels, second baseman, will captain the Michigan quint in '32; Tompkins, pitcher, captains the nine and is captain-elect of the 1932 hockey team; and Hudson, football captain-elect, holds down first base.

Abe Eliowitz, Michigan State first sacker, will receive a new cravat for his work in the game with Central State last week. The original offer was a new tie would be given to any Spartan player making a triple on the home field. Eliowitz slammed out three at Mt. Pleasant, so Hal Clark, manager of the haberdashery making the offer, amended the offer so that the flashy first baseman could get a new cravat anyway, saying that Abe's feat warranted a special award.

The Tulane university golf team, which recently captured the Southern Conference championship, may enter the national intercollegiate golf tourney to be held at Olympia fields, Chicago, next month, if plans now underway are completed.

The Greenies won the title two years running, '25 and '26, so a Tulane victory will not be without precedent, but a full team competing for the title would be the first time Tulane has gone out in quest of such honors.

Present plans call for five men to enter the national meet.

Warren Doyle of Tulane was the winner of Southern Conference consolation tennis tourney, beating Kalshoven of Louisiana State in the final round.

Oregon won the team golf championship of the Pacific coast even if the individual title went South. This is the only championship the Webfoots have won during the year, and there aren't any prospects of them winning any more before school ends.

JOHNSTON TELLS ABOUT VALUE OF FRESHMAN WEEK

(Continued from page one)

program," stated the assistant dean of students, "is to help the freshman adjust himself to his college life in such a way that he can take full advantage of all the resources the University has to offer." Continuing, the speaker said that in order to accomplish this purpose the University must know the student, his interests, abilities and problems, and the freshman must know something about the University, its organization, traditions and purpose.

Proceeding, the speaker told of how the new man is advised on the basis of his high school record, and that the dean of his school tries to advise him in such a way that there is as little "lost motion" as possible in the jump from high school to college, and he further said that the counsellor can usually direct him to the source from which the needed information may be secured.

History of Freshman Week

A short history of "Freshman Week at the University" was next given by the speaker. He stated that the same type is known by different names at various institutions throughout the country. To the University of Maine, in 1923, is given the credit for having held the first program of this kind, and since that time the idea has spread rapidly until today most of the colleges and universities of the country have some such program. It was in the fall of 1925, that this University held its first freshman week.

Concluding, the speaker gave the need of the annual freshman week program, explaining that conditions on the campus have changed considerably since the first student entered until today the approximate 2,700 students enrolled in this University represent thirty-five states, six foreign countries, and that the enormous size of the faculty and of the freshman class together with the fact that some of the students come from small country schools, others from large city school systems and still others from preparatory schools, warrant the need of some such program of adjustment and orientation.

FRATERNITIES NOTICE

I would like to communicate with fraternity who desires the service of a house mother or dining room manager. Address Mrs. J. L. Foister, 308 Pittsboro street. Phone 4081, Chapel Hill.

CAROLINA THEATRE
Now Playing
Ellissa Landi
in
"Always Goodbye"
also
Comedy - Novelty

DURHAM HERALD STATES ASHMORE MAY NOT RETURN

(Continued from preceding page)

tirely green, an outfield that included two veterans and a mediocre pitching staff. At the end of the season that batch had been whipped into one of the four best nines in the southern conference, the other leaders being Auburn, South Carolina and Duke.

"During his five years at Carolina Coach Ashmore's basketball teams have won two state championships and tied for another. In southern conference play in Atlanta in March the Tar Heels were eliminated by Maryland, the team that won the championship, by a one-point margin. In a scheduled game at College Park Maryland had defeated the Tar Heels after an extra-period contest in which Sandy Dameron, star center, was out of the game due to an injury.

"In 1929 State college won the conference basketball championship after losing two scheduled games to Carolina. The Tar Heels' only defeat that year during their regular schedule was a 20-19 loss to Tulane.

This clipping recently appeared in Jake Wade's column in the Charlotte Observer.

"Carolina started off with less than nothing in the way of material. Great gaps in the lineup stared Coach Jim Ashmore in the face and the feeling was that the Tar Heels would be exceedingly fortunate to escape with their shirt.

"Ashmore, who is a skillful baseball coach and loves the game, stuck grimly at his task, and builded out of unseasoned talent a club that went places, and, in many instances, did things.

"I understand that sometime soon the Carolina athletic council will take up the question of renewing Ashmore's contract. In taking action they can well afford to spend some time in perusing the statistics of Ashmore's 1931 baseball team, a dark horse that must have been painted black by Jim's hands."

W. SHELTON PICKS BASEBALL TEAMS

(Continued from preceding page)

Alan Smith, A. T. O., who won the Grail Cup this year, amassed more points than any man who has won the cup previously. He was also a member of all five teams which his fraternity entered in the intramural race, being on the football, basket ball, boxing, baseball, and tennis teams. He made the all-campus selection in football and basketball, and was picked for the all-fraternity baseball team, no all-campus team being chosen in this sport. There have been no tennis selections as yet, but Smith has a very good chance of making such if there are any teams picked. In the winter boxing tournament, the A. T. O. star went to the finals in the feather weight class, and in the spring tournament he captured the bantamweight title.

Smith and Stewart, of Best House, were also prominent in intramurals, both making the all-campus football and basketball teams, and both also being selected for the all-dormitory baseball pick.

McNeill, K. A.'s star pitcher, was the most outstanding hurler seen in intramural circles for a long time. He pitched three games, allowing no hits and he won all of them. In the matter of actual wins and losses, McLaughlin, A. T. O., and Scott, New Dorms, led the pack, each getting five wins and dropping none. The records of the leading pitchers are as follows:

	W	L	Pct.
McLaughlin, A. T. O.	5	0	1.000
Scott, New Dorms	5	0	1.000
McNeill, K. A.	3	0	1.000
LeGore, Graham	5	1	.834
Scarboro, Best House	4	1	.800

Just think of the terrible depression there will be in the apple business when times get better and the unemployed go back to their regular jobs.—Nashville Southern Lumberman.

COLDEX
Brings Quick Relief to Thousands
You too, can stop colds and coughs with this remarkable liquid medicine that so safely gives such quick and lasting results. Just say Coldex to your druggist. Only 50c. Recommended and guaranteed by
Sutton's Drug Store

THE D. K. E. HOUSE
Will Be Open for
Summer School
Make Reservations Now

Buy 2 25c Tubes Colgate Toothpaste for 45c and receive 50c Tooth Brush FREE.
BERMAN'S DEPARTMENT STORE, Inc

SPRING CLEARANCE SALE

Sale Starts Thursday, May 28

Every article in the store must be sold regardless of price. We bought this merchandise to sell to you at the regular retail prices, but the unsettled weather held you off from buying and we therefore are offering this high-grade merchandise at a big saving to you. Below we quote a few prices.

1 lot of 3-piece linen suits — Sale price— $10.95	1 lot of Plus 6 Wool Knickers — $10.00 value — Sale price— $5.35	Marlboro Shirts—$2 value, Barrymore included—Sale price— $1.45 all colors	1 lot McGregor Sweaters — $5.00 value—Sale price— $3.15

Finley and Ide Underwear $1.00 Values Sale Price 75c	Shantung Wash Ties 50c Value Sale Price 3 for $1.00	$2.00 Pajamas Sale Price $1.55

Big Reduction on White Duck Pants, Linen Knickers, Bath Robes and Tennis Shoes

One Lot of Men's Caps $2.00 Value Sale Price $1.15	SPECIAL I Lot of Pajamas $1.15	I Lot of Imported Colored Linen Knickers Sale Price $3.55

Also Big Reductions in Silverstripe and Learbury Spring Wool Suits. Big Reduction on All Linen and Palm Beach Suits in Stock.

—at—

JACK LIPMAN'S
University Shop

COMMERCE JUNIORS
MEETING WITH DEAN
103 BINGHAM — 10:30

The Daily Tar Heel

VOLUME XXXIX — CHAPEL HILL, N. C., FRIDAY, MAY 29, 1931 — NUMBER 183

TENNIS FINALS
A.T.O.—NEW DORMS
INTRAMURAL COURTS—4:00

FIRST YEAR LAW MEN MAY ENTER SUMMER SESSION

Nationally Known Authorities Will Be Included on Summer Law Faculty.

Allowing for the first time students to enter the law school in a summer session, the summer law school will open June 15 of this year. The faculty for the session includes two Supreme Court justices, professors from Columbia and Yale, a tax specialist who was formerly a members of the United States board of tax appeals, and four men from the University.

During the first term, which lasts from June 15 to July 22, Professor Richard Powell, of Columbia university, will teach trusts while Justice George W. Connor, of the Supreme Court of North Carolina will give a course in constitutional law. Professor William R. Vance, of Yale university, will lecture on insurance; and Professors M. T. Van Hecke and F. B. McCall, of the University, will teach personal property and common law pleading respectively.

Second Term

During the second term, which begins July 23 and ends August 29, Percy W. Phillips of Washington, D. C., former member of the board of tax appeals will instruct in federal taxation; Professor Roscoe B. Turner, of Yale, banking; Justice W. J. Brogden, of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, code pleading and practice; and Professors M. S. Breckenridge and Albert Coates, of the University, will teach agency and criminal law respectively.

Professor Vance is the author of Vance on Insurance, a subpect upon which he has been a national authority for many years. Mr. Phillips, was for several years a member of the firm of Brewster, Ivins, and Phillips.

(Continued on last page)

SELECTIONS FOR SERVICE STORES' MONITORS MADE

Committee Recommends Men To Have Charge of Dormitory Rooms in 1931-1932.

A committee composed of P. L. Burch, superintendent of the buildings department, Edwin Lanier, of the self-help bureau, and Jimmy Williams, of the dean of students' office announced the appointment of dormitory service room monitors for 1931-32 yesterday.

The appointment of these men awaits the approval of President Frank Graham before they become official. Those recommended are requested to be present in the office of the dean of students, 208 South building, at seven-thirty tonight. At this time, they will confer upon the operation of the service rooms during the next school year.

Appointees

Those recommended by the committee are: D. M. Carmichael and C. K. Carmichael in Battle-Vance-Pettigrew; H. P. Whisnant and J. I. Devereux, Old West; T. R. Baldwin and C. E. Boyles, Old East; C. P. Randolph and W. B. Metheny, Carr; R. H. Morgan and J. A. Shepard, Steele; D. A. Kelly and H. T. Taylor, Grimes; W. C. Medford and Wayne Woodard, Manly; O. W. Baker and G. L.

(Continued on last page)

EGYPTIAN PAPYRUS IS BEING UNROLLED

Work on the Egyptian papyrus, given to the archeological department by M. P. Gilmour, is progressing rapidly. A few days ago the payrus was sent away to be repaired and mounted, and so far it has been unrolled about eighteen inches. Inscribed in red and black ink with hieroglyphics and illustrations, it is found to be, as was surmised, a Book of the Dead.

The payrus was damaged in Egypt by white ants and before it can be mounted it must be repaired by experts. Rather than unroll it entirely in the mounting, it will probably be mounted partly unrolled in order that the student may get an idea of the appearance of the original papyrus roll and its contents. This gift will constitute the nucleus of the new collection made by the archeological department.

MEN CHOSEN FOR BINGHAM DEBATE

Hobgood and Uzzell Will Represent Phi, and Shreve and Rutledge, Di.

The Bingham prize in debate, awarded annually at commencement will go to either Hamilton Hobgood, W. E. Uzzell, Clyde Shreve, or Carlyle Rutledge. These are the men who will represent the Di and Phi literary societies in the yearly event.

The Bingham prize is offered annually by Mr. R. W. Bingham in memory of his great-grandfather, grandfather, father, and brother who were closely connected with the University. It is presented for excellence in debate to members of the two societies.

Commencement Events

The contest takes place annually as an event in the commencement program. Two representatives are chosen from each of the two societies and the final decision is made at commencement.

This year the query is: Resolved: that the emergence of women from the home is a regrettable feature of modern life." The Di will uphold the affirmative side of the question while Phi members will speak for the negative. Hobgood and Uzzell have been chosen to represent the Phi while Shreve and Rutledge will represent the other society.

Play Presented As Degree Requirement

Rest For My Soul, a play written by Anne Braddy, student of the University, was presented in the Playmakers theatre last night. The play, which is entirely experimental, deals with the problem of the intermixture of the whites and the blacks. There are four white and six negro characters.

The cast consisted of: Hattie Lou, Betty Jones,; Zook, Phillip Milhous; Judetha, Ellen Stewart; Mr. Gibson, Laurence Miller; Jane Gibson, Bess Winburn; Mrs. Bass, Marjorie Good, Magnolia, Adelaide Reed; Gus, Charles Ayres; Hugh, Ralph Westerman; and Luvinia, Anne Braddy.

This play, the first ever to be presented as part requirement for an M.A. degree, was given before the English faculty committee. Others who were present attended by special invitation.

COMMENCEMENT PROGRAM

SATURDAY, JUNE 6—CLASS DAY

9:30 A. M. Senior Prayers in Gerrard Hall.
10:00 A. M. Senior Class Exercises under Davie Poplar. (Gerrard Hall, if rain).
3:30 P. M. Band Concert, Davie Poplar.
4:30 A. M. Mangum Medal Contest, Music Hall.
5:30-6:30 P. M. President's Reception to Seniors and their Guests, President's Home.
8:30 P. M. Concert, University Band, Music Hall.

SUNDAY, JUNE 7—BACCALAUREATE SUNDAY

11:00 A. M. Baccalaureate Sermon, by Rev. E. McNeill Poteat, Jr., Pastor Pullen Memorial Baptist Church, Raleigh. Memorial Hall.
4:00 P. M. University Band, under Davie Poplar.
5:00 P. M. Organ Recital, Music Hall.
7:00 P. M. Vesper Services under Davie Poplar. Rev. W. D. Moss.

MONDAY, JUNE 8—ALUMNI DAY

Alumni Headquarters, Registration, Y.M.C.A.
10:00 A. M. U.N.C. News Reel, Carolina Theatre.
10:30 A. M. General Alumni Meeting. Judge Francis D. Winston, Presiding.
1:00 P. M. Alumni Luncheon, Swain Hall, K. P. Lewis, Alumni President, Presiding.
3:00-4:00 P. M. Open House, University Buildings. Professors "at home" in offices.
4:00 P. M. University Band. Davie Poplar.
5:00 P. M. Organ Recital, Music Hall.
6:00 P. M. Reunion Class Suppers.
9:00 P. M. President Graham's Reception to the Alumni and Alumni Ball, Tin Can.

TUESDAY, JUNE 9—COMMENCEMENT DAY

10:00 A. M. U.N.C. News Reel, Carolina Theatre.
10:30 A. M. Academic Procession Forms at Alumni Building.
11:00 A. M. Commencement Exercises Memorial Hall. Address by Claude G. Bowers.

Playmakers' Thirteenth Season Sees Active Theatre Production

In Spite of Trips Being Abandoned, Local Group Presents Plays Employing Two Hundred and Forty-Seven Persons As Well As Engaging in Scenery Manufacture.

Two hundred and forty-seven students took part in some phase of the Playmakers' productions during the past session of the University, making this the busiest home year that the dramatic organization has ever experienced. A total of fifty-five plays were produced in The Playmakers Theatre by the organization itself and thirty-four other programs were put on by professional companies and high school organizations. When no tours were taken on account of prevailing business conditions throughout the country, The Playmakers concentrated their activities in their own theatre at Chapel Hill, and writing, acting, costuming, designing, producing, directing, and technical and business work each claimed its votaries. As a result, the procession of rehearsals, readings, exhibits, lectures, and actual productions has overflowed the theatre and made necessary the use of the scene shop in Person hall as an auxiliary as well as the Parish house of the Episcopal church and the stage of the recently constructed Memorial hall.

Outside Attractions

One hundred and seventy-five one-act plays were written during the year and of these thirty-two were given production in the theatre, two of these being full-length plays. Among the outside attractions given were seven productions by professional companies, including the Ben Greet players, the Jitney players, and the Sue Hastings marionettes, two programs of original folk music and one reading of an original folk opera, The Mountain Song, by a Pulitzer prize winning composer, Lamar Stringfield. There were seven public readings of plays by professional playwrights, including Green Grow the Lilacs, a week after its New York premiere, and Cherokee Night by the author himself, Lynn Riggs, and Tread the Green Grass, by Paul Green, Carolina Pulitzer winner. Eight lectures on the theatre were given by such prominent visitors as Percy MacKaye, Barrett Clark, Lynn Riggs, Phillips Russell, and Paul Green.

Scene Shop

In the technical department The Playmakers have also been extremely active this year. They equipped a new scene shop in Person hall for the construction and painting of their scenery, and have given two public exhibits of stage and costume designs by students.

In addition to the orginal plays, a number of pieces of professional authorship were produced by the Playmakers, among them The Importance of Being Earnest, East Lynne, and The Perfect Alibi. Also, two special programs have been given — The Annual Twelfth Night Revel, The Annual Caper, and a radio performance of an original one-act play, Git Up An' Bar the Door, a Mississippi folk-play.

Dramatic Festival

As a center of the state's interest in dramatics, the Playmakers Theatre was the scene of the annual Dramatic Festival of the Carolina Dramatic association, when the high schools and colleges throughout the state put on twenty plays, six of which were original. One, Ridin' the Goat, was written by a Negro and acted by students from St. Augustine's College for Negroes at Raleigh.

Forty-seven students have been given intensive training and practical work in acting, directing, and scenery design, and construction in regular University courses, while fifty-five have been enthusiastically engaged in original damatic writing.

All in all, the Carolina Playmakers, in sixty-eight performances, played to more than 15,000 persons in their small theatre at Chapel Hill since September.

Students Vote 806 To 74 To Use Graham Memorial

Plessow Returns To German University

Dr. Gustav Plessow, who has for the past few months been a visiting professor at the University from the University of Tubingen, left last night to return to Germany. He will go by way of New York and New Haven, where he will spend a few days at Yale university.

Dr. Plessow has been studying the point of view of the American people, which he will teach in his department of Americana at Tubingen, and has at the same time been delivering a series of lectures in the English department here. At a future time Dr. Plessow hopes to return to the United States and study at Universities in other sections of the country.

TWELVE CLASSES TO UNITE IN JUNE

Three Thousand Invitations Issued to Alumni Holding Reunions at Commencement.

Plans for the 136th annual commencement of the University this June have at last been completed. Copies of the program for the exercises and entertainments have been sent out to over three thousand alumni whose classes are scheduled to meet here for Alumni day, Monday, June 8.

U. N. C. News Reel

A novel feature of the list of entertainments will be the presentation of a U. N. C. news reel at 10:00 a. m. both Monday and Tuesday mornings, June 8 and 9. This reel includes the inauguration of President E. K. Graham in 1914, and many other interesting events that will be familiar to the returning grads.

Twelve classes are expected to be represented at the alumni reunion, including those of '81, '91, '92, '93, '94, '01, '06, '10, '11, '12, '13, and '30. Invitations have been sent out to these three thousand alumni, and a large percentage of this group is expected to attend. Several of the dormitories will be available for their accommodation, and also the Carolina inn.

The complete commencement program is printed elsewhere.

City Fathers Arrange Next Year's Budget

A special meeting of the Chapel Hill board of aldermen was called last Wednesday night at which several officers were appointed and reappointed. B. D. Sawyer was appointed town attorney and prosecuting attorney for the recorder's court; M. W. Durham was appointed clerk of the recorder's court; J. M. Foushee was reappointed city manager; and Miss Josephine Osborne, town clerk.

The meeting was mainly devoted to the discussion of next year's budget. The town auditor made a report showing the expenditures for last year and recommended an extra month in the budget caused by adding the month May 31 to June 30 to the fiscal year. Since this extra month will be taken care of in the present budget the tax rate will remain the same. The standing committee of the board of aldermen will go into details of the budget at a further hearing at the next regular meeting of the board, June 10.

UNION BUILDING IS FINALLY REALIZED AFTER LONG WAIT

Campus-Wide Balloting Shows Three Dollar Assessment To Class Fees Advocated.

Graham Memorial Union building will be used during the coming year. Such was the overwhelming decision of the campus on the basis of the election which was run off all day yesterday. The final tabulation showed 806 votes for and seventy-four against the proposition that a fee of one dollar a quarter be levied on all students for the maintenance and furnishing of this student center.

Organization Meeting

With this favorable decision the work of organization and equipment which have been held up until this election will now go forward. These various groups have already been chosen and consist of students, faculty, and alumni. The meeting of the board of directors of the union will take place today, and everyone having suggestions as to what uses could be made of the building and to whom the various activity rooms should be assigned will have the opportunity to express themselves.

The ballot stressed another important fact—that the total fees of only the freshman and sophomore classes will in reality be changed. The three dollars a year will be added to their present fee of a dollar and a half. The junior and senior classes will pay the same total amount that they have been paying during the past, for three dollars will be transferred from their present fee to the Graham Memorial fund. The reason for this is that these fees have been found to be too high anyway,

(Continued on last page)

GIRLS TO DISCUSS COTTON QUESTION

Two High School Students Will Appear Here in State-Wide Contest.

This morning at 10:30 o'clock, in the seminar room of Bingham hall, Miss Temesia Laws, of Rougemont, Durham county, and Miss Elizabeth Barrington, of R.F.D. No. 2, Raleigh, Wake county, will speak on the subject, "Cotton Cooperative Marketing in North Carolina—Its Progress and Its Future."

These two young ladies are competing for valuable cash prizes and for the right to enter the Central District Essay Contest sponsored by the North Carolina Cotton Growers Cooperative Association. The result of the contest between these two girls will determine whether Wake or Durham county will furnish the representative in the district contest.

State-Wide Contest

This contest is a part of the state-wide essay contest which is being conducted in the high schools by the Cotton Growers Association. These speakers are the winners of elimination contests in their counties and their speeches are expected to be both instructive and entertaining.

The program will be in charge of Dr. S. H. Hobbs of the division of rural and social economics. All students are invited to attend.

COMMERCE JUNIORS
MEETING WITH DEAN
103 BINGHAM — 10:30

The Daily Tar Heel

TENNIS FINALS
A.T.O.—NEW DORMS
INTRAMURAL COURTS—4:00

VOLUME XXXIX CHAPEL HILL, N. C., FRIDAY, MAY 29, 1931 NUMBER 183

FIRST YEAR LAW MEN MAY ENTER SUMMER SESSION

Nationally Known Authorities Will Be Included on Summer Law Faculty.

Allowing for the first time students to enter the law school in a summer session, the summer law school will open June 15 of this year. The faculty for the session includes two Supreme Couft justices, professors from Columbia and Yale, a tax specialist who was formerly a members of the United States board of tax appeals, and four men from the University.

During the first term, which lasts from June 15 to July 22, Professor Richard Powell, of Columbia university, will teach trusts while Justice George W. Connor, of the Supreme Court of North Carolina will give a course in constitutional law. Professor William R. Vance, of Yale university, will lecture on insurance; and Professors M. T. Van Hecke and F. B. McCall, of the University, will teach personal property and common law pleading respectively.

Second Term

During the second term, which begins July 23 and ends August 29, Percy W. Phillips of Washington, D. C., former member of the board of tax appeals will instruct in federal taxation; Professor Roscoe B. Turner, of Yale, banking; Justice W. J. Brogden, of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, code pleading and practice; and Professors M. S. Breckenridge and Albert Coates, of the University, will teach agency and criminal law respectively.

Professor Vance is the author of Vance on Insurance, a subpect upon which he has been a national authority for many years. Mr. Phillips, was for several years a member of the firm of Brewster, Ivins, and Phillips,

(Continued on last page)

SELECTIONS FOR SERVICE STORES' MONITORS MADE

Committee Recommends Men To Have Charge of Dormitory Rooms in 1931-1932.

A committee composed of P. L. Burch, superintendent of the buildings department, Edwin Lanier, of the self-help bureau, and Jimmy Williams, of the dean of students' office announced the appointment of dormitory service room monitors for 1931-32 yesterday.

EGYPTIAN PAPYRUS IS BEING UNROLLED

Work on the Egyptian papyrus, given to the archeological department by M. P. Gilmour, is progressing rapidly. A few days ago the payrus was sent away to be repaired and mounted, and so far it has been unrolled about eighteen inches. Inscribed in red and black ink with hieroglyphics and illustrations, it is found to be, as was surmised, a Book of the Dead.

The payrus was damaged in Egypt by white ants and before it can be mounted it must be repaired by experts. Rather than unroll it entirely in the mounting, it will probably be mounted partly unrolled in order that the student may get an idea of the appearance of the original papyrus roll and its contents. This gift will constitute the nucleus of the new collection made by the archeological department.

MEN CHOSEN FOR BINGHAM DEBATE

Hobgood and Uzzell Will Represent Phi, and Shreve and Rutledge, Di.

The Bingham prize in debate, awarded annually at commencement will go to either Hamilton Hobgood, W. E. Uzzell, Clyde Shreve, or Carlyle Rutledge. These are the men who will represent the Di and Phi literary societies in the yearly event.

The Bingham prize is offered annually by Mr. R. W. Bingham in memory of his great-grandfather, grandfather, father, and brother who were closely connected with the University. It is presented for excellence in debate to members of the two societies.

Commencement Events

The contest takes place annually as an event in the commencement program. Two representatives are chosen from each of the two societies and the final decision is made at commencement.

This year the query is: Resolved: that the emergence of women from the home is a regrettable feature of modern life." The Di will uphold the affirmative side of the question while Phi members will speak for the negative. Hobgood and Uzzell have been chosen to represent the Phi while Shreve and Rutledge will represent the other society.

Play Presented As Degree Requirement

Rest For My Soul, a play written by Anne Braddy, stu-

COMMENCEMENT PROGRAM

SATURDAY, JUNE 6—CLASS DAY

9:30 A. M. Senior Prayers in Gerrard Hall.
10:00 A. M. Senior Class Exercises under Davie Poplar. (Gerrard Hall, if rain).
3:30 P. M. Band Concert, Davie Poplar.
4:30 A. M. Mangum Medal Contest, Music Hall.
5:30-6:30 P. M. President's Reception to Seniors and their Guests, President's Home.
8:30 P. M. Concert, University Band, Music Hall.

SUNDAY, JUNE 7—BACCALAUREATE SUNDAY

11:00 A. M. Baccalaureate Sermon, by Rev. E. McNeill Poteat, Jr., Pastor Pullen Memorial Baptist Church, Raleigh. Memorial Hall.
4:00 P. M. University Band, under Davie Poplar.
5:00 P. M. Organ Recital, Music Hall.
7:00 P. M. Vesper Services under Davie Poplar. Rev. W. D. Moss.

MONDAY, JUNE 8—ALUMNI DAY

Alumni Headquarters, Registration, Y.M.C.A.
10:00 A. M. U.N.C. News Reel, Carolina Theatre.
10:30 A. M. General Alumni Meeting. Judge Francis D. Winston, Presiding.
1:00 P. M. Alumni Luncheon, Swain Hall, K. P. Lewis, Alumni President, Presiding.
3:00-4:00 P. M. Open House, University Buildings. Professors "at home" in offices.
4:00 P. M. University Band. Davie Poplar.
5:00 P. M. Organ Recital, Music Hall.
6:00 P. M. Reunion Class Suppers.
9:00 P. M. President Graham's Reception to the Alumni and Alumni Ball, Tin Can.

TUESDAY, JUNE 9—COMMENCEMENT DAY

10:00 A. M. U.N.C. News Reel, Carolina Theatre.
10:30 A. M. Academic Procession Forms at Alumni Building.
11:00 A. M. Commencement Exercises Memorial Hall. Address by Claude G. Bowers.

Playmakers' Thirteenth Season Sees Active Theatre Production

In Spite of Trips Being Abandoned, Local Group Presents Plays Employing Two Hundred and Forty-Seven Persons As Well As Engaging in Scenery Manufacture.

Two hundred and forty-seven students took part in some phase of the Playmakers' productions during the past session of the University, making this the busiest home year that the dramatic organization has ever experienced. A total of fifty-five plays were produced in The Playmakers Theatre by the organization itself and thirty-four other programs were put on by professional companies and high school organizations. When no tours were taken on account of prevailing business conditions throughout the country, The Playmakers concentrated their activities in their own theatre at Chapel Hill, and writing, acting, costuming, designing, producing, directing, and technical and business work each claimed its votaries. As a result, the procession of rehearsals, readings, exhibits, lectures, and actual productions has overflowed the theatre and made necessary the use of the scene shop in Person hall as an auxiliary as well as the Parish house of the Episcopal church and the stage of the recently constructed Memorial hall.

Outside Attractions

Carolina Pulitzer winner. Eight lectures on the theatre were given by such prominent visitors as Percy MacKaye, Barrett Clark, Lynn Riggs, Phillips Russell, and Paul Green.

Scene Shop

In the technical department The Playmakers have also been extremely active this year. They equipped a new scene shop in Person hall for the construction and painting of their scenery, and have given two public exhibits of stage and costume designs by students.

In addition to the orginal plays, a number of pieces of professional authorship were produced by the Playmakers, among them The Importance of Being Earnest, East Lynne, and The Perfect Alibi. Also, two special programs have been given — The Annual Twelfth Night Revel, The Annual Caper, and a radio performance of an original one-act play, Git Up An' Bar the Door, a Mississippi folk-play.

Dramatic Festival

As a center of the state's interest in dramatics, the Playmakers Theatre was the scene of

Students Vote 806 To 74 To Use Graham Memorial

Plessow Returns To German University

Dr. Gustav Plessow, who has for the past few months been a visiting professor at the University from the University of Tubingen, left last night to return to Germany. He will go by way of New York and New Haven, where he will spend a few days at Yale university.

Dr. Plessow has been studying the point of view of the American people, which he will teach in his department of Americana at Tubingen, and has at the same time been delivering a series of lectures in the English department here. At a future time Dr. Plessow hopes to return to the United States and study at Universities in other sections of the country.

TWELVE CLASSES TO UNITE IN JUNE

Three Thousand Invitations Issued to Alumni Holding Reunions at Commencement.

Plans for the 136th annual commencement of the University this June have at last been completed. Copies of the program for the exercises and entertainments have been sent out to over three thousand alumni whose classes are scheduled to meet here for Alumni day, Monday, June 8.

U. N. C. News Reel

A novel feature of the list of entertainments will be the presentation of a U. N. C. news reel at 10:00 a. m. both Monday and Tuesday mornings, June 8 and 9. This reel includes the inauguration of President E. K. Graham in 1914, and many other interesting events that will be familiar to the returning grads.

Twelve classes are expected to be represented at the alumni reunion, including those of '81, '91, '92, '93, '94, '01, '06, '10, '11, '12, '13, and '30. Invitations have been sent out to these three thousand alumni, and a large percentage of this group is expected to attend. Several of the dormitories will be available for their accommodation, and also the Carolina inn.

The complete commencement program is printed elsewhere.

City Fathers Arrange Next Year's Budget

A special meeting of the Chapel Hill board of aldermen was called last Wednesday night at which several officers were appointed and reappointed. B.

UNION BUILDING IS FINALLY REALIZED AFTER LONG WAIT

Campus-Wide Balloting Shows Three Dollar Assessment To Class Fees Advocated.

Graham Memorial Union building will be used during the coming year. Such was the overwhelming decision of the campus on the basis of the election which was run off all day yesterday. The final tabulation showed 806 votes for and seventy-four against the proposition that a fee of one dollar a quarter be levied on all students for the maintenance and furnishing of this student center.

Organization Meeting

With this favorable decision the work of organization and equipment which have been held up until this election will now go forward. These various groups have already been chosen and consist of students, faculty, and alumni. The meeting of the board of directors of the union will take place today, and everyone having suggestions as to what uses could be made of the building and to whom the various activity rooms should be assigned will have the opportunity to express themselves.

The ballot stressed another important fact—that the total fees of only the freshman and sophomore classes will in reality be changed. The three dollars a year will be added to their present fee of a dollar and a half. The junior and senior classes will pay the same total amount that they have been paying during the past, for three dollars will be transferred from their present fee to the Graham Memorial fund. The reason for this is that these fees have been found to be too high anyway,

(Continued on last page)

GIRLS TO DISCUSS COTTON QUESTION

Two High School Students Will Appear Here in State-Wide Contest.

This morning at 10:30 o'clock, in the seminar room of Bingham hall, Miss Temesia Laws, of Rougemont, Durham county, and Miss Elizabeth Barrington, of R.F.D. No. 2, Raleigh, Wake county, will speak on the subject, "Cotton Cooperative Marketing in North Carolina—Its Progress and Its Future."

These two young ladies are competing for valuable cash

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays. Entered as Second Class matter at the post office at Chapel Hill, N. C., under Act of March 3, 1879.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $4.00 for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

Jack Dungan.....Editor
H. N. Patterson.....Bus. Mgr.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Ed French.....Mng. Ed.

Editorial Board

Charles G. Rose.....Chairman
J. M. Little — Frank J. Manheim
W. M. Bryson — Will Yarborough
Alden Stahr — Bob Barnett
Wex Malone — K. C. Ramsay

Assignment Editors

Otto S. Steinreich
Dan Kelly, Assistant

Sunday Editor

Charles G. Rose

City Editors

Bill McKee — George Wilson
Peter Hairston — Jack Riley

Desk Men

W. R. Woerner — Don Shoemaker
Frank Hawley — T. W. Blackwell
Vass Shepherd

Sports Staff

Jack Bessen.....Sports Editor

Assistants

T. H. Broughton — P. Alston

News Men

E. M. Sprnill — F. W. Ashley
W. E. Davis — Claiborn Carr
Charles Poe

Reporters

Saul Gordon — Bob Reynolds
Woodward Glenn — M. V. Barnhill, Jr.
William Blount — W. F. Lee
U. B. Phillips — M. H. Long
Tom Walker — W. L. Gray
Ronald Kochendorfer — Walker Stamps
Phil Sasser

BUSINESS STAFF

Hal Worth.....Circulation Mgr.
Harlan Jameson.....Ass't. Bus. Mgr.
John Manning.....Ass't. Bus. Mgr.

Advertising Department

Al L. Olmstead.....Advertising Mgr.
Pendleton Gray.....Advertising Mgr.
Bernard Solomon.....Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
R. D. McMillan, Jr.....Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
James N. Nowell — H. A. Clark

Collection Department

Jack Hammer.....Collection Mgr.
John Barrow — Frank S. Dale
Stokes Adderton — Jack Stokes

Correspondence Department

Ed Michaels, Jr.....Correspondence Mgr.
Wynn Hamm.....Ass't. Cor. Mgr.

Friday, May 29, 1931

The legislature of the state of North Carolina has adjourned sine die.

The Death Of a Friend

Perhaps most of us have had the tragic experience of losing a friend through death, and it is sometimes hard to tell which is more unfortunate: the one who dies, or the one left behind. Certainly the former does not feel the sudden blow of grief and the sense of incompleteness which immediately follows the loss and continues as long as memory endures.

This man is not known to our campus, and no particular eulogy is necessary to this "Unknown Friend," for his life was his own eulogy. His passing will not affect the University of North Carolina except the few who knew him, but it will be of universal effect in that society has lost an older man who was a friend to young men. Therein it affects us.

Unassuming grief and sentiment untinged with sentimentality accompany his going, for that is the kind of emotion he inspired. We will all have lived well if we can inspire similar emotion in our friends when we die.

The loss of a friend, although a blow to individuals, serves to enrich their lives by inculcating in the man greater appreciation. No life is complete which is quite untouched by tragedy. —A.J.S.

A Reward for Long Service

If a story carried in the state papers recently can be taken at face value, Carolina will be without the services of one of the best basketball and baseball coaches in the South next year. They stated that authentic information had been received that Coach J. N. Ashmore, for the past five years head basketball and football coach at the "Hill," would not be asked back by the athletic council.

During the five years that "Coach Jim" has held the reins as baseball and basketball mentor, Carolina has won two Big Five basketball championships and tied for a third. In the annual Conference meets the Tar Heels have met with varied success, this year being eliminated by Maryland, the final winner.

In baseball the Heel nine has captured the Tri-State title two years out of the four that the league has been in existence. The past season was the best that a Carolina baseball team has enjoyed since 1920, capturing the Tri-State championship and presenting a strong claim to Southern conference honors with a season record of sixteen wins, four defeats, and two ties.

Early in the season, when it was announced that Burgess Whitehead, captain-elect and star shortstop, would be ineligible, having signed an agreement with a professional club, there was much shaking of heads by Carolina fans. With a squad of rookies and a small group of lettermen it was thought that Carolina was in for another year of diamond submission to Blue Devils. With three players signing pro contracts and a fourth declared ineligible scholastically, little was expected. Nevertheless "Coach Jim" went to work and from a group of inexperienced rookies developed a championship team which defeated Duke in the next to the last game of the season, allowing the Blue Devils three hits and no earned runs.

Paul Dunlap was developed into the best first sacker to grace a Carolina diamond since the days of Ed Mackie. Billy Powell jumped into the breach left by the graduation of Nap Lufty and filled it creditably. Wyrick and Ferebee took the place of Whitehead and Rand around the keystone sack and played it in a manner delightful to the eyes of baseball fans. Peacock and Croom were developed to cover the outer gardens, hitting and fielding masterfully.

Now as a final touch to a successful season the Athletic Council is rumored to be considering a part time coach. We consider this a great reward for the most successful season enjoyed by a Carolina team in years.

We hope that the members of the student body will show such admiration as is shown by members of the team in circulating a petition to retain Coach Ashmore as head baseball and basketball mentor, by voting to return "Coach Jim" next year.—T.H.B.

If Jimmy Walker knows a wise-crack to make every one laugh, now is the time to spring it.—Ohio State Journal.

With Contemporaries

His Master's Voice

Here is something new in the way of wills.

A rich old Londoner, recently deceased, has left to his nephew a large sum of money to which the young man shall be entitled on reaching 21.

There are, however, certain conditions that nobody knows. They are not in the written will. They are contained in certain phonograph records which the rich gentleman left behind and which the young man is to hear for the first time when he reaches his majority.

Early in this century someone conceived the wonder of a dog being able to hear his absent master's voice on the phonograph. One company has capitalized on the idea as its trademark.

Now it is possible to imagine sons listening to the advice of their fathers and grandfathers whom they may or may not remember.

Phonographs and talking pictures offer wonderful opportunities for preserving the wisdom of all the ages, together with the actual features and manner of speaking.

But pity the poor college boy a few hundred years hence who must submit, not only to the ravings of his own immediate forebear but must listen in for hours on what grandfather and great grandfather had to say on the subject.—Daily Iowan.

Abolish Class Offices

Of all the innocuous institutions in college life, class offices are the most exemplary. Down through the centuries the usefulness of class officers in their supposed functions has grown less and less. Today, universally, the honor attached to being a class officer and the labor attached to the exercising of an office have dwindled to practically nothing.

Purdue recently abolished all class offices except that of freshman treasurer, serving for four years. It has been found necessary to retain him because of the class memorial work and the collection of various funds.

Southern California certainly realizes the extent of the farce which has evolved from this old medieval custom of electing and installing four sets of officers each year.

All that the officers do, once they are elected, is to lurk about the Associated Students' offices in the Union and kill time. It is true that the presidents of the classes get valuable social experience from such associations, such as making dates with the members of the committees and attending business meetings, but the general purpose of these austere dignitaries seems to be closely affiliated with taking up valuable space in the Trojan and El Rodeo.

That a vote of 35 in a college student body of four or five hundred should elect an executive is such an impossible state of affairs that it transcends common humor and becomes burlesque.

The whole student executive system here should be revised, throwing out the non-essentials and giving enough honor to the positions allowed to remain to encourage their occupants to do some work.

Criticism should not fall too heavily upon the officers themselves, we admit. For, though some of them are merely gaining prestige for their respective fraternities and sororities, (and possibly working toward all-U offices), there are many who would like to have some power, some satisfaction when the thing is done.

Will the man elected to the presidency at Thursday's election take up this problem, or will he let it ride as his predecessors have?—Daily Trojan.

Many Denver Co-eds Use Tobacco, Survey By Clarion Asserts

According to a recent survey by staff members of the Denver Clarion, forty-five per cent of a group of 106 co-eds are addicted to the use of tobacco, and twenty per cent have tried the weed and ceased to use it.

The survey compiled from a questionnaire circulated among commerce school co-eds, further discloses that more than half of those smoking occasionally have smoked less than two years, while over two-thirds of the habitual smokers have been indulging for more than four years. This was taken as an indication that the habit was acquired before coming to college.

Thirty-two young ladies started for pleasure and for fun, according to their own statements, and fifteen of them smoke for social reasons. Other reasons given for smoking; four declared they began the use of nicotine out of curiosity, two because they chose to, and others because they like to blow smoke rings, on a dare, because it was conventional, for relaxation, to tease dad, to learn to inhale, and on "general priciples."

Princeton Lists Number Of Odd Disturbances

The old college of Princeton has been the scene of many riots in its time. This series of disturbances has lasted from 1800 until the present day, there being one as late as 1930.

The oldest one recorded was caused by the length of prayers in chapel which came at an hour earlier than the students liked. The riot was only quelled after three days and the president had threatened to close the school.

Since then the causes have included poor food, too strict discipline in suspending students, and unpopular presidents.

The most violent upheaval occurred in 1817 when the tutors were locked in their rooms and beseiged with bricks and sticks of firewood for several days.

Dey to Sail Tomorrow

Dr. William M. Dey, head of the department of romance languages in the University will represent the University at the celebration of the 400th anniversary of the College de France which will take place in Paris on June 18, 19, and 20, it was announced Wednesday by President Graham. Dr. Dey, accompanied by Mrs. Dey, will sail from New York tomorrow. Dr. Dey, who had already planned to visit France this summer, will make the trip at his own expense.

Mr. Charlie Chaplin denies that he owes a duty to England, his native land. Perhaps not, but wait until he tries to get through the American customs. —Hartford Courant.

SPECIALS

Rabelais illus by Dore	$2.50
Look Homeward, Angel	2.10
Lady Chatterley's Lover	3.00
The Way of Ecben	1.25
Dynamo, O'Neill's play	.75
Decameron, Unexpurgated	1.25
Bonibooks, all titles	.45

The Intimate Bookshop
(Over Cavalier Cafeteria)

Washington Faculty Condemns Student Editor of Magazine

One of the University of Washington's leading publications, Columns, is at present facing censorship or possible suspension as a result of several articles prepared for publication in the year's last issue of the magazine being disapproved of by the faculty supervisor.

Following protests over previous issues of the monthly, which brought faculty action and threat of suspension, a member of the faculty was named as a member of the committee with supervision over the magazine editorial contents. Since that time this professor has read the Columns' material in advance of the printing.

After inspecting the articles to appear in the forthcoming issue he announced that the June number of the magazine would appear only if certain material considered objectionable by him were "jerked." Rather than comply with such a demand, the editor declared, "I feel that the issue is good enough as it is now to make its appearance on the campus, and I would rather resign than make over the magazine to satisfy the censors."

The "objectionable material" criticized by the faculty censor consisted of three or four stories and several jokes. The stories deal with the enforcement of rules for co-eds who smoke in the houses, who go canoeing after certain hours, and who stay out of the sorority houses all night without permission. Mentions of sundry "hells" and "damns" were portions of jokes that were criticized.

Quoting the resigning editor: "I didn't feel that the magazine contained objectionable material, and, after all, its our own publication, and the issue was to have been put out for University of Washington first of all and not to cater to anyone in particular."

The case against wage-reductions, as we understand it, rests on the self-evident proposition that the American standard of living must be protected with or without the American standard of earning.—Virginian-Pilot.

State Honorary Society Taps Twelve Juniors

Twelve juniors were tapped by the Golden Chain, State college's highest honorary society, in its annual ceremony Tuesday night. One senior was also selected to make a total of thirteen men.

The tapping took place on the campus and was followed by an address from the president of Meredith college, Dr. Charles Brewer.

The selection was made on the basis of leadership, athletic ability, forensic and general citizenship.

The men chosen are: Frank Gorham, Raleigh; Romeo Le Fort, Greensboro; John C. Whitehurst, Norfolk, Virginia; Henry Brock, Norfolk, Virginia; C. N. Gross, Bramwell, West Virginia; Henry Ricks, Rocky Mount; C. N. Cone, Greensboro; C. E. Brake, Rocky Mount; James Floyd, Salisbury; H. E. Kraig, Livingston, New Jersey; George Hobson, Booneville; and P. H. Burrus, Columbus, Georgia; all of whom are juniors. The senior was Robert Gatlin of Raeford.

Bull's Head Sale

The Bull's Head Book Shop at 214 Murphey hall is holding its annual spring sale of books this week. Over a hundred different titles are being offered at less than half their regular prices. Many of the books are marked down as low as twenty-five, and fifty cents.

Volumes placed on sale include titles in travel, adventure, biography, essays, and the novel. The sale will continue through the entire week.

CAROLINA THEATRE
Now Playing

Joan Crawford
in
"Laughing Sinners"
also
Comedy - Novelty
News

A. G. SPALDING & BROS. TRADE SPALDING MARK ESTA. D. 1876 REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

In The Swim

In A Swimming Suit by

Spalding

Spalding has been outfitting the human body for play for 55 years.

From this experience we offer the finest swimming suits made for ladies and gentlemen.

Randolph - McDonald Inc.

HEEL TRACKMEN SET MANY NEW RECORDS IN 1931

Three State Records and Two University Marks Fall before State Championship Heels.

The 1931 track season saw Carolina stars break three State records and set two new University marks in winning the State championship and six of seven dual meets. Dameron, Baucom, and Ruble set the new State records, while Dameron and Weil broke the old Carolina marks.

All new records except that set by Lionel Weil in the quarter mile were made at the North Carolina Conference meet at Greensboro. Weil's record performance was turned in at the Southern Conference meet in Birmingham.

Sandy Dameron, in throwing the discus 136 feet six inches at the State meet, broke both the State record and the University record. Both of these records had formerly been held by Puny Harper with a throw of 136 feet three inches made in 1929.

In taking fifth place in the 440 at the Southern conference meet, Weil finished in 49.9 seconds to break the old record set by Dave Nims in 1928 by three tenths of a second.

Ray Ruble set a new State record in the pole vault by clearing the bar at twelve feet eight inches, but this mark was four inches shy of the University record set by Brodie Arnold last spring. Ruble holds the Southern Conference Indoor record with a height of twelve feet eleven and three-quarters inches.

Cliff Baucom also set a new State record in winning the two mile at Greensboro in 9:51.7, but the University mark for this event is held by Johnny Henderson who set a time of 9:38.1 in 1928. Hoyt Pritchett holds the Southern Conference record with a time of 9:47 also made in 1928.

The Carolina mile relay team tied the State record at Greensboro when they broke the tape in 3:25.2. Smith, Drane, Watkins, and Weil composed this team. The University record was set in 1930 when Weil, Stafford, Gay, and Nims won the event at the Tech Relays in 3:24.7. This mark also stands as the Tech Relay record.

The 880 yard relay record was also made at the 1930 Tech Relays and also stands as the best mark ever made at the Tech Relays. This record is held by Slusser, Gay, Nims, and Farmer in 1:29.6.

The four mile relay team, winners at the 1928 Penn Relays set a new record in an exhibition meet that year when Pritchett, Fisher, Barkley, and Elliott finished in 18:06.

A complete list of the University track records follows:

100 yard dash—McPherson, 1926, and Farmer, 1930. Time 9.8 seconds.

220 yard dash — Farmer, 1930. Time 21.2 seconds.

440 yard run—Weil, 1931. Time 49.9 seconds.

880 yard run—Barkley, 1930. Time 1:56:5.

One Mile run—Elliott, 1926. Time 4:21.2.

Two mile run—Henderson, 1928. Time 9:38.1.

Low hurdles—Moore, 1925. Time 24.1 seconds.

High hurdles—Moore, 1925. Time 15.2 seconds.

High jump—Bagby, 1930. Height 6 feet 1-4 inch.

Pole vault—Outdoor: Arnold, 1930. Height 13 feet. Indoor: Ruble, 1931. Height 12 feet 11 3-4 inches.

Broad jump—Neiman, 1930. Distance 22 feet 5 3-4 inches.

Shot put—Adkins, 1929. Distance 42 feet 5-8 inches.

Discus—Dameron, 1931. Dis-

(Continued on last page)

Baseball Results

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Detroit 2		Chicago	3
St. Louis 4		Cleveland	5
(Eighth inning)
New York 4		Phila.	5
Wash. 4		Boston	3

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Boston 7		New York	6
Pittsburgh 4		St. Louis	7
Chicago 1		Cincinnati	3

COLLEGIANA

By THOMAS H. BROUGHTON

John Brownlee, Duke track star and holder of the Southern record in the low hurdles, will leave next Wednesday for Chicago where he will vie with the best runners in the country for honors in the low hurdles. The National intercollegiates will be held in Chicago on the fifth and sixth of June and record holders from all over the country will gather there to participate.

Back in the olden days, Oregon State and the University of Oregon began a rivalry in which each school tried to out do the other, and even up to today this rivalry has continued. No matter what the event might be the two have gone after honors without hesitation. (In the olden days, the Beavers and the Webfoots even vied in tobacco expectorating contests during the day of the annual baseball game and track meet, according to the stories of the old timers. The baseball game would be held in the morning, the track meet in the afternoon, with tobacco spitting contests coming off immediately).

The Pacific Coast intercollegiate baseball league has turned into a two cornered affair, with Washington leading the race, and Oregon State, Oregon, and Washington State fighting it out for the remaining positions. Washington could just about lose all their remaining games and still lead the way, they're so far ahead. It's too bad the other members of the conference didn't chip in to help send the Huskies to Japan, so that the rest of the field would have a chance.

Statistics show that 1,748 V. P. I. students participated in intramural athletics this year. Basketball was the most popular sport, with 215 taking part. Baseball drew 200 participants; football, 185; tennis, 126; cross-country, 120; track, 105; boxing, 120; with the remainder divided between bowling, horseshoe pitching, volley ball, fencing, hockey, and gymnastic dancing in order.

Sports activities even extended to members of the faculty and their wives this year.

University of Pittsburgh officials believe the entire Pitt stadium, seating 75,000, will be a sell out before the end of July for the Pitt-Army game on November 14. This will be the second time in as many years that the Pitt bowl will have been sold out. The Notre Dame game drew a record crowd of 75,000 last fall.

Rekers and Detwiler in the mile run, and Captain Meisinger and King in the two mile, will carry the Penn State hopes in the Penn meet this week. A squad of twelve men has been entered.

Holding the remarkable record of having averaged eleven strikeouts a game in seven contests, "Lefty" Veller of Indiana university is rated among the best hurlers in the Western conference this year. In a game with Purdue he collected fifteen strikeouts for his greatest total of the year. Veller also wields a potent bat, collecting seven hits in twenty-two times at bat for a .320 average.

SPARKPLUGS OF THE TEAM

A great deal of the credit for the success of the Carolina nine this year can be given to Pete Wyrick, second baseman, and Captain Potter, catcher. Pete covered the keystone sack in great style and also was there with the bat, developing into one of the best bunters and place hitters to grace a Tar Heel nine in years. Captain Potter, besides being one of the best receivers in the league this year, also wielded a potent bat, hitting a home run in his last time at bat in a Carolina uniform. "Piggy's" arm also left nothing to be desired, the hard working backstop cutting off many runs with his sure pegs to the basemen.

HARRIDGE NAMED TO HEAD JUNIOR BASEBALL LOOP

Former Secretary and Aide to Presidents Elected to Presidency of American League.

William Harridge, who never played a game of professional baseball in his life, today was elected to lead the American League as president for a full term of three years, succeeding the late Ernest S. Barnard.

His election to the post, which he has backstopped as private secretary to the late Bryon Bancroft Johnson and as secretary of the league during the administration of former President Barnard for a total of 20 years, was unanimous as well as perfunctory. Since Barnard's death two months ago today, he has been the outstanding candidate for the position.

Three-Fold Duties

In addition to his duties as president, Harridge will act as treasurer and secretary of the league for the first time since Johnson assumed all those duties. During Barnard's term of office, he served as president and treasurer, while Harridge acted as secretary. The American League club owners today decided, however, that as long as President John Heydler of the National League handled all three offices that Harridge could do likewise.

No salary was mentioned although the general opinion was that the new president would receive approximately $25,000 a year.

It was back in 1911 that Harridge first broke into the American League office. At that time he worked for the Wabash Railroad, routing American League players. His efficiency caught the eye of Johnson, and Harridge was hired to become Johnson's private secretary. He served in that capacity for almost 17 years until Johnson was dismissed from office after his quarrels with club owners and Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis, in particular. Barnard was elected as his successor and Harridge was named secretary of the league. Since Barnard's sudden death, last March 27, Harridge has handled the League affairs.

"It is not necessary for me to say that I will do everything possible to keep up the traditions of the former two presidents, Mr. Johnson and Mr. Barnard," Harridge said after

(Continued on last page)

A. T. O.'S SHUTOUT PHI SIG'S TO WIN GREEK CROWN, 3-0

A. T. O.'s Win Third Title In Ten Days; Meet New Dorms for Campus Title Today.

The A. T. O.'s defeated Phi Sigma Kappa yesterday 3-0, to win the fraternity tennis championship. This is the third title the A. T. O.'s have won in less than ten days, they having copped the fraternity and campus championships last week.

The winners took all three of the singles matches, making it unnecessary to play the doubles.

Alan Smith, A. T. O., continued his winning habit to take the No. 1 singles over Andrews. Andrews had trouble getting his serves in, and Smith won easily by scores of 6-1 and 6-0.

DuPuis, A. T. O., No. 2, increased his team's lead by defeating Whittington 6-3, 6-4. Both players displayed good tennis, their match being the most interesting one of the afternoon.

The No. 3 match was the only one to go three sets. However, McLaughlin, A. T. O., finally won over Curlee, of the Phi Sig's. The first set went to McLaughlin by a good margin, but Curlee took the second after a hard fight. The score in the deciding set became 3-3 before there was any sign of cracking on either player's part, but at that point Curlee faltered and McLaughlin picked up to take the next three games to win. The scores were 6-3, 7-9, and 6-3.

A. T. O. and New Dorms will meet this afternoon at 4:00 to decide the campus championship. New Dorms defeated Everett Monday to take the dormitory title.

PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS

Sidelights

By Phil Alston

Wednesday's Durham Morning Herald carried a story on the rumored departure of Coach Jim Ashmore. Personally, we haven't heard a great deal of talk about the matter, but we believe that general student opinion would be opposed to letting Coach Ashmore go. The success of the 1931 baseball squad seems to have convinced the student body pretty thoroughly of Ashmore's ability to produce outstanding teams, and winning teams are, after all, the things that swing sentiment among the undergraduates and alumni supporters. Much credit is due the 1931 baseball team, and the lion's share of that credit must go to Coach Ashmore. It is a generally admitted fact that Coach Ashmore had little or no exceptional material at the beginning of the season and that Carolina's prospects for even a mediocre team were slight. The fact that Coach Ashmore took his green material, molded it, and turned out the most successful baseball team since 1920, is ample proof of his ability and worth.

Disregarding entirely the question of Coach Ashmore's ability, there seems to be another problem involved. The Durham Morning Herald suggests that in case Coach Ashmore does not return to the Hill next year, that the University officials will institute the plan here of having a part-time coach for basketball and baseball. This, the Herald said, might be done as an economy measure, but this sort of economy will be immensely unpopular here. It will be unfortunate if the University Athletic Council is forced to adopt such means of frugality.

* * *

The boys who were spreading the sad news early in the spring about the weakness of Connie Mack's Athletics and the inability of George Earnshaw to

(Continued on last page)

U. N. C. LOSES TO DEACON FACULTY

The faculty golf team of Wake Forest college defeated a team of professors from the University of North Carolina at the Carolina Country Club in Raleigh Saturday morning 26 to 7. This marks the second victory which the senior Deacons have registered this month over the University, since they took the large end of a 20-to-13 score in Durham last Saturday.

Dr. R. B. Lawson of Carolina turned in a 78 for low score among the twenty-six players. His victory over H. M. Poteat and that of his teammate, Winslow, over Black of Wake Forest accounted for five of the University's points.

The Wake Forest attack was led by Bursar Earnshaw and Al Dowtin, who with eighties turned back Coffin and Brown, respectively, of the University. Other point-getters for Wake Forest were Herling over Bagby, Carroll over Winsor, Mackie over Jacobs, Carpenter over Heath, Holliday over Wolf, Bryan over Hill, Emmerson over Woosley, Memory over Leavitt, H. B. Jones over Smith.

Board For Summer

We will continue our special board plan for $1 per day and $30 per month during the summer.

Try Our $1 per Day Plan for the Rest of the Quarter

The Friendly Cafeteria

The Graduate in New York

THE PARKSIDE provides a residence where young men and women of refinement and good taste see about them others of their own kind and only their own kind. Rooms have the inviting air of a charming guest suite in a private home. Excellent food. Pent House, reception rooms, and solarium for use of guests. A socially correct address. Opposite Gramercy Park. References required. Write for folder C.

Rooms $15 to $22.50 Weekly

The Parkside
Eighteen Gramercy Park SOUTH
Corner East 20th Street and Irving Place
NEW YORK CITY

Yackety Yack Notice

Due to the large number of mistakes and changes in addresses as recorded on matriculation cards, it will be impossible to send annuals to any student unless he sends in his address (typed or printed) on a postal card to the YACKETY YACK, Box 969.

Those Who Do Not Send This Information Cannot Receive Their Year Book until Next Fall.

If you have not been in school three quarters, or if you have not paid your fees at the business office, you will not receive a copy of the book unless you call at the office any afternoon this week to make payments due.

FIRST YEAR LAW MEN MAY ENTER SUMMER SESSION

(Continued from first page)

tax specialists with offices in Washington, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Dallas.

Justices to Teach Again

Justices Brogden and Connor have taught in the summer session for the past four years. Many a student who has passed the bar in recent years has enjoyed the experience of arguing a case in the Supreme Court before two of those who taught him in summer school some of the principles which he may be called upon to expound in his argument.

The judges hold that no lawyer is justly entitled to the honorable and conventional epithet of learned if his learning is confined to the statutes and reports. Picturesque happenings in North Carolina judicial history and the personalities of the great figures of the bench and bar give interest and flavor to their lectures. Practical advice as to the winning of verdicts, retaining the approval of clients, and persuading the judges of the rightness of a case, all lend a unique value to the classes of the judges.

Three Types of Teachers

Three types of teachers are thus assembled in the summer law faculty. First, the Judges who bring in from the bench a direct insight into judicial methods; second, the visitors from other states chosen from the law teachers who are nationally known in their respective specialties; and third, members of the regular faculty who give continuity to the summer work as part of the law school course.

The experience of past summers proves the value of such a combination plan. Under this plan the summer law school of Chapel Hill has become the largest in this section and one of the strongest in the country, to which students are attracted from many other states.

May Enter Law School

Students may enter the law school for the first time in the summer and pursue a full course of beginning subjects. Credit for one-third of a year's work may be secured by attending both terms of the summer school. This enables one to complete the work for the degree by continuous attendance for two years and an additional summer. Credit for two and one-half semester hours will be given for each subject completed during each term. Seven hours a week will be given to each subject, and two subjects may be taken in each term.

Requirements for admission will be the same as in the regular session; that is, the completion of one-half the academic work required for the degree in an accredited college is a prerequisite.

FRATERNITY PETITIONS ADMISSION OF NEGRO

Going on record as favoring the admittance of G. James Fleming, a Negro, to membership in Delta Sigma Rho, national honoray speech fraternity, the Wisconsin state assembly requested the University of Wisconsin chapter of the organization to accept Fleming, despite the national "blackamoor" clause in the national by laws. Students belonging to the Wisconsin chapter of the fraternity vigorously protested the provision and petitioned the national organization that it be removed.

"The things that upset a married man are invariably the little things," declares a woman writer. Well, it must be admitted that they have a deplorable habit of waking up in the night and starting to yell.—The Humorist (London).

The Campus Calendar

Rifle Club Meeting

The rifle club will meet for the last time this school year in the basement of Alumni building Friday night at 7:30. All members are requested to attend this meeting since the officers for next year will be elected at that time.

Staff Meeting

The final meeting for the quarter of the entire editorial staff of the Daily Tar Heel will take place Sunday night at 7:00 o'clock in 104 Alumni building. Plans for next year's paper will be discussed by the editor at this time.

The meeting will only last a few minutes.

HARRIDGE NAMED TO HEAD JUNIOR BASEBALL LOOP

(Continued from preceding page)

his election. "I do not propose nor look for any radical changes, although I shall always be open to suggestions from anyone."

Argue About Umpires

Most of the time of the meeting was consumed by a discussion of umpires and their decisions. From within the closed meeting could be heard bitter arguments on the disputed decisions.

President Harridge later said, however, that it was decided not to call a special meeting of the arbiters but to advise them on certain points.

Restore Resin Bags

It was decided to give the pitchers the benefit of a resin bag again. Some of the club owners felt that the young pitchers in the league were accustomed to a resin bag and couldn't get along without one.

Summer Attendance Expected To Be Less

Although Dean N. W. Walker's office has been flooded with a heavy flow of mail from prospective students, from appearances so far the attendance at summer school this year will be slightly less than that of last year.

Dean Walker blames the slight decrease on the number of bank failures that occurred throughout the state during the past year and also upon the generally tight financial condition of the people. Since there are no loan funds offered by the University for summer school, many students who would like to attend are forced to stay away.

A revised edition of the summer school bulletin is now on the press and will be available next week at 127 Peabody building or by writing Dean Walker, University Summer School, Chapel Hill. There are a small number of the old bulletins left that may still be secured.

Students on the Hill who expect to attend summer school and room on the campus are advised to make immediate dormitory reservations.

Student Wins Prize

Nathan C. Brooks, Jr., a student at Wake Forest, was awarded a prize of $30.00 Wednesday in Washington for an essay on "What May Youth Believe About Prohibition?" The prize was given by the Intercollegiate Prohibition association, which has conducted a national essay contest during the past year on "Alcoholic Drink in Modern Society."

Ten billion dollars a year paid to racketeers and criminals! It's a land of opportunity if you aren't a mere worker.—Nelson (B. C.) News.

SELECTIONS FOR SERVICE STORES' MONITORS MADE

(Continued from first page)

Thomasson, Mangum; T. A. Henry and D. P. Henry, Ruffin; J. S. Williams and W. G. Sutton, Aycock; J. W. Stallings and B. H. Barnes, Graham; D. D. McCachren and J. R. McCachren, Lewis; G. L. Deese and W. R. Latham, Everett.

Alternates

The following alternates were also selected by the committee: C. H. Atkins, W. L. Higdon, J. P. Hauser, R. C. Crotts, G. D. Carraway, E. A. Daniel, W. A. Allsbrook, C. J. Maddry, H. D. Hedrick, W. T. Crutchfield, J. T. Phipps, J. O. Stallings, O. J. Goodman, Z. V. Cockerham, and J. S. Gentry.

Gilda Gray Denounces Gentlemen of Press

Gilda Gray, whose terpsichorenal undulations are a paramount attraction of modern vaudeville, thinks that newspaper men are overgrown boys and that it is hard for a man to be a gentleman before he is fifty, according to an interview with a Harvard Crimson feature writer. Her former conclusion is drawn from observations at a dinner meeting of the Lynn Press club where a gentleman of the press, probably inebriated, attempted to cut off the danseuse's hair.

Miss Gray, upon being assured that all Yale men were not freshmen, for it seemed that she had suffered a slight unpleasantness at New Haven, then came forth with her opinion that "think it's hard for a man to become a gentleman before he is fifty." The connection of that statement to the New Haven incident, if such a connection existed, brought about the termination of that matter.

"I never feel badly when there seems to be a dearth of applause," commented Miss Gray in voicing her opinion of her audiences. "It is quite natural for people under stress of emotion to fail to give overt form to their appreciation. In fact, when faced with such a situation I usually consider it a sort of silent tribute."

High School Finals Scheduled for Week

Yesterday afternoon the local high school began their commencement schedule with a short program by the first three grades consisting of recitations, songs, and dances. This event represents a part of the work given to the primary grades this year. Next Tuesday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock the fifth and sixth grades will present an outdoor program on the school grounds.

The baccalaureate sermon for the senior class will be preached Sunday night at 8:00 o'clock by Rev. A. S. Lawrence in the Episcopal church. Class day exercises for the outgoing class will be presented Friday afternoon of next week, followed by the graduation exercises Saturday night, at which time twenty-six students will be graduated.

Infirmary List

William C. Wallin was confined to the infirmary yesterday.

According to a novelist, Americans will soon have forgotten the expression "Good health!" The customary remark when drinking bootleg whiskey being "Good-bye," of course.—The Humorist.

FRATERNITIES NOTICE

I would like to communicate with fraternity who desires the service of a house mother or dining room manager. Address Mrs. J. L. Foister, 308 Pittsboro street. Phone 4081, Chapel Hill.

SIDELIGHTS

(Continued from preceding page)

regain his 1930 form have had ample proof of their error for the past few weeks. The A's lost their first game in eighteen starts last Tuesday when the Yankees won over Eddie Rommel's pitching 6-2, and in that seventeen game winning streak the pitching burden was carried by Mose Grove, Rube Walberg, and George Earnshaw, all three of whom have been winning consistently ever since the season opened. While these three pitchers were turning in their victories with monotonous regularity, Mack's two sluggers, Al Simmons and Mickey Cochrane boosted their batting averages and jumped to the top of the league with marks of .423 and .397 respectively.

* * *

The Sharkey-Carnera fight seems temporarily out of the question now that Judge John Knox has passed down the decision that Carnera cannot fight Sharkey or any other prominent heavyweight without the permission of the Madison Square Garden of Illinois. Judge Knox ruled as irrelevant the plea of Carnera's lawyer that Carnera was matched only because he had big hands and feet. In the meantime, everything seems to be settled in regards the Schmeling-Stribling fight, and apparently the fight will be held as scheduled. Schmeling says that as soon as he gets through pounding Stribling around that he will be more than glad to do the same for Primo. Max says he's tired of hearing all this talk about Carnera's feet and thinks he can put an end to it if he can get Primo in the ring with him.

HEEL TRACKMEN SET MANY NEW RECORDS IN 1931

(Continued from preceding page)

tance 136 feet 6 inches.

Javelin—Fordham, 1926. Distance 181 feet 11 inches.

Half mile relay—Slusser, Gay, Nims, and Farmer, 1930. Time 1:29.6.

One mile relay—Weil, Stafford, Gay, and Nims, 1930. Time 3:24.7.

Four mile relay—Pritchett, Fisher, Barkley, and Elliott, 1928. Time 18:06.

But King Alfonso still has an ace. He can have the results of the election analyzed by a Wickersham commission. — Chicago Daily News.

UNION BUILDING IS FINALLY REALIZED AFTER LONG WAIT

(Continued from page one)

and instead of adding the new sum to it, the student center fee will come from the regular class assessment.

Twelve Years to Finish

A task that has been twelve years or more in the finishing comes practically to a completion with yesterday's vote. Graham Memorial has stood unfinished and unused, except as a storehouse, for so long that it became the standard joke of the campus. The impossible time in the future was expressed by the words, "when Graham Memorial is finished." This can not be true from now on. There is added to the campus a building of much architectural value and one which will certainly be of great use to the students of the University. The memory of the University's seventh president, Edward Kidder Graham, is also now fittingly commemorated.

The very one-sided result of the voting shows that the students are much in favor of a student center. It has been much in need on this campus, and now a building for students is assured.

"Listening to a sermon on the wireless has not the same effect as attending a service," says a clergyman. Still, a broadcast sermon does bring the preacher's message home to one.—The Humorist (London).

LOST

Lost: picture size about 9x12 in. Finder please return to Tar Heel office.

THE STUDENTS' DINING ROOM

No. 3 Fraternity Row

WILL REMAIN OPEN

Our price for 6 weeks summer school — $35.00

Special Rate from June 1st Thru — $40.00

Commerce Juniors

Dean D. D. Carroll wishes to meet all of the juniors in the school of commerce in 103 Bingham hall today during chapel period.

The purpose of the meeting is to discuss and vote on the participation of the commerce students in the student entertainment program, now upheld solely by the students in the school of liberal arts. Such an action would involve a fee of $1.00 per quarter.

USED CARS

at

Most Any Price

FORDS, A's and T's

Packard Touring $40

Buy one of our low-priced used cars and save railroad fare home.

Good Luck To You

We Appreciate Your Business

Strowd Motor Co.

"Ford Products Since 1914"

We wish to take this opportunity to thank all our customers for their patronage and wish them every happiness during their vacation.

The University Shoe Shop

Phone 3016

almost

AN

ATHLETE

The most popular ready-to-eat cereals served in the dining-rooms of American colleges, eating clubs and fraternities are made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. They include Kellogg's Corn Flakes, PEP, Bran Flakes, Rice Krispies, Wheat Krumbles, and Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuit. Also Kellogg's Kaffee Hag Coffee—the coffee that lets you sleep.

ALMOST a fraternity man. Almost a class leader. And on the tough college courses, he almost made the grade. What was wrong?

Loss of energy, listlessness, lack of appetite are signs of constipation. Personalities are clouded. Class and campus life are seriously handicapped.

But you can banish constipation so easily. Just eat a delicious cereal. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Two tablespoonfuls daily are guaranteed to give relief. Ask that it be served at your fraternity house or campus restaurant.

You'll enjoy Kellogg's Slumber Music, broadcast over WJZ and associated stations of the N. B. C. every Sunday evening at 10.30 E. D. S. T. Also KFI Los Angeles, KOMO Seattle at 10.30, and KOA Denver at 10.30.

Kellogg's

ALL-BRAN

SUNDAY MEETING
EDITORIAL STAFF
104 ALUMNI — 7:00

The Daily Tar Heel

136TH ANNUAL COMMENCEMENT
JUNE 6-9

VOLUME XXXIX — CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SATURDAY, MAY 30, 1931 — NUMBER 184

COMMENCEMENT PROGRAM BEGINS NEXT SATURDAY

Governor Gardner Will Award Diplomas Following Claude Bowers' Speech.

With Claude Bowers, noted editor and biographer, scheduled to deliver the principal address, the 136th commencement of the University, the oldest state university in America, will get under way on Saturday morning, June 6, and continue through Tuesday, June 9. Eleven classes are to have formal reunions, and there will be a general reunion of all returning alumni.

Mr. Bowers, who was editor of the New York Evening World until that paper's interests were sold recently to the Scripps-Howard organization, is to deliver the commencement day address at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning, June 9. Appearing on the same program will be Governor O. Max Gardner, who will present the diplomas.

Program Starts Saturday

Commencement exercises will get under way Saturday morning, June 6, at 9:30 o'clock with senior prayers in Gerrard hall. At 10 o'clock the annual class day exercises will take place under the Davie popular, and a band concert will be given there in the afternoon. At 4:30 Saturday afternoon there will be the Mangum medal contest in the music auditorium and at 5:30 the president's home will be open for the annual reception to seniors and their guests. There will be a formal band concert in the music auditorium at 8:30.

The baccalaureate sermon will be delivered Sunday morn-

(Continued on last page)

PLANS FOR FINAL DANCE SET MADE BY GERMAN CLUB

Guy Lombardo Signed for Commencement Dances June 9, 10, and 11.

Six dances and a concert given by the German club will constitute the 1931 finals June 9, 10, and 11. Opening with a formal dance Tuesday night in the tin can to the music of Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians, the dances will run through Thursday, with a morning affair from 11:00 to 1:00, an afternoon dance from 4:00 until 6:00 and a formal evening dance from 10:00 to 1:00, Wednesday. A morning dance, a concert in Memorial hall, and the final ball will complete the set.

In addition to the regular German club dances, the Gorgon's Head will give a dance Tuesday evening and the Gimghouls will entertain with a similar affair Thursday evening.

The Ball Managers' and Marshalls' ball will be Wednesday night. Holmes Davis will lead the Marshals and Willis Henderson, the Ball Managers. The complete list of marshals includes Holmes Davis, leader, Tom Alexander, Bill Draper, Ed Yarborough, Harry Finch, Tom Shelton, Pat Tillery, and Branch Carr. Willis Henderson, leader, George Moody, Art Sickles, George Thompson, Joe Eagles, Alston Watkins, and Beekman Huger, will be ball managers. Buck Snow will lead the final

(Continued on page four)

Sophomores Selected For Class Committee

The following rising sophomores have been appointed members of the executive committee of their class: Clyde Edwin Boyles, chairman, Albert Olmstead, Bernard Solomon, D. T. Perry, Jr., William Bynum, C. P. Simms, William Enloe, Lynn Davis, Jack Stokes, George Harris, J. T. Hagans, Julian Frankle, Edwin Kahn, Claiborn Carr, Tom Broughton, Furches B. Raymer, Bob Reynolds, Graham McLeod, W. A. Allsbrook, William Hussey, Dave McCachren, and J. T. Pittman.

PLAYMAKERS TO CUT LAST CAPER

Annual Celebration to Take Place in Theatre at 8:00 Tonight.

As the final event of their thirteenth season, the Carolina Playmakers, dramatic specialists of the campus, will cut their annual caper tonight at 8:00 P. M. The program, which will be given in the theatre, consists of numbers newly written and spontaneously produced for this occasion.

Every year at this time the Playmakers give a number of sketches and burlesques which usually prove as enjoyable to the actors as the audience. At this time, the gold masks will be awarded to Playmakers who through their work of the year have achieved success in that activity.

Three Parts of Program

This year the program will consist of three parts. The first of these will include seven sketches and burlesques. Mr. George McKie will open the program with "More Echoes From the Nineties," and will be followed by a quartette number. Everett Jess will give "A Selected New York Sketch"; Malcolm Seawell and Philip Milhous, "The Old Homestead"; James Queen, a recitation; Tom Loy, "The Oklahoma Playwright"; and Newbern Piland and Bopeep Usry, with Ulysses Pucket at the piano, will give a tap dance.

Part two will consist of a play entitled "The Playmaker Mystery," which will be a spontaneous collaboration by the players taking the parts. Characters will be: "Block" Dawson, Malcom Seawell; Sam, Bill Chandler; Ralph, Lawrence Miller; "Prof", Horace Ward; Charles Ayres, Bill Figgat; Buttitta, Everett Jess; A Veiled Figure, Philip Milhous; and Themselves, Ted Herman, Bod Reid, Charles Crum, George Peirson, Haywood Clark, Bob Procter, Marion Tatum, Betsy Perrow, Ellen Stewart, Margaret Vale, Bess Jones Winburn, and Mary Dirnberger.

Three Short Plays

Three short plays will make up the last part of the program, "Lydia, A Cure-all", with Ann

(Continued on page four)

Impoverished Faculty Asks for Beer Suits

In view of the proposed salary cuts for state employees, the members of a certain department (including the secretary) would like to mention to affluent members of the senior class that any beer suits discarded after last week's frolic will be welcomed for fall wear. (N.B.—any red flannels for later use will also be gratefully accepted.)

Student Activities Increase In '30-'31 University Year

Review of Past Session Shows Progress Made Along All Lines Of Extra-Curricular Activities Engaged in By University Students.

By Otto S. Steinreich

In reviewing the activities engaged in by University students during the past academic year it is found that more persons participated in the various fields of endeavor than ever before. Several of the athletic teams enjoyed their most successful seasons in years. The glee club although not competing in intercollegiate competition made several successful appearances.

The Entertainment Committee selected an admirable program for presentation before the student body and their efforts were, in the main, greatly appreciated. The debating team met several outstanding opponents but did not go on their northern trip, but they enjoyed a very successful year on the campus.

Tennis Record

The 1931 tennis team, perhaps, has made the most admirable record of any team ever to represent the University. After defeating all comers in the south they traveled to the north where they romped over the best teams which the north had to offer. Unable to enter Bryan Grant and Wilmer Hines, number one and two respectively, Coach Kenfield entered Ed Yeomans and Hinkey Hendlin, number three and four respectively, who won the Southern Conference doubles championship. Yeomans was one of the finalists in the singles division while Hendlin went to the semi-finals. Grant, Hines, Yeomans, and Hendlin are entered in the National Intercollegiate Tournament to be held at the Merion country club, Haverford, Pennsylvania beginning June 22.

The baseball team has just completed its most successful seasons in eleven years. With a record of sixteen victories four losses and two ties, one victory being the first one over Duke in four years, and the Tri-State League championship under their belts, this year's edition of Tar Heel batsmen may well feel proud of themselves.

Football Reviewed

Coach Collins, working with a bunch of rookies, whipped together a team which performed creditably, but by no means brilliantly. Opening the season with a poor showing against Wake Forest the team improved until they played Georgia when their steady rise was abruptly terminated by the fast charging, hard tackling Bulldogs. As is often the case, the spirit was willing but the flesh was weak and the rookie Tar Heel line could not withstand the sharp thrusts of "Ripper" Roberts & Co.

Against Tennessee Carolina lost by the close score of 9-7. Bobby Dodd, All-American quarterback, kicked the field goal which gave the Vols their narrow margin of victory. Carolina's defeat at the hands of Davidson on a muddy field can be explained only by the fact that the Wildcats outfought the Tar Heels, who had the edge in the way of weight and in the number of reserves. The severe trouncing given to Virginia in the annual Thanksgiving day melee partly made up for the losses sustained during the year. The mud battle with Duke played under water throughout, resembled a water polo game more than anything else. The merits and defects of both teams were alike concealed under a thick coating of mud.

Track Figures

The track team continued its usual custom of defeating all southern opponents in dual meets. A loss to Penn State was the only blemish on the dual meet record of the season. After winning the Southern Indoor championship and State championship, the Tar Heels, much crippled by injuries, took fourth place in the Southern Conference meet at Birmingham.

The basketball team, under the leadership of Captain Artie Marpet, finished their season with eight losses out of twenty one starts. In the Southern

(Continued on last page)

Committee Approves Experimental Play

The experimental play, Rest for My Soul, by Anne Wishart Braddy, which was presented Thursday night, and submitted in partial fulfilment of the requirements for the degree of Master of Arts in the department of English was accepted by the committee. This is the first time that a play has been offered for an M. A. degree.

The committee, consisting of Professors Coffman, MacMillan, and Koch, found the play entirely satisfactory, in the writing, as well as the casting and directing which was also done by Miss Braddy. It is interesting to note that the author wrote her first play under Mr. Koch during the summer session of 1926 at Columbia University. The name of this play was Julianna, and showed even at that time her knowledge of Georgia, the scene of action of Rest for My Soul.

No Infirmary List

There was no one confined to the infirmary yesterday.

Educational Alliance Makes Jewish Loans

Applications are invited for loans (not exceeding $250 per annum) from the scholarship funds of the Educational Alliance, New York City.

These loans are made without interest or any other charge of any kind and are required to be repaid, subsequent to the applicant's graduation not necessarily in one amount or at one time.

They are intended primarily for the benefit of Jewish students who must have shown marked ability and whose circumstances are such as to make it difficult or impossible for them to continue or complete their studies.

It is suggested that applicants in this institution make their applications through the dean of students.

Lamp Posts Dry for Week-end

Lamp posts on the streets of Chapel Hill and on the campus are expected to be dry for use late Saturday night, after having received several coats of green paint lately.

History Department Loses Four Members

The History department will suffer a severe loss next year in the departure of four members of the department. K. C. Frazer, assistant professor of government, is on leave and will spend most of next year abroad. Instructors S. B. Barnes, R. D. Meade, and D. C. Corbitt, however, have handed in their resignations. Mr. Corbitt is going back to Candler College in Havana, Cuba, where he taught two years ago, and Mr. Meade is planning to complete his residence course for his Ph. D. Names of the professors accepted in the place of these four have not been made known.

PLANS LAID FOR LODGING ALUMNI

Seniors and Townspeople Invited To Attend Alumni Luncheon Monday.

Carr dormitory, Old East, Old West, and Steele will be used by the alumni during commencement week, it was announced yesterday by the alumni secretary. The classes of '81, '91, '92, '93, '94, and '01 will occupy Old East, while '06, '10, '11, '12, '13 will stay in Old West, leaving the baby class of '30 and any other visitors to have the use of Steele. Carr building will be used by those graduates who intend to bring their wives.

The students that occupy these buildings now are requested to be out of the buildings by Friday night June 8 so that the building department can get in and have them cleaned up. Any of these students that are intending to stay here for the commencement exercises may have their belongings moved to another room by the building department free of charge.

Alumni Luncheon

Also, in connection with the coming Alumni day, the Daily Tar Heel has been asked to emphasize the invitation which was given out sometime ago that all members of the class of '31 were cordially invited and even urged to attend the regular alumni luncheon which is set for Monday, June 8, at one o'clock and also the alumni ball on that night. Jack Wardlaw has been obtained to supply the music. The dance is to follow President Graham's reception and will take place in the Tin Can.

The luncheon is to be served in Swain hall for the nominal sum of one dollar, and is open to those townspeople that are connected with the University in any way. In the near past many of these have refrained from coming because of the impression that it was strictly a graduate affair, instead they are invited to attend. K. P. Lewis, president of the alumni association, will preside and President Graham will be the principal speaker. There have been three other notable speakers invited to say a very few words.

Last Chance To Get Senior Invitations

Today between the hours of 9:00 and 12:00 will be the last chance for those seniors who ordered invitations to secure them from the Book Exchange.

Ed Hamer, chairman of the invitation committee, asks the seniors to be sure and secure these invitations today.

HENDERSON ADDS NEW VOLUMES TO PLAY COLLECTION

Library Announces Addition of 700 Plays to American Drama Collection.

The University of North Carolina library announced yesterday that 700 plays have just been added to the Archibald Henderson Collection of American drama. This brings the total of the collection up to 1350, Dr. Henderson having given the library 650 volumes of plays when the collection was inaugurated in October, 1929.

Representative Drama

Collected over a long period, these volumes are said to represent almost every phase of the changing tastes of American theatregoers. Many of the books are rare and valuable and could be duplicated only with great difficulty.

In presenting the collection, Dr. Henderson said, "I have been collecting American plays for many years, and as a North Carolinian I am especially interested in American drama because the first American tragedy ever to be produced on the American stage was written in Wilmington. I take especial pleasure in presenting this collection to the University of North Carolina, pre-eminent among all the state universities in the field of drama in that it gave course credit for plays produced by the students here in 1796, almost 125 years before the Carolina Playmakers were founded."

First American Tragedy

Speaking further of the first American tragedy produced professionally, Dr. Henderson said:

(Continued on last page)

VAN HECKE LISTS HONOR VIOLATORS OF STUDENT BODY

Forty-Two Cases Have Been Brought Before Faculty Committee During Year.

Forty-two students, involved in twenty-five cases, have been called before the Faculty Executive committee so far this college year, for alleged violations of the honor system. All of these cases have been reported to the committee by members of the faculty. One case concerned the mutilation of a library book. The others related to cheating in connection with notebooks, reports on readings, laboratory exercises, themes, quizzes, and examinations.

Of these forty-two students, twenty-nine were freshmen, seven were sophomores, three were juniors, and three were seniors.

Twenty of the forty-two confessed their guilt; twenty-two denied it.

Five men were exonerated; ten had the charges against them dismissed for lack of evidence; and twenty-seven received penalties ranging from being required to drop a course to suspension from the University for two quarters.

Committee Membership

The membership of the Faculty Executive Committee this year has consisted of Professors H. G. Baity, John N. Couch, G. A. Harrer (chairman), S. E. Leavitt, E. L. Mackie, and M. T. Van Hecke (secretary). Professor Baity resigned early in

(Continued on last page)

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays. Entered as Second Class matter at the post office at Chapel Hill, N. C., under Act of March 3, 1879.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $4.00 for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

Jack Dungan.....Editor
H. N. Patterson.....Bus. Mgr.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Ed French.....Mng. Ed.

Editorial Board

Charles G. Rose.....Chairman
J. M. Little — Frank J. Manheim
W. M. Bryson — Will Yarborough
Alden Stahr — Bob Barnett
Wex Malone — K. C. Ramsay

Assignment Editors
Otto S. Steinreich
Dan Kelly, Assistant

Sunday Editor
Charles G. Rose

City Editors
Bill McKee — George Wilson
Peter Hairston — Jack Riley

Desk Men
W. R. Woerner — Don Shoemaker
Frank Hawley — T. W. Blackwell
Vass Shepherd

Sports Staff
Jack Bessen.....Sports Editor

Assistants
T. H. Broughton — P. Alston

News Men
E. M. Spruill — F. W. Ashley
W. E. Davis — Claiborn Carr
Charles Poe

Reporters
Saul Gordon — Bob Reynolds
Woodward Glenn — M. V. Barnhill, Jr.
William Blount — W. F. Lee
U. B. Phillips — M. H. Long
Tom Walker — W. L. Gray
Ronald Kochendorfer — Walker Stamps
Phil Sasser

BUSINESS STAFF

Hal Worth.....Circulation Mgr.
Harlan Jameson.....Ass't. Bus. Mgr.
John Manning.....Ass't. Bus. Mgr.

Advertising Department

Al L. Olmstead.....Advertising Mgr.
Pendleton Gray.....Advertising Mgr.
Bernard Solomon.....Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
R. D. McMillan, Jr.....Ass't. Adv. Mgr.
James N. Nowell — H. A. Clark

Collection Department

Jack Hammer.....Collection Mgr.
John Barrow — Frank S. Dale
Stokes Adderton — Jack Stokes

Correspondence Department

Ed Michaels, Jr.....Correspondence Mgr.
Wynn Hamm.....Ass't. Cor. Mgr.

Saturday, May 30, 1931

God Speed!

To those with whom we have worked and played these past three years and who following the examinations this particular year will begin a loaf until the economic depression is over or they marry into some wealthy family, or who through some pull or downright genius have a job waiting for them, or who having been inspired by the individualistic training of great leaders afforded them have lit their shining torches with which to lead the world, or who through contact with great scholarship have given their lives to research, or who have come here only to be further disillusioned we say God Speed!

Trends vs. Paternalism In American Education

There is a group at present on this campus which has avowed as its purpose the dissemination of progressive ideas on current local, state, and national issues. In its program it has provided for an attack upon local issues not necessarily in the spirit of belligerency but rather in the spirit of cooperation and intelligent study. This group sooner or later is going to approach the subject of liberalism in American education. Specificity in any such organization whose purposes are more or less ephemeral to begin with is highly admirable.

Already there have been several rather significant experiments in the field of American education with a view toward liberalizing the system. Perhaps the experiment which has been given the most publicity has been the Meiklejohn Experimental college at Wisconsin. There were three important aspects to their plan. First, was an attempt to integrate the materials to be studied in the freshman and sophomore years by studying "situations" and "civilization," studying the causal aspects of history, and getting a time-mindedness. They studied contemporary America and the Greece of the 4th and 5th centuries B.C. A second aspect of this plan was the informalization of teaching methods where teachers lived with the students, carried on discussions, and avoided the formalized, paternalistic features of our conventional college classroom. The third aspect was the attempt to bring about a socialization of the student. Class year relationships were minimized and activity, athletic, study, and interest relationships were recognized as the most productive and genuine type of college social contact. Students had more time for study, reading, conversation, friendships, and cultural assimilation.

The Chicago plan provides for greater specialization by dividing the college of Arts, Literature, and Science into four departments — biological sciences, social sciences, physical sciences, and the humanities. Bookkeeping in the traditional sense will be eliminated, divisional autonomy will supplant departmental autonomy, and there will be a better coordination of the educational program.

The Antioch plan attempts to encourage symmetry of personal development in order to shape well-rounded members of society. Personal responsibility is emphasized. Social and economic sense, appreciation of race wisdom, a sense of the scientific spirit, religious feeling based on conviction, and a life purpose are the definite aims of this system of education. Self directed study and conference with professors are supplanting daily assignments from chairs of professorial dignity. Alternating periods of study and work are conceived to be important in liberalizing education. The work is useful for reasons of vocational training as well as self support.

These three plans and the Oxford system are perhaps the most interesting examples of liberalism in modern education. Any group interested in working out new methods, and introducing new phases into the educational system here at Chapel Hill might well take cognizance of the fact that efforts are being made elsewhere today too and let their experience illuminate them in their thought and work.—R.W.B.

An Advancing Age

Every day we pick up the paper to read an article of some age-old record which has recently been broken, or of some wonderful advancement which science has made, or of some barrier which has been broken down opening up greater fields for the scientist. We are living in a moving age. An age in which man is not satisfied with what he has, but is ever striving to reach higher for some apparently impossible goal.

Only recently we read where Professor Piccard ascended to an altitude of approximately ten miles, and after staying at this height for several hours, returned to earth perfectly conscious. His trip broke down many of the existing theories of the stratosphere, and revealed the fact that in the future it would be possible for trans-continental and trans-oceanic air lines to travel successfully at this height. Such successful experiments are taking place daily all around us, and only a man with Edgar Rice Burrough's imagination can conceive of this world fifty years hence.

The airplane altitude record, endurance record, speed record, efficiency record, and thousand other such records are continually in danger. Strides are being made not only in this but other lines of transportation, to say nothing of the rapid advancement which is taking place in the field of production. Manufactured goods are now being put out faster and more substantial than ever before. There is no trade which is at a standstill in every respect. According to Norman Thomas, "The Golden Age is ahead of us."

And it is into this advancing age that the members of the class of '31 will step. They will go out into a world which is further advanced than was that of any of the previous 135 senior classes of this institution. Their opportunities are greater, and their possibilities for success are more numerous.

Thousands upon thousands of commencement addresses have been made on this subject, trying to show the seniors that they are the most fortunate persons in the world, that they are starting out on a rosy path to success, and it will not be hard for them to succeed.

Under such conditions it is not hard for the graduates to succeed, but the question is whether they will be able to continue this advancement. It will be easy for them to sit back and coast along on the progress of past generations, by merely taking what comes their way and making the best of it such can be done.

Their aim will not be to keep things as they are, but to further the already advanced world. In other words, to repeat an over-worked but appropriate cry, theirs must be the goal to "Carry On!" Will the world take a backward or a forward step because of the classes of '31?—C. G. R.

Student Government

The honor system in this University is always in operation. The principle that leaves a student on his honor not to lie, cheat, or steal applies to every student on every occasion. Individual honor meets its severest trial in times of crises, and final examinations are frequently the ultimate test of a student's ability to live up to the honor system.

Is has been the experience of every student council that the great majority of cases of violations of the honor system have come from the first year classes. It is a great step from high schools to the University campus. In four years here if the principles of honor have not been impressed in the minds of University men, it is a sad commentary on the institution or the individual.

The honor system is a guiding principle of life in the University and after graduation. Those who are unable to live up to it, must, sooner or later, fall by the wayside on the road to satisfaction and success.

MAYNE ALBRIGHT,
Pres. Student Union.

With Contemporaries

Dreiser Vs. Culture

Theodore Dreiser, militant Babbit-baiter and anti-culturalist, Grand Old Man of the literary Left, has just drawn another startling induction from the facts of life in his latest book, "Dawn," an autobiography. It is an amplification of Henry Ford's well-known dictum anent History and goes like this: Education is Bunk; "Experience is the only true teacher." By education Mr. Dreiser means the modern, formal variety, "which is little more than a selective presentation of certain stored or canned phases of experience," and he limits his recipe of straight experience to the "sensitive and properly interpretative mind." Further, by way of illustration, he mourns the distressing effect on his observing faculties of what he evidently considers his own formal education, "the stored dogmas and conclusions of haywire religionists."

Like most of Dr. Dreiser's pronunciamentos, the above contains an element of valid criticism in a compound consisting largely of what he and his friends are wont to term "pish-posh." Granted that much of modern education tends to foster "conventions" and "baseless theories," there is nothing in either Mr. Dreiser's precepts or example to justify its relegation to a subordinate place in the preparation for life. Certainly, in implying that one can be naturally endowed with a "sensitive and properly interpretative mind," he leaves himself open to—of all things—an attack on his knowledge of psychology. The study of infant behavior has shown definitely that the ability to interpret or select experience is not inborn, and education, notwithstanding its degeneration in certain centers, still proposes to develop this ability and the attitude of mind necessary for an intelligent "criticism of life." Mr. Dreiser, as a specialist in futile lives, must realize the supreme futility of a man who accepts uncriticized and unselected the flux of common-place experience, as contrasted with the man who is at home with the great minds of the ages and is consequently aware of what is worthwhile for his own. Princetonian.

For Bibliophiles

The appointment of Christopher Morley, noted author, lecturer and intellectual sportsman, to the chair of the recently established Rosenbach Lecture Fellowship in Bibliography brings to the University next year the man outstanding in his field, as far as public acclaim is an adequate yard-stick of intrinsic worth, and insures that the purpose of Dr. A. W. S. Rosenbach in establishing the chair will be faithfully carried out during its first year. But further than this, and more important from the undergraduate viewpoint, which, we realize, is usually submerged in the interest of pure learning, the appointment means that the student will take an interest in the Fellowship which would only be possible through the selection of a popularizer.

In Christopher Morley, Provost Josiah H. Penniman has found a nice compromise between the two types of men who are wont to grace such chairs: the scholiast, with his love for footnotes, and the egoist, who has his ears keenly atuned for the applause of his students at the end of the lecture. The Harkness Hoot had some words to say concerning the often-rotogravured club idol, Professor William Lyon Phelps, who through his antics as a sparring partner and a friend of notables in other lines has heaped some ridicule on his profession. At Pennsylvania, too, we have those who strive for the effect and endeavor to attain popularity with bon mots and sparkling wit, at the expense of intellectual fodder.

Morley should at the same time be able to hold the interest of the average undergraduate and to contribute much to the story of learning in the field in which he is to be allowed to ramble.—C. P. K.—Pennsylvanian.

Maybe it would be harder for bandits to get pay-rolls if it were harder to get paroles.—Virginian-Pilot.

A luxury automatically becomes a necessity when you find you can make the down payment on it.—Louisville Times.

APPRECIATION

I wish personally to thank each of my customers for his patronage this year. It has been a pleasure to serve every Carolina student.

THEODORE BEST
University Shoe Shop

ANNOUNCEMENT

We wish to thank all the boys for their patronage and also to announce that for one week beginning this morning half soles and rubber heels in our shop will be only $1.

LACOCK'S SHOE SHOP
The Home of the 5c Shine

The Store That Appreciates Your Patronage

Pritchard-Lloyd, Inc.

Druggists
A Pleasant Summer to You

QUIZ BOOKS
Students' Supply Store

We wish to thank our customers again for their patronage during the past year and also to announce that we will give a free shoe shine to all of our customers on Wednesday and Thursday of next week.

University Shoe Shop
Phone 3016

Now Playing
"Up Pops the Devil"
with
Skeets Gallagher — Stuart Erwin — Carole Lombard

Flagg and Quirt ... the marines' gift to dizzy dames ... you've met them before, but never in such a skirt chasing and mirth making mood

You'll never know what a real laugh is till you shake, ache and quake at
RAOUL WALSH'S
WOMEN OF ALL NATIONS

with
VICTOR McLAGLEN
EDMUND LOWE
GRETA NISSEN
EL BRENDEL
and
150 and more famous international beauties

Other Features
"Jazz Rehearsal"
A Metro-Colortone Revue

Paramount Sound News

MONDAY

Tuesday Jean Harlow in "Public Enemy"	Wednesday Joan Bennett in "Many a Slip"
Wednesday 11 P. M. "The Royal Box" All German Talking Picture Made in Germany	Thursday Ben Lyon in "Aloha"
Friday Richard Arlen in "Lawyers Secret"	Saturday Richard Dix in "Young Donovan's Kid"

One of the Publix-Kincey Theatres — CAROLINA — COMING Billie Dove in "Lady Who Dared"

LOSS OF SEVEN TRACKMEN WILL HURT 1932 TEAM

Three of Seven Seniors Have Broken State Records; Field Events Lose Most Stars.

Of the seventeen men awarded varsity track monograms at the conclusion of the 1931 season, seven have completed their three years of intercollegiate competition and will be among the missing when the 1932 team begins its campaign to recapture the Southern Conference championship. The squad of returning veterans will be composed of four seniors and six juniors. In addition, several promising men who failed to win their monogram this spring, and one or two men ineligible this will probably be on hand to add further strength to the team.

Three of the seven retiring veterans have broken State and University records during the current season and their absence will be felt keenly. Captain Sandy Dameron, Ray Ruble, and Cliff Baucom set records this year, but two other seniors, Brodie Arnold and George Bagby, are the holders of University records which they set last year.

Captain Dameron brought a successful career to a climax this year by smashing both State and University records for the discus with a throw of 136 feet six inches.

Cliff Baucom set a new State record for the two mile by running the event in 9:51.7, but the University record is still held by Johnny Henderson with a time of 9:38.1. Baucom was a consistent performer in this event during his stay here, and was captain of the cross country team last fall. Baucom's departure leaves the two mile run apparently in the hands of Bob Hubbard, sophomore, who also turned in several good performances during the season and who placed fifth in the Southern Conference run.

The loss of Brodie Arnold and Ray Ruble, pole vault stars, will probably be the one felt most. There are no varsity men returning in this event, and unless Wick Smith, reserve on the 1930 team returns to school next year, Bob Gold, a rising sophomore, will have to bear the brunt of the work in this event. Between them, Arnold and Ruble hold three pole vault records. Arnold holds the University record with a height of thirteen feet which was made in 1930. Ruble holds the Southern Conference Indoor record at 12 feet 11 3-4 inches and the State record at twelve feet eight inches. Until Ruble cleared the bar at 12 feet 11 3-4 inches in the Southern Indoor meet, Arnold also held this record, having cleared twelve feet seven inches at the 1930 carnival.

George Bagby, another star who has finished his intercollegiate career, also holds a record, the University record for the high jump. Bagby cleared the bar at six feet one-quarter inch last year, but injuries this season kept him below his past form. Bagby sprained his ankle just before the V. P. I. meet and was kept out of action for several weeks. He had been doing good work in both the high jump and broad jump, taking first places in both events against N. C. State.

Dick Garrett and J. K. Smith are the other two men who will not return next year. Garrett ran the half mile this year, and his mark of 2:00.2 was the best made by a Carolina runner during the season. Smith, running the 100 and 220, ranked third among the Tar Heel point getters with a total of forty-eight for the year and turned in several excellent performances. His mark of 21.8 in the 220 against Penn State stands out as his best single feat.

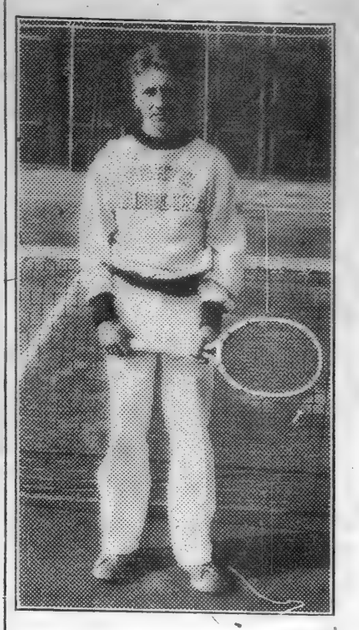
By Jack Bessen

George Lott, former University of Chicago netman and Davis Cup star, is the lone American left in the French National Singles play. The Chicagoan, together with Johnny Van Ryn took the doubles title, the first time that it had been won by Americans since 1926 . . . There are three .400 hitters in the major leagues at present, and all three of them are in the junior circuit. Mickey Cochrane is batting .414, Al Simmons has a .410 average, and Babe Ruth has a mere .400.

Jimmy Maus, captain of the 1930 ball team, had a big day at bat last Thursday, getting three for three . . . the 1932 intercollegiate track and field games will be held in Berkeley, Cal., under the auspices of the Universities of California, Southern California, and Leland Stanford . . . Ed Brandt, Boston Brave pitcher, is making a strong bid for the best pitcher in the Big Show. The southpaw beat the Giants Thursday to register his eighth win.

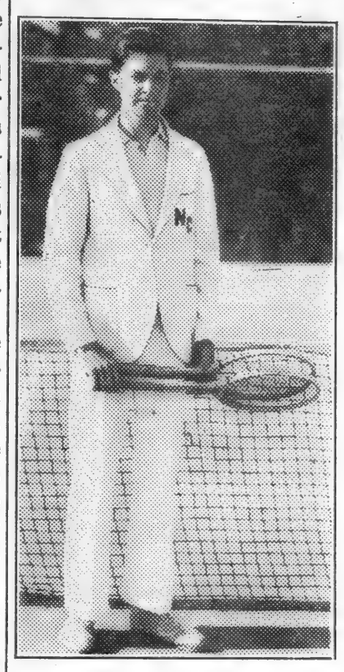
The Jersey City Skeeters take great delight in knocking the Newark Bears off the top position in the International League. Within the past week, the "Skeets" have taken six games from Paul Block's team . . . Take it from the writer. The Army and Navy will be playing regular scheduled football games in the near future. Officials from both schools are conferring in Washington, and they're not there for tea either . . . For the first time in many moons, the Indianapolis racing crowd failed to get "het up" about the famous "Indianapolis 500." That auto race corresponds to the Kentucky Derby.

The Southern California Trojans, twice winner of the Intercollegiates, is again favored to take the games this year. Well to be different, we'll cast our vote with the University of Pennsylvania . . . Too much Barney Berlinger is our opinion . . . Glendale High school of California, has unearthed a new track find in the person of Al Fitch, who traverses the century in 9.4 . . . Wait till he starts to improve . . . They grow home run hitters in Philadelphia. Five of the majors' leading clouters come from the Quaker City. They hit forty-four circuit smashes between them . . .

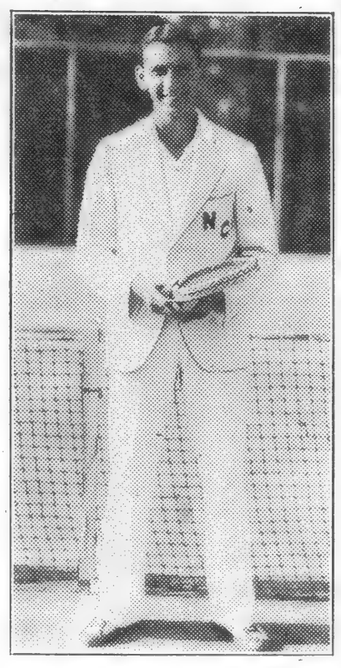


Loud sighs of relief were heard from the general direction of Princeton University when the baseball season was terminated. It seems as if the leading teams in the South and East took great pleasure in chasing Tiger hurlers to the showers. (Carolina beat the Tigers, 15-3) . . . If the Tar Heel netters can get by Ellsworth Vines, last year's sensation, they'll have an excellent chance to crash through to the national intercollegiate title. But then that's a mighty big piece for any team to chew . . .

Well, seniors, here's hoping you have all the luck in the world. Goodbye till next fall.



Request Applicants for Summer Employment



P. D. Carter, representative of the International Telephone and Telegraph corporation, would like to interview at 11:00 this morning in 103 Bingham hall all students interested in whole or part time employment for the summer. Students who live in larger towns are especially desired.

National Intercollegiate Champions

Because of their sensational trip north when they defeated the country's leading tennis teams, Coach Kenfield's charges will be among the favorites to take the national collegiate title, when play starts June 22 at the Cricket Club, Haverford, Pennsylvania. Since each team is allowed to enter but four men, the Tar Heel entries include Bryan Grant, Wilmer Hines, Ed Yeomans, and Hinkey Hendlin. Yeomans went to the finals of the Southern conference singles, and with Hendlin, won the doubles crown.

INTRAMURAL CUP TAKEN BY A.T.O.'S

Winners Succeed Beta Theta Pi As Intramural Champions; Phi Gamma Delta is Runner-up.

The latest figures released by Wallace Shelton, assistant intramural director, show that A. T. O. won this year's intramural race with a total of 690 points. The new champions had teams entered in six of the seven events, winning two fraternity titles and one campus title. They were runners-up for two fraternity championships.

The next four teams and their total scores were as follows: Phi Gamma Delta, 500; Beta Theta Pi, 385; New Dorms, 361; and the Question Marks, 350.

A. T. O. won the fraternity titles in tennis and baseball, later copping the campus championship in the latter. They finished second in the Greek football and basketball races. New Dorms led in the dormitory tennis league. The Beta's grabbed top honors in fraternity football, and the campus championship was taken by Ruffin, dormitory football champions. The Question Marks were dormitory titlists in basketball and won over the K. A.'s, fraternity finalists, to get the campus championship. The Tar Heel Club, which entered its only team in the cross country race, finished first in this event with a total of 53 points. The fencing title went to the Phi Gam's, who garnered 150 points. Aycock was close behind, getting 145 points.

In the spring boxing tournament the A. T. O.'s entered eight men, four of whom advanced to the finals. Two of these, Smith

(Continued on last page)

INTRAMURAL RESULTS

In the playoff held yesterday to decide the campus tennis championship A.T.O. and New Dorms tied 2-all. A.T.O. copped two singles matches, and New Dorms took one singles and one doubles match. There was not time to play off the second doubles match.

Smith, A.T.O. defeated Baley in the No. 1 singles to put his team in the lead. The match was very close, Smith winning by scores of 8-6 and 7-5.

New Dorms evened the count when Huskins won over McLaughlin in the No. 2 singles. Huskins took the first set 6-3, but dropped the second 5-7. He nearly lost the deciding set, but picked up to come from behind and win. The score of this set was 7-5.

The No. 3 singles was the longest match of the afternoon, but DuPuis, A.T.O., finally defeated Smith, New Dorms. The winner dropped the first set, 5-7, but took the second, one of the longest played in intramurals this year, by a score of 14-12. DuPuis should have won earlier, having set point on several occasions, but he was un-

(Continued on last page)

Wishing You a Pleasant and Profitable Vacation

D & G Cafe

Gooch Bros.

Next to University Barber Shop

Fanning and Panning

By Billy Arthur

There'll be big things doing when prominent alumni and University business officials meet tomorrow morning to consider the question: Will Coach Jim Ashmore be retained?

Coach Ashmore was sitting on the bench with the players just before the ball game with V. M. I. when he received the telegram asking him to tender his resignation. Since then I have heard both pro and con reports from very, very reliable sources, and from all indications it looks as if he will be kept for another year at least.

A petition has been presented to Frank Graham, which voices the approval of him by the majority of the athletes. Prominent and influential alumni are behind him. President Graham is for him. So it appears that there is only a small minority in favor of ousting the present coach of baseball and basketball.

And you ask, "What are the charges?" Well, the real charges have been thrown in the background and rumors circulated about minor things, personal, and those flung right smack in his face. Well, that's not fair. He put out two winning teams in two sports this year, when it looked as if we didn't have even the first verse of the Lord's prayer in either. As far as his other conduct, which is far above reproach, in my estimation, that's his business and not that of the University's. (I stand open to criticism or ridicule.) He performed his duty well both on the court and on the diamond. He worked hard. He did what work he was supposed to do. What more could you ask of one man? And you can't get one man to coach two sports, make players in each sport, turn out a winning club for the school in each, turn out professional material, and stick to his job with as much interest, if not more, after he had been telegraphed to hand in his resignation at V. M. I. on the Northern trip—you can't get a man to do all this for the amount of bread and meat he gets.

When his opponents begin to fling charges, watch out. For

(Continued on last page)

AMERICANS LEAD IN CUP MATCHES WITH ARGENTINA

Frank Shields and Sidney Wood Have Little Trouble in Downing South American Stars.

The United States Davis Cup team stepped off to a good start in the American zone finals at the Chevy Chase Country Club yesterday, winning easily the first two singles matches.

Frank X. Shields, No. 2 in the American rankings, defeated Tuillermo Robson, 3-6, 6-2, 6-2, and 6-2. In the second match, Sidney Wood, Jr., won in straight sets of 6-4, 6-1, and 6-2 from the red-haired ranking Argentine player, Ronaldo Boyd. Wood, playing his usual strategic game, was in good form and made his heavier opponent run all over the court chasing beautiful placements.

At the beginning of the psychological opening match Shields was erratic, playing unsteadily throughout the first set. He drove many balls into the net, or outside, and was off his serves.

Robson started cautiously, winning his points by outmaneuvering Shields. He was successful often in drawing the American out of position to score on easy placements.

Shields was back on his game at the start of the second set, however, and from then on was never forced to extend himself. He outguessed Robson and scored often on smashing drives to the back court.

Immediately after the matches, it was announced that in the doubles tomorrow Shields and Wood will meet Boyd and Adriano Zappa. This came as a surprise, as it was believed the usual doubles team of Clifford

(Continued on last page)

ROOMS FOR SUMMER

At the Phi Alpha House, 131 North Street. $15 for both sessions.

QUIZ BOOKS

Students' Supply Store

THANKS FOR YOUR PATRONAGE

We wish you a most successful vacation and hope to see you again next year.

THE UNIVERSITY BARBER SHOP

FANCY ICES SHERBETS

DURHAM ICE CREAM CO., Inc.

"Blue Ribbon"

Ice Cream

DURHAM, N. C.

"Won Its Favor By Its Flavor"

BLOCKS PUNCH

The Graduate in New York

THE PARKSIDE provides a residence where young men and women of refinement and good taste see about them others of their own kind and only their own kind. Rooms have the inviting air of a charming guest suite in a private home. Excellent food. Pent House, reception rooms, and solarium for use of guests. A socially correct address. Opposite Gramercy Park. References required. Write for folder C.

Rooms $15 to $22.50 Weekly

The Parkside

Eighteen Gramercy Park SOUTH

Corner East 20th Street and Irving Place

NEW YORK CITY

HENDERSON ADDS NEW VOLUMES TO PLAY COLLECTION

(Continued from first page)

"This play, 'The Prince of Parthia,' a five-act tragedy, was written in Wilmington in 1765 by Thomas Godfrey the younger, who father invented the quadrant and was one of the charter members of the American Philosophical Society founded by Benjamin Franklin. It was produced at the New Theatre in Philadelphia on April 24, 1767."

On the 150th anniversary of this production Dr. Henderson brought out an elaborately-edited edition of the play.

Well-Known Plays

The 700 plays Dr. Henderson has just added to the collection show what American dramatists have done during the last 50 years. The list includes such well-known favorites as Young's "Little Old New York," Cohan's "Seven Keys to Bald Plate," Goodrich's "So This is London," Klein's "Third Degree," Rigg's "Big Lake," Howard's "Saratoga," Marquis' "Old Soak," Waldauer's "Fanchon, the Cricket," Willard's "Cat and the Canary," Webster's "Daddy Long Legs," Roi Megrue's "It Pays to Advertise," Ross's and Ford's "Janice Meredith," Tayleure's "Horseshoe Robinson," Medina's "Nick of the Woods," Gillette's "Too Much Johnson," Strong's "Toymaker of Nuremberg," Veiller's "Trial of Mary Dugan," and Goodspeed's "Wizard of Oz."

One department of the collection is given over to Negro drama and contains such plays as "Three Blacksmiths," "Handy Andy," "The Magic Penny," "Black Statue," and "Mazeppa."

LOAN SITUATION VERY DESPERATE

In a recent interview with the Daily Tar Heel Francis Bradshaw, dean of students, declared, "at no previous time has the student of limited means at the University of North Carolina been faced with a more critical situation. At no time have the University's loan funds been more vital or important to him than they are today.

"Already, despite the greatest care in securing collections from old loans," he continued, "the addition through new gifts of $20,000 in new funds, and the borrowing of $18,000 with which to make further loans, all the money available has been placed in the hands of students of the most urgent needs.

Dean Bradshaw went on to say, "next year the situation will be even more desperate. At the very least we must realize for that period $75,000 from uncollected loans outstanding to provide the most meagre help to students in dire straits, and, what is more immediate, we must be in a reasonable position now to assure the group dependent on aid, what they can count on next year. If we can't tell them definitely, many of the University's most deserving students will be unable to return. Help not offered before college opens in the fall will be too late for those in the greatest need of it.

Borrowers are asked to pay back the amount you owe in four equal installments: June 10th, July 10th, August 10th, and September 10th. Thus indebtedness can be retired in a manner most convenient and at the same time enable the University to promise loans to the extent of the amounts set down for payment."

A doctor suggests that, of the many people who disappear every year some are actuated by the belief that they are not wanted. And others, no doubt, by the knowledge that they are.—Passing Show.

The Campus Calendar

Farewell Sermon

Sunday morning Mr. Rozzelle will preach a farewell sermon to the students of 1931. The subject will be "Great Expectations." Come and worship with us.

Monogram Club

There will be an important meeting of the monogram club Monday at 12:00 o'clock in the Y.M.C.A.

VAN HECKE LISTS HONOR VIOLATORS OF STUDENT BODY

(Continued from first page)

the spring, upon his appointment as dean of the school of engineering, and Professor C. T. Murchison succeeded him until the faculty elections in May, by appointment of the president. At that election, Professors English Bagby and C. T. Murchison were chosen for terms of three years each, and Professor John Lasley for two years. The terms of Professors John N. Couch and E. L. Mackie expire in June.

At the organization meeting this week, Professor M. T. Van Hecke was elected chairman of the committee for next year, and Professor C. T. Murchison, secretary.

M. T. VAN HECKE,
Sec. Executive Committee.

Fanning and Panning

(Continued from preceding page)

his supporters have plenty of comebacks to make in regard to other sports. Just wait for the big doings.

And while I am on the subject of coaches, will someone write me explaining why this school has to go outside the state and pick up a fourth or fifth or maybe sixth string backfield man to coach our football backfield. What in the world is wrong with Jim Magner, Pete Wyrick, Chuck Erickson, "Yank," Spalding, Jim Ward, or Ray Farris? Those boys mentioned know the Notre Dame system and the way that Coach Collins wants it taught and the changes he has made in it. So why pick up some "foreigner"? We have coaching material here in our midst—at least as good as any fifth or sixth string backfielder from any big named school.

Well, if the worst comes about, and I don't believe it will, that Coach Ashmore will be turned loose, let me suggest that the employers of coaches look over in the Piedmont League in Winston-Salem and offer the job to Bunn Hearn. He preceded Ashmore, who took Hearns' job when he went to the big league. He could take up the reins where our capable coach has left off. I know of no other man hereabouts that could handle the job as well as he, who has been in the Big Show. If any changes are made that's the type man we should get—one who knows his onions, can make ballplayers for the school and for the professional leagues. "Bunn" Hearn can turn the trick.

Walking down the street in Durham the other day, Rip (will you hum the "Old Rugged Cross?") Slusser saw a cross-eyed woman. And how she was cross-eyed. He remarked that she was so cross-eyed she looked herself straight in the face.

As this is the last issue of Jack Dungan's Daily Tar Heel (free publicity Jack) let me say "good-bye" to the members of the Senior class, especially those whom I know personally, and wish them much happiness and good luck.

COMMENCEMENT PROGRAM BEGINS NEXT SATURDAY

(Continued from first page)

ing at 11 o'clock by Rev. E. McNeill Poteat, Jr., pastor of the Pullen Memorial Baptist Church in Raleigh. Sunday afternoon there will be a band concert under Davie popular, an organ recital by Prof. Nelson O. Kennedy in the music auditorium, and a twilight vesper service under Davie popular, to be conducted by Rev. C. E. Rozzelle.

Alumni Day Monday

Monday will be alumni day, with registration head-quarters at the Y. M. C. A. Monday morning the Carolina Theatre will present movies of former days in Chapel Hill, and the general alumni meeting will be in Gerrard Hall with Judge Francis D. Winston presiding. K. P. Lewis, president of the General Alumni association, will be toastmaster at the annual alumni luncheon in Swain hall at 1 o'clock. In the afternoon there will be a band concert and an organ recital, and at 6 o'clock the reunion class suppers will take place. President Graham's reception to alumni will begin at 9 o'clock, to be followed by the alumni ball in the Tin Can.

Tuesday morning, commencement day proper, the academic procession will form at Alumni Building to proceed to Memorial hall where the four-day program will come to an end with the commencement address by Claude G. Bowers and the presentation of diplomas by the Governor of North Carolina.

INTRAMURAL CUP TAKEN BY A.T.O.'s

(Continued from preceding page)

and Brooker, won in the final bouts. The fighters crowned champions in the tourney are as follows:

119 lbs., Alan Smith; 129 lbs., Frank Errico; 139 lbs., Lofton Brooker; 149 lbs., Dick Battley; 164 lbs., Billy Stallings; 179 lb., Fred Francis; unlimited, Red Sherrill.

Intramurals enjoyed a very successful year, with fifty organizations putting out 172 teams to represent them in the race. Judging from the number of teams entered in each sport, basketball proved to be the most popular, with 39 teams entered. Football followed closely with 38. The remainder finished in the following order: baseball, 35; tennis, 30; boxing, 11; fencing, 10; and cross country, 9.

PLANS FOR FINAL DANCE SET MADE BY GERMAN CLUB

(Continued from page one)

figure Thursday night. He will be assisted by Will Yarborough and John Bullock. Chaperones will be headed by Miss Kate Graham.

Members may obtain cards from Will Yarborough at the S. A. E. house immediately after lunch each day until the end of examination period. Guest cards may be obtained at the same time.

Intramural Results

(Continued from preceding page)

able to get his serves across at the crucial moments. Both players were too tired to play good tennis in the final set, but DuPuis had the edge in stamina and took it by a score of 6-2.

Huskins and Baley, New Dorms, paired to win the No. 1 doubles from Smith and Gilbert, thereby making it necessary for the other doubles match to be played sometime in the future. The A.T.O. players easily got the first set 6-1, but Huskins and Baley came back to cop the second, 6-3, making it all even. The New Dorms netmen continued their good playing in the last set at 6-3, to tie the matches.

PLAYMAKERS TO CUT LAST CAPER

(Continued from first page)

Wishart Braddy, Bill Figgat, and assistants; "Corn, A Stagger in Dance Form," by Mary Dirnberger; and "Quare Women," by "Op" Wolfe and Loretto Carroll Bailey.

The final part will be the awarding of thirty one masks to Playmakers who have done outstanding work this year.

The program committee for the capers had as its chairman Ted Herman. He was assisted by Margaret Vale, Closs Peace, Mary Dinberger, Marion Tatum, Bess Jones Winburn, Ellen Stewart, Ann Braddy, Tom Loy, Philip Milhous, Joe Fox, Pendleton T. Harrison, Bill Figgat, Ralph Westerman, and Kent Creuser.

AMERICANS LEAD IN CUP MATCHES WITH ARGENTINA

(Continued from preceding page)

Sutter and Gregory Mangin would meet the Argentines.

Followers of the netmen from South America expressed disappointment in the results of the first day's play. Although it was conceded that Shields probably would defeat Robson, it was a shock to the Argentines to see the powerful Boyd fall before Wood.

Boyd, his red head fairly sparkling in the sun, was no match for the quick movements of his small opponent.

Handicapped by Ball

The Angentine team has been having trouble becoming accustomed to the American tennis ball. The ball they use is lighter, and for the past week Capt. Edwin French has been drilling his men to see how much force was needed to drive the ball to the back court. Frequently yesterday Robson and Boyd drove with too much force and sent the ball way out.

The United States team can assure itself of a trip abroad to compete with the winner of the European zone finals by winning in the doubles tomorrow.

Student Activities Increase In 1930-31

(Continued from first page)

Conference tournament at Atlanta, Carolina was eliminated by Maryland by one point; Maryland later defeated Kentucky for the championship.

Suffering their only defeat at the hands of the strong Navy team, the wrestling team of the University made an outstanding record. After defeating Princeton 16-14 and tying V. M. I. 12-12, the Tar Heels defeated their other opponents with little difficulty. As there was no Southern Conference tournament in this sport Carolina, V. M. I. and Washington and Lee claimed the title.

Under the tutelage of Crayton Rowe the boxing team won all their matches except the one against Penn State, which they lost by two matches. The Tar Heel team captured third place in the Southern Conference tournament at Charlottesville.

The golf team completed their season with six victories and two ties. In the state meet they captured second and took fourth in the Southern conference tournament.

The University harriers won both of their dual meets and although hurt by injuries managed to take fourth in the Southern Conference race.

Thirty-two of the productions written in the University's playwriting courses were produced, two of these being full-length plays. Seven productions were given by professional companies, including the Ben Greet players, the Jitney players, and the Sue Hastings marionettes, two programs of original folk music and one rendering of an original folk opera, The Mountain Song, by Lamar Stringfield, winner of the Pulitzer prize. Eight lectures concerning problems of the theatre were given by such prominent men as Percy MacKaye, Barrett Clark, Lynn Riggs, Phillips Russell and Paul Green. There were seven public readings of plays by professional playwrights. Among the plays read were Green Grow the Lilacs and the Cherokee Night read by the author, Lynn Riggs, and Tread the Green Grass, by Paul Green. The Perfect Alibi was produced by the Playmakers in the new Memorial hall as a substitute for the annual forest theatre production.

Year's Debates

The debating team had a very poor year of competition this year, winning only one debate. Many of the debates, however, were no-decision or split debates. Two of the debates, with the University of Virginia and University of Cincinnati, were given over the radio. D. M. Lacey, C. A. Shreve, R. A. Merritt, W. W. Speight, J. C. Williams, J. W. Slaughter, McBride Fleming-Jones, E. E. Ericson, E. L. Haywood, H. H. Hobgood, C. D. Wardlaw, F. C. Wardlaw, J. M. Baley, and Beatty Rector competed in most of the debates.

Entertainment Program

The entertainment program of five choice items was inaugurated by the performance of Carola Goya which was received most enthusiastically by the University—thus agreeing with kings, queens, and other plenipotentiaries in their acclaim for the Spanish danseuse. Bruce Bairnsfather in his lecture pleased the student body immensely and even favored the Buccaneer with a drawing. Gay McLaren taking the parts of all the characters in Helen's Boys was excellent. With no change of costume she so managed to alter her voice and actions so as to fully impersonate the six characters in the play. The Kedroff quartet, made up of internationally famous singers, rendered their usual delightful program, which was fully appreciated by the students and faculty members present. The final number on the program was a group of selections given by Angna Enters who in dance form demonstrated her impression of several types of persons.

Commencement Speakers

Commenceent will draw the curtain of the year. This year Claude Bowers, editor of the New York World before its consolidation with the Scripps-Howard chain of dailies, will deliver the commecement address, and the Reverend E. McNeill Poteat, Jr., will preach the baccalaureate sermon.

QUIZ BOOKS
Students' Supply Store

Chapel Hill Movie Guild
presents
ARTHUR LAKE
DIXIE LEE
—in—
"Cheer Up and Smile"

Announcement

The Delta Sigma Pi House will be open for roomers during the summer. Anyone wishing to apply for a room see Dick Barber.

PHONE 7986

We sincerely appreciate the patronage afforded us by Carolina students this year. We wish you a very enjoyable vacation and hope that we will have the pleasure of serv- you again next fall.

The Friendly Cafeteria
"Every Meal a Pleasant Memory"

GOLD SEAL DURHAM DAIRY PRODUCTS INC. DAIRY FOODS

We wish to take this opportunity to thank all our customers for their patronage during the school year now closing. We wish you a happy vacation and hope you will come in to see us for your milk requirements next year.

Durham Dairy Products Inc.
Phone 7766
J. C. LANE, Mgr.

QUIZ BOOKS
Students' Supply Store

CLAUDE BOWERS
MEMORIAL HALL
11:00 A. M.

The Daily Tar Heel

CLAUDE BOWERS
MEMORIAL HALL
11:00 A. M.

VOLUME XXXIX | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., TUESDAY, JUNE 9, 1931 | NUMBER 185

HALL IS PACKED SUNDAY MORNING TO HEAR POTEAT

Raleigh Preacher Talks To Seniors on "Jesus and the Liberal Mind."

Rev. E. McNeil Poteat, Jr., pastor of the Pullen Memorial Baptist church of Raleigh, chose "Jesus and the Liberal Mind" as the subject of his baccalaureate address before the commencement crowd in Memorial hall Sunday morning.

It was the first baccalaureate sermon to be given in the new hall, and all of the 1800 seats were filled. The text of the sermon was taken from the 18th chapter of John: "If I have said anything wrong, prove it; if I have said what was true, why do you strike me?"

"A great many of the present day liberals are false to the doctrine of Jesus, who was the greatest liberal of them all," Dr. Poteat declared.

Many False Liberals

"There is today a mood that is falsely called liberal.

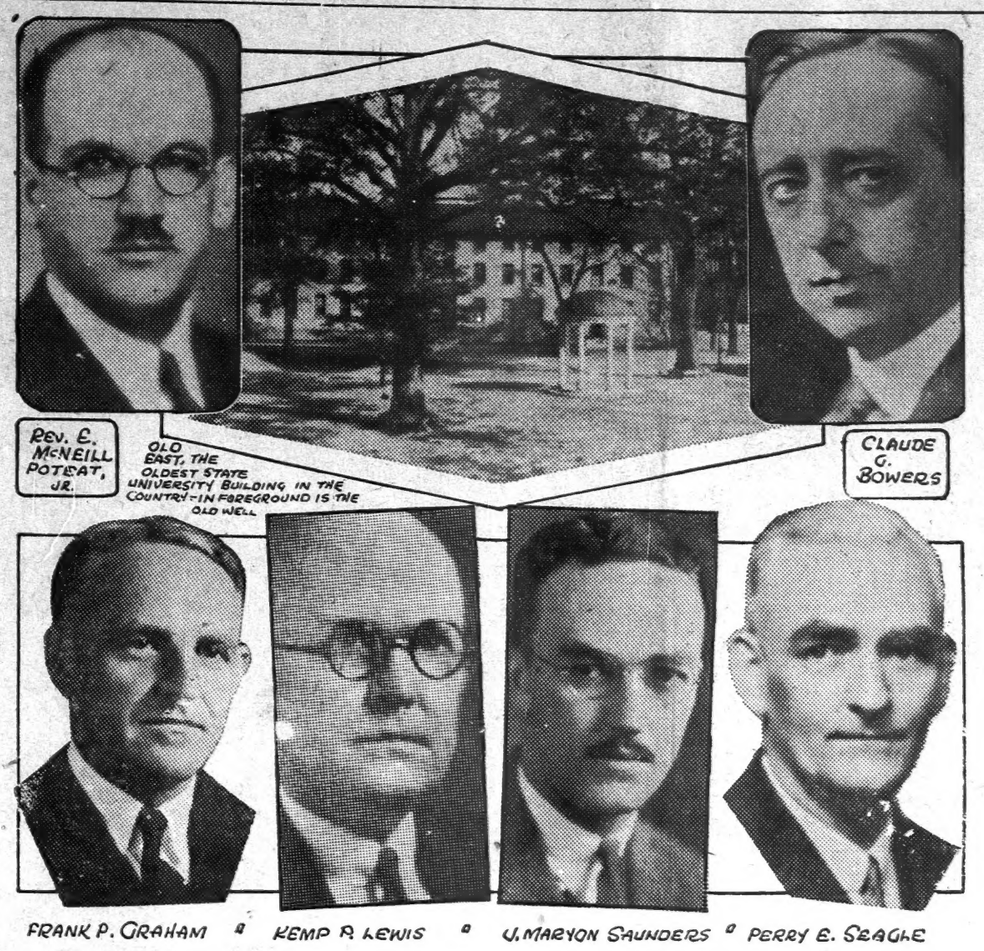
"In art it is decadent, in literature it is cynical, in politics it is destructive. Its revolt is blighted ere it starts by a suspicion of futility and defeat. And we must rescue liberalism from such a dismal consequence. For in religion, in art, in morals, in politics, in economics, in every human interest indeed, true liberalism is the inspiration of progress and the promise of success."

The liberalism of Jesus, the Raleigh minister asserted, embraced "expectancy, experiment and active protest against error." Jesus, he said, was always willing to condition his opinion regarding anything he wasn't sure about with an "if"; moreover he was always willing to examine, to search for the truth and to admit he had made a mistake if he was found wrong. And then he never failed to smite error when he found it.

Discussing the present economic distress of the world,

(Continued on last page)

MANY EXPECTED TO ENROLL FOR SUMMER SCHOOL



First Session Will Open Thursday With a Number of New Courses and Features.

That applications for admission to the University summer school are coming in rapidly and that the school of engineering has already enrolled more than twice the number of students it had during last year's summer term was revealed by Director N. W. Walker. The first term will open Thursday.

Besides its regular list of departments, consisting of the graduate school, the school of education, the liberal arts school, the school of engineering, the school of commerce, and the school of applied science, the summer quarter will this year offer a number of new features. For the first time a course in the organization and administration of junior colleges will be offered by Dr. G. P. Butler, advisor for the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, and Dr. Carobel Murphey, of the Edison high school, Los

(Continued on last page)

U. N. C. COMMENCEMENT FIGURES

Some of the important figures in the University's 136th Commencement are shown above. Reading from left to right, top row, they are E. McNeill Poteat, Jr., Pastor of the Pullen Memorial Baptist church in Raleigh, who preached the baccalaureate sermon Sunday morning; Claude G. Bowers, noted biographer and editor, who is scheduled to deliver the Commencement address this morning in Memorial hall. Bottom row: President Frank P. Graham, now ending the first year of his administration with an excellent record; Kemp P. Lewis, president of the General Alumni Association, who presided at the alumni luncheon yesterday; J. Maryon Saunders, alumni secretary, who heads up the general program for the old grads and is in charge of class reunions, and Perry E. Seagle, chief Commencement marshal.

In the center is pictured the Old Well with Old East dormitory in the background, the latter being one of the oldest college buildings in the South.

'31 ENDS CAREER WITH CLASS DAY

Horace Williams Is Speaker at Senior Prayers Saturday Morning in Gerrard.

Horace Williams, beloved philosopher of many generations, at class day exercises which opened the University's commencement program, used two simple but meanful little words, breadth and depth, in preaching to the outgoing seniors of the University, in one of the most inspiring speeches a graduating class has ever had the opportunity to hear.

Dr. Williams used a tree as illustration of his main point. He said that this tree alone of all its brothers and sisters stood the storm. It had depth and breadth, but he said the human need for both these philosophies is much more true.

The speaker used illustrations from the past, going back to Abraham, father of the Jews. He stood steadfast against all disappointments and dangers, ready to sacrifice his son for his faith, and Dr. Williams would put him at the head of the six men supreme in history. He mentioned George Washington first, and next praised Aycock, great educational governor of this state, who in his student days here cried out at the Phi assembly: "Do you think I would violate my principles to be elected to an office?"

Coming closer home, Dr. Williams stated: "Knowledge makes for breadth, religion for depth. North Carolina is tremendously interested in breadth, but what of depth?"

And then the speaker addressed the seniors before him. "You won't be called on to fight the fight that Washington, Abra-

(Continued on last page)

FIRST OF GERMAN CLUB DANCES TO BE GIVEN TODAY

Guy Lombardo and His Royal Canadians Will Play for Six Dances and a Concert.

Climaxing the spring social season at the University, the annual German Club dance finals will get under way tonight with the formal dance in the Tin Can.

Six dances and a concert will comprise the program. Tomorrow morning from 11 to 1 o'clock a dansante will be given to be followed by another dansante from 4 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon. The ball managers' and marshals' ball will be given tomorrow evening and will be led by Holmes Davis, chief marshal, with Miss Ruth Davis of Wilmington and Cooper Person, chief ball manager, with Miss Frances Person of Pikeville.

Two Dances Thursday

The program for Thursday includes a morning dance from 11 to 1 o'clock, a concert from 3 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon and the final ball in the evening.

Leaders for the final ball will be William Boylan Snow, Asheville, with Miss Sara Dorsett, Salisbury; John Bullock, Rocky Mount, with Miss Kate Jenkins, Atlanta; and Will Yarborough, Louisburg, with Miss Elizabeth Nunn, New Bern.

During the figure of the final ball the present officers of the German Club will turn over the regalia to the newly-elected officials. The present officers are William Boylan Snow, Asheville, president; John Bullock, Rocky Mount, vice-president; and Will Yarborough, Louisburg, secretary-treasurer. The executive committee is composed of Mar-

(Continued on last page)

COLUMBIA GIVES GRAHAM DEGREE

Davidson College Also Confers Doctor of Laws Upon University President.

President Frank Graham was this last week honored by two honorary Doctor of Laws degrees. One was given by Columbia University and Davidson college conferred the second.

The degree from Columbia was one of the four which that University conferred this year. The ceremony took place last Tuesday. Charles Sears Baldwin, who presented Dr. Graham for the degree, said of him: "Native of North Carolina; graduated from the University of North Carolina with the class of '09 and made Master of Arts at Columbia in 1916; at once taking a position of leadership through wealth of personality, high intellectual ability, strong convictions, unbounded energy and exceptional executive capacity; a thinking and an active American liberal; now trusted and admired president of that university whose origin is to be found in the provisions of the notable constitution of North Carolina which was written in the year of the Declaration of the Nation's Independence."

Davidson college presented the president with the fourth degree conferred upon him this season last Wednesday. President Lingle read this citation: "Son of Mecklenburg county, North Carolina, that cradle of human liberty. A lover and servant of your fellow men. An advocate of the right and liberty of men in all walks of life. A true patriot and educator, president of the University of North Carolina."

Two other degrees were given

(Continued on last page)

Board of Trustees Will Meet Today

The principal meeting of the board of trustees of the University at which business will be transacted will be at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Bingham hall auditorium.

A special meeting of the board will convene at 10 o'clock this morning for the purpose of ratifying degrees which are to be conferred in Memorial hall at the Commencement exercises. This meeting is also in Bingham.

MANY OLD GRADS RETURN TO HILL FOR ALUMNI DAY

President Graham Makes Principal Address at Luncheon In Swain Hall.

Alumni of the University, more than 500 of them, assembled yesterday in greater numbers than for any commencement in the last three years, brought back to the campus definite word that the people of the state would be ever grateful that the trustees, just a year ago, ignored the protest of Frank Porter Graham that he did not want the job and draft him for the presidency.

President Graham was the recipient of ovations wherever he appeared. At the alumni reunions yesterday morning and at the alumni luncheon later in the day, the old grads sprang to their feet and greeted him with thunderous applause when it was announced that he would speak.

"Those who know him best love him most," President Kemp P. Lewis of the General Alumni Association declared in introducing him at the alumni luncheon, and the crowd roared its approval. And not long after that Senator Cameron Morrison and Josephus Daniels heaped boquets upon the new president.

President Graham, who made the principal address at the alumni luncheon, which was attended by a crowd that filled Swain hall, said that the University community had accepted in good spirit the 10 per cent cut in faculty salaries voted by the General Assembly.

"That 10 per cent reduction cuts across the arteries and veins of a great University, but we will take it in good sportsmanship and do the best we can to hold on for a better day.

"We have been assured on responsible authority that the University will actually get the $721,000 which the General Assembly appropriated and not suffer the horizontal cuts of the past two years. We mean to use the additional funds to repair and restore where there is danger of greatest waste."

"The fight for education this year was a common fight for all state institutions and public schools. For the people of the state go up or down with the public schools. I know of no man who is going to have a more trying task in the next two years than Superintendent Allen."

Josephus Daniels in his address said that President Graham's speech before the appropriations committee in Raleigh, when he rose from a sick bed to plead the cause of education, would take equal rank with the utterances of Newton Baker before the Democratic Convention in New York City and of Claude Bowers before the Democratic

(Continued on last page)

TODAY'S PROGRAM TO BE FEATURED BY BOWERS' TALK

Gov. O. Max Gardner to Award Diplomas to 364 Graduates In Memorial Hall.

The program of the 136th commencement of the University of North Carolina will be brought to a close today with the address by Claude Bowers in Memorial hall at 11 o'clock and the awarding of diplomas by Governor O. Max Gardner.

Claude Bowers is an eminent author, historian, and editor. Until its purchase by the Scripps - Howard organization, he was editor of the New York Evening World, one of America's most fearless newspapers. He is the author of several historical biographies that have attracted wide attention, including The Tragic Era, Jefferson and Hamilton, and Party Battles of the Jeffersonian Period.

Mr. Bowers has taken part in various party enterprises, and on several occasions he has been thrust prominently into the spotlight of the Democratic party. He delivered the famous "To Your Tents, O Israel" keynote address of the 1928 Democratic convention which nominated Al Smith and he was the principal speaker at the Jackson Day dinner the same year.

Governor Awards Diplomas

As has been customary the governor of the state will award the diplomas to the 364 graduates after the address. This number in the graduating class includes five doctors of laws, fifteen graduates in pharmacy, seven masters of science, and sixteen doctors of philosophy. There will be four honorary degrees presented.

At ten o'clock in the morning the U. N. C. news reel will be again shown in the Carolina theatre. This movie shows pictures of former days in Chapel Hill. At 10:30 the academic procession forms in front of the alumni building, and with the band playing in front of Memorial hall, the faculty and graduates will file into the building.

STRONG FACULTY IN LAW SCHOOL DURING SUMMER

Two Supreme Court Justices and Several Specialists to Supplement Regular Faculty.

The summer law school will open the first of two terms June 15 with a faculty that will show two Supreme Court justices and several nationally prominent specialists supplementing the local teaching staff.

During the first term, June 15 to July 22, Professor Richard Powell, Columbia university, will teach trusts; Justice George W. Connor, North Carolina Supreme Court, constitutional law; Professor William R. Vance, Yale university, insurance; and Professor M. T. Van Hecke and F. B. McCall, of the University will teach personal property and common law pleading, respectively.

During the second term, July 25 to August 29, Percy W. Phillips, Washington, D. C., former member of the United States Board of Tax Appeals, will teach federal taxation; Professor Roscoe B. Turner, Yale,

(Continued on page three)

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays. Entered as Second Class matter at the post office at Chapel Hill, N. C., under Act of March 3, 1879.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $4.00 for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

Editor ..... Jack Dungan
Mng. Ed. (this issue) Bill McKee
Bus. Mgr. ..... Pat Patterson

Editorial Assistants

Charles Rose — Don Shoemaker
Alden Stahr — Tom Walker

Business Assistants

R. D. McMillan — J. W. Long

Tuesday, June 9, 1931

University Needs Twenty Million Dollars

The most solemn University day of the year has arrived. Four years of scholastic concentration have produced once again hundreds of men on whom the greatest institution of the social order is to place its stamp by conferring its approval upon gowned figures who will march in classic shades bowing before their Alma Mater and receiving their last blessing before launching themselves into the sea of life. It is a solemn day for the State of North Carolina, for her future rests truly in the hands of these—the new leaders of that great commonwealth.

Old Grads by scores have returned this week to rekindle here the flames of intellectual fires. The class of twenty and the class of nineteen hundred worship alike before the altar of that great goddess—the University of North Carolina Spirit.

This is the day when every heart beats with a quickened sentiment, when every mind remembers with gratitude the great debt that it owes to its Alma Mater.

The love of institutions is the predominant love of man. He fights for and supports his family, his church, his community, his government, and his schools.

Sentiment and this institutional love have their justification and they are even essential to their very existence. However, thought, unless it be father to act, is none but hypocritical gesture. The University, crippled by budgeteers and an economic hysteria, faces its greatest crisis. It can not go forward as a pioneer in a new civilization, or even hold its present ground in its battle with the forces of intolerance and ignorance without an unprecedented loyalty on the part of all of its sons risen to power and affluence by their having been trained here.

Many have said, "What can I do?" Their memory has recalled to them days when sanitation was a novelty here, when hardship was the usual thing and education was an ordeal, and they can now see in the Greater University of North Carolina such improved state that there appears to be no further possibility of growth.

But the world as a whole has proceeded with a rapidity which is so stupendous that its full implications will not be made aware until we have greater perspective. Growth and continual growth is essential to a university, and that university which does not lead the entire social order does nothing but fetter society and had best be abolished.

From twenty to twenty-five millions of dollars are required in addition to that which the state by taxation can appropriate within the decade beginning today.

Inadequate loan funds will force hundreds of undergraduates, deserving an equal opportunity with those who receive degrees today, to cease their education.

There should be established capital enough to provide thirty $500 scholarships yearly to undergraduates, these scholarships to be bestowed in exceptional cases determined by examination and record.

A half million dollar gymnasium is most urgently needed, as well as a better equipped and surrounded dining hall and cafeteria.

Graham Memorial, in its entirety, will require two million dollars more. In this building should be housed all of the alumni activities, as well as those of the student body and faculty. A swimming pool, hotel-rooms for conventions and visiting alumni, a low-priced motion-picture theatre, and an infinite number of things could be provided.

For years the salary scale of instruction here has been so low that men of great ability have had to move on to other campi because of increases offered them. This has caused department after department to be wrecked in part in whole. Once depleted of its best men, it takes years and even decades to come back to the position once occupied. A retirement schedule for faithful teachers should be worked out at once.

A million dollar chapel in which could be adequately stimulated a genuine spiritual atmosphere, is something which has been needed here for generations.

Every student should be able to participate in intra-mural athletics of the type he best likes. Healthy bodies create healthy and thinking minds. Insufficient funds make intramurals sporadic.

New-Dorms and other dormitories need immediate repairs and even remodeling.

The library under the new appropriations can no longer carry on its work of educating the state. Permanent capital is required to perpetuate this finish single institution in the state.

The older men shake their heads and rue these latter days of insufficient leadership. Higher education is gradually being dragged down to the mediocre level. Leadership can not be cultivated in that fashion. An honors-college of carefully selected and self-disciplined men should be inaugurated at once. To enjoy the great prosperity which must surely belong to this state in the near future the artistic senses of the people must be cultivated. And the fountain head from which these blessings must flow must be a fine-arts school established here.

These are things which require the philanthropy of grateful and public-spirited sons of this University. Then, there is that great majority of the group who have not risen above the three to five-thousand dollar a year level. This is nevertheless still their University, and they have the right to contribute sums regardless of how small. For them exists that great institution—the Alumni Loyalty Fund. It is their privilege and their duty to aid in the continuance of the good thing they have had here.

Not In the Lime Light

Just now the seniors are very much in the limelight. They are being graduated; they are beginning life, they are going out into the world! But what about their forgotten fellows who have been out in that same "world" perhaps for many years?

Where a few hundred seniors have reached their mythical goal no doubt a few thousand started in the lower grades together. These thousands gradually dwindled as the chaff of the original crop was blown away by the winds of adversity, chance, and just plain dumbness. The lime light plays on those who had both the opportunity and the perseverance to keep on going to school for sixteen years or more.

Where are all these others who were at the starting gun in first grade? These are our mill workers and farmers and small business men, who make our clothes and grow our food and run the corner grocery. Many of them are married and have children by the time a senior is through learning not to marry too young. They may not be in the lime light but they are serving a purpose in society as the lintels for the superstructure which the college graduate is expected to raise.

Some people say that college spoils a lot of good barbers and masons, but aren't there already enough of the latter? Consider the depression. The mortality among students is already too great, and a college education certainly is no detriment, no matter what vocation the student may pursue.

Those who are not in the lime light at commencement are vastly in the majority, but we hope they do not have to serve their social function in vain. They expect these seniors to beat them at the game of living, in fact, they are going to help them do it. The future alone can tell whether or not the seniors live up to their expectations.—A.J.S.

Taking Inventory

Now that the four years of college life is over here at the University, each senior looks back and takes inventory of those things which he has done here which will help him in making a success of himself when he is out in the world. He enumerates the organizations and activities in which he has participated, and also takes into consideration how many courses he has "gotten off" and the number of times that he has made the honor roll. The offices which he has held are also placed on the asset side of the ledger.

But the question arises as to just which one, or ones, of these accomplishments will serve him in good stead when he is out in business making his own living. His being president of some organization will probably be considered as training for making him a good executive, or a treasurership will be counted as a foundation for a future banker. He might come to the conclusion that since he took part in one or two political campaigns on the campus, then he is certain to become one of the country's future political leaders. All of these offices and experiences may in a small way be able to aid the graduate in later life. But these are not the most important things.

No matter how many times a man has made the honor roll, or how high his office was in Phi Beta Kappa, or how many presidencies he held, or how many courses he passed, or how many publications he has worked on, unless he has developed a good character and an ability to make friends, his "book larnin' " will be of no value to him whatsoever. If through his entire four years here at the University he has buried his head in books and has made no friends or developed himself in no other way except by his books, his college education has brought him no return.

The friends and the character which he has made for himself while here will go with him throughout the rest of his life. Some slight changes might be made in his character, but when he is old and grey-headed he will possess the same basic character that he had when he graduated from college. He will also probably go out and make other friends, but those which he made during his college days will be the ones which will be with him until his death.

The name that each senior has made for himself with his fellow classmates has been written in such indelible ink that the wear and tear of years will not dull its legibility.

Several decades hence when one of the present senior class is running for some office or applying for a promotion, the question will arise as to what type of fellow he is. Immediately his classmates will say, "When I knew him in college, he was this way . . ." And unless he is known to have changed considerably since leaving the University, his old college character will be the one which will remain attached to him by his classmates.

Aside from this, unless he has cultivated an ability to make and keep friends, he will soon awake to find himself in an unknown world. If a fellow who has been a "book worm" in college goes out into business, his eyes will soon be opened to the fact that he does not know how to get along with his fellows. No matter how brilliant a mind he may possess, unless he has friends or an ability to make them, his entire life will be one long, dark, lonesome drudgery.

Now that college days are over, those graduates who will be the leaders of the next generation will be such, not because they were a member of so many organizations in college, but because while here they developed a character which was to be the main force in carrying them to their high places in the world as the leaders of their state and nation.—C.G.R.

TO LEAD DANCES THIS WEEK

Pictured above are the five attractive young ladies who will assist their escorts in leading the two figures at the German Club's dance finals, to be played by Guy Lombardo and His Royal Canadians in the Tin Can starting tonight.

For the figure at the ball managers' and marshals' ball tomorrow evening, Miss Ruth Davis, of Wilmington, will be with Holmes Davis, of Wilmington, chief marshal, and Miss Frances Person, of Pikeville, will be with Cooper Person, also of Pikeville, who is chief ball manager.

At the final ball culminating the dance set Thursday evening, the figure will be led by Miss Sara Dorsett of Salisbury, with William B. Snow, of Asheville, president of the German Club; assisted by Miss Kate Jenkins of Atlanta, with John Bullock, of Rocky Mount, vice-president; and by Miss Elizabeth Nunn of New Bern, with William H. Yarborough, Jr., of Louisburg, secretary-treasurer.

McCarthy To Give Courses On Tour

The annual summer geology tour for college students, which is being sponsored by the extension division, will cover approximately 9,000 miles this year having begun last Sunday and continuing through August 4.

The tour is being conducted by the Southern Tours, Inc., of Chapel Hill. The extension division will have charge of the educational part of the program.

Dr. Gerald McCarthy of the University geology department has been secured to give instruction on the trip. He will teach two courses, one on the introduction to physical geology and the other on the physical and economic geology of the United States.

J. B. Whitener, superintendent of the schools of Maiden, is to manage the trip, and the party will travel in small busses and a few private cars. The tour this year will include such places as Pikes Peak, Grand Canyon, Los Angeles, and the Yosemite and Yellowstone National Parks.

Radical: A conservative out of a job. — Richmond News-Leader.

Cheek-Zappa

The marriage of Miss Nelle Rives Cheek, of Chapel Hill, and Francis Vincent Zappa, of Baltimore, Md., has just been announced. The ceremony, which took place in Greensboro, was performed in the Asheboro Street Baptist church by Rev. J. Lester Lane, pastor of the church on March 14.

Want a perfect tan?

Wear this smart

SPALDING SUN SUIT

THIS alluring Spalding Suit offers open house to the healthy rays of the sun. It's cut w-a-a-y down. And the straps are specially designed to stay on your shoulders no matter how active you get. Special yarn and spring-needle knitting give 4 inches extra stretch. Snug, figure-flattering fit. Fast colors. A beautiful suit. And a superb value at $5.50

Randolph - McDonald Inc.

University Produces Seven Championship Teams In Year

Tennis, Boxing, Track, and Wrestling Teams Win State Titles, While Baseball Nine Annexes Tri-State Honors; Wrestlers, Fencers, and Indoor Trackmen Take Southern Titles.

With seven championship teams out of eleven sports, the 1930-1931 athletic season was a banner one for the University. In tennis, boxing, track, and wrestling, state championship teams were produced, while Southern Conference titles were won by the wrestling and indoor track teams. Coach Ashmore's nine took first honors in the Tri-State league and the cross-country team won both of its state dual meets. The fencers took an unofficial southern title. Though championship teams were not produced in football, golf, and basketball, these three won a large percent of their engagements and enjoyed a moderately successful season.

Led by the two sophomore stars, Bryan Grant and Wilmer Hines, the Tar Heel tennis legions swept all opposition in both the South and North to lay claim to a national net title. Every southern opponent was turned back by shut-out scores and Georgetown, Princeton, New York University, Army, Yale, Harvard, and Brown suffered defeat at the hands of the Tar Heel racquet wielders. Hinkey Hendlin and Ed Yeomans represented the University in the Southern Conference tournament in New Orleans and brought home the doubles title. It is probable that the team will enter the forthcoming National Intercollegiates at the Merion Cricket club, Haverford, Pennsylvania, June 22-27. The national press has picked the Tar Heels as favorites.

Five victories, three defeats and two ties were recorded by Coach Collins' gridiron aggregation. Wake Forest, State, Maryland, V. P. I., and Virginia tasted defeat at the hands of the Carolinians while Georgia, Tennessee, and Davidson were victorious, the latter two by narrow margins. Duke and Georgia Tech played the Tar Heels to ties. The Carolina - Georgia Tech encounter was picked by Grantland Rice as one of the four outstanding grid battles of the year and was filmed as such for his famed Sportlight.

A 14-4 victory over Duke opened the season for the University golfers. Virginia went down by the lop-sided score of 18-9, and the season ended with a 3-3 deadlock with William and Mary.

In a crowded gymnasium, packed to the rafters with shouting Carolina and Duke fans, the Tar Heel mitmen wrested the state boxing title from the Blue Devils. The victory came in the final bout and by a one-point margin. The Tar Heels went on to the Conference meet at Charlottesville and appeared from the outset as one of the likeliest winners of team honors, but only managed to take third place.

A state title and fourth place in the Conference meet at Birmingham came to the Tar Heel trackmen, who began the season with a series of overwhelming victories over state teams. Penn State was the first stumbling block, downing Carolina by 74 2-5 to 51 3-5. Injuries wrecked havoc with the lineup for the Birmingham meet, but Coach Fetzer's men, defending champions, managed to take fourth place in a close meet.

Cancellation at the last minute halted plans for the annual Conference wrestling tournament, so the University had to be content to lay a three-way claim to the title along with V. M. I. and Washington and Lee. A defeat at the hands of the strong Navy team was the only setback suffered by the wrestlers although they overcame Princeton, conceded to be one of the strongest teams in the East.

Rated as a possible second or third, the Tar Heel indoor track team reversed dope and captured the indoor title at the annual Southern Conference games held this year in the Tin Can.

Finishing an up-and-down season by nearly eliminating Maryland, ultimate winner, in the Southern Conference cage tournament at Atlanta, the Tar Heels concluded a fairly successful season in basketball. Competition was stiff and Coach Ashmore's men were subjected to long and hard grinds in which teams were engaged every night for a week or more.

With a conference rating of .800, Carolina's baseball aggregation captured the Tri-State title and developed into a formidable nine after a poor start. The annual Greensboro affair saw Virginia downed by a count of 15-4 in a drizzling rain. The team hit a good .309 for the season with Paul Dunlap leading the list with a .407 mark.

The cross country team successfully turned back its two opponents in dual meets, and handicapped by injuries, only managed to take fourth place in the Conference meet in Kenan stadium.

Led by Hinkey Hendlin, the University fencing team captured an unofficial southern title in a tournament with V. M. I., College of Charleston, and several other Dixie institutions in the Tin Can.

Tulane and Carolina were picked for first place in the Southern Conference rating as having won championships in the most events, at the close of the season.

Co-eds at the University of Kentucky have formed a rifle team. We can remember way back when a girl trained for matrimony by learning to cook. —New York Evening Post.

What Bulgaria needs is a government like ours, says a political writer. It seems a pretty remedy.—Punch.

1932 Track Leader

Lionel Weil, a 440 yard man and a member of the star relay team, has been selected by his team mates to captain the Carolina track team for the coming year. He is a consistent runner, and at the Southern Conference meet in Birmingham last month broke the University record in the quarter mile by running it in 49.9 seconds.

TAR HEELS FACE HARD SCHEDULE IN GRID SEASON

Vanderbilt, Florida, Tennessee, And Georgia Promise to Be Major Threats on '31 Card.

Confronted with as stiff a schedule as any in recent years, the Tar Heel gridmen will be hard put to register ten wins out of ten engagements next fall. Vanderbilt and Florida have been added to the Carolina schedule in place of V. P. I. and Maryland, and both play host to the Blue and White on succeeding week-ends. Both Vandy and Florida achieved brilliant records last year, the 'Gators defeating Georgia Tech, who tied with the Tar Heels, by a margin of more than forty points.

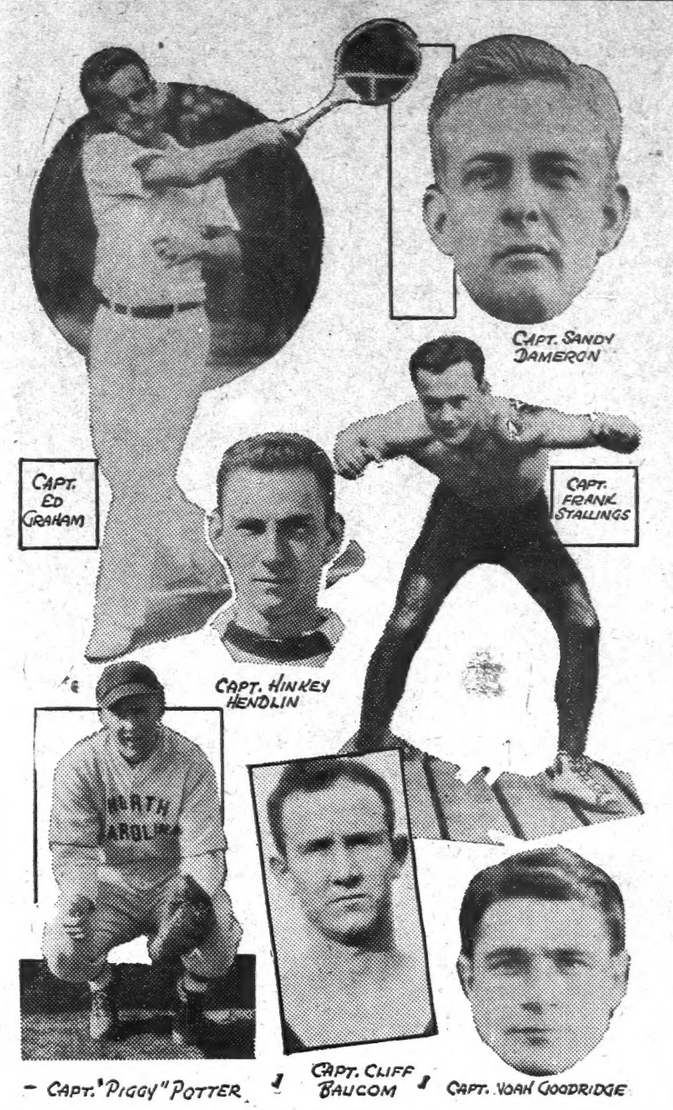
With the rookie veterans of the 1931 line back as well as an array of excellent ball carriers, Carolina's chances to score another successful season are good. Though three encounters were dropped and two tied last season, the green line rose on occasions and demonstrated its ability, crowning the season with a slashing 41-0 win over Virginia. Though Captain Nash, Magner, Wyrick, and others will be lost in the ball toting department, a number of sophomore and junior backs will be out to replace them.

Wake Forest will again be the first foe, meeting the Tar Heels here September 28. On following Saturdays come Vanderbilt and Florida, with Georgia invading Kenan stadium October 10. Tennessee meets Carolina on home territory October 24, and Coach Collins' charges journey to Raleigh to engage State the last day in October. Georgia Tech at Atlanta November 7; Davidson here on the following Saturday; Duke at Duke November 21; and Virginia here November 2, conclude the schedule.

The month of October will see the Tar Heels facing the stiffest grind in the entire season. Vanderbilt, Florida, Georgia, Tennessee, and N. C. State will be foes on successive Saturdays, with the first four rated as the toughest array of opposition scheduled for some time. Both Georgia and Tennessee registered wins over the Carolinians last year, and with the same calibre of material back next fall should prove to be threats again.

Seniors Charged To Strive for Liberty

The annual senior vespers Sunday which take place under Davie Poplar were under the direction of Rev. Alfred S. Lawrence of the Chapel of the Cross. "Parson" Moss, who has conducted this twilight service for many years and was scheduled to do so again this year, was in Atlantic City on account of ill health.



Rev. Lawrence in his talk pointed to the long line of University alumni who have gone out before to serve their state and declared that Carolina has "given its sons an ideal in service for freedom." He charged the seniors to "go out from the campus and strive for liberty.

"The University has widened its scope," the preacher said, "but the ideal is the same—service to one's community, state and nation in the cause of freedom."

"But in every generation we have to fight to keep the liberty we have, and also to widen its scope. Religious liberty was threatened only a few years back. Freedom of speech is only partial. Economic freedom has begun to slip away. Not yet in practice are we all equal before the law."

Names like Murphey, Graham, Morehead, Wiley, Aycock, Alderman, Page, and McIver were recalled to show how this ideal of liberty directing its founders has made it natural for the University to produce sons dedicated to the cause of advancing freedom—a tradition nobly upheld.

SEVEN CAROLINA CAPTAINS

Shooting at the fine records of Tar Heel teams of other years, seven University of North Carolina teams won ten team championships—state, southern, or national—during the year just ending. To the fine leadership of the seven captains pictured above goes much of the credit for the splendid record, which is even better than that of last year, when the Carolina teams took nine championships.

Details of Tenth Annual Coaching School Announced

Program, dates, and courses for the University's tenth annual coaching school have been announced by Secretary E. R. Rankin.

The school will be conducted from August 17 through August 29. It is being held, Secretary Rankin said, "in response to a rapidly growing demand for teachers who are well qualified to serve as athletic directors and coaches in the different branches of athletics."

R. A. Fetzer, director of athletics at the University, will again be in charge. The members of the regular coaching staff of the University will be associated with him as instructors and will offer courses in the coaching of football, basketball, baseball, track, tennis, boxing, wrestling, and in athletic training and conditioning. The schedule for each day will include lectures and discussions during the morning hours and practice and demonstrations in the afternoons and, to some extent, in the evenings.

A total of 487 men have been in attendance for one or more years since the school was organized in 1922, Secretary Rankin said. "High tribute has been paid to the work of the school by former members," he added. "They have derived lasting benefit not only from the instruction given but from the contacts afforded by the association and interchange of ideas of men in a similar line of work from various sections of the country. Ninety-three school officials and athletic directors, representing forty-two colleges and universities and thirteen states, attended last year's school."

STRONG FACULTY IN LAW SCHOOL DURING SUMMER

(Continued from first page)

banking; Justice W. J. Brogden, North Carolina Supreme Court, code pleading and practice; and Professors M. S. Breckenridge and Albert Coates of the University will teach agency and criminal law, respectively.

Qualifications of Faculty

Professor Vance is the author of "Vance on Insurance" and a national authority in his field, as Professor Powell is in the field of trusts and Professor Turner in that of banking. Mr. Phillips is a former member of a prominent law firm of tax specialists and of the United States Board of Tax Appeals. Justices Brogden and Connor have taught in the summer school for the last four years, flavoring the statutes and the reports with picturesque experiences in North Carolina judicial history, and with practical advice as to retaining approval of clients, persuading the judges of the rightness of a case, and winning verdicts.

Announcement has been made that students may enter the law school for the first time this summer and pursue a full course of beginning subjects, which means that the student may complete the three years work for a degree by continuous attendance for two years and an additional summer.

The University's summer law school has become the largest in this section and one of the strongest in the country, to which students are attracted from many other states.

MORE THAN 2,000 MEN PARTICIPATE IN INTRAMURALS

Twelve Organized Leagues With 244 Teams Contest in Seven Sports.

More than 2,000 students, over 700 a quarter, competed in the University's seven-sport intramural athletics program during the scholastic year which has just closed.

The wideness of participation, and many other interesting facts came out when G. E. Shepard, director of the special intramural athletics department, made his yearly report recently.

The Alpha Tau Omega fraternity won the Intramural Cup for most points scored in all sports, while Alan Smith, Asheville star of the A. T. O.'s and prominent young golfer, won the individual cup.

Organized leagues, twelve of them, were conducted, for 1,259 contests in tag football, cross country, basketball, fencing, boxing, baseball and tennis, with these drawing a total of 244 teams and 2,030 individual participants during the year.

The All-Campus tag football team, picked by Assistant Directors Mac Gray and Wallace Shelton, had Anderson, Beta, and Eubanks, Law School, ends; Purser, New Dorms, and Sutton, Question Marks, tackles; Holderness, Dekes, and Stone, Betas, guards; Slate, Phi Gams, center; Smith, A. T. O., quarter; Longest, Aycock, and Bethune, Ruffin, halfbacks; and Riggs, Ruffin, fullback.

Making the honor roll for the fraternity basketball league were Peacock and Moore, Phi Delta Thetas; Smith, A. T. O.; Feit and Purser, Sigma Zetas; Eagles, Kappa Sigma; J. Phipps and Brandt, Kappa Alphas; Whitley, Sigma Epsilon; and J. Dixon, Pi Kappa Phi.

On the honor roll for the dormitory league were Gaddy, Mangum; Dunlap, Crouch and French, Best House; Royster, Ruffin; Stuart and Smith, Question Marks; Dinstman, Graham; Umstead, New Dorms; and Roberts, Ranson House.

The mythical All-Fraternity baseball team included Brooker, A. T. O., c; Brooks, Sigma Zeta, 1b; Bethune, Kappa Alpha, 2b; Eagles, Kappa Sigma, ss; Satterfield, Kappa Sigma, 3b; White of Kappa Sigma, Daniels of Kappa Alpha and Smith of A. T. O., outfielders; and Pitchers McNeill, Kappa Alpha; McLaughlin, A. T. O.; and Fine, T. E. P.

The All - Dormitory nine showed Smith, Stewart, and Crouch, all of Best House, at c, 1b and 2b; J. C. and J. S. Johnson, of Graham, at ss and 3b; Cox of New Dorms, Barham of Graham and Hampton of New Dorms in the outfield; and Scarboro of Best House, LeGore of Graham and Scott of New Dorms, pitchers.

There would not be so many divorces sought for trivial reasons if there were not so many marriage licenses sought for trivial reasons. — Louisville Times.

According to pictures of the new Spanish president, the barber of Seville doesn't seem to have much standing with the new government. — Brunswick Pilot.

Congratulations To the Class of '31 . . .

We invite you to visit our shop anytime today and receive a FREE Shoe Shine.

UNIVERSITY SHOE SHOP

PHONE 3016

HALL IS PACKED SUNDAY MORNING TO HEAR POTEAT

(Continued from first page)

Reverend Poteat said that although "we have come twenty centuries since the greatest liberal of all, Jesus, rebuked the tyrant of selfishness in a little Roman province, it seems that the tyrant of selfishness is still abroad in this great nation we love. Is it being smitten by the liberal mind? Look about you and see how we who boast of liberal minds, acquiesce in error!

Liberal Minds Today?

"The war department threatens us still with an anonymous foe and last week tortured the blue heavens with the roar of its birdlings. The last congress appropriated ten billion dollars for various objects and the army and navy were beneficiaries to the tune of more than seven hundred millions. If there is still a widespread reliance on military strength it needs to be instructed and corrected; if in order to become a citizen of a country that has by law renounced war as an instrument of national policy one must swear to bear arms in any war, and thereby in advance abdicate to the government one's right to think and prove and smite, in God's name it needs rebuke!

"The iniquity which marshals a bread-line at one end of a street and the stupidity that throws a million-dollar debutante party at the other end needs the reproaches of liberal minds.

"Bumper wheat crops in the West and starving people in the East; the makers of shoes barefoot, and construction gangs that have built our towering temples of trade evicted from beneath their squalid roofs; millions for cruisers, and not a federal cent for food; it reminds one of the classic remark of an inmate of an insane asylum: 'I'm not crazy, I'm Napoleon'."

"If—Prove—Smite"

"Yes, pride and selfishness are still abroad. What is the true liberal to say? Will he pass through open-mindedness to proof, and stop short of smiting? One needs no great penetration to see the rising tide of impatience and resentment against obscurantism, log-rolling and inaction in federal and state assemblies. There is frank flouting of traditions, and so-called liberals are on their feet, thinking their own thoughts. And they will surely push through to power. They will have enthusiasm, independence, intelligence. Will they have the courage to smite? Or will our restlessness settle into the complacency of middle-age? Not if we hear the voice of Jesus say: 'If—prove—smite,' 'if—prove—smite'."

Fuller-Donnelly Wed In Surprise Ceremony

Miss Cleora Estelle Fuller, of Wake Forest, a secretary of the University division of the department of conservation and development, was married in Asheboro last Wednesday morning to Grant Lester Donnelly, a native of Ashe county, who is now an instructor in the medical school of the University. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's brother-in-law, Dr. Orris Tillman, who officiated.

Mrs. Donnelly is the daughter of William Fuller of Wake Forest. She formerly attended Louisburg college. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Donnelly of Ashe county. He received his A.B. degree from the University in 1928 and since then he has been studying medicine.

The wedding was a surprise affair, only a few intimate friends being present. Mr. and Mrs. Donnelly will be at home in Chapel Hill after June 15.

Reception and Ball Close Alumni Day

The President's reception and Alumni Ball took place in the Tin Can last night as the closing event of alumni day. The reception started at 9 o'clock and the ball an hour later.

In the receiving line with President Frank Graham and his sister, Miss Kate Graham were the University deans, directors of schools and colleges, and a number of administrative officers and their wives. The guests were introduced to the receiving line by R. B. House, executive secretary of the University, and J. Maryon Saunders, alumni secretary.

A special feature of the ball was the alumni figure led by the alumni and student marshals. Perry E. Seagle was chief alumni marshal, with Oscar A. Hamilton, William T. Joyner, Charles R. Thomas, and Edgar Ralph Rankin assisting him. Jack Wardlaw's orchestra furnished the music for the dancing. A large number of patronnesses were present.

FIRST OF GERMAN CLUB DANCES TO BE GIVEN TODAY

(Continued from first page)

ion Cowper, Kinston, chairman; Aubrey Parsley, Wilmington; George Newman, Greensboro; Henry House, Weldon; John Park, Raleigh; and Steve Lynch, Atlanta, Georgia.

New Officers

Those receiving the regalia will be Tom Follin, Winston-Salem, president; Steve Lynch, Atlanta, vice-president; and John Park, Raleigh, secretary-treasurer; Milton Barber, Raleigh, assistant secretary-treasurer; Archie Davis, Winston-Salem, chairman of the executive committee; Holmes Davis, Wilmington; Oscar Dresslar, Nashville, Tenn.; Harry Finch, Wilson; and Beverly Moore, Greensboro.

All of the dances will be in the Tin Can which will be elaborately decorated. Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians will play for the complete set. Lombardo played for the finals last year, and with reports from New York City where he has been playing at the Roosevelt Hotel, indicating that his orchestra is even more popular this year, the German Club is expecting an unusually large attendance.

Those in charge of the chaperone arrangements will be Miss Kate Graham, sister of President Frank Graham; Mrs. W. S. Bernard, Mrs. J. B. Bullitt, Mrs. R. D. W. Connor, Mrs. T. J. Wilson, and Mrs. C. T. Woollen.

Other Events

In addition to the German Club dances the Order of the Gorgon's Head will give a dinner dance Thursday night. A number of the fraternities are planning to have house parties, including Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Pi Kappa Phi, Phi Delta Theta, Sigma Chi, Kappa Alpha, Kappa Sigma, Zeta Psi, Alpha Tau Omega, and Phi Kappa Sigma.

COLUMBIA GIVES GRAHAM DEGREE

(Continued from first page)

President Graham this spring, both by southern colleges. On the occasion of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of Birmingham-Southern College in Alabama on March 17, the degree of Doctor of Laws was bestowed upon him. At this celebration Dr. Graham spoke on "The Church and the State University."

Catawba College conferred its honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Laws upon the University President May 27. Dr. Graham also delivered the literary address at the college commencement.

To Receive Honorary Degrees

The four men to receive honorary degrees from the University this morning are Dr. W. P. Few (upper left) president of Duke University; M. T. Plyler (upper right) editor of the North Carolina Christian Advocate in Greensboro, who secured his A.M. here in 1905; Michael Hoke (lower left) specialized orthopaedic surgeon of Atlanta, Georgia, who graduated here in 1893 with a degree of B.E.; and Claude G. Bowers, noted biographer and editor. All of the above are to be given the degrees of L.L.D. except M. T. Plyler, who is to be bestowed with a D.D. degree.

Two Structures On Campus Are In Process Of Being Completed

Graham Memorial Union Building Will Be Used Starting Next Fall And the Patterson-Morehead Memorial Bell Tower Will Be Dedicated at Thanksgiving.

Two new structures are now in the process of construction here on the campus, and according to the present plans will be finished in the early part of next fall. The new Graham Memorial, which is being completed through the material aid of an anonymous alumnus, will serve as a union building for student organizations and activities. The Morehead-Patterson bell tower, the second structure being built, is located on a knoll between the library and Kenan Stadium and is to contain a chime composed of twelve bells the total weight of which will be 14,300 pounds.

Bell Tower

The new Morehead-Patterson bell tower, a gift of John Motley Morehead, '91, and Rufus L. Patterson, '93, was first begun in the early part of this winter, and will be completed in time for dedication before the Carolina-Virginia football game next Thanksgiving.

At the base of the tower is a limestone arcade twenty-five feet high surrounded by limestone pilasters. In one of the panels of this arcade will be a levanto marble tablet on which will be inlaid an ornamental bronze wreath and bronze letters of the memorial inscription. Inside the arcade will be a number of smaller bronze tablets dedicated to various members of the Morehead and Patterson families.

The main shaft of the tower rises from the center of this arcade, while at the level of the arcade roof will be a bell ringing room from which the chime is to be rung. Ninety feet above ground will be a four faced clock, nine and one-half feet in diameter with a light behind the hands and numerals to make them visible at night. Thirty feet above this clock on the fifth floor of the tower will be placed the twelve bells varying in size from 300 to 3500 pounds in weight. They are being made on the same pattern as the ones now in use at West Point.

Above this bell floor will be a circular arcade of limestone columns which are surmounted by a slate roof. This extends up to a point on which is a bronze case beacon light 170 feet from the ground.

E. K. Graham Memorial

As a memorial to the late Edward Kidder Graham, the union building was begun in the early part of 1922, but insufficient funds hindered its completion. Last fall, however, a New York alumnus donated enough money to finish work on the building, and it will be opened for use to the incoming men next year. According to the existing plans two wings will be added to the sides of the present hall some time in the future.

In order that the union might be adequately furnished and sufficiently equipped it was necessary that a fee of one dollar per quarter be charged to each student. This charge was passed upon in a campus-wide ballot recently by a vote of 806 to 74.

With the aid of the fund which will be raised by this fee it will be possible that several attractions be placed in the building, including, probably, swimming pool, bowling alley, barber shop, cafeteria, banquet rooms, organization meeting rooms, several lounge rooms, reading rooms, and a large ball room. If the present plans of the committee in charge of dividing up rooms is carried out it will mean also that rooms will be given to the four campus publications, namely, the DAILY TAR HEEL, Yackety Yack, Buccaneer, and the Carolina Magazine.

'31 ENDS CAREER WITH CLASS DAY

(Continued from first page)

ham, and Aycock fought, but I'm sure that long before you're old men, you'll face a problem of the same sort," he declared.

Urging the graduates "never to settle anything just in terms of breadth," he asked for breadth and depth, for a good tree and a good man, while declaring that he had never known an important solution of such a great problem to stand.

Again he stated, "There are two philosophies, and you need them both, for it's not safe to spread where there is no depth, and it's not fine and cultural to be deep without breadth."

Following Dr. Williams' speech in Gerrard the seniors filed out under the Davie Poplar, where the class day exercises took place. Pat Patterson, president of the graduating class was in charge of the program.

The class history was given by Beverly Moore. He said that the class saw the library, Kenan stadium, "I" dormitory, new Memorial hall, Bingham hall, the music building, and other units added, by public or private funds, and many others remodeled. During its time, it saw campus institutions changed, co-eds allowed to join the Phi, and the Tar Heel become a daily. It took an important part in campus activities, and made many outstanding contributions, to the Carolina-Duke sportsmanship trophy, the Human Relations Institute, the alumni loyalty fund for needy students, and the senior ball.

The class will was read by James M. Little, Alan Marshall read the class prophecy, Joe Jones, the class poem. K. C. Ramsay gave the statistics which included the fact that in 1926 the class started out 845 strong, 126 larger than any freshman class before or since. The class of '31 has been very active in campus affairs. Thirty-two made Phi Beta Kappa, fifty-four won "NC" monograms, and eleven were elected to Golden Fleece, the highest senior honor.

The seniors, in their caps and gowns, walked two by two down the senior walk through the arboretum following the exercises. The program for the day was not concluded, however, for there were band concerts, that afternoon and evening, the Mangum medal oratorical contest, and President Graham's informal reception for the seniors and their guests, with his sister, Miss Kate Graham, acting as hostess.

Ed Hamer and Clyde Dunn were the orators contesting for the Mangum Medal, which is given in memory of Willie Person Mangum by Mrs. Stephen B. Weeks and Mrs. Julian Turner. Dunn chose "The Case of Peace" as his subject, and Hamer spoke on "Forms and Meanings of Modern Religious Unrest." The name of the winner will be announced at the final exercises today by a committee of Dean W. W. Pierson, Professor Albert Coates, and Professor C. E. McIntosh.

The President's reception took place on the lawn in front of his house. Since there was no formal receiving line wives of the deans assisted Miss Graham in the entertainment of the guests, and young ladies of Chapel Hill helped with the serving.

MANY EXPECTED TO ENROLL FOR SUMMER SCHOOL

(Continued from first page)

Angeles, California, will teach a course in the deanship of girls in secondary schools.

Library Courses

The University library, with its 224,000 volumes and 3,230 periodicals, will be the laboratory for extensive library courses which will be in charge of Dr. Louis R. Wilson, University librarian.

The usual teachers' bureau will be maintained for the benefit of teachers desiring a change in position. Last summer a large number of school officials visited this bureau in search of new teachers.

Some special features of the term will be the Conference on Elementary Education, July 16-17; Third Parent-Teacher Institute, August 17-22; and a lecture series by Rabbi Moses Jacobson, August 10-14.

Social activities, to be directed by Harry F. Comer, will be under the auspices of the Y.W.-Y.M.C.A. There will be dancing in the gymnasium three or four evenings each week under the management of the social committee.

Of the 3,014 students enrolled in the summer school last year 1726 were teachers or prospective teachers. Three foreign countries and almost every state in the union were represented. More than 75 per cent of the students were residents of North Carolina, and the state represented by the second largest number was South Carolina.

This summer the faculty list includes more than thirty visiting professors who are leaders in their respective fields.

MANY OLD GRADS RETURN TO HILL FOR ALUMNI DAY

(Continued from first page)

Convention in Texas.

"That speech," said Mr. Daniels, "is the greatest speech that this generation has heard in North Carolina.

"In Frank Graham the smallest school in the remotest section has just as great a friend and supporter as has the University."

Other features of the day's program were the meeting in Gerrard presided over by Judge Francis Winston, at which reports were made by the twelve classes reuniting; the band concert and organ recital in the afternoon, and the Bingham Medal debate in Bingham hall, the winner of which will be announced this morning.

Matthew Nagel Hall and Carolina May were united in marriage in a simple ceremony which took place last Friday afternoon under the oaks on the lawn of Mrs. M. H. Stacy, dean of women.

CAROLINA THEATRE
Now Playing
Conchito Montenegro
in
'Never the Twain Shall Meet'
also
Comedy - Novelty

You Can't Enjoy Guy's Music to the Fullest With Baggy, Unpressed Clothes On.
HAVE YOUR TUXEDOS CLEANED AND PRESSED
—at—
The Carolina Dry Cleaners